Killebrew, Minnesota slugger who leads the majors in runs batted in, will be making his 11th appearance. He also was picked as an infield sub along with shortstop Jim Fregosi of California Angels and second baseman Dave Johnson of Baltimore.

John Roseboro of Minnesota and Ellie Rodriguez of Kansas City Royals were the space catchers named by manager Mayo Smith of Detroit Tigers.

'Girls, This Is A Putter!'

Mrs. Messacar explains the use of the all-important putter to (left to right) Vicky Wonnacott, Debbie Kerr, Susan Wilson, JoAnn Belanger and Lynn Kralick. They are among the 18 girls who take golf lessons at the Bay of Quinte Country Club every Wednesday morning from Mrs. Messacar.

Program Blossoms in First Year

Girls Thrive on Weekly Golf Program

An experiment by the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club has blossomed into a complete success.

The ladies' executive of the club felt that a program to help young lady golfers should be established and appointed Mrs. Flo Messacar to instruct the class.

Classes have been in progress since the beginning of May and are held each Wednesday at the golf course.

The class is made up of 18 girls between the ages of ten and 18. The first period of instruction is spent on the clubs and their use in certain situations. Then the budding girls are taken out onto the course itself where they are given practical lessons on the clubs, the course and particularly putting.

Putting is the most important part of the game according to Mrs. Messacar. "Drive for show but putt for dough," is the slogan she uses to make her point clear.

Helping Mrs. Messacar are a number of other ladies who ease the work load and offer a more personal contact with the students.

Three of the girls in the class, Cathy McDermott, Margaret O'Brien and Susan Thompson were among the competitors at the Ontario Junior Golf Championships at Woodbridge earlier this week.

Miss O'Brien proved to be a good advertisement for the instructional course. She captured the second low net award in the 36-hole junior girls' competition at Woodbridge.

Meanwhile Cathy McDermott fired two nine-hole rounds of 63 and 68 to place 15th in a field of 25 entrants. Her score was certainly not eye-catching, but it was quite remarkable when one considers that this is her first year of golfing.

"We hope to continue the program next year," said Mrs. Messacar, "because we have just laid the foundation for what we believe is a strong group of young golfers who should continue to improve.

Carew's 7th Theft of Home Helps

Twins Open Up Five Game Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Minnesota Twins dazzled Chicago White Sox with running and hitting power Wednesday for a 9-8 and 6-3 American League baseball doubleheader sweep. The double triumph moved the Twins five games ahead of second-place Oakland Athletics in the six-team Western Division.

The chief Minnesota base thief was Rod Carew, who stole home for the seventh time this season in the second inning of the first game. The theft broke the old AL record of six set in 1915 by Ty Cobb of Detroit Tigers and equalled two years later by Bobby Roth of Cleveland Indians. Carew also tied the major league mark, established by Pete Reiser of the old Brooklyn Dodgers, in 1946.

In other AL games Wednesday, Baltimore Orioles nipped Cleveland Indians 6-5 after losing their doubleheader opener 6-4, Oakland trimmed Seattle Pilots 5-1; Boston Red Sox beat New York Yankees 6-2; Detroit Tigers trimmed Washington Senators 3-0 and California Angels edged Kansas City Royals 4-2.

Rich Reese started the fireworks for the Twins with a three-run homer in the first inning of the opener, and he drove in two later runs with another homer and a single.

In the second, after Chicago scored twice in the top of the inning, Cesar Tovar singled and stole second. Pitcher Tom Hall popped a single to right, sending Tovar to third, and Ted Uhlaender beat out a bunt for a run. Carew forced Uhlaender and Reese struck out, but Harmon Killebrew walked and so did Charlie Manuel, forcing in a run.

Carew then stole home on the front end of a triple steal. The first second baseman singled with two out in the eighth, stole second and scored what proved to be the winning run on Reese's single.

Ron Hansen and Carlos May belted solo homers in the White Sox, who outhit the Twins 17-11 in the opener and 9-8 in the second game.

Two-run homers by Dick Green, Rick Monday and Sal Bando powered Oakland past Seattle and Lew Krausse tossed the losers to four hits, including Don Mincher's solo homer. The setback stretched the Pilots' losing streak to seven games.

Cardinal Winning Skein Goes Almost Unnoticed

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

While Chicago Cubs and New York Mets held most of the attention in their battle for the Eastern Division lead, St. Louis Cardinals have moved into a position to launch a possible drive toward their third consecutive National League baseball title.

Wednesday, Steve Carlton limited Philadelphia Phillies to five hits as the Cardinals posted a 5-0 win, their 11th in the last 13 games.

The victory advanced the third-place Cardinals within 9½ games of the Eastern Division leading Cubs. Chicago meanwhile fell 9-5 to second-place New York, and had their lead over the Mets sliced to 3½ games.

In other NL games Wednesday, Pittsburgh Pirates downed Montreal Expos 8-7, Cincinnati Reds outscored Atlanta Braves 10-7, Los Angeles Dodgers nipped Houston Astros 3-2 and San Francisco Giants edged San Diego Padres 4-3.

With the glare of the pennant race shining brightly on the Cubs and the Mets, the St. Louis surge has gone almost unnoticed. But the Cardinals have shaved six full games off the Cubs' lead since they started winning two weeks ago.

Lou Brock provided the batting support for Carlton against the Phillies. The fleet outfielder drove in four runs with a homer and a double.

The Cardinals cut 12 and lowered his league-leading earned-run average to 1.65.

The Mets' home runs by Tommie Agee, Al Weis and Art Shamsky to beat Chicago star pitcher Ferguson Jenkins, the Chatham, Ont. native.

Brooks Robinson singled with two out in the ninth inning to break a tie and win the second game for Baltimore, after Stan Williams had retired Curt Motton and pinch hitter Frank Robinson with the bases loaded. Motton hit a two-run homer for the Orioles and Tony Horton belted a pair of solo shots for the Indians.

It marked the second straight series in which New York had won two of three games from Chicago. The Mets have won 11 of their last 14 games keeping pace with the hot Cardinals.

Pittsburgh rallied for three runs in the ninth inning to beat the Expos. Roberto Clemente's bases-loaded, two-out hit, single drove in the Pirates' tying and lead runs. Then Richie Hebner singled another run across, giving Pittsburgh a cushion to stand off Adolfo Phillips' homer in the bottom of the ninth. Rusty Staub, Coco Laboy and Bob Bailey also homered for the Expos while Willie Stargell connected for the Pirates.

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP)—Joe Namath held a secret meeting with his New York Jets team-mates Wednesday night and was quoted as saying that the situation revolving around his retirement would be resolved by the weekend.

Word of the secret meeting came through Johnny Sample, Jets' defensive captain, who said Namath met with the players for 45 or 50 minutes.

Namath said he has been in touch with pro football commissioner Pete Rozelle for the last three or four days "and they hope to have this thing resolved by Friday or Saturday."

Reached later, Rozelle said:

"I will acknowledge that I have had private conversations with Namath for the last couple of days. Beyond that, I really couldn't say anything more at this time."

Namath announced his retirement June 8 after Rozelle told him to give up his part interest in a Manhattan restaurant allegedly frequented by gamblers or face suspension.

NEW YORK (AP) — Al Balding and George Knudson of Toronto will defend team honors for Canada in the World Cup golf competition at Singapore Oct. 2-5.

Fred Corcoran, tournament director of the International Golf Association, said today 44 nations will send two-man teams to the event. Balding is defending individual champion.

The American team will be made up of the U.S. Open winner, Orville Moody, and the PGA champion, to be decided in Dayton, Ohio, next month.

Cheesemen Help Juniors to Share of First

Richard Ellis Juniors took advantage of their elders Wednesday night.

The Juniors seized the opportunity to climb into a three-way tie for the Commercial Softball League lead, given them by the Black Diamond Cheesemen, and launched a 12-hit attack in thumping Corby's Distillery 9-1 in the second game of Wednesday night's doubleheader at Alemite ball park.

Ellis Juniors gained the chance to move into the first place tie with Stinson's Construction and City Hotel when the Cheesemen edged Stinson's 3-2 in eight innings in the first game of the doubleheader.

"Scotty" Reid, at 17 the youngest player in the Commercial loop, scattered four hits over the seven inning distance to pick up the win for Ellis Juniors. Reid threw third strikes past nine batters and issued a pair of free passes.

Meanwhile the Juniors put the game on ice with a five-hit, six-run fourth inning outburst highlighted by Paul Goodfellow's leadoff homer, catcher Wes May's two-run single and centrefielder Terry Wellesley's two-run double.

Carl Boomhower relieved Corby's starter Sonny Grey during Ellis' fourth inning uprising and finished up on the mound for the losers. The pair gave up 12 hits, issued four walks and struck out four, but were hindered by three errors afield.

"Scotty" Reid banged three singles for the winners, Terry Wellesley had a single in addition to his double, Dale Duval collected a pair of singles and John Campbell and Wayne McTaggart also hit safely for the Juniors.

Ralph Boomhower with a pair of singles and Bob Wannamaker and Carl Boomhower with base hits accounted for Corby's hits.

STINSON'S CONST. 2

Manager-coach Bob Jones was a prime architect of the Cheesemen's 3-2 win over Stinsons, and his contribution came in a rare role for him — that of a player.

Because of a shortage of players Jones was forced to play second base when Jack Francis was ejected in the bottom of the first inning for disputing umpire Moe Huddleston's decision on a close play at first base.

Jones snapped a 2-2 tie which had existed since the first inning when he lashed a two-out single in the bottom of the eighth inning to drive in Gene Francis, who had stroked a one-out double, with the winning run.

Winning pitcher Sonny Holoway fanned ten and walked a pair and losing hurler Bob Swan allowed ten hits, struck out one and didn't walk a man.

Dwight Rathwell stroked a pair of singles for the winners, Don Wood banged a triple and Gene Francis, a double. Seven other players hit safely for the winners.

League Leaders Stay Abreast

The two top teams in the South Hastings Baseball League defeated the bottom two clubs to remain three points apart in the standings after Wednesday night's games.

First place Shannonville trounced Reserve 11-2 with the game being called after five innings because of darkness.

Glen Barberstock was the winning pitcher giving up only three hits, striking out nine and allowing no walks.

Loser Dave Maracle allowed seven hits, had six strike outs and four walks as he tried to stave off defeat.

Wayne Sager led the Shannonville squad with a two run homer while Larry Lewis clubbed out a double and a single.

Reserve hits came from Don Brant, Phil French, Bob Gendron, all with singles.

The roof fell in on Reserve in the third when Shannonville brought in six runs and from there on they never looked back.

Read downed Latta 5-1 to keep pace with Shannonville and remain three points out of the first place spot.

Frank Farrell went the distance for the winners issuing only one walk, striking out four and giving up four hits.

The loser, Terry McTaggart struck out seven, issued two walks and allowed seven hits in the eight inning contest.

Pete Enright was the top man in the hitting department for Read collecting a triple and two doubles. Other hits came from Larry Coffee, Carm Milligan, Ken Adams and Frank Farrell.

Latta's hitters were Bob Smith, Terry Casselman, Keith Dickey and Terry McTaggart all with singles.

Kinsmen Tracksters on the Road

Four of the eight Kinsmen Track and Field Club athletes who will compete in events in Sarnia and Etobicoke Saturday will be vying for Ontario age-class titles.

The four — Marie Brain and Dawn Yateman in the bantam girls' class, Kim Sturgess in the midget girls' class and Dennis Bowman in the midget boys' class — will compete in the Ontario Bantam and Midget track and field championships at Sarnia.

They qualified for the all-Ontario meet by placing in the top three in their events at the Central Ontario championships July 5, at Scarborough.

In fact, Marie Brain collected three firsts — in the long jump, 100-yard dash and 220-yard dash — in the Scarborough competition and Dennis Bowman collected a pair of firsts, in the triple jump and long jump, and a third in the 110-yard hurdles.

Dawn Yateman won the bantam girls high jump and Kim Sturgess placed third in the midget girls high jump.

Four other Kinsmen trackers will compete in the Central Ontario Junior and Juvenile track and field championships at Etobicoke.

All four are boys who will compete in the junior and juvenile age classes. Two are juniors and two juveniles.

Ralph Vandervoort is the 100 and 200 metres and Dave Simmonds in the 800 and 1500 metres are the junior competitors.

Sprinter Jim Sled in the 100 and 200 metres and Dave Grant in the 400 and 800 metres are the juvenile competitors.

"They've been training regularly and I think all eight are going to do well Saturday," said Kinsmen Track and Field Club assistant coach Mrs. Elsie Jokiren, "but it makes you feel like Simon Legree when you put them through their paces in the hot muggy weather we've had the past few weeks."

Combines Win Slugfest

It was a battle of the hitters as the Combines defeated International Hardware 16-11 in a Departmental Softball League match Wednesday night.

Don Conway went the distance for the Combines giving up five hits, striking out three and walking 12.

IHRC used three pitchers, Ray Ryan, Tom Cain and Bill McIntyre. They allowed ten hits, walked ten, and struck out four.

Gord Thompson led the IHRC hitters with two hits, one a homer. Team mates Harold Redquest, Ray Ryan, and Jack Jaffs each contributed hits to the cause.

Marcel Lalonde was the big hitter for the Combines. He hammered out a homer, triple and single.

'Slow Week' in Vietnam Killed 148 Americans

SAIGON (AP) — The lull in the Vietnam war spread today as top American military officials met to consider the significance of the slowdown and prospects for more withdrawals of U.S. troops.

Emphasizing the lull, the U.S. command announced that the number of Americans and their opponents killed in combat last week were the lowest since the first week of the year, while the number of South Vietnamese soldiers killed was the lowest in six months.

U.S. headquarters said 148 Americans were killed in action, well below the weekly average for the year of 243. Viet Cong and North Vietnamese dead 'killed at least 2,051, the command said, and 252 government troops were reported killed.

Americans wounded last week totalled 1,613, slightly above the recent average. This was believed to be the result of a 30-per-cent increase in the average daily number of contacts by small American units, but a predicted increase in battle deaths because of this did not materialize.

Military spokesmen reported 15 shelling attacks Wednesday night and today, with 10 of them causing damage or casualties.

In the few ground actions reported, U.S. troops killed 15 Viet Cong Wednesday and government troops killed 78.

The chairman of the U.S. joint chiefs of staff, Gen. Earle Wheeler, opened conferences with Gen. Creighton Abrams, U.S. commander in Vietnam, and Admiral John McCain Jr., U.S. commander in the Pacific.

Wheeler, who arrived Wednesday, is scheduled to spend part of the next three days visiting field locations and conferring with subordinate commanders.

House Interest Varies Inversely As Mercury

OTTAWA (CP) — Two days of 90-degree weather have cut sharply into any enthusiasm there may have been for a summer debate on the Commons rules.

In debate Wednesday, J. Agnes MacLean (PC—Malpeque) said the issue can hardly be expected to attract much attention with 300,000,000 people glued to their TV sets to watch the moonwalk.

"It might be more efficient for the opposition parties, if they could afford it, to try and buy a 30-second commercial from Walter Cronkite this afternoon to plug the interests of minorities of the basic rights we are discussing."

Opposition MPs insist they won't be sweated into submission. Nevertheless, Mr. MacLean's wry and weary note was noticeable in other speeches.

"There are people willing to sacrifice their summer holidays for the principles of democracy and freedom," P. B. Rynard (PC—Simcoe North) said. He quickly numbered himself as one of them.

But he also wondered "what sinister purpose" Prime Minister Trudeau had in springing the rules debate afresh in July.

"Did he think this was a good time to bring this in, when United States astronauts are going to land on the moon, in the heat of the summer . . . ?"

John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview) said the government is "the dictatorship of a dilettante"—Prime Minister Trudeau—whose "hatchet man" was Government House Leader Donald S. Macdonald.

Mr. Macdonald has been saying since the debate began early last week that MPs can go home anytime they accept Rule 75C.

Proposed Rule 75 has three parts: 75A, which would provide for all-party agreement on allocation of debating time; 75B, which would allow three of the four parties in the Commons to form an agreement binding on the whole House; and 75C, the controversial part, which would give the government alone power to set limits if all else failed.

Wheat Mystery Solved

CLINTON, Ont. (CP) — The mysterious disease which hit wheat fields in surrounding Huron County has been identified by University of Guelph scientists as strawbreaker disease, an agriculture department spokesman said Wednesday.

The root rot, caused by a living soil fungus, spread because of cool, wet conditions during June, he said. Some fields suffered 75-per-cent loss.

Clinton is 30 miles northwest of Stratford.

Ontario to Provide Health Services for All

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's entry into the federal medical care insurance plan Oct. 1 will include an extensive program to provide health resources for all areas of the province, Health Minister Matthew Dymond announced Wednesday.

He said $85,000,000 will be provided annually for facilities for the education and training of health manpower; arrangements for better distribution of health personnel; demonstrations on alternative methods for the delivery of health care and the regional planning and development of health services.

In an interview following the announcement, Dr. Dymond said the province will pay all the bills of medical students willing to practise in areas now lacking medical practitioners.

Under the program, he said, the doctor would agree to work five years in the areas, primarily in Northern Ontario, in return for the subsidy while in school.

Doctors' wages, paid by the government, would be competitive with those of doctors having private practices, he said.

The minister also said the program to provide more and better facilities for the education and training of health manpower is likely to exceed $600,000,000 over 10 years.

He said the program would involve five universities with health science centres, 24 major hospitals and other related institutions.

One-third of the $600,000,000 will be required for on-campus development "with most of the remainder being allocated to the teaching hospital complex."

Under the new program, Dr. Dymond said he envisages a geographic consolidation of services so that a health-centre concept can be developed making health services more accessible to persons in outlying areas.

The regional planning concept, as recommended by the Ontario Council of Health, would be based on health science centres in southern Ontario, and in Northern Ontario there would be two regions with focal points at the Lakehead and Sudbury.

Dr. Dymond said premiums for the medical Services plan would be — $5.00 for the single person, $11.80 for a couple and $14.75 for a family of three or more persons.

The government plan suggests paying doctors what is necessary to bring their salaries to about $25,000.

Foods Are Graded

By KEN WEERES

The Departments of Agriculture and Fisheries are mainly responsible for the grading of food in Canada.

Grades have been established by the government to assure the consumer of high standard, consistent quality food. However, there are so many grades that it is almost impossible to remember them all.

Moreover, the compulsory inspection of packing plants by the Departments of Agriculture and Fisheries applies only to plants shipping between provinces or exporting. The grading and inspection of food that is processed and distributed only in one province comes under provincial and municipal regulations.

The most important area of food grading if that of meats, canned fruits and vegetables and eggs.

All fresh meat must have passed health inspection before it is graded. After passing the health inspection, the meat is marked with a round "Canada Approved" or "Canada" inspection stamp.

This stamp shows that the meat is wholesome and has been dressed under sanitary conditions. It is not a grade mark. The grade mark is put on the meat only after the carcass has been inspected by a government grader.

Canada Choice — Stamped with a red brand. Comes from young steers and heifers and has a high proportion of meat to bone. It usually has a good covering of fat.

Canada Good — stamped with a blue brand. Again it comes from your steers and heifers but it has a lower proportion of meat to bone and usually less fat.

The other brands of beef, not usually found in supermarket, are:

Canada Standard — brown brand from young steers and heifers but has a lower proportion of fat to lean meat.

Canada Commercial—black brand poorer quality steers and heifers.

Canada Utility — black brand, poor quality steers, heifers, cows, bulls. Usually processed into veiners, bologna, canned meats and so on.

In all provinces, eggs are sold by grade. The common grades found in stores are:

Canada Grade A — top quality eggs, finest interior quality, clean.

Canada Grade A — clean, good shape, sound shells, fine interior quality.

These two grades are the most common. Within each grade are several classifications based on the size of the eggs. These are:

Extra Large — 2¼ ozs. per egg; large size — at least 2 ozs. per egg; medium size — 1¾ - 2 ozs. per egg; small — 1½ - 1¾ ozs. per egg; Pee Wee - less than 1½ ozs.

Grade B eggs weigh at least 1¾ ozs. but there is no weight specification for Grade C eggs.

Canned fruits and vegetables are also graded according to quality, color, size and other factors.

Canada Fancy — highest grade, clean good color, uniform size.

Canada Choice — slight variation in size and color, but are clean and free from blemishes. Good taste and flavor.

Canada Standard — good quality product but not of uniform size.

This gives only a brief outline of the food grades in Canada. For complete information write for the booklet "Buy By Grade" available from the Information Division, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Should you buy food which appears to be of poor quality and below the designated grade, return it to the store you bought it from. And write to the Department of Agriculture outlining your complaint.

The new Department of Corporate and Consumer Affairs will probably attempt to bring food inspection, grading and packaging under closer government control to protect the Canadian consumer.

Detective Says Man Tried to Sell Llquor

CHATHAM (CP) — John Viscount, 36, of Sarnia, said in court Wednesday shaking his head as Det. James Boyle told how a man identified as Viscount offered to sell him "a load of liquor at a good price."

Viscount, on trial with Donald Bickerton, 36, co-owner of a hotel in Ericau, 18 miles south of here, is charged with possession of a $38,000 shipment of liquor stolen March 15 from a trucking terminal in Windsor, Ont.

Det. Boyle said he had been making a routine check of downtown bars before the 1 a.m. closing March 20, when a man offered him the deal.

Det. Boyle said the man insisted the liquor could not be sold in lots of less than 100 cases for fear of involving too many people. "He said, 'Look, I took a belt of a chance. You can't be too careful in this business. If I get caught I go for a ride'." Det. Boyle testified.

He said he arranged to buy a consignment for $32 a case after stalling four days to enable a police search of farms around Ericau where the liquor was believed hidden.

The police search recovered 801 of the stolen 860 cases on a farm rented by Larry Collins, 24, of Blenheim. Collins was sentenced last week to three months in reformatory on a possession charge.

Another man, Kenneth Parker, 22, of Ericau, pleaded guilty last week and has been remanded for sentencing July 25.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Western oils continued to gain strongly as the Toronto stock market moved into its second consecutive day of advance today.

In mid-morning trading, the western oil index, which gained 6.71 Wednesday, was up 3.92 to 250.65.

Home A was up 2 to 69 and Home B 1¼ to 63.

Home stocks posted solid gains Wednesday after the company said it negotiated a $26,500,000 bank credit in West Germany.

Other strong oil moves were in Cygnus B, up 1 to 12, Cygnus A, ¾ to 12, Scurry, ¼ to 27¼, Numac, 50 cents to $9.15, Canadian Superior Oil ¼ to 38½ and Dome Pete, ¾ to 22.

Great West Saddlery rose 1¼ to 10¼ and Royal Bank slipped ¼ to 39¾.

The two companies said construction will begin in October on a $50,000,000 office, hotel and entertainment centre in Vancouver.

Chieftain gained ¼ to 11; Chieftain and Blue Crown Pete plan to drill five offshore wells in Lake Erie.

On index, industrials were up .32 to 173.98, golds fell to 221.17 and base metals .48 to 108.18.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 552,000 shares compared with 508,000 at the same time Wednesday.

Aided by the renewed speculative interest in western oils, the Toronto market advanced sharply Wednesday, even though the Bank of Canada increased its bank rate to a record eight per cent from 7½ Wednesday.

The last bank-rate increase in June, followed by increases by the chartered banks, touched off the sharpest price drop in Toronto Stock Exchange history. However, Finance Minister Benson told the Commons Wednesday he hopes the chartered banks will not raise their lending rates again, and there is some indication they will not do so.

But the market highlight Wednesday was western oil action.

Dome Pete climbed 4¾ in 92¾.

Dome is operator of the Panarctic Oils well at Drake Point on Melville Island in the Canadian Arctic, where a high-pressure flow of natural gas has been running wild since last Saturday.

An expert has been called in to attempt to control the blowout.

Some companies involved directly in or indirectly with the Panarctic consortium are CPR, up 2 to 77, Canadian Homestead, 1¼ to 24¾, Bankeno, 35 cents to $8.65, and United Canso, 35 cents to $18.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I hear that the threat of German measles will soon be a thing of the past. Meanwhile, the danger is still here. What to do in the meantime? Will you write about it a little? — Mrs. V. COMMUNITY: I'd like to write about it a lot, but I suppose most readers already have learned that Rubella (German measles) is a potential threat to the baby's child. In other words, if a mother contracts the disease during the first three months of pregnancy, there is the likelihood of such birth defects as mental retardation, deafness, heart defects or faulty eyesight.

Fortunately, at least 75 per cent of pregnant women do not contract Rubella because they have already had it earlier in life. But the other 20 to 25 percent (if they get it) have about one chance in four of having a defective child.

If there is no question that a pregnant woman has come down with Rubella during the first 12 weeks of her pregnancy, then treatment will depend upon many factors: her religious beliefs, her doctors' trust in the efficacy of giving immune globulin to protect the child, or conditioning the use of therapeutic abortion.

But suppose a Mrs. Smith says: "I visited a friend the other day whose daughter came down with German measles a day later. Am I in danger? Is it possible for me to have so mild a case of it that I don't know I have it? Won't that be dangerous, too? I'm only about eight weeks pregnant."

There are special blood tests available which tell whether or not she has had German measles in the past. If she has had it previously, then it's likely she has nothing to be concerned about. If she is susceptible, then she and her doctors will be put on guard early to meet any problems as effectively as possible.

The fact that we now recognize the dangers of German measles is more than half the battle. In the near future we hope to win the "war" — just as we have against smallpox and many other diseases by preventive vaccination.

We have hopes that a vaccine, now being successfully tested, will soon become generally available to be given to youngsters; and to susceptible women who are definitely not pregnant, and who agree not to become pregnant for a few months. (The live virus vaccine may harm the fetus.)

When epidemics are prevented and most women immunized, the threats of German measles against the unborn infant will practically disappear.

For Mrs. C.: I am sorry to have to say this, but if your husband refuses to admit he is an alcoholic it's practically a hopeless situation until he does. Most authorities agree that the first requisite for "cure" is such an admission and the willingness to seek help.

For Mr. P.: It is true that ulcer and gall bladder trouble are often associated, recently a colleague went that one better. He not only had a duodenal ulcer and a gall bladder filled with stones, but also had a large hiatal hernia. The surgeon removed the gall bladder, repaired the hiatal hernia, but left the ulcer alone because of evidence that it had healed.

For Mrs. F.: Paroxysm a l tachycardia is a name for very rapid heart action. As its cause varies, treatment will depend upon the cause.

Latin America Hotbed

Massive Doses of Financial Help Not Enough to Stem Anti-Americanism

MEXICO CITY (AP) — In the last decade the United States has put massive doses of financial help into Latin America along with more than $8,000,000,000 in gifts and loans. But anti-Americanism is flowering there as never before.

Nourishing it are illnesses at home that Latin Americans attribute to the towering American influences in their midst.

The violence aroused by Nelson A. Rockefeller's fact-finding mission to Latin America on behalf of President Nixon exposed a relatively small measure of the intensity of this feeling.

Latin American leaders are clamoring for more effective aid and changes in American trade policies that could mean larger dollar revenues. They say the money is needed desperately to accelerate social and economic development programs to tranquillize domestic discontent.

Social unrest is stirring at nearly all levels in Latin America on a scale old-time hemisphere hands consider unprecedented. It has aired a radicalism that is challenging such former bastions of conservatism as the Roman Catholic clergy and the armed forces.

Fuel for this restiveness includes these factors:

—Soaring population, stagnating economies. Latin America's population has grown by 2.3 per cent annually during 1961-68 while per capita economic growth reached only 1.7 per cent.

—Unemployment. A quarter of the total labor force, some 25,000,000 Latin Americans, are jobless or only partly employed.

—Unevenly distributed national incomes. Despite improvement in recent years, the top five per cent of the population still takes 31.5 per cent of the total income, or an average $2,400 a year vs. $3,-140 in the United States. The lower 50 per cent of the population averages $201 a year.

—U.S. investment. Latin Americans say the state department urges their nations to reduce their dependency on aid by diversifying exports, but the U.S. Agriculture Department throws up barriers to Latin American goods produced with American air funds.

In many countries there's a growing disquiet, too, over official corruption, narrow opportunities and lack-lustre leadership compared with many cases by ultra-conservative ruling classes responsive to vested American interests.

Low pay, political and economic instability and frail advancement conditions are behind a "brain drain" that is depriving countries leaders and professionals. Doctors, professors, physicists, engineers and skilled technicians are moving to better paying jobs in the United States and Venezuela.

A Haiti Medical Association official says there now are more Haitian doctors in Canada than in all Haiti.

"We're being left with medicorities to govern and run things," says a Honduran professional leader. "It's no wonder the military think they can run things better."

Military strongmen administer the affairs of seven countries. Half of Latin America's 250,000,000 people live under civilian or armed-forces dictatorships.

Obscure public servants who served one term, or even part of one, as presidents of their countries, live in luxury in the United States or Europe off their "earnings" while in power.

Because of the range and depth of its involvement in Latin American affairs, the American presence has become a catch-all for blame.

Americans have been accused of coddling up to such dictators as Fulgencio Batista in Cuba and Rafael Leonidas Trujillo in the Dominican Republic. Ironically, Americans were also blamed for their disappearance. Americans have been charged with financing the corrupt coups d'etat in some countries.

Anti-Americanism is an almost endemic condition among Latin Americans. Its roots are embedded in history and in the classic resentments between haves and have-nots.

Strong-armed American performance in the days when international consensus was hewn with pure muscle left scars among Latin Americans.

Today's turned-on generation of Latin Americans knows the story of "big stick diplomacy," and the exact measure of the average man's backwardness in relation to his northern brother. Communications media have brought the outside world to Latin Americans in new and exciting dimensions.

The Latin American backwardness is a factor in today's increasing concern with another sign of U.S. occupation: economic and, through it, political influence.

The new investors, Latin Americans say, is loans, investments and pre-conditioned aid. As they see it, these things are draining Latin America of scarce foreign exchange reserves through profits remittances and loan repayments. Political and military conditions on aid, says a Chilean university professor, Jose Suarez Donoso, are mortgaging our sovereignty."

Direct U.S. investment in Latin America is estimated at $12,000,000,000 with another $6,000,000,000, to $8,000,000,000 in indirect or hidden activities. Americans control an estimated 7 per cent of all foreign investment in Latin America.

Also half the U.S. investments in Latin America are in extractive industries, mining and oil—precisely the areas where Latin Americans are demanding, and getting, more control.

Awareness of these conditions and of the urgency to change them involves a burgeoning segment of the population, the wealthy and politically-conscious classes who are thirsting for reform, who are more progressive and less old dogma, capitalist or Marxist, with populism.

CHURCH CUTS TIES

An in-between, third-world radicalism beckons strongly and has taken form among young military officers and some clergy.

The Roman Catholic Church formally divorced itself from military establishments in a historic document last fall. It denounced both capitalist and Marxist systems as "attempts against the dignity of the human person."

Many progressive military coup of last fall is considered an outstanding example of increasing anti-establishment, nationalist sentiment among young officers.

Some Americans view the new radicalism as a healthy development that will reduce or eliminates the national influences of the conservative groups often considered the main deterrent to Latin American progress. In this, they acknowledge a danger that radicalism could be overtaken by leftist or rightist extremism.

Tulips, Windmills, Hockey Go Together in Holland

By GEORGE H. CARVER

Hockey has taken a firm hold in the sports life of Holland — land of cheeses, tulips, windmills, wooden shoes and legendary leaky dykes.

While soccer, as in most European countries, is the national sport; the ice game has made tremendous strides over the past few years.

In fact Holland placed a national team in the "C" pool of the International Ice Hockey Federation last year, and finished a fine fourth in the final tournaments against Japan, Switzerland, Hungary, Bulgaria and Denmark.

A lot of the credit for the increasing popularity of the game and the showing of its teams in international play is due to a young Canadian coach and some Canadian imports.

The coach last season was Bobby Boyle of this city, a well-known athlete here in his younger days, who has spent the last three hockey years in Holland.

Belleville-born Bobby was probably at 23 years of age, the youngest national-team coach in the IIHF. He led his club from a playing position on the ice.

But, he told me in a private interview, "I do not believe in playing coaches. I don't believe they can give their best from the ice."

Bobby is here on a 48-day leave of absence from the Dutch city of Den Bosch, a community in southern Holland with a population of 100,000.

He is home to recruit, if possible, two or three good Canadian players and to purchase much-needed hockey equipment including a hundred or so sticks.

Bobby, the son of Mr. and Mrs. K. F. Boyle, 37 South John Street, was educated at BCI and starred in practically all sports in the calendar. He played football, softball, baseball and basketball, with his forte being hockey. He played peewee, bantam and midget and then skipped juvenile to join the city's junior "B" club under coach Gordie Bell.

He joined the Dutch team in 1966 with Grant Hagerman of Stirling who remained with the club for two years.

"This year" he said "I've given up the coaching job and will confine my efforts to playing. The Dutch team management will use a Czech trainer as coach and for that I'm happy".

"Czech coaches are the best in the world" Bobby said "they are far ahead of Canadian and American amateur coaches in their training and playing tactics."

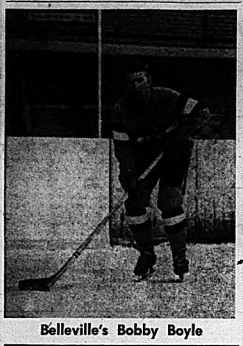
"Incidentally," Bobby noted, "our new Czech trainer-coach Bacelik played with the Czechs against the Belleville McFarlands in 1959. He remembers a lot of the Canadian players and especially sends his regards to "Big Don" (Dewsberry) and Mr. 'Lemmy' (Jean Paul Lamirande).

Young Mr. Boyle has seen plenty of Europe during his sojourn in Holland. He has travelled and played in Yugoslavia, France, Belgium, Switzerland, Austria, Italy, Rumania and Bulgaria.

He had an offer this year to play in South Africa where hockey rinks, he says, are operated the year round.

What did he think of the new rule allowing body-checking all over the ice?

"It will be a distinct advantage to the Canadians but it will take a little time to convert the European teams. They will stick to the old style for a while. But don't forget, we have a lot of guys over there who are tough and can throw a stiff bodycheck with the best of the western players."



What about Canada's chances in the world amateur tournament?

Bobby thought for a moment and said. "My suggestion is to send the Canadian team, whatever it is comprised of — pros, semi-pros or what have you, and send it to Europe for an entire winter, not for a measly three weeks as before."

"Let them play top international teams and then with this experience under their belts they would be ready for the tournament."

"I discovered in Europe that things are vastly different to the Canadian scene. Not only the rules are different, but so are the hours, sleep and food. In fact the whole atmosphere is different."

"No Canadian or American team can adjust itself to these changes in three weeks. Give them the entire season over there and you might be surprised at the final tournament standing."

Baker Faces Suit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charging a conflict of interest, the Justice department filed suit Tuesday to recover from Bobby Baker part of the $1,700,000 it said he collected from outside interests while was secretary to Senate Democrats.

The civil suit, filed in federal district court here, accused Baker of entering into agreements to "serve the interests of various private parties having matters pending before" the government.

The suit cited four specific instances involving $35,000 in fees. But the government said it would also demand recovery "for other such transactions . . . where he (Baker) received substantial payments from private parties."

Franco Is Expected to Name Prince Juan Carlos as Heir

MADRID (AP) — Gen. Francisco Franco is expected to name Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon as his heir next Tuesday, setting the stage for a father-son struggle for the Spanish throne.

The 76-year-old chief of state announced Wednesday night that he was calling an extraordinary session July 22 of the Cortes, the Spanish parliament, "in relation to Article 6 of the Law of Succession of the chieftain of state."

Article 6 gives Franco the right to propose his successor—and to rescind the proposal at any time. He is expected to ask the Cortes to approve his nomination of the 31-year-old prince to become king and chief of state upon Franco's death.

Immediate approval of what ever Franco proposes is expected from the parliament.

For 21 years the Franco government has groomed Juan Carlos to be king—since the prince's father, the Count of Barcelona, agreed to allow his son to be educated in Spain.

But Don Juan never relinquished his claim to the throne that usurped by his father, Alfonso XIII, who fled Spain in 1931 under pressure from the republicans and died in exile.

Juan Carlos, close to Don Juan, the 56-year-old dynastic head of his branch of the Borbon family, said recently that his father planned to fly to Madrid from his home in Estoril, Portugal, "within an hour" of Franco's death to make a personal bid for the crown.

Many Spanish experts see the expected nomination of Juan Carlos as a way of avoiding a politically perilous situation in the hours after Franco's death, but it may only set the stage for a family fight.

The selection of either man also is expected to raise an outcry from the Carlists, who support the claim to the throne of Carlos Hugo de Borbon y Parma, the pretender from a rival branch of the Borbon family.

Although Alfonso XIII abandoned his throne, Spain never has ceased to be a monarchy. But unlike other monarchies, the Spanish crown does not necessarily pass according to primogeniture, to the eldest son of the reigning monarch. It is handed on by the Cortes, and the only requirements are that the king be at least 30 years old, a Roman Catholic, of royal blood and must swear allegiance to the principles of the National Movement, Spain's only legal political organization under the Franco regime.

Early this year, Juan Carlos made his first openly political statements, and these were taken as a sign that he had decided to challenge his father. He endorsed the monarchy as a means of guaranteeing "national peace and harmony" and said: "I will comply with the promise to serve the fatherland in the post most useful to the country."

The new king will have only limited powers and can choose a premier only from among nominees of the Council of the Realm. The council has 16 members, 10 of them elected by the Cortes.

Canada Keeps U.S. Waiting Two Years on Bases Request

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has kept the United States waiting more than two years for a reply to a U.S. request for bomber refuelling facilities on Canadian soil, it was disclosed Wednesday.

Answering opposition questions in the Commons, Defence Minister Leo Cadieux said he could not indicate what the Canadian government's decision will be. He made clear that he personally favors acceptance of the request.

It was understood outside the House that the matter has been referred by the defence department to the cabinet for decision, with a recommendation that the request be granted.

Mr. Cadieux disclosed Tuesday that the U.S. has requested reinstatement of a 1958 agreement allowing use of four Canadian bases by giant tankers employed in mid-air refuelling of Strategic Air Command intercontinental bombers.

The original agreement was good for 10 years but was allowed to lapse in 1963.

Mr. Cadieux told Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield Wednesday in the Commons that discussions on reviving the agreement have been going on since around May, 1967, through the Canada-U.S. joint defence board and "at different levels."

Icebreaker Is Nearing Completion

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Preparations are nearing completion here for the launching late this month of a 115,000-ton icebreaker-jawed tanker—a 500,000,000 gamble to challenge the ice-choked Northwest Passage.

The supertanker Manhattan will attempt to chew its way from the Atlantic to the Pacific through northern Canadian Arctic islands in an experiment oil interests hope will lift the lid on the Far North's vast treasure chests.

Oil is the immediate quest—vast quantities on the northern shore of Alaska and possibly in Canadian territory—and the tanker will determine whether a sea route to the vast Eastern markets is economically possible.

The 1,000-foot ship, split into four sections, refitted, redesigned, strengthened and reassembled, is to be launched here late this month, although officials have not set a definite date.

Violence Is Not Power

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

We fall utterly to grasp the relationship between "power" and "violence" when we look upon violence as a manifestation of power, when it is exactly the opposite — an absence of power, which can be resorted for a time, but which can be controlled only by converting it into a form of social power, which then acts through legitimate channels.

The creation of wealth in the near future will lie in the organization of knowledge rather than in the exploitation of resources; and those communities that are currently being "taken over" are precisely the ones in which resources out run knowledge, which are "money-fat" and "idea-thin."

It is a truism that science books in our century have to be rewritten every dozen years or so; what we have not realized is that new technology created by this science is making our old economics textbooks obsolete faster than we believe or understand.

The spiritual ambience of both our political parties was most neatly summarized by Robert Frost, when he observed: "A father is always a Republican toward his son, and a mother is always a Democrat."

The real reason that history keeps repeating itself is that people don't listen; once we begin to open our ears, we will not hear the same old refrain.

One wonders how many potentially great leaders have died obscure in a nation of mediocrities' that was not ready for them, or that sacrificed them in war before their special talents could come to fruition.

If people had to pay a price or penalty when their advice turned out badly, humanity's vast legions of paid and volunteer advisers would rapidly shrink to a corporal's guard.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For July 18

Your birthday today: Surprise is the keyword for the mood of the coming year. Without warning, your psychic restlessness leads you to break the bonds of years long habits at sporadic intervals. Discretion becomes a necessary element — begin now to develop more prudent habits. Today's natives are patient and gifted in farming and gardening.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): There is a breakthrough available in your earning effort — concerning some very old matter. Your family and associates will be receptive to a serious discussion; be truthful with them.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): The more people care about you the more apt they are to find fault. Settle anything you are doing for relatives. Your money acquires wings, or so it seems. Good music will help your evening.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Take an impersonal approach today and thrive. Just remember those close to you are overly sensitive, so don't be upset.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Old habits which are no longer feasible cause distress at the time, but things become much easier very quickly. New contacts bring interesting prospects into view.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Old relationships turn out to be perhaps very profitable. Expect entertaining and the like to be expensive now.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): The optimistic viewpoint is a help. Don't listen to fundamentals, present your survey without sentiment or emotional distortion, then get on with your work or business.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Confidential information helps in business but hinders in social or romantic interests. Put in a full day's work without wasting your productive time in conversation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): You could be drawn into some legal complaint now. If you are at fault, make every effort to avoid further complications.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Put on a bold front today. Let the world know you're you and that you do respect yourself. Something you've done and forgotten comes back (with constructive results) to please you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): The quiet, friendly manner is the better one today, as people come to you. Planning is easier and the results smoother now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Make a concerted effort to get a great deal done while the doing is good. Leave the business-like approach at the office; your loved ones not only want to overspend, they need tenderness.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Keep the peace today — above everything else. In your home life you face a decision now and none of your friends can be of help. A mate would be affected,

'I Don't Feel Historic' Says Dead-tired Wife of Astronaut

HOUSTON (AP) — It was almost dark in suburban El Lago where every lawn looks freshly mowed when Janet Armstrong and her dead-tired sons arrived home Wednesday after a long, long day.

"I don't feel historic," she said.

Husband and father Neil travelled some 50,000 miles toward the moon in the Apollo 11 spaceship while his family spent five hours in a private plane flying 1,040 miles from Cape Kennedy, Fla.

Hardly had the car bringing them from the airport stopped when 13-year-old Eric and six-year-old Mark piled out to go inside and to bed.

Eric, better known as Ricky, has planned to play in an all-star baseball game.

"I think you're too tired," said Janet Armstrong. Ricky didn't argue.

Early in the morning they had been aboard a friend's boat on the Banana River near the Cape Kennedy launch centre, where the view is fine and the viewing is private.

"It was a tremendous sight," the wife of the command pilot said. "I was just thrilled."

She once summed up her philosophy about Armstrong's work as "what we can't understand, we tend to fear." She understands flying and the extremes to which her husband is taking his skill.

Her father, now dead, owned and flew a small plane and one thing that attracted her to Neil when they met at Purdue University in 1953 was their mutual interest in flying.

Armstrong had been a navy jet pilot in Korea and after they married he was an experimental test pilot, flying, among other exotic craft, the X-15 rocket.

Churches Urge Prayers Power Properly Used

NEW YORK (AP) — American Protestant and Orthodox Church leaders urged people Wednesday to pray that the Apollo 11 mission to the moon "will be used of God for His purposes, and that the astronauts may return safely."

The nationwide call to prayer was issued by the executive committee of the National Council of Churches, including 33 denominations with a total of 42,000,000 members.

The call cited the "mighty inner world in man from which sprang the vision and skill" to bring about the moon venture, and saluted "the courage of the brave men" on it.

The appeal also suggested a prayer which reads:

"Almighty Father, we thank You for the wonders of the creation in which You have placed us, for the capabilities enabling Your children to share so fully in the understanding and use of the universe.

"We are grateful for the genius that has made possible this enterprise and for the courageous men who will complete it. Bless and protect them and bring them safely home.

"Awaken in us, by their brave example, the awareness that your love and power are infinite, calling us to ever greater efforts of mind and heart. Help us to understand that as we grew beyond old ways, we may, with the assistances of Your Spirit, grow into the better way revealed in Him in whose name we pray, Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."

Liquor Board Head Sorry Pubs Closed

TORONTO (CP) — Suggestion for opening beverage rooms and lounges next Sunday and early Monday to allow the public to watch the moon landing on television have come forward too late for action, Judge W. T. Robb, chairman of the Liquor Licence Board of Ontario, said Wednesday.

Judge Robb, in an interview commenting on the suggestions, said the board had no objection to the idea but "the regulations would have to be amended and there's no time for that. . . ."

"This sounds like a good idea and it's a pity it wasn't brought forward in time for something to be done."

Space Medicine Pioneer Watches

HOUSTON (AP) — Quietly following the progress of Apollo 11 is a man who began laying medical groundwork for such a flight before the moon-bound astronauts were born.

Dr. Heinrertus Strughold, 71, regarded here as the "father of space medicine," watched the start of the voyage this week as a guest here of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

As he hears the voices of the crew on the way to the moon, the spry space expert can recall the days when he conducted crude tests of weightlessness by soaring in early airplanes in his native Germany.

Strughold retired last year as a top scientist at Brooks Air Force Base in San Antonio, Tex., after 21 years of civilian service with the air force.

During the late 1930s, he began studying the physiological effects of aviation.

He conducted some of the first simulated altitude experiments at Wuerzburg, Germany, in 1927, staying inside a "metabolic chamber" for as much as an hour in an atmospheric pressure corresponding to 21,000 feet.

Two years later he was aboard a plane again for more experiments with weightlessness. This time he numbed his hips with an anesthetic, cocaine, to get the full effect.

"I felt unsafe. I had no feeling," he recalled.

Except for a brief visit to the United States to conduct research, he remained in Germany until after the Second World War.

He accepted an invitation to join the School of Aviation Medicine at Randolph Field, San Antonio, in 1947. Eleven years later he and his associates conducted a simulated eight-day flight to the moon with an air force volunteer in a tiny pressure chamber.

He never doubted that man would travel to other planets. Many of his papers dwell on the subject. In one, he envisions man living a "sophisticated cave life" on the moon in underground installations.

Apollo Is A-okay

Flight So Smooth Crew Can Sleep In

Experts Puzzled

Luna Poses No Threat

MANCHESTER, England (CP)—Jodrell Bank astronomers said today they are mystified by the performance of the unmanned Soviet Luna XV orbiting the moon and have no indications what it was going to do next.

They said it appeared at present to pose no danger to the Apollo 11 mission.

Prof. John G. Davies said Luna XV's two-hour orbit took it "hundreds of miles, maybe a thousand miles" from the Apollo landing site.

Sir Bernard Lovell, observatory director, said Luna XV remained in the close orbit — 62 to 75 miles above the lunar surface — this it went into Thursday and was transmitting bursts of radio data.

The continuing orbit was puzzling scientists at this, the West's chief listening post on Soviet space shots. Along with unofficial Moscow sources, they had expected Luna XV to land on the moon in an attempt to bring back a lunar soil sample before Apollo could do so.

Lovell said that so far the only feature of Luna XV different from previous lunar orbiters was its precise injection into an extremely low orbit by means of a single firing of retro-rockets Thursday.

He said U.S. probes have gone into close lunar orbit, but in two stages and added that he did not think the achievement of lunar orbit with a single rocket firing would be worth the cost of the Luna XV flight in the Soviet space program.

Four bursts of signals were received from Luna XV this morning. The longest was 35 minutes, at the start of the 10th orbit.

Davies said Luna XV was in a path within 60 degrees of the moon's centre and inclined 35 degrees to the equator. He added that it was appearing in the southwest, moving across the southern side of the moon and disappearing in the northwest.

Later, he said Luna XV was appearing over the Mare Australe in the southwest of the moon, moving across the south and over the Mare Humorum and disappearing behind the moon after skirting the Oceanus Procellarum.

Moscow newspapers gave no further information on Luna XV or its missions. They carried the brief announcement, broadcast Thursday by Moscow radio, that the moon probe was in orbit. It was launched Sunday.

"Take his mind off wheat prices and keep the window closed!"

Pepin Denies Wheat Price Collapse - - - Yet

OTTAWA (CP) — Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin denied in the Commons Thursday there has been a collapse or dramatic decline in wheat prices.

"It may very well happen but it hasn't happened yet," he said in reply to questions by Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield.

The recent meeting of major wheat exporting countries at Washington had been held to avert a collapse and restore cooperation among exporters, Mr. Pepin said.

This had not yet been done but a committee was about to become operative and excellent communications existed.

Moon Landing May Be Early

HOUSTON (CP) — The good ship Columbia raced unerringly toward the clutch of lunar gravity today, carrying three men toward a Saturday rendezvous with the moon and destiny.

Everything was going so well with the mission of Apollo 11—code-named Columbia—that ground controllers let the astronauts sleep more than an hour past their appointed wakeup time.

"How do all our systems look?" Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. asked on waking.

"They're looking great," came the reply from the ground. Aldrin, Neil A. Armstrong and Michael Collins had rested 11 hours.

Armstrong and Aldrin each reported eight solid hours of sleep, with Collins logging nine hours—resting for the critical weekend exploration ahead.

As they slept, their spacecraft soared on a bull's-eye course toward the moon. Flight directors estimated that no more adjustments will be necessary to carry the ship into its first orbit of the moon Saturday at a planned altitude of 69 miles.

Mission control said Armstrong and Aldrin might start their exploration as much as 3½ hours earlier than now planned.

"It's within the realm of possibility," flight director Clifford Charlesworth told reporters. "The answer to that is a function of what our status is when we get there, the status of the spacecraft and the status of the crew."

Eagle is to land on the moon's Sea of Tranquility at 4:19 p.m. EDT. Armstrong and Aldrin have several checkout and preparation chores, plus a four-hour rest period, planned before Armstrong takes the first step on the surface at 2:21 a.m. Monday.

Charlesworth said the crew could elect to skip the rest period if they felt alert enough to face the potentially dangerous, demanding tasks planned during 2½ hours of outside exploration.

While the astronauts slept,

Air Canada Accepts Moon Reservations

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada is accepting reservations for its first flight to the moon.

Sixty-two have been made so far, a spokesman said Thursday.

No price is quoted and no down payment requested, but the airline is serious about the matter, the spokesman said.

All you have to do is make a reservation for the flight and let Air Canada know where you can be reached. If you are high enough on the reservations list, the airline will contact you when the details of the inaugural moon flight are known to find out whether you still want to go at the price you will have to pay.

El Salvador Ignores Pleas For End to Gruesome War

SAN SALVADOR (Reuters) — El Salvador appeared today determined to press ahead with its invasion of Honduras, despite appeals for a ceasefire and reports of carnage at the battlefronts.

Army sources today put the death toll so far in the bitter Central American border war at 2,400 soldiers—admitting the loss of 700 Salvadorean and claiming to have killed 1,700 Honduran defenders.

Heavy rains caused a slowdown in the bloodbath overnight. But this tiny, overcrowded republic remained determined to wrest from its neighbor a guarantee of safety for the thousands of Salvadoreans who have spilled across the ill-defined 180-mile border to live in Honduras.

The bitter clashes began in earnest Thursday, following weeks of minor fighting touched off by rioting over the two national soccer teams.

In Washington, the Organization of American States was struggling to arrange a ceasefire, and today was expected to approve a resolution on the subject that diplomats hoped both sides would accept.

Military sources in the Honduran capital of Tegucicalpa today reported that a single Honduran battalion, backed by air force planes, repulsed an invasion force three times as large which tried to capture the town of Nueva Ocotepeque.

Nerve Gas Mishap Hinted in Okinawa

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Pentagon spokesman said today that 24 persons were taken to hospital for observation on Okinawa last week "as a result of a mishap"—but declined comment on reports that the accident involved a broken container of highly secret nerve gas.

"As a result of a mishap on Okinawa which occurred July 8 while they were working on a maintenance operation, 23 U.S. military personnel and one U.S. civilian employee were placed under medical observation," said Daniel Henkin, assistant secretary of defence for public affairs.

"All were released and returned to full duty within about six hours. No other persons were involved."

Ra Sails in Day Only

CRISTIANSTED (AP) — Thor Heyerdahl and his crew decided today not to continue their transatlantic voyage aboard the damaged papyrus boat Ra, but they plan to spend their nights on board an escort yacht, a report to this Virgin Islands city said.

"Physical strength and skill are not the point of this voyage," Heyerdahl told Herb Schoenbohm, a ham radio operator in Christiansted, capital of St. Croix, one of the Virgin Islands.

"There is no point in living in the wrecked quarters of the Ra when we also have quarters on the Shenandoah."

The Shenandoah is a fishing vessel that Heyerdahl and his crew boarded Thursday to rest and decide whether to continue their attempt to sail from Africa to Latin America.

Heyerdahl reported he and his crew worked all day Thursday to repair damage caused during the week by 18-foot waves. He said they have rigged a steering sail using two steering oars.

They now plan to terminate the voyage in Bridgetown, Barbados, about 635 miles away. At a minimum speed of 25 miles a day, the trip still could take three more weeks.

Heyerdahl is reported to feel that he and the crew already have accomplished their goal—to show that Egyptians could have sailed papyrus craft to the New World nearly 3,000 years ago. They left Morocco May 25.

The captain of the Shenandoah said he was surprised the 55-foot replica of the ancient Egyptian vessel still was afloat.

"A wooden boat or a vessel made of other materials than papyrus would have been destroyed if it had been exposed to the same strain as the Ra," the captain said.

Fairfax Rows for Haven

MIAMI (AP) — British voyager John Fairfax rowed his orange, shoe-shaped boat up the Gulf Stream toward a possible end of his transatlantic crossing today.

The U.S. Coast Guard said after one of its planes flew over Fairfax Thursday that if prevailing winds and current hold steady he probably would make a landfall in the Miami or Fort Lauderdale area.

Encouraging him was his London friend, Sylvia Marrett, who also flew overhead Thursday for her first glimpse of him since Fairfax left the Canary Islands six months ago on his 4,000-mile row.

Miss Marrett gave up her nine-year job as secretary to a London art dealer so she could await Fairfax's landfall.

Finkle Expands To Frame Work

A relatively small Belleville company normally concerned with machine tool work and custom steel fabrication has branched out into steel frame building construction.

It is the Finkle Machine Company on Dundas Street West, which since early in the year has been fabricating steel for the construction of a big addition to the high school at Campbellford.

All but approximately 15 per cent of the steel requirements have been fabricated and the erection job is under way.

Part of the structural steel for the Campbellford project was purchased in Canada with the remainder coming from Belgium through a Kingston supplier.

The steel members are cut to size and drilled at Mr. Finkle's Belleville plant and then trucked to the Campbellford job.

Schooldays Begin Early For These Area Students

Twelve Belleville and Trenton high school students have gone back to school for the summer — but not to learn.

Not in a formal sense, at any rate. They are employed as custodians' helpers during the two-month school recess.

The scheme carries a two-fold benefit with it.

"The board gets very satisfactory, very economical labor," says George Urch, assistant comptroller of plant for the Hastings county board of education.

At the same time, 12 students in grades 12 and 13 and from Loyalist College have summer employment and a chance to accumulate a nest - egg toward next year's school expenses.

The students assist the regular school custodians in the summer maintenance and clean-up program around the schools. In Trenton they are now cutting weeds along school fence lines. In Belleville eight are employed in the schools — two of them in sanding the wooden floors of the city's oldest school, BCI.

The young men earn $1.65 an hour on the job.

Mr. Urch says he would have employed 24 students in 'preventative maintenance.' He hopes he will be allowed to double the number of students hired next summer.

Preventative maintenance includes surveying all motors in use in schools, determining how soon they will need repairs, and recording serial numbers and manufacturers' names so that regular custodians can save time when a repairman must be called.

"This is an ideal job for tech students in the summer," says Mr. Urch. "Not only will it be valuable on - the - job - training for them, but it will ensure our getting efficient staff for this job, since the students will already be familiar with the machines they have used in school and will save a lot of time in the inspection and recording process."

Drainage Okayed

AMELIASBURG — Council at a special meeting this week approved the engineer's report for the proposed drainage of lots 74 to 78 in the second concession.

The cost of the drainage plan proposed by Tollen, Sinn, Hubbeski and associates of Cobourg is $12,500. It is to commence immediately.

Repayment by the owners is over a 10 - year period at 4 percent interest.

But left us a memory,
We will always treasure now.
Sadly missed by his wife Olive and family.

HALLOWAY — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather who suddenly passed away July 18th, 1966.
Gone from our home,
Gone from our side,
Silent is the voice we loved so much,
Too far away for sight or speech,
Too deep for tears to reach,
Sweet to remember him who sleeps,
And who, though absent, is just as dear,
—Dearly remembered by daughter Gloria.

HASLIP — In loving memory of our father and brother Ernest James Edward who passed away July 18th, 1964 and Ellen Mary who passed away July 18th, 1968.

But though we're parted for a while,
We know we'll meet again.
Some day we hope to meet you,
Some day we hope to greet you,
We'll meet in a better land,
Never to part again.

She Gives Her Handiwork Away

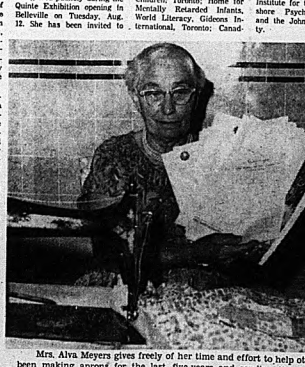
By ELMER BONTER
Staff Correspondent

TRENTON — In terms of dollars and cents a Sidney township seamstress can't tell you how much she's donated to charitable organizations in the last five years.

So far this year, however, Mrs. Alva Meyers, of R. R. 5, Trenton has made 420 aprons and sent them in lots of less to various clubs, associations and agencies involved in helping the less fortunate. Her gifts in each instance are in lieu of money and without charge to the recipient.

In a letter she types herself and encloses with each package, Mrs. Meyers explains her philosophy. "I have a hobby of giving organizations 10 aprons each to sell at $1 apiece to help in their project. I am trying to make Canada a little bit better place in which to live.

"By the way I am 75 years young. This is my old age hobby."



Mrs. Meyers suggests to the receiver the aprons be auctioned. One club, taking her advice, collected $27 for its allotment.

The former Lottie Jackson of Trenton, the wife of Alva Meyers produces the aprons with a foot pedal operated sewing machine and in good running condition after a half a century of service. She started her unusual hobby five years ago deciding it was the way she could do more for humanity as an old age pensioner. "I can't give them $10 each but I can give them 10 aprons to sell," she said.

The aprons fashioned for housework use cost her 30 cents each for material. It takes an hour of her time to finish one.

And Mrs. Meyers' contributions for the betterment of her fellow man have not gone unnoticed. Her efforts will be recognized publicly during the Quinte Exhibition opening in Belleville on Tuesday, Aug. 12. She has been invited to be the guest of exhibition president Cameron Bunnett for the occasion.

Among the clubs, associations and agencies acknowledging gifts of aprons from Mrs. Meyers are — Municipar Distrophy Association of Canada, Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto; Home for Mentally Retarded Infants, World Literacy, Gideons International, Toronto; Canadian Save the Children Fund, UNICEF, Unitarian Service Committee of Canada, Hastings County Tubercular committee, Trenton March of Dimes, Hi C's of North Trenton United Church, Belleville Rotary Club, Mustard Seed Mission, Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Lakeshore Psychiatric - Hospital and the John Howard Society.

Mrs. Alva Meyers gives freely of her time and effort to help others. She's been making aprons for the last five years and sending them to various charities in lieu of money as a person al project for helping Canada to become a better place in which to live.

Hastings County Registry Office Only Self-serve Example in Province

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

If Western man ever begins colonizing the moon the first earth official to arrive in the new settlements will likely be a registrar of deeds.

In a society closely bound to the value of property, the organization of land distribution is a basic function.

Registration of property holdings is a prime purpose of government, predating most other social institutions.

The registry office of Hastings County readily documents this. In fact, its premises houses the biggest, oldest, most complicated record system of any local government department.

And for good reason.

The first registry act in what new is Ontario was passed in 1795.

"Our registry system is probably the oldest institution in the province," notes Hastings registrar of deeds William Hurst. "It's served to record all transactions involving land from the original Crown grants right down to today — a total of 174 years."

The result is a massive paper compilation.

Mr. Hurst estimates he is the custodian of some 250,000 documents, about 2,000 plans of private and municipal land division indexed in 223 volumes.

A brim filing system gives little hint of the bulky content. Nonetheless the office is a massive repository of deeds, mortgages, leases, wills, liens foreclosure certificates — any document relating to property within Hastings, Ontario's largest county.

And the total is growing faster than ever.

There's a land boomlet in Hastings County.

In its southern reaches around Belleville, industrial and institutional expansion is increasing pressure on housing and property holdings.

The resort and tourism potential of the northern townships also is being tapped at record levels. (In fact, notes the registrar, north Hastings property estimates — once tied to mineral content — now have been switched to sheer land value.)

Aside from resort developers there are the metropolitan residents seeking rural retreats for weekends and summers.

All this has stepped up the volume of paper processing.

In one recent month, the registry office staff handled 1,200 deeds and other documents.

By comparison, "this was as much business in a month as we once did in half a year back in the early 1950s," says Mr. Hurst.

The paper flow keeps current records dating back to 1800 — an unbroken documentation of all land transactions instantly available for scrutiny by lawyers, realtors and any persons confirming the legalities of current land transactions.

The first files were compiled at Kingston, where transactions affecting the Hastings area were registered in the early days of settlement.

As representative government evolved, and county boundaries firmly established, the process was transferred to Belleville.

"The first registrar operated from his home for a number of years and later moved into an office specifically built for the purpose," says Mr. Hurst.

This building still stands — to the east of the present county buildings and houses the Hastings County Museum.

It was during this era that the system had its one and only breakdown, recalls the registrar.

The pair of deputy registrars of the day were in office some years when curious facts came to light.

Although both men had been accepting deeds and other documents for official registration, they weren't keeping any records.

Started officials launched an investigation — and were even more startled by the results.

It was discovered that the registrars had been receiving the deeds, duly stamping them with the county seal, and accepting the fees.

But, "depending on the amount received they'd purchase one to three bottles of liquor a day," says Mr. Hurst.

A Belleville newspaper advertisement of 1847 testifies to the involved outcome. All persons who had transacted business with the pair were called on to present the documents for recording at the registry office.

Separate records were set up — to allow for the derelict registrars' escapades — which still are in use today.

But times have changed drastically since those free-wheeling days, when — as one 1810 mortgage reveals — land could be transferred for its value in whiskey instead of scarce cash.

The massive bookkeeping system is supplemented by daily microfilming of all documents. Old plans and references have been saved from fading into illegibility by photostating.

The Hastings office is the only Ontario registry centre to be run on a self-serve basis. Lawyers and others seeking details on land titles seek out their own documents, aided by an easy reference system.

An idea inspired during a visit to a supermarket, Mr. Hurst as its innovator says it cuts down on staff and facilitates clients by ruling out lineups.

Biggest change has been an administrative transfer. The Registry office now is removed from the county government complex and is directly under A. A. Russell, assistant deputy attorney - general and inspector of legal offices.

The Traditional Way

Hastings County Registrar William Hurst, checks out files more than a century old. His work makes him custodian of records dating from 1800 and one of the oldest processes of government in Ontario.

Moon Specs $12

When the Apollo Astronauts take their first steps on the moon some time late Sunday night or early Monday morning their eyes will be protected by sun goggles exactly the same as made in Belleville and offered for sale throughout Canada.

An official of American Optical here said this morning that moon-walking astronauts would be wearing heat-tempered sun goggles identical to the "Skymaster" type manufactured here for sale to flying clubs and the department of national defence.

The lenses are of a stronger type than in the conventional polaroid sun goggles and retail for around $12.50 per pair.

Modern Techniques

Techniques of scientific 20th century supplement traditional record-keeping methods at registry office. Filing of important documents also is done by microfilm process here operated by Nora Fradette.

Form New Committee

Chamber to Promote Tourism

Belleville Chamber of Commerce has formed a committee to concentrate on tourist promotion of the city.

At the directors' meeting Thursday Frank Murray, Frank Helm, Jack Dickens and Fred Deacon were named to a tourism committee.

Space for Sale

The signboard and telephone booth installed by Belleville Chamber of Commerce at Victoria Park for the convenience of visiting yachtsmen is well patronized.

By the yachtsmen, that is. Local businessmen have been slow to use the signboard to advertise their services.

At their Thursday meeting, the C of C formerly received a city grant of $6,650 to promote the city, but in this year's austerity budget the grant was cut to $3,500. Subsequent talks with city council have led to a suggestion that the council purchase tourist information service from the C of C.

The committee will prepare a promotion program and budget for submission to council. Suggestions ranged from new color photographs for inclusion in brochures to the setting up of a tourist information booth during the summer months.

A second committee was appointed on a temporary basis to work with the department of labor in arranging a seminar in the city Oct. 14-16 to discuss the training industry and commerce require in their employees.

The day-long seminar, under the sponsorship of the department of labor and the Lake Ontario Regional Development council, will be organized by the committee. Its purpose will be to promote better liaison between education and labor in the community.

Named to the committee are Friedel Bellfeldt, J. K. Bradford and Gerald Wishart.

C. of C. directors decided to mount a personal appeal to businessmen to buy space on the signboard.

Advertising space at the harbor location will soon become valuable as traffic in the area increases, the directors feel. Each space, 10 by 12 inches in size, sells for $20.

New Directors Named

Two new directors have been named to the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

J. K. Bradford, president of Loyalist Printing and Fred Deacon, owner of Deacon Brothers Sportswear Ltd., replace Robert Irely and Charles Buckley, who are leaving the city.

The directors accepted the resignation of Mr. Irely, who has accepted a position with the atomic section of Ontario Hydro at Douglas Point.

Ameliasburg Growth Close to Predictions

AMELIASBURG — Council meeting with county planning consultants this week learned the acceleration in township growth in the last year is still in line with the planner's forecast at the time an official plan and zoning regulations were proposed.

David Beasley and David Vaughan representing planners Marshall, Macklin and Monaghan in discussing future prospects for the township referred to some of the problems which a revision in the present zoning bylaws could correct.

More of the opinions of the consultants will be advanced to the council planning board when the planners submit a draft of their proposals being prepared for the county.

Mystery Surrounds Purpose of Russia's Moon Probe

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

World attention is riveted on the fascinating journey of Apollo 11, but many minds also are taken up with the mysterious journey of the Soviet Union's unmanned Luna XV, with speculation that Russia wants to be the first to bring back samples of moon soil.

The specific task of Luna is secret. But the fact its journey is so closely timed with the take-off of Apollo 11 indicates Moscow is as deeply involved in the space race as ever and is sensitive about world prestige and its place in history.

One aspect of that Luna launching is the apparent prospect of public diversion, to detract in some measure from the U.S. operation. But the Russians cannot hope to maintain that diversion unless Luna XV compares at least in some small way with Apollo 11.

LITTLE MADE PUBLIC

All that has been made public is that Luna XV is a highly-sophisticated vehicle, a rocket carrier with an automatic station.

It may be the Russians did not really intend to launch this vehicle so close to that of Apollo 11—that it had to do so because previous models either failed to take off or had to be scrapped.

But the evident hurry to put the vehicle into orbit on board it for the moon is an indication of the importance the Russians attach to its project. Luna XV undoubtedly is equipped with new instruments, perhaps for surveillance or for a moon-based laboratory or even to scoop up moon samples for return to earth.

A successful conclusion to Apollo 11's operations will give the U.S. a space leadership which the Russians will find hard to match—a sharp contrast to the Soviet launching of its first Sputnik 12 years ago.

Belleville Livens Up

There is more life to Belleville these days. Suddenly it seems as if people are sitting up and taking more notice and generally becoming more involved.

The industrial tempo is quickening as most of us know. Downtown just now there is the sidewalk sale and this year's effort featured last night's parade.

On the recreational scene there is more active participation on a number of fronts. It is encouraging to witness the renewed interest in tennis. Soccer has a good following and local swimming pools are providing a load of fun and outlets for youthful energies. Archery is another sport Belleville has helped put on the map of late. Sailing seems to have more devotees, judging by the number of yachts out on the bay these summer days.

Coming soon is Quinte Exhibition 1969, successor to the ever-popular Belleville Fair. The new name may reflect some added sophistication. "It's Different, It's Exciting," is this year's watchword, but whatever the name the same wholesome "fun of the fair" will be present.

The Arts is another field that is not being neglected, thanks to the work of the Quinte Arts Council.

Belleville is showing more initiative on a number of fronts. It is livelier than it was even a year ago. It has always been a good place to live, but now it is more in tune with the contemporary Canadian scene than ever.

"What are you — some kind of an animal-hating weirdo?"

Speaking on behalf of crippled children, N. H. Banfield, guest speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Belleville Rotary Club pointed out that the work done by Rotary in this field was most commendable. He told the club they should never relax their efforts.

A community swimming pool such as is planned as a club project by the Kinsmen Club of Belleville complete with bathhouse and necessary filter beds and pumps, would cost between $45,000 and $50,000 members of the club were told by H. How's Your Geography

Saint John, New Brunswick . . . St. John's Newfoundland. If you have any friends in these two cities and wish to keep them, then remember the correct spelling. Not St. John but Saint John; and not St. John but St. John's.

And don't let those magnetic hills and reversing falls in New Brunswick mesmerize you so much that you return home and start talking about St. John's, N.B.

That is how it appeared in a letter to a contemporary recently. The letter to the newspaper told of street repairs and detours in St. John's (pardon, Saint John), N.B. and of how the visitors (from Ontario) found their way to the reversing falls only to get lost again on the way back.

To the rescue came a teenager who guided the visitors in his own car back to the motel, refusing any reward and enjoining them simply to "just remember New Brunswick when you get home."

Well we should imagine New Brunswick will remain indelibly in the visitors' minds. Getting lost can be a humbling as well as an aggravating experience, one which invariably makes the next sorer and set the place in future. On the other hand, the appearance on the scene of a Good Samaritan, as on this occasion, can make all the difference and do incalculable good for a city or region, far beyond the act of hospitality or aid itself.

The young fellow's assistance moreover speaks volumes for countless teenagers whose heads and hearts are in the right place.

As for getting lost in Saint John's (pardon, Saint John), the city, on a rocky peninsula, covers a large area, so that while with the reversing falls and the detours and this big area, a stranger could easily get lost.

Cocooned

Would that North American communities had the resources to tackle pollution with the zeal the U.S. Space Administration went about keeping the moon flight astronauts from catching any bugs before leaving earth. No wonder if keeping Messrs. Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins cocooned like that would not make them even more susceptible to colds and the like. It has been disturbing enough to learn that blood tests of astronauts on previous flights showed that not all astronauts are in the best of health. Anyway, the moon crew seem a healthy trio and if they arrive on the lunar planet and get back to earth again minus any unwelcome bacteria so much the better.

Czech Pharmacist Misled By Immigration as To Job Prospects in Canada

Kingston Whig-Standard

Despairing of continued freedom in his native country a Czechoslovak pharmacist with 22 years experience packed up after the Russian invasion and went to Austria. In Austria he talked to Canadian immigration officials who told him that he would, be welcome in Canada and would have no trouble in practising there.

Nicoli Martincek came to Canada with his wife and two children. He is now employed as a machine - tender in a factory and despairs of ever finding either the time or money necessary to bring himself up to the standards demanded before he can become a pharmacist.

The Ontario requirements for this work include proficiency in English, the lack of which this immigrant thinks will bar him forever from practising. It is perfectly understandable that druggists should understand English well enough that they would be in no danger of making mistakes. This state of proficiency is what is required, according to a member of the Education Committee of the Ontario Council of Pharmacy, before retraining can even be contemplated.

Mr. Martincek put it plainly when he was questioned concerning his plight: "If we had not been told this (the false information given them by Canadian immigration) we would have explored the possibility of going some other place."

Why is it so difficult for our immigration department to find representatives who possess enough basic education and common sense to avoid such gross errors as this one? This is not by any means an isolated case. Immigration difficulties of a similar nature are standard fare for newspaper readers and have been ever since there has been an immigration service. Human lives are deeply affected by the advice of immigration officers. It is surely beyond argument that humanity should be on the operative word in immigration offices everywhere.

Misguided Patriots

Daily Mail

The youth of the Prince has fired the memories of the old Wales with the hopes of the new. All this, the misguided wretches who call themselves Welsh freedom fighters do not understand. It is sad and ludicrous — but typical — that the two men who blew themselves up at Abergele are thought to have been on their way to blow up a social security office. For what could be less of a symbol of a harsh oppressor than an office which sees to old age pensions? The only achievement of these pitiable bandits is to unite the fellow countrymen in fear and contempt of their actions.

Montreal Edges Toronto

Windsor Star

There is a bit of furore in Toronto because that city has only two members in the federal Cabinet while the Montreal area has six. There is a tendency in our Ontario capital to deduce from this that Montreal, in Ottawa eyes, is at least three times more important than Toronto.

That doesn't follow at all. It may just be that Montreal has a preponderance of eminent Quebec Liberal MPs but that Toronto doesn't have such a monopoly of political brains in the Conservative party.

Toronto, truth to tell, once was much more lushly done by in this regard. In the 20-odd years when Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King was prime minister Toronto never was accorded the honor of having a member in his Cabinet. The closest was when Hon. W. P. Mulock, a Toronto lawyer, was postmaster general. But he represented the old York North constituency once held by Mr. King himself and one that by Sir William Mulock, Mr. King's political godfather. Mr. King appeared to have a permanent scunner at Toronto.

It would be much better, from the viewpoint of efficient government, if regional issues were forgotten when picking a Cabinet. Practically every Cabinet in history has had one or more dandleheads just because it was deemed necessary to give a certain area some representation.

Belfast Firemen Save Valuable Seconds In Getting to Outbreaks

BBC London Letter

The essential element in fire-fighting is speed, and in Belfast, Northern Ireland, a way of saving valuable seconds is now in operation. As in most cities, Belfast has a central Fire H.Q. and a number of subsidiary stations. In an emergency the public ring the Belfast telephone exchange, which immediately contacts the Fire Brigade H.Q., which in turn rings the appropriate sub-station. This is not quick enough, thought the fire authorities. So in their newest sub-station, just completed at a cost of £90,000, they decided to reduce the time-lag.

The new system has been described as a direct report from Northern Ireland. When Belfast Fire HQ contacts the new station, they can broadcast directly to every part of it, alerting the men, telling them the details of the fire. Everybody in the station hears the message at the same time. But other things happen besides transmission of the message. The moment HQ hits the remote control key, the roller doors of the station open, the emergency lights come on. Alarm bells contacts the Fire Brigade H.Q., which in turn rings the appropriate sub-station. This is not quick enough, thought the fire authorities. So in their newest sub-station, just completed at a cost of £90,000, they decided to reduce the time-lag.

Britain's Financial Troubles

Ottawa Journal

After Britain's latest loan from the International Monetary Fund ($500,000,000 now-and the same amount spread over the next 12 months), the London Economist commented that the country's debts "are so forbidding they seem almost unreal: if full and final payment is exacted it will mean 10 years' hard slog, at the least."

The most recent loan is required to help Britain repay the $800,000,000 still outstanding of the $1,400,000,000 borrowed in the currency crisis of 1965. After drawing the second $500,000,000, Britain's debt to the IMF this time next year will be $900,000,000 high than before the latest loan. It is a desperately vicious circle.

Yet, this is only the beginning. Over the next five years, the Economist has calculated, Britain is supposed to repay over $4,000,000,000 in international banks and foreign countries. The country's debt is estimated to be at the order of 27,000,000,000, or $8,000,000,000—and this is not counting any interest charges which this year alone will be some $250,000,000.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer's commitment last week to continue restrictions upon British spending in order to achieve a balance of payments surplus of some $750,000,000 by next spring was the least he could make—and even it may be unattainable. Targets have been set before. But only in two postwar years have surpluses of this order been achieved. The country hasn't ended a year with its accounts in the black since 1962, and then the surplus was only some $150,000,000.

North of Arctic Circle

Kiruna, Sweden—an Unusual City

Kingston Whig-Standard

Next year the Swedish city of Kiruna will celebrate the 75th anniversary of its charter. What makes this celebration so significant is the fact that situated about 90 miles north of the Arctic Circle, Kiruna's city limits cover an area of 8,820 square miles and include Sweden's highest mountain — Mount Kebnakaise (6,903 feet).

Kiruna claims that it is the world's largest city in area. The population, however, hardly matches the area under the city's jurisdiction. The 1968 census showed a population of only 28,000 persons. About 21,000 live in the city proper; the rest are scattered in the little settlements throughout the city limits.

Kiruna owes its existence to great iron-ore mines which are among the richest deposits in the world and consist of hills of solid ore. Most of the ore is sent by train to the Norwegian port of Narvik, which is open all year, and from there exported to West Germany, Britain, Belgium and Luxembourg.

The citizens of Kiruna speak three languages — Swedish, Finnish and Lapp. The city is run by a 40-man council made up of 19 Social Democrats, 10 Communists, seven Liberals, three Conservatives, and one Christian Democrat. Kiruna sees the midnight sun from May 26 to July 18. Scientists come from many countries to study the aurora borealis. Many other people come to study the fascinating northern city itself.

The winters in Kiruna are long, cold and dark. "We say that we have two green months and 10 black ones," one resident said recently. "But at least we have plenty of room for cross-country ski." There is plenty of room for expansion in Canada's northland also. Large-scale mineral development is a most exciting challenge to Canadian initiative and ingenuity. Such development will lack the fantastic aspects of Kiruna and its huge backyard.

Keeping Up with Joneses Adds Up to Inflation

Owen Sound Sun-Times

Everyone talks of and complains about inflation but few actually do anything about it. And its cause lies largely with the masses of people who comprise the buying public.

The demand for bigger and better homes, more household equipment, for more pleasure, travel, large second homes, often referred to as cottages, on costly properties, and, despite the great rise and cry over the increase in wages, the ever-mounting family consumption of luxury foods . . . all add up to inflation. High-salaries and incomes for many result in working people under hardship on the low income groups in the form of high prices creating an increasingly vicious economic circle.

The surest cure for inflation is adoption of sensible buying habits by the people at large, an honest effort to keep within incomes, rather than mortgaging the future, an end to the "keeping up with the Joneses" (and surpassing them) way of living.

Just how governments can force people to such a course is a difficult solution.

Today in History

The revolt, by troops supporting Francisco Franco, broke out in Morocco to herald the Spanish Civil War 33 years ago today—in 1936. Almost simultaneously revolts broke out in Cadiz, Seville, Malaga and Madrid and a few days later Franco set up a provisional insurgent government. Three years of some of the bloodiest fighting in history saw the victory of Gen. Franco's troops and his eventual emergence as the dictator of Spain.

Air Cadet Camp

Boys Taught Citizenship

TRENTON — "We are not preaching military service to these cadets, we are trying to teach them citizenship, leadership, and aviation." These words greeted members of press, television, and municipal governments at Canadian Forces Base in Trenton Thursday as they arrived to tour the annual Summer Air Cadet Camp on the base.

Commanding Officer N. D. Cairns was welcoming the gathering.

"Sure, we want them flying aircraft, any kind as long as they fly. We don't care if it's for pleasure, as a business or in the Forces."

"Two thousand boys will pass through the camp over the two months that it is held. While the camp is in action, each section is divided into two weeks. During the cadets' two weeks stay they will have a chance to take part in 20 different events. The program is run by a staff of 120 reserve officers and offers each cadet an amount of time in drill, flying, sailing, sports, water safety, films and spiritual guidance. During the first or second week that the boys are at camp they will also have the opportunity to visit Kingston, Ottawa, and Niagara Falls.

The visitors in Thursday's tour had a chance to see each section of the camp in operation and to take a part in the glider flying program.

Alderman Gerald Joyce of Belleville commented after his glider flight that it was one of the most thrilling parts of the program. Mayor Whelton Emmerson of Georgetown was excited by the camp and felt that the staff were indeed building fine men of the future.

Kiwanians Honor Priest

Kiwanian Ted Parker presents Trenton clergyman Father Art Appleton with a farewell gift at a dinner held In his honor Thursday evening.

Father Art Appleton Leaving Trenton Parish

TRENTON — "I refer to the late President Kennedy and the words he said when he was in Berlin. He noticed the problems they had, he noticed how friendly the people were and he said 'I am a Berliner,' that is how I feel about Trenton and I will carry the memories of this town in my heart wherever I go."

These remarks were made by Father Art Appleton to members of the Kiwanis club at their regular meeting Thursday night held in the Gilbert Hotel. The meeting was a special night as the club set aside regular business to pay honor to Fr. Appleton who will be transferring to Prescott.

President-elect Jack Wilson introduced Kiwanian Bill Allore who in turn welcomed the guest speaker and introduced Father Appleton to the club.

The St. Peter's Church priest was very high in his praise of the town and added a voice of thanks to the Kiwanis Club for the work they have done in the public service field.

Father Appleton was thanked by past Lieutenant-Governor Ted Parker who added his thanks to the honored guest.

A small token to remember the town of Trenton by was presented by Kiwanian Parker.

Saturday Classes For Japanese Students

By JUDY SCHRIEDER
Staff Reporter

Japan? It is a country across the Pacific Ocean — a foreign country that wants to inform the world of its culture, its traditions and its recent ascent to full-scale industrialization.

Last year the Embassy of Japan sponsored a tour for two Japanese students through the eastern provinces of Canada. The venture proved so successful that a similar project among various university summer-schools is being conducted this season.

This year's ambassadors have made an acquaintance with Belleville.

Ryuji Shiahata, who is working on a PhD in physics at the University of Toronto, and Masataka Saito, an economics student in Toronto, started their tour of Canadian soil on July 14. They will travel for about 50 days, stopping at various universities to show films and lead discussions on their native land.

"Our main purpose is to let more people understand more about Japan," explained Mr. Saito.

En route to London, Ontario, the students explained some of the differences between the Japanese and Western cultures.

The school system in Japan bears a resemblance to the Canadian educational system. Children begin six years of primary school at the age of five. Junior high lasts for three years and senior high for the same length of time.

"In Japan, we attend classes every Saturday morning," commented Mr. Shiahata.

Therein lies one major difference in the two systems: "I would say that Japanese university students are more radical than those in Canada" Mr. Shiahata went on to say. "They are trying to break away from the old university system and introduce a more flexible system."

The present universities in Japan tend to prevent contact between students and professors.

Canadian food is no burden to the two Japanese students. "In Japan, you can find any kind of food, so we are used to Western dishes," said Mr. Saito. "Of course, in Canada we cannot find very many Japanese dishes."

This lack of any Japanese Influence in Canada was also mentioned in connection with news publications.

"In Japan, we can read news from every part of the world. I think perhaps Canadian newspapers are limited in their sources," commented Mr. Saito.

The two students said that while they have been doing post-graduate work in this country they have had very little chance to read about happenings in Japan.

In the world of fashion, minis have invaded the island — but kimonos are there to stay.

"The western styles are more convenient and active," commented Mr. Saito, "but kimonos are still very popular."

The main thing that impressed the two students was the differences in family life.

In ancient Japan, people were organized by families, and the houses they lived in.

"In Canada I've heard so many people say that Canadians are more independent than the Japanese," remarked Mr. Saito. "I don't think that's true."

Japanese tradition and family unity lead to a very close knit family life for most Japanese. When a young man marries, he quite often moves in to live with his parents. In Canada, such a move would most likely be looked upon as a lack of independence.

"When the children move away, and the parents are left alone, the mother and father must be very lonely, especially if one of them dies," said Mr. Saito.

The tour will take the two students as far west as Saskatoon.

Lean, lively, loaded and a whole lot of fun

The Datsun 1000 is a slim, trim swinger that knows how to treat you in style. It pampers you with reclining bucket seats, carpets, tinted glass and white walls . . . all the things that would add up to a small fortune on other import and domestic cars. A few more! Back-up lights, twin horns, rubber bumper overriders and locking fuel tank. It even lights your cigarette. And costs less than $2000.

For muscle, it has a spunky 62 hp overhead valve engine that moves it faster than the law allows and squeezes up to 40 miles from a gallon of gas. Quick acceleration? You've got it, through the smoothest synchromesh 4-on-the-floor in the business.

What's the Datsun 1000 like to drive? From where you sit, you can see forever. In five minutes you'll feel right at home. Your Datsun 1000 turns on a dime. It stops straight and sure. And you can park two Datsun 1000s in the space a big car would take. There's a 2-door and a 4-door. Which is for you? The 4-door costs $100 more, if that will help.

Here's another thing to remember. When you buy a Datsun you can count on more than 160 Datsun dealers coast-to-coast in Canada or over 800 in North America. The service and parts availability is excellent. There's more than $1,000,000 in parts here to back you. Now all that's left is to test drive a Datsun 1000 and find out for yourself what fun-driving is all about!

MR. AND MRS. RONALD DUCE

Duce – Fisher

Albert College Chapel, Belleville, was the scene of the July 12 wedding when Sharon Mary Belle Fisher, daughter of Mrs. Laura M. Fisher of Belleville and the late Hilliard J. Fisher, was united in marriage to Ronald Bernard Duce, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Duce, of Thamesford, Ont. Officiating at the ceremony was Canon Temple. Rendering appropriate nuptial selections was organist Miss Teresa Ann Beseau, while the soloists were the Misses Mary and Sheila Dennett.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Dr. James Fisher, and her uncle, Keith Fisher, wore a bridal gown of crystal faun, of sheath styling, featuring an empire waistline with a self band and bow at the front. The gown's Elizabethan neckline and Mona Lisa sleeves were bordered with guipure lace. Her Elizabethan headdress of guipure lace and seed pearls and lily of the valley held the long flowing cathedral train of silk illusion. The bride carried a bouquet of 'mums and coral colored sweetheart roses.

Maid of honor, Laureen Fisher, sister of the bride was attired in a multi-colored nylon chiffon over a gown of silk taffeta over lilac lining. The gown was of the A-line style, with an empire waistline, with a self band and bow at the back. An Elizabethan neckline and bell sleeves were complemented by the bouquet of lilac tinted 'mums she carried.

Bridesmaids were the Misses Beverly Wilson, Hamilton, Bermuda; Nicky Aitken, Toronto; Bonnie Stone, Kingston; and Mrs. Karen Fisher, Amherstview, Ont. The junior bridesmaid was Miss Debbie Johnston, of Belleville. All were gowned the same as the maid of honor, except in colors of mint green, yellow, coral, rose pink and capri blue, respectively.

The flower girl, Miss Kimberly Ann Fisher, niece of the bride, wore a capri blue gown, of the same styling as the maid of honor. Ring-bearer was William McKennan, of Thamesford, Ont.

Best man for the ceremony was Biel Klassen. The ushers were Bruce Moffitt, Richmond; Robert McKinley, Ottawa; Allan Smith, Stittsville; Keith Elridge, Kingston.

For the wedding reception held at the banquet hall, Albert College, the mother of the bride received the guests wearing a dress and coat ensemble. Her sheath dress was of capri blue and black, completed by black accessories and a corsage of carnations

Assisting her, the mother of the bridegroom chose a sheath styled dress and jacket ensemble of Mediterranean blue and silk Egyptian brocade. Black accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses completed her outfit.

For the honeymoon to the United States, the bride donned a coat and dress ensemble of winter white knitted jersey, of A-line styling with a high military collar. Black accessories and a corsage of sweetheart roses completed her outfit. Upon their return, the couple will reside in Kingston.

Men Preferred

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — A woman who wants a job as a college professor must be far more qualified than her male competitors, says a Pennsylvania State University researcher, Lawrence A. Simpson said his survey showed male employers prefer to hire men and that this was especially true in higher education, where there is generally a negative attitude toward women.

De Rushie – Bowers

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD DE RUSHIE

College Hill United Church was the scene of the July 12 wedding when Bertha Anne Bowers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Bowers, of Belleville exchanged wedding vows with Rickie Phillip De Rushie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry De Rushie, of Windsor. Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. Roy Veney. Rendering appropriate nuptial selections was organist Clifford Bowers, uncle of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown was Chantilly lace, feataffeta. The bodice of the gown was chantilly lace, featuring long lily point sleeves, and a square neckline enhanced by trim of sequins and seed pearls. The floral motif of lace was carried out in applique on the skirt. The detachable train flowed from below the shoulders and was edged all around with matching lace. The crown was of organza petals and stand up leaves of lace trimmed with seed pearls, and attached to a four tiered nylon illusion veil of shoulder length. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

Matron of honor was Gail Derry, of Sault Ste. Marie, who wore a lilac nylon organza over taffeta floor length sleeveless gown, featuring white daisy trim around the round neckline and bodice. Her flower headpiece matched her dress. She carried a bouquet of white 'mums.

Bridesmaids, Sherry Anderson of Belleville, and Beverly Thompson of Actinolite, wore long gowns of yellow nylon organza over taffeta featuring daisy trim on the high neckline and down the front of the gowns, complemented by long puff sleeves. Both attendants had yellow flower headpieces and veils, and carried bouquets of white 'mums. The junior bridesmaid Cheryl De Rushie, sister of the bridegroom was attired the same as the other attendants.

Flower girl was Miss Grace Bowers, cousin of the bride, who was attired in a floor-length lilac dotted voile with a ribbon sash, and a mauve flowered headband. She carried a basket of white 'mums with yellow and mauve ribbons.

Best man for the ceremony was Terry De Rushie, brother of the bridegroom. The ushers were Arthur Bowers, brother of the bride, and Kevin Marshall.

For the wedding reception held at the Hillcrest Community Centre, the mother of the bride received the guests wearing a rose pink lace over taffeta A-line dress with a rolled collar, white accessories and a complementing corsage of pink and white sweetheart roses. Assisting her the mother of the bridegroom chose a pink crepe dress with a high neckline, and matching lace coat and white accessories, completed by a corsage of white roses.

For the wedding trip to Windsor and Detroit, the bride donned a yellow flowered crepe dress with a white background pleated skirt with yellow and white accessories, completed by an orchid corsage. Upon their return, the couple will reside in Belleville.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Chicken Cheaper Than Hamburger

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: . . . when giving your recipe for turkey pies (which I clipped) you mentioned a popular one given years ago — a hot chicken loaf made from chicken necks and backs. I buy backs and necks regularly for soup but would certainly appreciate your sending me the one for chicken loaf. You mentioned our reason for a great deal of economy — we're saving to build our house . . . E. R.

ANSWER: Good enough for me, E. seems I have been helping young folks build houses with hamburg recipes for years. Now chicken is cheaper than hamburg. I am happy to repeat this from April 1951.

CHICKEN LOAF
(using meat from backs and necks)

½ tbsp. butter or margarine
½ tbsp. flour
½ cup milk
½ cup breadcrumbs
2 egg yolks
1 cup cooked macaroni or rice
1 cup cold cooked chicken meat (see note below)
½ cup mushrooms (optional)
1 tbsp. canned pimiento
½ cup heavy cream (or evaporated milk — see note below)
1½ tsps. salt
1 tsp. parsley finely chopped
Whites of 2 eggs

NOTE: Three raw chicken backs and necks yielded 1½ well-packed cups meat when cooked — so you will have a little leftover if desired for sandwiches mixed with a little mayonnaise.

Melt butter, add flour and stir until well blended. Stir milk in gradually until thick. Bring to boiling point and add bread crumbs, egg yolks, macaroni cut in ½" pieces or rice, chicken and raw mushrooms cut in strips, pimiento cut in small pieces, cream beaten until stiff, salt and parsley. Stir until thoroughly mixed, then fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into mould lined with buttered paper and cover with foil and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 30 to 40 min. or until set. Remove from mould to hot serving dish and garnish with parsley. Serve with tomato or white sauce.

NOTE: If evaporated milk is substituted for cream, chill it until ice cold before whipping.

Hides and skins are stamped with designs that have been etched, engraved or electrotyped on plates or rollers. Some designs are even imitations of the natural grain of different animals and reptiles.

Successful Living

Love? Not at Fifteen

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: There's an 18-year-old boy at my school. He is tall and handsome. He's very nice, too.

Doris, I love this boy. My mother is really strict. She won't let me go out with any boy, 'cause I'm only 15. Twice this week he asked me to go to the corner with him. I didn't know what to say so I just turned around and he rode off. Now he doesn't ask me any more. My friend (Joan) and I enjoy talking to him at noon at school.

I would like to know if I should ask him to come to the corner with me. I really want that boy. I'm very cute and I know it but I don't want to be a "show off."

I asked Joan if I should ask him and she said, "Go ahead, ask him." — Kathie S.

Dear Kathie S.: Better not. Walking to the corner hardly assumes the status of a date, but I can't see you running after a young man of 18. Use your natural cuteness to charm someone not any older than 16½.

Love? O, no my dear Kathie. Just wonderful, exciting, teen-age excitement over a member of the opposite sex who has taken a notion to you.

Dear Doris: I have been going with a girl for six months now and was hoping to marry her. She's 22, I'm 25.

I've never violated a girl and always had my heart set on marrying a girl who'd been chaste. We love each other and she tearfully vowed I was the only one who mattered, although there had been others, when I asked her if I would be the first and only man she would share her intimacy with.

Is it unreasonable in this day and age for a man to expect to marry a virgin? I just can't get over my disappointment. — Disillusioned

Dear Disillusioned: Not unreasonable, no. There are girls who succeed in saving themselves for marriage, in spite of the so-called new morality.

But I can't see the sense in throwing up a good solid love match on such grounds. Because your girl cares so very much for you, she has told you the truth; she believed your love for her could take it.

A girl may have great pressure on her, these days, to yield to urgent demands from the boys. Isn't there anything in your past for you to confess, done in a heated moment? Are you in a position to "throw the first stone"?

Confidential to Troubled: Your husband hit the nail on the head when he declared your mother unbalanced. And so she has been all these heart-breaking years. What terrible thing started her on the road to resenting you and ridiculing you right from the start? She is taking out some deep hurt on you.

No need to keep on torturing yourself by taking her taunts. Once you stopped her with firm talk; do it again; believe it or not, a disturbed mind like hers finds comfort in being disciplined and controlled.

Speakers Highlight UCW Meeting

Recently in the Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Church hall the UCW entertained the Messenger Group and their leaders, Mrs. Raymond McConnell; Mrs. Stanley Williams and Mrs. Garth Joslin.

Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Fletcher of Hoards were the special guests. They showed colorful slides of the Hong Kong Mission station, taken by Rev. and Mrs. Paul Newman, who are home now on furlough.

Mr. Fletcher was graciously thanked for his kindness in coming back to Mount Pleasant, and Dake Harry made the presentation of a gift.

Kenneth Sharp presided for the program and Jill McAdam accompanied the hymns.

Linda, Heather and Kenneth Hoard sang and selections were read by Ian Hubel and Lynn Joslin. Others assisting with the program were Hilda Talsma, Isabel Hoard, Debbie David and Donnie Hubel.

Mrs. Burton Sharpe, president of the UCW welcomed the group. Reports were given by Mrs. Harry McAdam and Mrs. Donald Johnson.

Mrs. Mac Sharp accompanied the hymns and gave a piano prelude. The UCW are catering for a sale at Hoards in the near future.

At the close of the meeting, the leaders of the Messenger Group conducted a fish pond. The July group of the UCW were in charge of the social hour.

The guests included a former W.I. member, Mrs. Hayden Ellis and daughter of Elmvale who were holidaying in the valley.

WEDDING

MOORE — RATHWELL

Wedding vows were exchanged recently in Spring Brook United Church between Sharon Elizabeth Rathwell and John Leslie Moore. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Rathwell of Bonarlaw and he is son of Mrs. Minnie Moore and the late George Moore of Bonarlaw. Rev. W. C. Cox officiated at the ceremony.

The bride chose a floor length A-line gown of French lace styled with Empire bodice, three-quarter length sleeves banded with scalloped lace matching the lower skirt. Her bouffant tiered veil of silk illusion was caught in a crown of silk roses trimmed with seed pearls. She carried red roses.

The maid of honor, Miss Peggy Parkin of Marmora, wore a floor length sheath gown of orchid rayon taffeta, a narrow skirting of French lace trimming the Empire waist line. A matching mohair crown held a short veil with appliqued white lace. She carried a cascade of white shasta mums.

The best man was Garry McComb of Bonarlaw, and ushers were Jack Rathwell and Wayne Moore, brothers of the bride and groom. A reception was held in the church hall following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Moore will reside at Oshawa after their wedding trip to Western Ontario.

Ann Landers

Following Argument Mom Censors Letter

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last night my mother and I had an argument. One word led to another and she said pretty cutting things. When my mother starts to yell the best thing to do is not answer, and get busy, with something. So I went to my desk and began to write a letter.

ANN LANDERS

Mom came up behind me and screamed, "You are writing your father, aren't you?" (They are divorced.) I said, "Yes." Then she shouted, "You will not be allowed to mail that letter until I have read it. I'm not going to have you telling lies on me."

Ann, I didn't even mention my mother's name in the letter, yet she stood there until I finished writing and then insisted that I hand it over. Is this fair? Isn't a 15-year-old entitled to some privacy? My mother says as long as I live under her roof she has the right to know everything I say and do. Is she correct? — BUGGED.

DEAR BUGGED: Any person who is old enough to write should be permitted to mail a letter without censorship. Your mother sounds like a sick woman. If she hasn't seen a doctor recently for a physical checkup, she should do so. In the meantime be patient. Every home needs at least one mature person, and you may have to be that one in your house.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is cheating on me. It's not another woman. I'd know how to fight that. It's his brothers.

There are three boys in the family and they are like triplets. Every evening they play gin rummy. On weekends they go to ball games or play golf together or go fishing.

When I was in labor with our second child, my husband left me in the hospital to go see his brother who had had a tooth pulled. It's been that way from the day we married. Brothers first — wife second.

My sisters-in-law are as fed up as I am. What's wrong with these men? What can we do about it? — FOURTH FIDDLES.

DEAR FID: The brothers are emotional adolescents. They have never emerged from childhood, and they probably never will. Outdoor them by planning some interesting activities. If you women bought tickets to the theatre or arranged movie dates with non-relatives, the boys wouldn't play so much gin rummy. Use some imagination. The only difference between a rut and a grave is the dimensions.

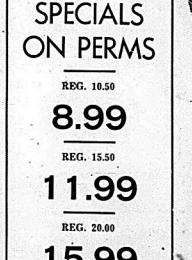
DEAR ANN: You keep printing letters from girls who have to punch guys in the mouth to keep them in line. What about guys who want a nice, respectable evening, but the girls have different ideas?

I hope I don't sound like a jerk but in the last two months I've dated three such chicks. Funny thing is, Ann, I'm not much to look at and I'm not the type you'd think would turn a girl on. Yet I keep running into sexpots with far-out ideas. Any suggestions? — J.P.

DEAR J.P.: I assume you are not putting me on so I'll answer in earnest. There are plenty of aggressive dames around and they usually go for quiet guys like you. My advice is head for a crowded place, make it an early evening and lose the lodd's phone number.

Points for Parents



By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Children for goodness sake, quit running around the pool and yelling so much. You give me a headache. Why can't you behave?"

Mother: "It's not right to be too noisy and wild at the swimming pool because grownups swim here too and it is disturbing for them. You must never chase each other around. It's too dangerous."

Children are prone to be frisky and noisy around a swimming pool. It's up to parents to keep things under reasonable control, and to enforce strictly any rules made for safety.

Queen's Party Tangles Traffic

LONDON (AP) — Demands to make Queen Elizabeth stop holding her garden parties in London swelled to a horn-honking roar Thursday as a queen-sized traffic jam blocked the streets around Buckingham Palace.

The Queen was having 8,000 guests for tea.

Three times a year the Queen holds a party in the sprawling palace gardens—for diplomats, government officials, civil servants, doctors, girl guides and other notables and their families. And three times a year come the traffic protests.

A Buckingham Palace spokesman said the Queen liked to keep her weekends free, and staging the garden parties at Windsor Castle would make it difficult for many guests to get there.

THE BETTER HALF

Astronauts Provide TV Show

their spaceship hurtled toward a so-called "twilight zone" in which the gravitational influence of the earth and moon is about equal.

At 11:22 p.m. EDT tonight, the moon will win the gravitational tug-of-war and Apollo 11 will be in the grip of the moon's gravity. The astronauts will pass through this invisible barrier when they are 43,495 miles from the moon and 214,402 miles from their shrinking home planet.

Once across this line, Apollo 11's speed will increase from about 2,000 to 5,700 miles an hour as the pilots sweep toward the backside of the moon.

The astronauts had an easy day Thursday sighting stars in a series of navigation exercises. Today they faced hard work, getting to know their two spacecraft and learning how to move efficiently in the weightlessness of space where the flick of a wrist can lift a man out of his seat.

After a morning of light work, Aldrin and Armstrong were to crawl through a 30-inch tunnel connecting the command module, code-named Columbia, and the lunar landing craft that resembles a gigantic, un-earthly insect.

During their television broadcast Thursday night they indicated mission controllers then thought they could carry their color camera along with them today to give earth a first look at the inside of the ship the astronauts will ride down to the moon Sunday.

Aldrin, who will pilot Eagle on its hop to the moon and back, will be the first man through the tunnel, squeezing his way through, at 5:47 p.m. EDT, followed five minutes later by Armstrong, the mission's commander.

Command module pilot Collins will stay behind in Columbia while Armstrong and Aldrin spend almost two hours checking over the complicated systems of the fragile, four-legged craft that will be their vital link to life for 35 hours beginning Sunday afternoon.

Mainly, they will be looking for damage that might have occurred during the jolting liftoff from Cape Kennedy Wednesday.

Among the things they will be checking are the oxygen and communications systems. They will also inspect the ship's still, motion picture and television cameras, with which they will record stages of their monumental journey to land on the moon.

If they find major damage, they will cancel their landing plans. However, mission control officials say, chances of this are remote.

The astronauts Thursday night transmitted a 35-minute live telecast from their weightless home—30 minutes longer than scheduled.

The space pioneers will beam back another television broadcast at about 7:32 p.m. EDT before resting up for the crucial engine firing Saturday that will swing them into orbit around the moon.

Thursday night's TV program was the clearest ever sent from a spacecraft. The first 21 minutes were devoted to a view of the earth from 140,000 miles away.

"You're seeing the earth as we see it in our lethand window," Collins narrated. "Just a little over half the earth . . . North America, Alaska, United States and Canada, Mexico and Central America."

Then he warned: "Okay world. Hang onto your hat. I'm going to turn you upside down."

And, twirling the camera, he did. The blue-brown planet did a crazy turn.

"I'm making myself seasick, Charlie," said Collins. "I'm going to put you rightside up where you belong."

He was talking with the capsule communicator, astronaut Charles Duke, at mission control.

Then the astronauts brought the world inside their spaceship for a tour of the cabin. They showed their flight chart, electronic calendar, computer, kitchen and instrument panel.

Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins reported no problems with Columbia.

Apollo on TV

NEW YORK (AP) — Following are the television schedules of major U.S. networks for Apollo 11 coverage.

Friday: Live color transmission scheduled for 7.32-7.47 p.m. EDT, all three networks; ABC, one-minute progress report at 10.58 p.m.

Body Is Not A Machine

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

After playing three sets of tennis yesterday morning — doubles, naturally, at my age — I felt better than I had all week. As I was luxuriously relaxing after this workout, I thought about the widespread misconception, in most people's minds about the human body.

In our mechanistic age, it is customary to think of the body — and all living things, in fact — as a kind of machine. We make analogies with pumps and pistons and bearings, and look upon the body as an intricate piece of hardware that obeys the laws of mechanics.

But this is a totally wrong view, confusing the two different fields of biology and physics. As a living entity, the body is quite the opposite of a machine of any sort: a machine wears out with use, and the more use the faster it wears out; the body is renewed with use, and the more use the slower it wears out.

As Dr. Alexis Carrel-Gregg, the noted scientists, has pointed out, "If you use your car a lot, the car wears out, and your legs get weak, but if you walk a lot, your legs get strong." This, he rightly says, is one of the great distinctions between life and non-life. "Life itself keeps life going."

If you use a pump long enough, the pump will break down or wear out; but the heart is a kind of pump, yet it lasts far longer through exercise than through stagnancy, and the more you use it, the better it operates. The same is true of muscles, which deteriorate with non - use, but keep their tone and renew their vigor the more regularly they are employed.

Life is not "physical," then, in the sense that a piece of machinery is physical. While nothing lasts forever, it is the nature of inanimate objects that they suffer depletion through use, while it is the nature of living objects that they achieve renewal through use.

The mind, too, has often been compared to a mechanism, say a giant computer machine, but this is just as erroneous — for the mind also grows by exercise and dies from inanition. The more you use it, the more it develops, and the longer it lasts; whereas a torpid mind soon sinks into a half-sleep and may die, for all practical purposes, before its possessor does.

There is a vital factor — what Bergson long ago called the elan vital — in all living organisms that operates in a wholly different mode than that of inanimate objects. They respond to the law of diminishing returns, while life pays back more dividends the more you invest in its participation.

Nickel and Union Are Still Sparring

TORONTO (CP) — International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. and the United Steelworkers of America continued to play cat-and-mouse with each other Thursday and there was little sign of progress towards settlement of their week-old contract dispute.

About 18,000 steelworkers walked out July 10 when a three-year contract expired at Inco's Sudbury and Port Colborne, Ont., operations.

Homer Seguin, president of Sudbury Local 6500, said negotiations were still "tough and nerve-wracking", with both sides reluctant to give way.

W. H. Dickie, chief conciliator for the Ontario labor department, continued to press both sides to move away from a virtual stalemate on wage proposals.

The company's last published proposal was a 95-cents-an-hour package, with 71½ cents in wages, over three years. The union is believed to be asking for a package of more than $1.50.

Members of the union committee have said they want the "highest basic rates in heavy industry in Canada" but a spokesman said the company was still far from conceding a substantial wage increase.

Under the old contract, signed in 1966, the average wage was $3.06, or $122.40 for a 40-hour week.

Engineers In Accord On Bill

TORONTO (CP) — Bill 48, which provides the legal framework for the Association of Professional Engineers to license and regulate the profession, has been proclaimed the Professional Engineers Act by the provincial government.

The bill, which goes into effect Aug. 1, caused a controversy within the engineering profession when the association asked a regulatory body to be set up apart from the Association of Professional Engineers.

The dissident Special Committee of Professional Engineers said earlier it wanted the association to become an organization which would represent interests of engineers. A college of engineers would handle licensing and policing of the profession.

Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said Thursday both groups had agreed to the proclamation of the bill.

The special committee said it plans to present Mr. Wishart with several amendments this fall.

Rare Underwater Pouring Required For Footings of New Dundas Bridge

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Plagued by extensive water seepage which has defied the efforts of five big pumps, Gaffney Construction Ltd. has been forced to go underwater to pour one of the footings for the new Dundas Street bridge.

The underwater pouring of concrete for the No. 3 pier footing was carried out Thursday evening.

According to Ron Prato, project engineer for Damas and Smith consulting engineers who designed the structure, it is seldom that contractors have to resort to underwater pouring of concrete in bridge construction.

Normally coffer dams can be made sufficiently tight to allow almost complete emptying, but this has not been the case with the Belleville project.

But in this instance it was not a case of the coffer dam leaking.

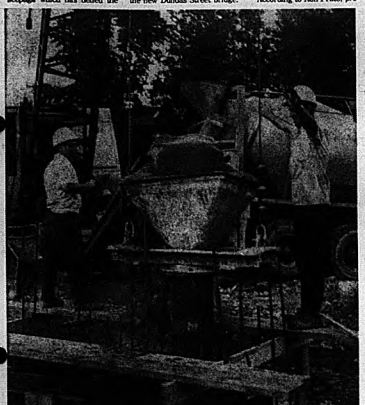
Due to fractures in the riverbed limestone and despite all efforts to stop the flow, water continued to spout up into the coffer dam — right on the spot where the No. 3 pier had to be located.

To allow work to go ahead with the other bridge piers the trouble area was isolated with the installation of an extra section of coffer dam.

Then with pumps going full blast, carpenters still had to work in water to their waists as they struggled to construct forms.

It was not until late yesterday afternoon that everything was in readiness for the touchy task of underwater pouring.

With everything "go" the pumps were stilled, allowing the coffer dam to fill, thereby equalling pressure and cutting off the river bottom "spouts".



Then the concrete pouring commenced in up to eight feet of water.

The technique for the operation was to funnel the concrete mix to the river bottom through upright sections of 12-inch pipe spaced evenly across the length of the pier.

The mix spills out from the bottom of the pipes displacing the water inside the forms. Poured in this manner the concrete does not mix with the water and sets almost as in the conventional above - water manner.

There are five mid-stream piers in the new bridge, in addition to the east and west end abutments. Two of the pier footings have already been poured and the contractor is keeping his fingers crossed hoping to escape serious water problems in placing the last two footings.

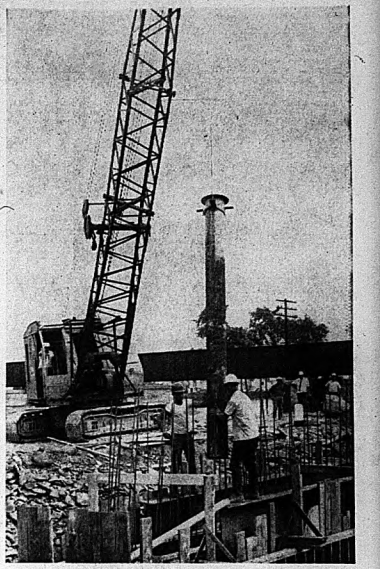
Down Goes the Concrete

Underwater pour of concrete for Dundas Street bridge footing gets underway. Concrete mix is funnelled through tubes to river bottom where it fans out under water to form pier footing. The underwater pouring technique is used only where excessive water seepage makes coffer dam ineffective.

Crooked Piers OK

Belleville's new Dundas St. bridge across the Moira River is going to have crooked piers.

And because of different angle of placement they will have a difference of length of up to 13 feet.



But it is all a matter of design rather than accident and has been made necessary by the variance in the direction of stream flow.

In other words, some of the piers are being placed at an angle to conform with the stream flow, the thinking being that piers so oriented will have less tendency to cause spring season ice jams.

Project Engineer Ron Prato, of Damas and Smith, said the particular placement of bridge piers was done as a result of stream studies done at different periods of the year.

The piers will range in length from 67 to 80 feet. And the pier orientation will also call for different lengths for the pre-stressed concrete bridge deck slabs to be manufactured by Wilson Concrete of Belleville.

The manufacture of the deck slabs will commence over the weekend and will turn them out at the rate of four per day until the job is completed.

Readying for Pour

Workmen place first of five 12-inch metal tubes through which concrete mix for underwater pour for pier footing at Dundas Street bridge will be funnelled. Underwater pour of concrete was necessary because of coffer dam flooding which pumping could not control.

For Ted Wallwork, It All Started with A Sick Heron

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Ted Wallwork, promising young naturalist from Prince Edward County can thank a Great Blue Heron for the educational summer he is now enjoying at Albion Hills.

If Ted had not discovered one of these birds wounded near his R.R. 2 Picton home it is unlikely that he would have contacted Terry Sprague.

Terry, a well known naturalist in the Quinte area, came to the rescue of both Ted and the bird with practical advice on the unfortunate situation.

Always seeking potential "birders" Terry invited Ted and his younger brother Robbie to accompany him on a naturalist's outing to Presqu'ile Point.

Fifteen-year-old Ted seemed keenly interested in the field trip and soon began to attend regular meetings of The Quinte Field Naturalists Club in Belleville. Remarked club president, Terry Sprague, "Ted became a faithful member of all our naturalists' outings, amazing me more and more on each field trip with his incredible knowledge of natural history and his awareness of the need for conservation in Ontario."

At Terry Sprague's suggestion, Ted became a member of the Prince Edward Regional Conservation Authority's Wildlife Advisory Board. He is also a member of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists and a member of the Bird Records Committee of the Quinte Field Naturalists.

During the winter of 1968 Ted Wallwork took part in a survey of heronries, the nesting places of the Great Blue Herons, in Prince Edward County. At one time hundreds of herons had nested here but today it seems very few do. Ted wanted to know why.

This year, sponsored by Terry Sprague, Ted applied for a student award from the Federation of Ontario Naturalists. This cash award is presented to students who wish to take on a project dealing with natural history.

In April it was announced that Ted was one of three Ontario students to receive this award. He won it for his study on heronries.

At this time Ted applied for the junior conservationists' award program, administered by the Dept. of Energy and Resources. The program is designd to stimulate an interest in conservation for those students demonstrating a natural interest in the outdoors. The program runs June 29 — Aug. 17.

Ted Wallwork applied, sponsored by the Prince Edward Regional Conservation Authority, and was accepted along with 23 other students from various sections of Ontario. There were hundreds of applicants for this program.

Wallwork left the county last month travelling to Albion Hills Conservation School near Bolton.

His fellow naturalists are eagerly awaiting his return from what would be termed "a super summer" for a conservationist.

"I am extremely proud of Ted and of the distance he has come in a relatively short time," says Terry Sprague. "Ted Wallwork has been my right - hand man on many fieldtrips and at several meetings."

"Perhaps when Ted returns he will be able to share some of his knowledge of conservation with me."

Playgrounds Feature Was 'Hobo for Day'

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Scores of Belleville youngsters had the best of times playing the worst of times yesterday.

The event was Hobo Day at city playgrounds — the first of a special-events program organized by the recreation department during the holiday season.

Moppets were mustered at two main play centres — East Hill and Ontario School for the Deaf playgrounds.

Clad in odds and ends of clothing, imparting their personal impressions of the downand — outer the youngsters made a motley crew — and a painstaking job for judges.

To underscore impartiality, however, local housewives were pressed into service to adjudicate the winning entries.

Winners fell into various categories and had their moments of triumph.

Each centre chose its king and queen of the hobos. Winners were Carol Fields, nine, and Jeffrey Wildeen, eight, (East Hill), Cathy Reed, 12, and Brian Harvey, five, (West Hill).

However, it was short-lived glory soon lost in a general overthrow of enthusiasm as refreshments were rolled out. The array of hobos fished around in their rags for pennies as fresh drinks ended the outing.

BANCROFT — A 12-year-old Toronto boy is in hospital with third degree burns to most of his body after a tent caught fire at summer camp near here.

Christopher Stafford is in Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, where he was taken Sunday in critical condition with severe burns to 90 per cent of his body.

Provincial police here say the boy was sleeping in a tent with two companions at a Toronto YMCA camp when the accident occurred.

The other two boys escaped injury. Police say they are still investigating causes of the mishap.

A Royal Reception

Cathy Reed, 12, and five-year-old Brian Harvey, get rousing cheer from playmates after being chosen hobo king and queen at playground program at Ontario School for the Deaf yesterday. Event was among special events for youngsters scheduled by city's recreation department.

Staub Picked to Represent Expos on NL All-star Squad

CINCINNATI (AP) — Except for a catcher and one outfielder, manager Red Schoendienst stuck to player voting today as he selected 11 players to round out the 28-man National League baseball squad for the annual major league all-star game.

The game will be played in Washington July 23.

The selection of catcher Chris Cannizzaro of the expansion San Diego Padres and outfielder Rusty Staub of Montreal Expos filled the requirement that each club in the league must be represented by one player.

Extra catchers chosen by Schoendienst will be Randy Hundley of Chicago Cubs and Cannizzaro. Johnny Bench of Cincinnati will be the starter under the vote by players, coaches and manager.

Lee May of Cincinnati and veteran Ernie Banks of Chicago will be extra first basemen to play behind starter Willie McCovey of San Francisco Giants. Glenn Beckert of Chicago was picked for second base behind starter Felix Millan of Atlanta.

Tony Perez of Cincinnati was named for third base where Chicago's Ron Santo will be the starter.

Denis Menke of Houston was picked at shortstop, Chicago's Don Kessinger will be the starter.

Schoendienst named Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh, Willie Mays of San Francisco, Pete Rose of Cincinnati and Staub as the extra outfielders.

The starters will be Hank Aaron of Atlanta, Matty Alou of Pittsburgh and Cleon Jones of New York.

In the player-coach-manager vote Cannizzaro didn't place and Staub received only one vote.

Argos Thump Bombers as Teams Use Seven Pivots

TORONTO (CP) — What they lacked in quality, the teams made up in quantity Thursday night as Toronto Argonauts thundered over Winnipeg Blue Bombers 39-14 in a Canadian Football League exhibition game.

Coach Leo Cahill of Argos tried all three of his quarterbacks—Wally Gabler, Tom Wilkinson and Frank Cosentino.

Joe Zaleski countered with John Schneider, Lather Selbo, Ron Johnson and Don Weiss to treat the 22,772 customers—who sweltered in 90-degree heat—to a festival of seven quarterbacks.

The victory left Argos even on the exhibition series—they have a loss to Calgary, Winnipeg had tied Calgary and beaten Montreal previous to Thursday's game.

Tom Johansen s port-side soccer kicking accounted for nine Argo points. Dickie Moore, Mel Profit, Bill Symons, Dave Washington and Jim Thorpe scored touchdowns.

For the Bombers, Butch Pressley in the first quarter and Don Summers in the fourth scored the touchdowns. Gene Lakusiak converted both.

Gabler's long pass to Bobby Taylor early in the first quarter set up Moore's touchdown and Johansen converted. The kickoff was caught to make it 8-0, and Argos never looked back.

Most spectacular single-march of the game came when Argos opened the third quarter. Wilkinson ran a dive play for four yards, passed to Profit for 15 yards, then hit Symons for another first down. His hand-off to Symons gained 16; a pass to Profit covered 37 yards and put Toronto on the Winnipeg three-yard line. Symons squirmed and bounced off the left end to score.

Winnipeg had 20 first downs to 17-for Toronto and outrushed the Easterners 114 to 95 yards.

The three Toronto quarterbacks combined for 358 yards through the air to 231 managed by the four from Winnipeg.

Two-year Reign Ends

Carol Places Sixth

VICTORIA (CP - Staff) — Don Jackson captured his fourth straight aggregate Canadian championship and Dorothy Lidstone dethroned Belleville's Carol Armstrong Thursday as the national archery championships ended with the hunter competition.

Jackson, from Lindsay, Ont., finished third in the hunter round with 582 points but had the top aggregate of 2,288, well ahead of runner-up Rosaire Charbonneau of Larraine, Que., who finished with 2,186. Edwin Hanoux of Winnipeg was third at 2,128, followed by Victoria's Cliff Allan with 2,112.

Thursday's hunter freestyle round was won by Larry Courchaine of Vancouver with 588, including the first perfect round of 15 targets in a Canadian final.

Mrs. Lidstone, from North Vancouver, finished fourth in the hunter freestyle but had little trouble holding her lead in the aggregate championship, finishing with 3,172 points.

Virginia Parkhurst of West Vancouver was second with 3,065 and third was Marie Popson of Lethbridge, Alta., with 2,999 points. Mrs. Popson won the hunter round Thursday with a record 572 points, eclipsing the mark of 554 set by 1968 over-all champion Carol Armstrong of Belleville.

Mrs. Armstrong, the Canadian Women's Archery titlist for the past two years, placed sixth in aggregate scores at 2,974 — only two points behind fourth place finisher Francoise Barriere of St. Jean, Que.

Carol has one consolation though. Her third place standing at the halfway mark of the national competition insured her selection as one of the four women on the eight-member Canadian team which will compete in Valley Forge, Pennsylvania, in August, in the World Archery Championships.

Only the first two rounds counted towards the selection of the Canadian team, but the aggregate total of all four rounds decided the Canadian champions and the final national standings.

Louis Van Meyl of Galt completed a sweep in the junior men's freestyle events, winning the hunter round in that division with 580 points.

South Africa, Britain Split in Jittery Day

BRISTOL, England (AP) — The tennis teams of Britain and South Africa split the opening singles in the European zone section A final of the Davis Cup Thursday night after a bomb scare and a sit-down on court by anti-apartheid demonstrations.

Bob Hewitt gained the tie for South Africa by defeating Graham Stilwell 7-9, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2, 6-3 at the end of a long and jittery day.

The sitdown was staged by two youths and two girls during the opening match, in which Mark Cox of Britain edged Bob Maud 3-6, 6-3, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4.

The four demonstrators were carried off the Bristol Lawn Tennis Club court by police.

Then an anonymous phone caller told the police a bomb had been left under a seat behind the court. Detectives rushed to the scene and found a parcel containing a bottle and wire.

Political feelings have dogged the South African team throughout its progress to this final. Two of their opponents in previous rounds, Poland and Czechoslovakia, refused to play them.

Cementmen Within Two Points of First

Top Teams Have Less Breathing Room

Ever so slowly the noose is tightening on the top three teams in the Commercial Softball League and their breathing room is being restricted by the other four teams in the seven-team league.

Thursday night the fourth place Point Anne Cementmen fired an 11-hit salvo and shelled City Hotel 8-1 in the nightcap of the Commercial League doubleheader. City is currently tied with the Richard Ellis Juniors and Stinson's Construction for first place in the Commercial loop.

And cellar-dwelling Belvedere Hotel, last year's pennant winners, got in on the act by blanking Ellis Juniors 3-0 in the first game of the doubleheader to move into a tie for sixth place with Black Diamond Cheesemen.

Point Anne wasted no time in getting to City Hotel's ace lefthander Bob Ethier. The Cementmen staged a four-run first inning rally on a pair of walks, an error by City catcher Tom Coolen, a single by Mike Cook and Gerald Maher's two-run single.

The Cementmen drove Ethier from the mound in the fourth frame when they collected three more hits — one a two-run single by Stu Muirhead — and three runs.

Jim Nicholls and Gerry Genereaux finished up on the mound for City. The trio gave up 11 hits and issued six free passes while fanning nine.

Jamie Hunter scattered six hits over the seven inning distance to pick up the win. He threw third strikes past three men and didn't issue a walk as the Cementmen moved to within two points of first place.

Mike Cook and Hunter each stroked three singles for the Cementmen and Larry Fraser added a pair of base hits. Jim Horwood, Stu Muirhead and Gerald Maher also hit safely for the victors.

Carm Milligan's sixth inning solo homer accounted for City's lone run. Genereaux banged out a pair of singles for City while Doug Murray, Doug Moreau and Rod Ridley each singled.

Righthander Wayne McConnell gave up a hit in every inning but the seventh, but allowed only two base-runners to reach third in blanking the Juniors.

McConnell threw third strikes past seven men and issued a pair of walks while stranding two runners in each of the second, third, fifth and sixth innings.

Doug Rose's lead-off triple and Grant Parks' run-scoring single gave McConnell a run to work with in the fifth frame, before his mates added a pair of insurance runs in the bottom of the inning.

A pair of hit batters, a single by Jerry St. Denis, Grant Parks' run-scoring fly and Gerald Daniel's RBI double put the game out of the juniors' reach.

Mark Sheridan on the juniors' mound gave up six hits, walked four and struck out four.

St. Denis with a pair of singles, Doug Rose with a triple, George Daniels with a double and Grant Parks and Bob Smith with singles accounted for the winners' hits.

Bob Parsons with three hits, Wayne McGarrett with a brace of singles and John Campbell and Dale Duval with safeties accounted for the juniors' hits.

Minnesota Too Hot

Athletics Win---But Can't Win!

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Forgive Oakland Athletics for feeling like they're on a treadmill to oblivion. Chasing Minnesota Twins can be frustrating.

Oakland has won seven of eight games in the last week, including Thursday night's 8-2 victory over Seattle Pilots, but all the streak did for them was drop them another 1½ games behind the rampaging Twins in the American League's Western Division.

Minnesota won its ninth straight and 18th in the last 20 outings Thursday, whipping Chicago White Sox 8-5. The victory kept the Twins' lead at a comfortable five games over the Athletics, who don't gain ground when they win, but can't afford to lose.

Elsewhere in the American League Thursday, Baltimore Orioles shaded Cleveland Indians 3-2 and Detroit Tigers trimmed Washington Senators 4-3. Boston's game at New York was rained out and the other teams were not scheduled.

Sal Bando did a one-man job on Seattle for the Athletics. Bando doubled and tripled and drove in Oakland's first four runs as the Pilots suffered their eighth straight loss.

Don Mincher homered for the third straight game for Seattle.

Bando added one run home in the first and two more in the third. Then he singled his next three times and raised his batting average to .291.

The Twins jumped on Chicago starter Joe Horlen and rushed six runs across in the first inning against the White Sox.

Minnesota sent 12 men to the plate in the big inning with singles by Rich Reese and Ted Uhlaender, a two-run double by George Mitterwald and a pair of bases-loaded walks driving in the runs.

Later, Harmon Killebrew smashed his 28th homer of the season into the centre field backdrop, 456 feet from home plate.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Brooks Robinson hammered a two-run homer in the eighth inning that moved Baltimore past Cleveland.

Until Robinson connected, Dave McNally's two-season, 15-game unbeaten string was in jeopardy. McNally, lifted for a pinch hitter in the seventh, left the game with Baltimore trailing and stood to be his losing pitcher until Robinson connected.

It marked the eighth time that McNally has been rescued from a possible loss by a late Baltimore rally. The victory went to reliever Pete Richert while Stan Williams, the victim of Robinson's homer, was the loser.

Willie Horton's three-run home-run gave Detroit a quick lead against Washington but it took some stout relief pitching by Fred Lasher and Don McMahon to preserve the victory.

The Senators had closed the gap in the eighth on successive two-baggers by Cline and Laboy off Jim Bunning. Willie Stargell's two-run seventh-inning homer had lifted the Pirates even.

Braves' Niekro Wins 15th; But Hurlers Have Rough Night

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Atlanta's Phil Niekro, who became the major leagues' first 15-game winner with a 12-2 mark over Cincinnati Reds, was the lone National League pitcher to go the distance Thursday as batters in four of-fices went on a 99-hit binge.

The Braves banged out 20 hits to lead the parade, Felipe Alou, Rico Carty, Clete Boyer and Dalton Jones striking three apiece, and cut Los Angeles Dodgers' Western Division lead to one-half game.

The Dodgers outhit San Francisco Giants 16-15 in an afternoon slugfest, but Bob Bardo's three-run homer in the seventh inning gave the Giants a 14-13 victory. The third-place Giants thus moved within one game of the lead.

Joe Torre and Julian Javier each smacked three hits, including a homer, as St. Louis' streaking Cardinals blitzed Philadelphia Phillies 11-3 with a 14-hit barrage. Pittsburgh Pirates and Montreal Expos divided 20 hits in another offensive duel won by the Expos 8-6 on eighth-inning doubles by Ty Cline and Coco Laboy.

Niekro, 15-7, scattered eight Cincinnati hits and contributed two himself to the Braves' attack against Jim Merritt and four relievers. The Braves, who pulled away with a six-run flurry in the eighth, made the most of 17 singles and doubles by Didier, Alou and Gil Garrido.

Bardo, who replaced slugger Willie McCovey at first base during a six-run Los Angeles burst in the top of the seventh that sent the Dodgers ahead 13-11, rocked reliever Jim Brewer for the winning homer in the bottom half after singles by Jim Davenport and Ken Henderson. Bobby Bonds drove in five early San Francisco runs with a single and two triples and 20th home-run of the season.

Torre delivered three St. Louis runs with a double, a single and his 15th homer and Javier poled his sixth homer after drilling a pair of singles.

The Cards have won four in a row and 12 of their last 14 starts.

The Expos broke a 4-4 deadlock in the eighth on successive two-baggers by Cline and Laboy off Jim Bunning. Willie Stargell's two-run seventh-inning homer had lifted the Pirates even.

Batting—Sal Bando, Athletics, drilled five straight hits, driving in four runs and leading Oakland to an 8-2 victory over Seattle Pilots.

Pitching—Phil Niekro, Braves, scattered eight hits and became the first 15-game winner in the majors as Atlanta bombed Cincinnati Reds 13-2.

STRAWBERRIES ARE A TREAT and Albert Defosse's strawberry-roan stallion Hy Peter has treated him very well. Defosse doubled the 5-year-old pacer becaus:e of his beautiful appearance, but Hy Peter has treated Defosse to two wins in seven starts at the Belleville Fairgrounds so far this year.

Strawberry Roan Is Beautiful---and He Runs Too

STAFF — Beauty — whether it belongs to mankind or animals — is the subject of much admiration.

And Hy Peter, a five-year-old stallion owned by Albert Defosse of Trenton is no exception.

"I was watching the horses come into the ring at the Canadian Trotting Association's annual fall sale last year in Toronto when I was attracted by the entrance of a magnificent horse," Defosse recalled.

"He was a beautiful strawberry roan horse and I was so surprised and impressed by his appearance that I bought him on the strength of his color alone and gambled on his racing ability," Defosse added.

At the time the 850-pound pacer had only raced three times for his previous owner who lived in Sturgeon Falls. His record was anything but impressive — the horse's best time of 2 minutes 26 seconds for the mile didn't indicate exceptional racing ability.

But Defosse, who has been a trainer-owner-driver for the past 35 years, brought Hy Peter home and trained him all winter.

Today Defosse's gamble appears to have paid off — not only does he have a beautiful horse, but a productive one as well.

Hy Peter has registered two wins in seven starts this season at the Belleville Fairgrounds.

"I bought Hy Peter because of his color alone, but he's turned out to be a pretty good horse now," Defosse added.

"He shows a lot of speed and he likes to come from behind. In his last win at the Fairgrounds he paced the mile in 2.12 with the help of a fast 1:04 final half mile."

"He broke last week coming out of the gate when he started very quickly, but I don't think it will hurt him," commented Defosse, a general contractor who has his own small stable and a quarter mile track on which he works and trains his horses.

Hy Peter — the only roan horse racing in this district — will be easily visible from the Fairgrounds grandstand Saturday night when he runs in the fourth heat of the Quinte Riding and Driving Club's nine-heat 53-horse racing card.

Canadians Improve at Bisley

BISLEY, England (CP) — Snipers from the Prairies picked off the bulk of Canadian honors Thursday as Canadian teams generally made a better-than average showing at the annual Commonwealth rifle meet. The Prairies provided a third of Canada's 18 qualifiers for the semi-final of the Queen's Prize, top target of individual rifle-men.

All Canadian contingents—the services, the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association and the cadets—landed competitors in the second stage of the Queen's Prize to be shot Saturday.

Results of Wednesday's opening shooting in the Queen's announced Thursday made it a big occasion for the Brereton of Winnipeg. Both father Don and son Bill survived and became the first Canadians to take the Families Challenge Cup in its four history.

Cadet Bill, 18, was in the top flight of Canadians scoring 100 out of 105 in the first Queen's Prize shooting at 200, 500 and 600 yards. His 55-year-old father came in a point behind.

Tied at 100 with Bill Brereton for leadership among Canadians were Alain Marion, 23, of Hull, Que., and Larry Fish of Oakville.

Bigras Early Leader In Quebec Open

LUCERNE, Que. (CP) — The first round of the Quebec Open golf tournament Thursday separated the men from the boys but did little to determine how the men themselves will split the $12,000 prize money.

After Thursday's play at the Rivermead Golf Club near Hull, Que., only six strokes separated the top 53 competitors in the 54-hole event.

Adrien Bigras, 31-year-old pro from Rosemere Golf Club near Montreal, was the leader with a 34-32—66. One stroke behind him were amateur Frank Kay, of Kanawaki Golf Club in Montreal and Alan Ogilvie, pro at Summerlea Golf Club in Montreal.

That left 50 with scores between 68 and 72, including many of the big names: Bobby Cox of Vancouver, Wilf Homenuk of Winnipeg, Chick Evans of Northridge, Mass., a regular on the American tour, all at 68. Jack Bissegger of Montreal and Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont. at 69, Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., Ken Fulton of Montreal and Alvie Thompson of Toronto at 70.

Merchants Score 20 But Lose

In an Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior "A" contest Thursday night the Brantford Warriors edged the Quinte Merchants 25-20.

The Merchants' top scorer was Rod McCarthy who netted seven goals. Don Graham, Bill Hunt, Bill Armour, Jim Hickey and Doug Maynard all added pairs while Rick Anthony, Jim Guerin and Howie Stevenson collected singles to complete the Merchants' scoring.

It Was Cobourg's Night

It was Cobourg's night, Thursday, as they took two of three games from Belleville games at the Memorial Arena.

In the first division, the Squirt game Cobourg downed Belleville's Golden Mile 3-2. The second contest saw Cobourg take the game 4-1 from Atlas Van Lines as Jeff Belanger scored Belleville's only marker.

The Bantam game was another story as Belleville clobbered Cobourg 11-2 with Greg Scarlet soring four goals for the winners.

DEAR UNCLE ED:

According to the latest observations, by astronomers, other galaxies are travelling away from earth at a speed of a thousand miles a second. Does that make sense to you?

Yours truly,

Yours tenderly,
UNCLE ED.

Teachers' Colleges On Activists' List?

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Harry Barrett, assistant dean of the Ontario College of Education, fears teacher training institutions are about to be organized by activists.

In an article in the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation magazine, he warned that activists have already seen the possibilities of organizing protests in teachers' colleges.

In an interview Thursday, he defined activists as "students raising general hell."

"Secondary education has tended to be autocratic and 19th century and has to move on. Both teachers and students are going to demand more say, and I believe they should have it."

In the article he calls for changes in administration which, he says, would not satisfy the activists but might prevent general turmoil.

He writes that these changes should include the establishment of staff councils with parent and student representation and carry decision-making powers.

Wednesday, Dr. Barrett's prediction of unrest appeared to be gathering strength as 50 student teachers enrolled in the college's summer program gathered to protest what they called "irrelevant" and "useless" high school teacher training programs.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"It's a really shocking movie—they won't admit anyone over thirty."

Federal Court Action Proceeds Against Gardens' Smythe, Ballard

TORONTO (CP) — The federal justice department Thursday elected to prosecute Stafford Smythe and Harold Ballard, directors of Maple Leaf Gardens Ltd., by way of indictment on charges of income tax evasion and making false or deceptive statements in income tax returns.

After a brief appearance in court, the two men were remanded without plea to Sept. 11.

The two received summonses July 10 after federal investigators swore out informations which said Smythe evaded payment of income taxes on $278,920 and Ballard evaded payment on $134,685.

Prosecutor Norman Chalmers of the justice department said Justice Minister John Turner elected to proceed by indictment instead of summary procedure.

Under indictment procedure, the men are liable for prison terms of up to five years and a fine of up to $10,000 on conviction. Double the amount of tax evaded would also have to be paid.

Under summary procedure, imprisonment on conviction can be up to two years, but fines would be the same.

The informations allege that between April, 1965, and April, 1968, Smythe and Ballard used money appropriated from Maple Leaf Gardens, home of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, on constructing and improving their residences and for personal and family expenses.

Smythe and Ballard were fired June 26 as presidents and vice-presidents, respectively, of Maple Leaf Gardens Ltd. They remained as directors. Between them, they hold 40 per cent of the Gardens stock.

What's In A Name ?

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto-cause "it is part of a math his surname to One had his plea rejected Thursday by County Court Judge Joseph Kelly.

Allan Assels, 23, told Judge Kelly he wanted to change his name to Nonad Johey One because "it is part of a math equation meaning one who complies with the universe."

Judge Kelly ruled Mr. Assels had failed to convince him there was a valid reason for changing his name.

"I am rather concerned with the name he has hosen. Today he could be number one, tomorrow somebody would want to be number two and next we would have 007.

After the judge's decision, Mr. Assels said: "I'm going to phone Prime Minister Trudeau about this, and if I don't get any satisfaction there I will move to New York, or Jamaica or some other country where there are people who comprehend these things."

Saigon Proposes Election

SAIGON (Reuters) — South Vietnam today proposed the establishment of North and South Vietnam through general elections under international supervision.

The proposal was made in a statement issued to mark the 15th anniversary of the signing of the Geneva accords that divided North and South Vietnam.

The anniversary of the Geneva accords, signed July 20, 1954, ended the colonial Indochina wars of France, is marked in Saigon as "national shame day".

A government statement said:

"The Republic of Vietnam government solemnly requests the North Vietnamese authorities to discuss directly and seriously with the Republic of Vietnam government the reunification of North and South through a general election held in both areas under an internationally supervised body.

"While waiting for the day of unification, the two sides may meet to study the development of Saigon missions between the two zones."

Family Reunions

MOORCROFT REUNION

A hymn sing in the 112-year-old church at Hazzards Corners was the highlight of the 1969 Reunion of the Moorcroft family held on the church grounds.

Approximately 100 people met to honor their ancestors, John and Agnes (Hazzard) Moorcroft, who came to Canada from Drumsinawy, Northern Ireland in 1844.

After a bountiful picnic dinner, while the younger members enjoyed a play period in their elders spent this time visiting and reminiscing. Among the family mottos that were played in the vestry was the family tree, tracing seven generations.

Later in the church all joined in singing favorite pioneer hymns with Mrs. Robert Segar at the organ. Mrs. Ross Moorcroft, at the piano and Boyd Moorcroft leading the singing.

Business was conducted by chairman Raymond Gunsolus when plans were made to meet again next year. Details to be decided by the committee appointed.

A solo was rendered by Monte Moorcroft, expressing the thoughts of those present and closing words were prayed by Grant Richardson bringing the reunion to a close.

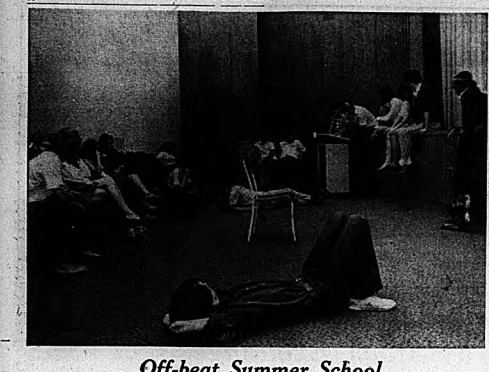
KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

I've made a bet with a friend. It's just for a drinks' doughnut and a cup of coffee, so your decision won't really hurt either of us. He says it's possible to live 5wth a bullet in the heart. I say it's preposterous.

Who buys the coffee and doughnuts? — Mr. B.



Comment: It's your turn to pick up the check. You (and your friend) will be interested in a report I've been reading in Review of Modern Medicine which abstracts a medical paper that appeared in the New England Journal of Medicine. It was called Missiles in the Heart, and written by Edward F. Bland, MD and Gilbert W. Beebe, Ph.D.

The conclusion states that a foreign object in the heart apparently can be retained with little risk of disability.

Large missiles should be removed and the patient assured that his heart's function will be normal. But smaller objects should be left alone.

Forty veterans of World War II with heart-missiles were studied. Removal of the missiles was successful in three of eight of the patients and abandoned in five.

The course in the remaining veterans was normal except for the psychological strain of living with a bullet in the heart. A few had no complaints, but most all had

There's Now Little Likelihood Of Any Court Challenge To Official Languages Bill

EDMONTON (CP) — There now is little likelihood that any of the western provinces will challenge the federal government's new Official Languages Act in the Supreme Court of Canada.

Federal-provincial discussions, amendments to the act prior to its approval in the Commons July 9, and a change of government in Manitoba's June 25 election have combined to cool western hostility of six months ago.

The new premier of Manitoba, New Democrat Ed Schreyer, has the most positive attitude toward the federal legislation of any of the western government leaders. The others say they are happier, but still not completely happy.

The federal act declares that English and French will be the official languages of the government and Parliament of Canada. It states that federal services will be provided in both languages where there is a need for such by virtue of the existence of bilingual communities.

A commissioner of official languages is to be appointed to act as what Prime Minister Trudeau describes as "a kind of ombudsman" for the protection of linguistic rights. Ottawa says the application of the act in areas which constitutionally are within provincial jurisdiction is up to the individual provinces.

Initially, the major sore point with the western governments, including that of former Manitoba premier Walter Weir, was their feeling that the languages act in its first draft would force the provinces to take steps in their own jurisdictions toward bilingualism.

The provinces considered this a breach of the British North America Act, and there was talk of a test before the Supreme Court of Canada.

However, discussions between provincial officials and the federal justice minister, John Turner, and resulting amendments to the act, apparently have allayed the provinces' fears. But, the governments of British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan remain unhappy with some provisions.

Alberta Attorney-General Edgar Gerhart reflected the official mood in the three westernmost provinces Thursday when he said in an interview that "we are still not very enthusiastic about the approach of this legislation."

"We don't think it's very practical in the West. But we are not prepared to challenge the act with its amendments in the courts. The amendments make its application a matter for the discretion of the provinces in provincial areas.

"As long as they are not imposing a new burden on us, we are not prepared to challenge it. I felt that Mr. Turner was quite reasonable in meeting our objections without compromising the federal government's position. The amendments were a sincere attempt by Ottawa to meet the objections that we had."

In Manitoba, after the NDP defeated Premier Weir's government in the June election, the victorious Mr. Schreyer said he regarded the vote as in part a vindication of my belief that Manitobans were not about to take a petty, narrow-minded view toward the French-English relations in Canada."

Mr. Schreyer had supported the principles of the languages act during the election campaign and had called Mr. Weir's opposition to the act "petty."

Political observers noted that, while one of the main arguments against the languages act has been that it would make second-rate citizens of ethnic minority groups which outnumber Francophones in the West, Mr. Schreyer's New Democrats won all the main ethnic constituencies in Manitoba.

Saskatchewan Attorney-General D. V. Heald said that province's cabinet has not yet had a chance to consider the final act, but will do so soon.

"We said we were quite happy with a number of amendments that Mr. Turner proposed."

The Saskatchewan government still is opposed to other parts of the bill, Mr. Heald said.

In British Columbia, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said the amendments "certainly represented an improvement." There remained disagreements, however.

PM Turns from Farming to Oil After Rebuking Vulgar Critics

EDMONTON (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau switched his attention to oil today after a three-day immersion course in western agriculture.

For some seven hours, Mr. Trudeau will be taking a look at oil and gas developments west of Edmonton. He will use a helicopter to visit a drilling rig, a gas plant and pipeline facilities.

In Manitoba and Saskatchewan, dairy and wheat farmers asked Mr. Trudeau for some kind of quick federal cash transfusion into a Prairie economy hard hit by sagging wheat sales and prices.

Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan described the situation as "desperate and critical."

Mr. Trudeau told a farmers' delegation at an hour-long meeting at Saskatoon Thursday there should be some form of "cash injection" into the Prairie economy.

"I realize you need dough," he told another meeting at Humboldt, Sask.:

Mr. Trudeau said at both meetings that the government is trying to find a solution to the problem.

He made clear the solution will not be increased payments or a two-price system for wheat as requested by the farm organizations.

Acreage payments of up to $2,000 a farmer are sought by the farmers but Mr. Trudeau said such a plan was inequitable because rich farmers as well as poor ones would get the grants.

He said he would not have the nerve to explain to the Canadian people an outlay of $250,000,000 for acreage payments because some would go to farmers with capital investment of $100,000 in land, buildings and machinery.

Slum dwellers, fishermen and other poor people would never understand such a government move, he maintained.

As for two-price wheat—one price for exports, a higher price for sales in Canada—Mr. Trudeau said this would result in dumping of Canadian wheat in foreign markets. Canada did not like other countries to dump products here.

Mr. Trudeau also said at Humboldt, 70 miles east of Saskatoon where he was met by about 1,000 people, that Canada feels the U.S. will not stand for any more undercselling of wheat by France.

He said that if the U.S. in turn undercut France, Canada would have to follow suit.

There was no demonstration at Humboldt, a town of 3,000 some 70 miles east of Saskatoon in the riding of Otto Lang, minister without portfolio.

Earlier in Saskatoon, wheat farmers mounted their second tractor-borne demonstration in as many days.

Mr. Trudeau told them he would not talk to them again if they continued to heckle him.

He referred to two placards which said "our P.E.T. is a pig" and "Hustle grain, not women."

Things Could Get Ugly If No Policy Outlined

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If there is no policy statement soon from Ottawa on the plight of Western farmers, things could get out of control, says the president of the Farmers Union of Alberta. Paul Babey of Edmonton said Thursday that although no organized protests were planned for Prime Minister Trudeau's visit to Alberta, there could be a number of spontaneous demonstrations.

Bob Chambers, an FUA official, said 100 farmers would drive a train of tractors from Egremont, 37 miles north of Edmonton, to Smoky Lake, about 26 miles west of Egremont on Highway 28. The protest will begin at 1 p.m. today.

In an earlier demonstration, 100 angry farmers and their families drove a four-mile string of tractors and cars from Ashmont to St. Paul, about 95 miles northeast of Edmonton. At the head of the slow-moving column was a truck bearing a scaffold complete with noose and a sign that asked, "Where is Trudeau."

Mr. Babey said the kind of protests greeting the prime minister in Saskatchewan were "unfortunate," but "it must be understood that the rural communities of Western Canada are at stake."

In Saskatoon Thursday, Prime Minister Trudeau lashed back at crowds that have been heckling him steadily since he arrived in Saskatchewan.

"If you want to see me again, don't bring signs saying 'Trudeau is a pig' and 'hustles women'," he told about 2,500 farmers outside his hotel.

After a meeting with the Saskatchewan Farmers' Union, the prime minister spoke to demonstrators and was pelted with handfuls of wheat.

In another protest, also at Saskatoon, an effigy of Leon Weinstein, president of Loblaw's Groceterias Co. Ltd., was hung from the roof of the hotel. Mr. Weinstein had urged a consumer boycott against beef a few weeks ago in protest against higher meat prices.

Mr. Babey said he was sure the prime minister was aware of the farmers' case and said he would discuss the situation with the prime minister in a planned meeting today at Lacombe, 70 miles south of Edmonton.

In Edmonton, Peter Lougheed, Alberta Opposition leader, said the provincial government should also begin farm aid programs.

In a letter to Premier Harry Strom, the Conservative party leader said the farm risis was "most definitely" a provincial as well as a federal matter.

Riding Changes Raise Tempers

LONDON (CP) — The possibility of a head-on clash between the House of Lords and the House of Commons both ebbed and flowed Thursday as Parliament nervously watched the progress of a controversial bill affecting electoral boundaries.

Published reports indicated the Labor government might be preparing a compromise which would allow the Conservative-dominated upper house to accept a piece of legislation known as the House of Commons (redistribution of seats) (No. 2) bill.

But the same reports also stressed that the government is not prepared to bow much to the Lords. Labor party sources spoke threateningly of the government's power either to create enough new Labor peers to overwhelm the Tory majority in the Lords, or to push through a bill curtailing the Lords' power to delay government legislation.

The bill itself was given second reading without a division Thursday night in the upper house, whose benches were filled with "backwoods" peers who rarely make an appearance in Parliament.

However, Conservative Leader Lord Carrington tabled eight amendments designed to make the government have second thoughts about the bill. Labor Leader Lord Shackleton said the amendments would destroy the purposes of the bill.

The bill goes before the House of Commons next Monday. There, the Labor majority is expected to throw out the Lords' amendments and send the bill back to them in its original form.

Fred Pearl, leader of the Commons, announced Thursday that the lower house will be sitting into the last week of July—instead of adjourning for the summer recess next Friday, as expected—to deal with the halting progress of the electoral bill through Parliament's complex procedure.

Conservatives and Liberals in the Lords denounce the bill, Labor members support it.

Grade 13 Failures Halved

TORONTO (CP) — The failure rate for Grade 13 students in Ontario has been cut almost in half since examination powers were turned over to local schools by the province in 1958, says Dr. Cicely Watson of the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education.

Many university officials believe this means passing standards have fallen, she said in an interview Wednesday.

In 1967, the last year of provincial control, 13.3 per cent failed Grade 13 examinations. In 1968, only 7.5 per cent failed.

Teachers' Study Of Indians Stalled

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Canadian Teachers' Federation committee set up to look into Indian-Eskimo education problems is waiting for action from the National Indian Brotherhood.

Rod Fredericks of Dartmouth, N.S., committee chairman, said in an interview Thursday the CFT wants to ensure initiative comes from the Indians and not the federation.

In his report to 200 CTF delegates at their 48th annual meeting, Secretary-Treasurer Dr. Gerald Nason of Ottawa said the federation board approved a committee recommendation calling for abolition from the Indian Act of a section that Indian children absent from school can be declared delinquent.

Wishart Seeks Report On Expulsion of Lawyer

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart Thursday ordered a full report of an incident in which Provincial Court Judge P. J. Bolsby ordered a legal aid lawyer removed from a Toronto courtroom.

He said he was "very concerned" about the expulsion and would investigate personally to decide whether the incident should be referred to the Ontario Judicial Council, a body established last year to hold private hearings into complaints about judges.

Lawyer Sidney Linden, serving as duty counsel Wednesday, was removed from court after an exchange with Judge Bolsby touched off by the lawyer's attempts to help a woman accused of theft.

Mr. Linden had insisted on interviewing the woman, of Portuguese descent, because he said he thought she did not understand enough English to know what was going on.

Meanwhile, officials of Ontario's Legal Aid Plan arranged to have David Humphrey, one of Toronto's top criminal lawyers, in Judge Bolsby's court Thursday.

"He couldn't have been nicer today," Mr. Humphrey said later. "I thought he was going to adopt me."

Higher Seaway Speeds Asked

MASSENA, N.Y. (AP) — Higher speed limits on the St. Lawrence seaway have been proposed by the Seaway Pilots Association.

Association president, captain Joseph J. Strokirk of Massena, said he disagrees with proposals of Representative C. McEwen of Oglensburg that the limits should be lowered.

The association has called for a two-mile-an-hour speed limit increase to 11 miles an hour upbound and 13 downbound.

In Ottawa, the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority had no immediate comment.

However, the authority announced a few days ago that studies are being carried out this summer on both the U.S. and Canadian sides of the waterway on effects of waves from passing shipping.

House Adjourns 6 Hours Early In Bid to End Rules Deadlock

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons resumes deliberations today after early adjournment Thursday to give House leaders a chance to resolve a rules deadlock that has kept the House sitting past its scheduled June 27 summer recess.

There appeared to be some basis for hope that the rules dispute may be on its way to solution. If the hope is realized, the session should reach an early end.

Thursday's sitting ended at 4 p.m., six hours earlier than usual, on the motion of Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) aimed at giving government and opposition representatives a chance to resolve their differences.

At issue is a controversial proposal whereby the government would be empowered to fix debating limits on public bills in advance, should consultation among the parties fail to produce agreement on a time-allocation formula.

Today could conceivably be the last day, or one of the last, of the parliamentary session which began last September, depending on the outcome of renewed talks between Privy Council President Donald S. Macdonald, government leader in the House; Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West), Mr. Knowles and Andre Fortin (Creditiste — Lotbiniere).

The four met for 90 minutes Thursday afternoon, immediately after the breakup of the House, in Mr. Macdonald's office, and afterwards emerged smiling.

"We've had a very useful discussion," Mr. Macdonald told reporters.

The meeting was adjourned until today to give the four a chance to discuss the situation with party members.

In the view of some observers this tended to suggest that a proposition had been put forward by either the government or the opposition for ending the deadlock.

Mr. Knowles, the NDP expert on rules and procedure, moved for early adjournment of the House Thursday in the wake of a statement Mr. Macdonald made to reporters Wednesday, when he said he found it difficult to arrange meetings with House leaders, although "I don't see any difficulty in being called to a meeting."

An early adjournment would give Mr. Macdonald an opportunity to arrange such a meeting with spokesmen for the other parties. Mr. Knowles suggested.

Mr. Macdonald termed Mr. Knowles's motion a useful initiative. Both Mr. Lambert and Mr. Fortin supported it.

The House has been discussing a three-part motion based on recommendations of the House committee on procedure and supported by the government.

One proposed rule, 73A, would provide for all-party agreement on time allocation. A second, 75B, would provide for allocation when three of the four parties in the House agree.

The third, 75C, would give the government power to limit debate without agreement, where inter-party consultations fail.

The opposition has accepted 75A and 75B, with varying degrees of enthusiasm.

However, it has fought tenaciously against 75C, which it says would undermine the opposition's right to debate legislation at sufficient length to bare shortcomings and arouse public opinion against it.

$18,000 Doesn't Look So Big If You Have A MP's Expenses

OTTAWA (CP) — There is many an MP who sees red when reminded—as they often are—that they are sitting pretty on $18,000 a year and when newspapers sometimes mention the salary and allowances in connection with a story about poor Commons attendance, the red can turn to purple.

There isn't an MP on Parliament Hill who will say he is a $11,19 a day savings. And some, by virtue of maintaining homes in both Ottawa and constituencies, are known to be in a tight financial squeeze.

"I know many constituents think I am making a fortune," said one MP, "but they have no idea of my expenses. And how do you tell an old-age pensioner you can't contribute $25 to his particular charity?"

When it comes to looking at the financial structure of a typical MP, you quickly find there is no typical MP. Some maintain two homes, some don't. Some can drive to their ridings, some must fly for eight hours. Some have a profession they can preside on the side, others haven't. Some have wealthy riding associations, some haven't.

Perhaps Keith Penner (Liberal—Thunder Bay) fits somewhere in the middle of all this. He was a successful high school teacher in Dryden, Ont., who moved his family to Ottawa last year after winning the riding in a general election, and maintains one home strictly on his earnings as a MP.

As head of the history department at the Dryden high school, Mr. Penner earned $13,500 a year. As a member of the Dryden town council he earned $16 a meeting. His wife taught night school, and as a result the small family income was roughly $15,000.

The $18,000 available to MPs didn't represent a massive increase for Mr. Pénner, but he figured their standard of living would be much the same. After all, $18,000 seems like a fairly good salary for a couple with three young children.

Now what is it like after a year in Ottawa?

"Pretty desperate," says the 36-year-old MP. "Frankly, I am finding it pretty tough financially."

With the election won, the Penners rented their Dryden home—at just enough to cover payments and insurance—and moved to Ottawa. The movers charged them $1,300 "although we threw out a lot of stuff we would normally take to Ottawa."

In Ottawa, after a long search for a four-bedroom home, they rented one at $255 a month. Next month it goes up to $255.

As a teacher, Mr. Penner got by on one dress suit, one sport suit and a sports jacket. "As an MP you've got to be fairly well dressed," so he bought several new suits, and a tuxedo. His wife had to buy new clothes, including cocktail dresses.

Then there was the normal heavy expense of drapes and other furnishings for the new house.

With a riding as huge as Thunder Bay—it stretches from the Lakehead to Hudson Bay—Mr. Penner had to plan on getting there three weekends out of four in order to keep in touch. While an MP gets free transportation from Ottawa to the riding, there are no provisions for travel within the riding.

In Thunder Bay, that means chartering a small plane for much of the travel. That amounts to 50 cents a mile, so a round trip from Port Arthur to the top of the riding would cost $750, return.

Even travelling in the southern part of the riding involves renting a car. "The alternative," Mr. Penner says, "is to stand around with bag in hand looking forlorn, and hoping someone will pick you up."

When he visits the riding, Mr. Penner inserts an ad in one of the 12 weekly newspapers so constituents can call on him. Each ad runs from $5 to $12. He also has a paid subscription to all 12 weeklies.

As a teacher, he had a top-notch group insurance plan. MPs have no such plan, so Mr. Penner dished out $300 a year for "healthy coverage."

Every worthy cause in Thunder Bay—as in every other constituency—expects the local MP to give generously. "And you can't really donate less than $10."

Rh Baby Can Now Be Given Injection Months Before Birth

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. Alvin Zipursky of Hamilton says advanced methods of treatment for mothers with an Rh negative blood factor "have almost eradicated the disease and substantially reduced the fear of having Rh babies."

One of the latest methods involves an intra-uterine transfusion in which a needle is injected into the abdomen of an unborn baby. The process can be performed after a fetus has been in the womb for about six months.

Before development of the treatment, a woman with Rh negative blood married to a man with Rh positive blood had a 60-per-cent chance of carrying an Rh positive child.

When the woman became pregnant with the first baby some of this positive blood from the baby frequently entered the bloodstream of the mother. The system of the mother promptly formed antibodies—a line of defence—against the "foreign" positive blood.

When the mother became pregnant with her second child who most probably might be an Rh positive baby too—the antibodies created by her system carried over to the baby and began to destroy the second child's red blood cells, causing brain damage, jaundice or even death in the infant.

"What happens now," Dr. Zipursky explained Thursday, "is that about 72 hours after an Rh negative mother gives birth to her first Rh positive baby she receives a dose of gamma globulin with anti-Rh positive antibodies, and this destroys any infmunity her system might have built up. This procedure should be carried out after the birth of each baby."

Another form of protection for a baby, should the mother not have received this gamma globulin injection, is to give the baby an immediate Rh negative blood transfusion. Within a few months any antibodies that existed at birth are destroyed while the baby's system begins to produce Rh positive blood free of any antibodies.

The doctor was interviewed Thursday before addressing about 1,000 delegates gathered for the Seventh International Congress of Clinical Pathology.

Dr. Zipursky said about 15 per cent of Canadian women belong to the Rh negative group and that the Red Cross works closely to obtain donors—mothers who have already given birth to Rh positive babies and who can provide the necessary protective injections.

He said such Rh negative women could belong to any blood group be it A, B, O or AB. Their red blood cells lack an Rh positive factor, thus making them Rh negative individuals.

Satellite Failure Curtails TV Shots

HOUSTON (AP) — The U.S. space agency has cancelled what promised to be one of the most spectacular telecasts of the Apollo mission to the moon, the showling Sunday afternoon of the separation of the lunar module Eagle and the start of its descent to the moon's surface. Officials said the decision was made because of a lack of available satellite channels to relay the signal from the tracking site at Madrid to Houston for conversation.

The shortage of channels results from the failure earlier this month of a commercial communications satellite high over the Atlantic. Intelsat, the international communications consortium, had hoped to launch a replacement satellite Thursday. But technical troubles caused a slip until tonight — which will not allow sufficient time to jockey the payload into position by Sunday.

For the moon walk Monday, the astronauts will be in range of the Goldstone, Calif., tracking station and the signals will be relayed by land lines to Houston.

The entire 2½-hour excursion on the moon's surface is to be transmitted live by a mounted camera.

Policeman Slain At St. Boniface, Suspect Is Held

ST. BONIFACE, Man. (CP) — Police returned fire from a wooded riverbank area at dawn today, then arrested a man who ran from the woods where heavily-armed police searched for the slayer of a 24-year-old St. Boniface policeman.

The police manhunt began late Friday when Const. Leonard Shakespeare, a father of two, was shot down as he reached inside a taxi, believed being used as a getaway car for two armed robbers.

One of the two men who fled the car after firing another shot at the fallen constable was apprehended during a struggle with the dead policeman's partner, Constable Linwood Giles, 37.

About 100 RCMP, Winnipeg city and St. Boniface policemen — some armed with rifles — kept a grim vigil on the wooded area through the night.

A dog was credited with locating a man in the woods.

The gunmen robbed a small supermarket.

The manager of the store, beaten by the robbers, managed to trip an alarm beside the safe which summoned the slain policeman's patrol car.

Great Days Lie Ahead

HOUSTON (AP) — Apollo 11's explorers raced into the shadow of the moon today and reported a spectacular first sighting of their target as they prepared to blast into lunar orbit to start two days of great human adventure.

As they darted into an area where the moon blotted out the sunlight at 8:50 a.m. EDT, commander Neil A. Armstrong reported picking out lunar features illuminated by light reflected by earth.

He also reported a brilliant solar corona as the moon eclipsed all but the halo of gases surrounding the sun.

"It looks like an eerie sight," the Apollo 11 commander said.

Armstrong, Edwin (Buzz) Aldrin and Michael Collins were just 13,000 miles from the moon and closing in at nearly 3,000 miles an hour when they reported the first sighting of the lunar landscape after three days in space.

The astronauts headed for a climactic moment in early afternoon when they ignite their spaceship engine to steer into a precise orbit 69 miles above the surface.

The firing was scheduled for 1:26 p.m. EDT with the spaceship behind the moon, out of radio contact. The world was not to know whether the engine ignited properly until the craft reappeared around the edge of the moon 26 minutes later.

The astronauts have the option to cancel the ignition if they detect anything wrong. Without a firing, Apollo 11 merely would loop once around the backside and head back to earth —one of the built-in safety measures of the mission.

In the shadow of the moon, the interior of the spaceship darkened and Armstrong described the sight.

"It's a very marked three dimensional effect with the solar corona coming from behind the moon," he said. "I guess what's giving it that three dimensional effect is earthshine. I can pick out features on the moon in earthshine. I see the crater Tycho fairly clearly. I can see the sky all around the moon, even on the rim of it, where there's no earthshine or sunshine."

Armstrong said he could see the corona light extending out about 200 diameters from the moon.

"The sky's full of stars," he added. "It looks like it's night side on the earth."

Collins said that despite the sudden darkness, the earthshine, or light reflected from earth, was bright enough in the cabin to read a book by.

Apollo 11 was on such an accurate course that controllers cancelled a small corrective

Luna Goes Silent Then Returns to Air

JODRELL BANK, England (AP) — Jodrell Bank observatory said today the unmanned Soviet spacecraft Luna XV still was orbiting the moon, despite loss of signals that caused scientists here to speculate earlier it had changed course.

Observatory director Sir Bernard Lovell said signals from Luna XV were received and the probe's two-hour path around the moon was unchanged.

Today's Chuckle

Politics is the art of making yourself popular with people by giving them grants out of their own money.

A few minutes before, Sir Bernard emerged from his laboratory, a spokesman had said Jodrell Bank had picked up no signals from Luna XV after it had swung out from behind the moon.

The Soviet Union assured the United States Friday that its unmanned Luna XV satellite would not interfere with Apollo 11's mission. The Russians said Luna was following an entirely different course around the moon than that planned for the astronauts.

The Russians also indicated in a cable to astronaut Frank Borman at Houston, who requested the information, that Luna XV might be gone today, either landing on the surface or rocketing back toward earth.

Ra Abandoned

CHRISTIANSTED, Virgin Islands (AP) — Deciding repairs were impossible, Thor Heyerdahl and his six-man crew abandoned the battered reed boat Ra Friday night 600 miles from their destination.

The unanimous decision was made after one crew member was chased by sharks when he dived under the ship to try to secure two papyrus ropes that had broken loose.

Canada Must Follow Suit

U.S. Cuts Wheat Price, World Agreement Dead

OTTAWA (CP) — The scale of agreed world wheat prices under the International Grains Agreement is effectively dormant if not dead after one troubled year of life.

The United States, top wheat exporter, announced sharp price reductions Friday below agreed IGA minimums which all member exporting countries, including Canada, had been "temporarily" undershting.

Canada must make a further competitive adjustment of its prices and the upshot is Canada will be less money for the wheat farmer, therefore less for the

For other stories on wheat problem see Page 16.

Canadian economy in general.

It will increase political pressure for some form of government subsidy to the farmer.

If world prices fall below the government-set initial sum paid by exporters on delivery of their wheat, the government is bound to make good the difference from public funds.

At best, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin said Friday, the latest price shakeup means the market would settle into stability at a lower price range. That was the aim expressed in Washington

But Mr. Pepin said he could not rule out the possibility of a price-cutting war. That could happen if other exporters overreacted to the U.S. price cuts or if bargain-basement sales by non-IGA members, such as Russia, prompted IGA members to drop their prices even farther.

The Washington move followed by one week a ministerial meeting there by the top traditional exporters—the U.S., Canada, Australia, Argentina—with the French interest expressed by a representative of the European Economic Community.

The meeting agreed on then-unexplained "corrective action" to deal with "distortions" in world trade, an oblique reference to the fact that France and Australia were cutting into U.S. and Canadian markets.

Australia, criticized by competitors for special deals on wheat transport which the critics said effectively reduced the export price of its product, agreed in Washington to behave "less aggressively" in Mr. Pepin's words.

France, which the others complained was subverting the IGA agreement by juggling with wheat grades and using European common market food subsidies to support low-cost exports, had to make its reply through the trade-governing common market commission.

The French concessions, which came through Thursday, included an offer to keep hands off Pacific Ocean markets such as Japan, Formosa, The Philippines and Korea.

Canada, chief advocate of the IGA and its floor prices 10 per cent higher than the former International Wheat Agreement, gave up a months-long battle to restore the IGA price scale.

Mr. Pepin summed up the Canadian position Friday:

"We have to remain competitive, but hope we can do it at the highest possible price."

Asked whether Canada was told in advance about the U.S. price cuts, Mr. Pepin said only the consultations among exporters had been maintained since last weekend.

While officials worked out the precise relation to Canadian prices Friday, an unofficial estimate indicated a U.S. reduction of about seven per cent below the IGA floor in the price of several grades of wheat at Great Lake, Mexican gulf and Atlantic ports.

A drop of that magnitude, if applied to the premium Canadian No. 1 Northern wheat in position for delivery from Port Arthur-Port William, would push down the price to below $1.80 a bushel from its rate of just over $1.91.

Indians Give Warning

Federal Officials May Be in Danger

WINNIPEG (CP) — Indian leaders from Saskatchewan and Alberta warned Friday they could not guarantee the safety of Indian affairs department officials who try to discuss federal policy on reserves before Indians are ready.

The warning, and an agreement, by nine provincial Indian organizations to boycott a proposed Indian affairs department inquiry, were announced at a meeting of the National Indian Brotherhood.

The brotherhood said Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien appeared to be attempting to undermine Indian leadership.

The brotherhood referred to a news report quoting Mr. Chretien as telling the Commons: "I think I will always have the privilege, in the name of the citizens of Canada, to meet any Indians in Canada without having to go through certain people who only want to make a noise."

Harold Cardinal, president of the Alberta Indian Association, said he had written to Mr. Chretien, advising that Indians did not want to discuss federal Indian policy until they have prepared a counter proposal of their own.

If federal authorities come to reserves to discuss policy, he said, Indians have been told not to discuss it with them.

And, Mr. Cardinal said, if the federal authorities persist they will be forcibly removed from the reserve.

The stand was supported by David Ahenakew, president of the Federation of Saskatchewan Indians, who said he could not guarantee the safety of federal representatives visiting reserves against the Indians's wishes.

David Courchene, president of the Manitoba Indian Brotherhood, said the Indian situation is "a powder keg, fully fused and waiting for a spark."

"The situation is serious, despite the minister's assurances . . . the government with its adamant attitude has forced us to fight for survival."

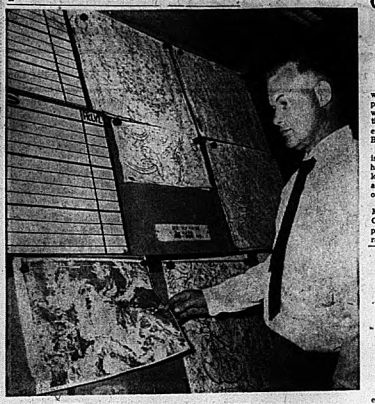
19 Children Drown in France

ANGERS, France (AP) — Nineteen children drowned Friday while bathing in the treacherous Loire River.



Police said the shallow river-bed gave way under the children's feet and they were swept into a whirlpool of gravel and water.

By sundown 10 bodies had been recovered and police said there was no hope of finding the other nine alive.

The children, aged 13 and 14, were part of a group of 60 taken on a one-day bus outing by five counsellors from a recreation centre.

The counsellors, three young men and two girls, were taken to the Angers police station for questioning.

Before allowing the children to enter the water, the counsellors had tested the stability of the riverbed with poles. The bed of the Loire is notoriously unstable between Angers and the Atlantic coast and police said it was possible the counsellors' well-intentioned prodding may have contributed to the subsequent collapse.

What's with the Weather?

Considering the strange weather conditions the Quinte area has been subject to over the past month, the weatherman seems the logical expert to question. C.F.B. Trenton duty forecaster Ken McColm tries to find the solution from his weather maps, although he admits that most conditions are affected by local phenomenon.

Complicated System

Forecaster Depends on Own Predictions

By DON WILCOX
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Why is it so warm? When will it rain? You predicted cooler weather, where is it? Questions like these are asked of the weather bureau at Canadian Forces Base Trenton almost daily.

Forecaster Kenneth McColm is first to admit he doesn't have all the answers because a lot of the weather in the Quinte area is affected by local phenomena.

To explain this forecaster Mr. McColm, an employee of Ontario Department of Transport, simply says, "The Murray Hills and Lake Ontario make the big change in the weather in our area. When we expect rain clouds to arrive in Trenton, they sometimes fool us because as soon as they hit the hills . . . down comes the rain, missing us completely."

Prognostic maps and satellite reports are the latest aids to weather forecasters. Mr. McColm says pictures taken by satellites, especially pictures taken over the oceans, are a big help in arriving at the popular five-day forecasts.

The Base weather department is made up of two sections: the first taking all weather observations in the area while the other is composed of forecasters and briefing personnel.

A pilot going on a flight, no matter how short, must be briefed by a duty forecaster in advance.

But how did the forecaster arrive at all this information?

First a prognostication map is drawn by computer in Washington D.C. of the weather situation throughout the world. The map is then sent to all people concerned. The Montreal bureau is at the same time making its own maps of Canada. From these two maps the local forecast is added to a third map and the weather people at the local base are set to hand out the information.

For each destination a pilot has, he has three or four ways in which he can get there, depending on conditions, he also has two or three other destinations that he can use should the weather make it impossible to land at the original port.

"You would think that with all this information the pilot could leave at once," said Mr. McColm, "but he still needs other information. I get this by calling Sergeant Kenneth O'Leary at the observation section which is at the far end of the runway."

Sgt. O'Leary is one of the staff taking observations every hour. He makes use of such equipment as weather balloons, ceilometers, transmissometers, wind gauges and thermometers. The observation post can also tell how much rain or snow has fallen and what changes to expect.

"Now we are ready to brief the air crew on the weather picture," said McColm. "Each member of the crew in the flight deck section of the aircraft is interested in the conditions and attends the briefing. We also give the pilot a folder with the conditions of the weather in it."

Although briefing air crews is a prime concern of the business personnel, the public is more familiar with the predictions of the forecaster.

Boaters, construction firms, farmers and vacationers all keep a daily eye on the weather.

"I plan my own spare time with my own predictions," said Mr. McColm, "and am building a house. Besides we are never wrong on our predictions . . . are we?"

Vehicle For All Seasons

Amphibious vehicles for operation on land or water may not beas numerous as snowmobiles, but they have their uses and are gaining in popularity.

And like snowmobiles and automobiles, they come in a wide range of styles and sizes.

Possibly the latest to come on the market is the "Beaver," a product of Wheeler Mobile Ltd, of Keswick, Ontario.

Designed by a young German-Canadian engineer, the craft is being offered for sale in the Quinte area by L'il Beaver Sales and Service of Shannonville. Company principals are Paul Wall and Percy Pearsall

Youth Hurt

PICTON — A 17-year-old Belleville youth, John Caughey, 295 Foster Ave., suffered head injuries and a slight concussion shortly before noon Friday when his car was involved in a one-vehicle accident on the West Lake Road. The youth was taken to Prince Edward Memorial Hospital. Damage to the vehicle amounted to $500.

Beefing Up to Blow

Jaycee Fred Jones seems ready to put the protein to Charlie Kammer before the musician tackles a king-size tune. Not so though. It was merely part of barbecue-to-a-beat staged during Front Street sidewalk sale last evening.

Escapes Injury

TWEED — Ivan Donald Finch, 34, of Marmora, escaped serious injury late Friday night when his car went out of control on the Cordova Road north of Marmora and rolled several times.

Shoreline at Premium Warns Ontario Planner

PICTON — Water frontage is at a premium everywhere—even on Lake Ontario.

And thereby is a situation that should be carefully watched, indicates a man who should know.

David Boggs is recreation planner for the conservation branch of the department of energy and resources. He's currently heading a six - man team cataloguing Prince Edward County's recreational potential and present facilities.

He says the county has much such potential — "if it's handled properly."

Mr. Boggs stresses the need for co-operation among all local groups — communities and their leaders — to guarantee the success of such recreation - conservation programs.

Natural shorelines are key areas and he warns that much of it along Ontario waters is being possessed by commercial and private interests. Too little is being left for public use and natural development.

"The need for shoreline property is extremely intense," he said.

The report of the Boggs' team — a follow up to the 1966 Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority report — will be completed by September.

Foundry Plaque Planned

MARMORA — A plaque unveiled here tomorrow will mark the site of one of Canada's earliest smelters and foundries.

It will commemorate the pioneering attempts of Irish immigrant Charles Hayes to produce iron from ore mined at nearby Blairton.

The venture went out of business five years later and attempts to revive it in 1837 and 1848 failed.

Among those attending tomorrow's ceremony at the Legion Park will be Hastings County Warden Donald Rodgers, Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott, Lac Grilla, MP Hastings and Clarke Rollins, MPP Hastings.

Lake Temperatures Recorded

Crew of federal survey launch Old Squaw pause briefly in Belleville for breakfast today before continuing temperature tests along Lake Ontario shoreline. Test area reaches from Niagara-on-the-Lake to Kingston.

At a glance Old Squaw seems aptly named.

Her rounded lines are the design of years gone by.

But looks are deceiving. She's equipped with modern instruments, and doing an up-to-date job.

Old Squaw is a survey launch now plying Lake Ontario in the service of the department of energy, mines and resources.

This morning her three-man crew, ran her briefly into Belleville, on the last lap of a sweep from Niagara-on-the-Lake to Kingston.

The survey is recording lake temperatures enroute, establishing depths and the quantity of ground water in Lake Ontario.

The 30-foot launch comes well-equipped, even with radar.

The craft and its three-man crew — Kevin Coombs, of Newfoundland, Ron Crosbyn Montreal, Ian Simpson, Toronto — are followed on land by a fourth teammate, Doug las Finch, of Nova Scotia. It's his job to record landmarks for later references.

The survey, which began at the end of June, should be concluded in about a week's time.

Until yesterday, the voyage of the Old Squaw went without incident — until arrival in the Quinte district. Then the van aground at Presqu'ile.

86 YEARS

Mission Possible

Every Step Planned in Mankind's First Moon Walk

HOUSTON (CP) — The Lunar Module hovers over the moonscape. Two pairs of earthly eyes search for boulders or craters that could damage the fragile craft.

The commander's decision flashes earthward:

"We're going down."

Like an ungainly, four-legged bird of prey swooping in on a tail of fire, the vehicle settles in a swirl of moondust. Then all is clear. All is quiet.

It is 4:19 p.m. EDT Sunday, July 20.

For the next 22 hours astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin (Buzz) Aldrin will follow a rigid schedule. Their mission: To learn as much about the moon as possible and bring back samples to earth.

The first three hours will be spent checking and rechecking the Lunar Module systems. If any major damage has occurred during the landing, they will attempt to launch themselves back into moon orbit to rejoin the mother ship and astronaut Michael Collins.

Armstrong and Aldrin talk to Collins whenever the command module is above the horizon and they also talk to earth stations. Their schedule calls for them to rest and sleep, if they can.

The official time for them to step on the moon is 2:56 a.m. EDT Monday. But it could be advanced to as early as 11:21 p.m. EDT Sunday.

Preparations for their moon excursion require about three hours. Donning their bulky moon suits in the narrow confines of the LM's interior may take one hour alone.

When ready, they open the craft's narrow hatch and, feet first, Armstrong squeezes himself out of the craft on to a small platform which astronauts call the "porch."

Still moving backwards, he begins descending the ladder that leads down the LM's landing leg. From the bottom rung he steps on the rim of the LM's foot pad, then sets foot on the moon, holding on to the ladder and a landing strut.

From the time he leaves the hatch and throughout his stay on the moon, Armstrong keeps up a running commentary. A small microphone built into his space helmet is connected to a miniature transmitting station in his backpack. These transmissions are picked up by a receiver inside the LM which retransmits them to earth.

He describes the texture of the moon's surface: the depth of his own footprints and those of the craft's foot pads; the ease or difficulty of moving about on the moon's surface where a man's body weight is only one-sixth as much as on earth.

Aldrin, standing in the open hatch, lowers a camera on a pulley. Armstrong retrieves it and fastens it around his neck to keep his hands free.

Armstrong moves to the side of the LM, tears off a plastic covering leading to an equipment storage rack, and takes out a long-handled scoop and a plastic bag. He scoops up some rock or sand and drops it into the bag which he closes and fastens to his suit. Should any contingency force the astronauts to leave the moon quickly, they would at least bring back this specimen.

Armstrong takes still pictures of the scene on the moon and closeups of the LM's landing gear.

Now Aldrin climbs down the ladder and joins his colleague who is photographing the descent.

Aldrin retrieves a tripod from the rack of the LM, walks about 70 feet from the craft and sets up the TV camera he has brought with him so that it can photograph both the craft and the astronauts. For the remainder of their stay the astronauts and the moonscape on which they work will be seen by television viewers on earth.

Aldrin now returns to the rack and takes out a machine designed to measure sun emissions called solar wind. He pushes a rod partly into the moon's surface and then extends a sheet of aluminum foil designed to collect solar wind particles for scientific analysis. Aldrin returns to the LM to remove a tool carrier containing hammers, tongs and other devices for obtaining rock samples.

Armstrong, meanwhile, removes a box from the craft for collecting the samples and for bringing them back to earth under vacuum-sealed conditions. After collecting samples the astronauts remove two suit-caselike containers from the LM.

One contains a small seismometer to record moon quakes. This machine, its batteries recharged by attached solar cells, is expected to send information back to earth for about a year after the astronauts have left the moon. The other container holds a "laser mirror" that will reflect laser light beamed to it from earth. The returning beams will allow scientists to measure the distance to the moon to within a few inches.

Aldrin now walks completely around the craft, taking closeup photographs of each of the craft's four landing legs, and of the blast effects on the moon's surface from the descent engine's bursts during landing.

Armstrong, meanwhile, fills a second container with sand, gravel, pebbles and whatever other materials are strewn on the moon surface at the landing site. He photographs each sample before touching it, and also photographs the site after a sample has been removed.

Armstrong now has been on the moon's surface about two hours, and Aldrin for about 1½ hours. Though their backpacks contain sufficient oxygen for at least three hours, they take no chances on its running low and now prepare to end their moon visit.

It's Cooler Inside!

Rana Roluf, acting as "outside" clerk during her father's participation in the sidewalk sale has some practical advice. Using a book as a fan to beat the heat, she draws attention to the sign which says it's more comfortable inside.

Sale Spurs Downtown To Seek More Help

Belleville's current downtown businessmen's sidewalk sale which ends its three day run tonight, has been described as the "best ever" by Association president Ben Corke.

"There is no doubt it is the best sidewalk sale in the event's four-year history," said Mr. Corke today. "The crowds have been good despite the heat and they seem to enjoy it."

And he suggested that the values offered must be the drawing card.

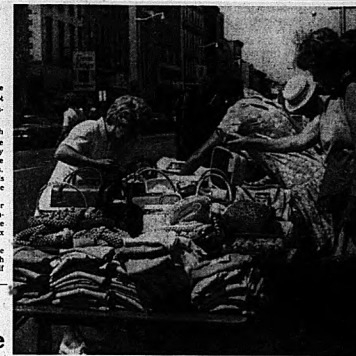
"The people don't come downtown just for the heat," he said.

And the sale's special events chairman, Stanley Albert echoed Mr. Corke's view of the success of the sidewalk sale.

"The most successful ever," Mr. Albert said. "Both the merchants and the public have co - operated."

"The sidewalk sale is the most looked forward to event of the year by merchants," he continued, "it attracts more people and the top bargains offered save the customers money."

In fact, the sidewalk sale event has grown to such an extent that Mr. Albert, as special events chairman, says the association is seriously considering the hiring of special promotion assistance.



"We have reached the stage where we should adopt an additional air of professionalism," he said.

Howard Booth of Booth Radio and TV described the sidewalk sale as being "very good" and comparing quite favorably with other years.

He agreed that the crowds had been good despite the heat.

And something unusual for this time of year, Booth's included carpeting as a feature of the sale at their new annex on Bridge Street.

And despite the heat, the carpet sale caught on with Mr. Booth expressing himself as well satisfied with sales.

Napanee's Springside Park To Remain in Natural State

NAPANEE — A storm of protest has halted development of Springside park at the eastern outskirts of Napanee.

The park, on highway 2 between the CN railway tracks and the Napanee river, is a 2½ acre "passive park" area.

And that it will remain, despite the efforts of the Springside Development Committee to install a playground, fountain and bandshell which could double as an outdoor theatre.

Mrs. Norman Hutchinson, active in the Lennox and Addington Historical Society, and Judge G. P. Smith, spearheaded opposition to the development.

They charged that a chain link fence to be put up along the riverside to protect children at the playground would destroy the scenic beauty of the park. They said the park was unsuitable for active use, having a terrain with several different levels, and should be retained as a park where tourists and older citizens who have enjoyed its open opportunities for picnics and relaxation.

The storm of opposition broke when the development committee announced plans to put in playground equipment and fence.

At a special meeting last Monday, town council learned that the development committee had given up its plans in the light of protests in letters to the editor of the local paper.

Council last September granted permission for the development project in an attempt to attract more people to the park — especially tourists.

The committee planned a long - range project, spread over a ten - year period and financed by local organizations through private donations. Volunteer labor for construction and installation of equipment would have further lowered the cost.

The committee gathered support over the winter months by carrying its message to organizations in a speeches.

In the spring, fill was brought in to raise the level of a swampy area under the bridge. Trucks, bulldozers and most of the fill was contributed by local businessman Cecil Dennison.

Heading the development committee were James Elliott and Edward Ford, both members of the local Ontario Provincial Police detachment.

At Monday's meeting, several councillors expressed their regret that the committee had abandoned its development plans because of the opposition expressed.

Napanee has no children's playground. Springside Park is now equipped with picnic tables and washroom facilities.

Sidewalk Sale You Say?

Downtown merchants are calling their three-day event a sidewalk sale but activity here seems to have spilled into the street. Through arrangement with the city parking authority some merchants rented the meter space in front of their premises and thus expanded their outdoor sales area.

Bellevillians Start Booking for Moon

Bellevillians are booking for the moon.

Air Canada's invitation yesterday for Canadians to book their seats on the first commercial moon flights in the sometime future, brought immediate response.

In Belleville, Roluf's Travel Agency reported the first reservations received at 4.53 p.m. yesterday.

The agency is keeping its clients anonymous but says seats were reserved for two couples and three children.

Booking procedures are the same as for a routine air flight. The travel agency telephones the reservations to Air Canada.

However, admits a travel agency saleswoman: "It kind of gives you a funny feeling when you say you've a booking for the moon!"

Not Quite So Hot

While watching the moon, it'll be easier living with the sun in the Quinte district this weekend.

The weather will be warm and sunny — but nowhere like the five-day heat wave which has baked the region in torrid temperatures.

The duty forecaster at Canadian Forces Base Trenton today reported the steamy warm front causing the heat wave has moved south of the Great Lakes.

Temperature highs will dip several degrees to the low 80s.

Best of all it will be drier, with humidity ratings comfortably lower.

Apollo Nears Destination

rocket firing scheduled this morning and told the astronauts to get a couple extra hours sleep.

"Turn over," the ground told Armstrong after waking the commander to inform him of the decision to cancel the corrective manoeuvre.

"Okay," came the sleepy reply.

Throughout the three-day outward journey from earth, the astronauts have been sleeping and resting well, storing up for the critical days ahead when Armstrong and Aldrin are to fly to the lunar surface while Collins keeps a lonely vigil overhead.

Dr. Charles A. Berry, the chief astronaut physician, reported all three were in excellent physical shape and that none had taken any medication during the flight.

As the date with destiny neared, Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins were firmly in the grip of lunar gravity. They zipped into the moon's sphere of influence just before midnight Friday night when they were 43,495 miles from their target and 214,402 miles from home.

After a day in orbit, Armstrong and Aldrin Sunday are to detach a lunar landing ship, the fragile craft they call Eagle, and fly it down to the moon's Sea of Tranquility, near the crater named Moltke.

If all goes according to plan, Armstrong will descend a nine-rung ladder to the surface at 2:21 a.m. Monday..

He will be followed 20 minutes later by Aldrin. Together they will fulfil an ageless dream by exploring this desolate world which has fascinated man from the beginning of time.

Wheat and Democracy

While Prime Minister Trudeau stomps around the prairies, walking the tightrope at his pragmatic best, telling the farmers that the current wheat surplus is a result of world over-production, that nobody is to blame, that the farmers' fight is not with him, and that there is nothing more the government can do, his Parliamentary colleagues and the Opposition have been wrestling with the controversial Rule 75C measure designed to speed up the business of Parliament.

Rule 75C would permit unilateral government allocation of debating time and former Prime Minister Diefenbaker has said it would mean the "death sentence" of Parliament.

Gerald Laprise (Creditiste—Abitibi) believes 75C would abolish the opposition. The Liberals, he said, were not elected to form a dictatorship.

Prince Edward-Hastings member George Hees was of the same opinion, but he agreed the work of the House should be speeded up. One way of doing so would be to have members table lengthy prepared speeches, rather than read them to the House. This way they would still be recorded in Hansard, the official parliamentary record. He said this method was used in the United States.

He said many such speeches, including some by Prime Minister Trudeau, reduce the House to a state of boredom. "When members deliver long, read speeches in the house no one pays attention to the most important things in them."

Mr. Hees went on to accuse the prime minister of wanting to control parliament, of seeing parliament as "an assembly line or as a computer, legislation being fed in at one end and laws coming out at the other in a certain form, that form being the way in which the government wants them to come out, irrespective of the views of the opposition."

Certainly parliamentary democracy must be preserved in Canada. The government can not be permitted to erase the essentials of the parliamentary system, even in the interests of speeding up legislation. Democracy may be tiresome, but it is the only system that affords people a proper voice in the affairs of the nation.

Highway Signs

The big sign on 401 and on the Bay Bridge to the effect that "You are now entering the Highlands of Hastings Tourist Region" is one that always strikes us as misleading..

Just where are the highlands of Hastings? Around Stirling and points north we should say . . . but certainly not in Belleville or amid the flat and somewhat uninteresting terrain in the immediate vicinity of the two signs in question.

The sign would do better and give the travelling public a much more honest and accurate idea of the highland country if it went into some detail as to how to get there.

As they stand now there is not a highland, not even so much as a knoll or a hillock for miles around.

PM Heckled

Some of Prime Minister Trudeau's Western hecklers have been on the ribald side — but Mr. Trudeau, an old hand at dealing with the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune has proved himself a match for them. By turn arguing, reasoning, occasionally taunting — if seldom satisfying — the farmers, the prime minister at one point thrust his microphone toward a tormentor and said: "He does not mind being vulgar . . . but you must want to do it into the microphone." To be effective heckling must be subtle, rather than crude. A man with a cool head like Mr. Trudeau has no difficulty in dealing with loudmouths. "I didn't get into politics to be insulted and I won't be insulted by people I want to talk to," said the prime minister.

Scots in Spotlight

The Thousand Islands region is the scene of a lot of old country activity these days. Recently they had an Irish Day. Now the Scots are in the spotlight with the arrival this weekend of two leading piping and dancing instructors, Seumas MacNeil of Glasgow and James McKenzie of Aberdeen.

Along with drumming expert Gary Allan of Brockville they will be taking part in the Thousands Islands International School of Scottish Performing Arts Monday.

Nearly 50 student beginners from Kitchener, London and Lennoxville as well as Vermont, Wisconsin and Ohio have enrolled for courses at International Fleis at the U.S. approach to the bridge.

Stanfield Waits in Wings as Trudeau Loses Ground

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — So Conservative Leader Stanfield sounds more and more convinced, with each speech across the land, that he stands, as he likes to put it, "a very good chance" of coming out of the next election as prime minister.

It is characteristic of the modest, low-key approach he takes to most things political that he hints Conservative victory will be compounded not so much of his winning, but of Prime Minister Trudeau's losing.

While he does not come right out and say it, what he clearly means when he speaks of the falling Trudeau star is that the government already is busy blowing the next election and will have managed it nicely by the time the voters go to the polls in the spring of 1972.

Slowly establishing his credibility as a convincing alternative to Trudeau the trendy swinger, Stanfield the quiet plodder sees a majority of Canadians turning to him, if for nothing else than to find a quiet, peaceful refuge from the clash of controversy.

Foundation of his faith is the rule of political law, unchanged and unchanging, that every government is liable to die the moment it is born.

Some die faster than others. Mackenzie King's 1 o k, 13 years to wither, Louis St. Laurent's nine, John Diefenbaker's six, Lester Pearson's five.

Stanfield clearly expects Pierre Trudeau's to set a new course record of four years in the race to the political boneyard.

So far, the public opinion samplings, professional and amateur alike, confirm Stanfield's contention that Trudeau already is losing.

But losing, quickly or slowly, is normal for any government.

What then, in Stanfield's cool eye, is different about Trudeau as a loser?

Just this: He is going far too fast in some things and not far nor fast enough in others.

With each he has been making more enemies than friends.

Item: With the NATO phase-out he antagonized the traditionalists who hold to the keeping of agreements with allies and friends, and he angered the peaceniks by the failure to pull out completely.

Item: With the languages Bill Bill 1 ost points in the West and the Maritimes, and in Quebec where they just do not care he did not even win marks for trying.

Item: With the Armed Forces cutback he worries all those who believe Canada should keep its' end up in the defence of peace and freedom of the Western World, and he disappoints such people as his Parliamentary General Eric Kierans who think Canadians can better defend themselves with bridges and roads than with ships, tanks and planes.

Item: With legalized abortion he may have pleased who-knows-how-many "New moderns," but he angered everybody-knows-how-many "old - fashioneds," including vastly influential church groups.

Item: And if all that many Canadians are celebrating his legalizing of homosexuality, it has to be a new and queer Canada monopoly.

Those items come off the top of Trudeau's controversial list, and there has been no shortage of others: Red China, the Vatican, bilingualism, Expo overlolls, Montreal's growing Air Canada monopoly.

Where is the inaction? High interest rates, higher cost-of-living, highest taxes, housing crisis, untold wheat. Nor is this the list by half.

At this stage of political proceedings in the next election; barring the not-impossible government disaster, still three years away, the Liberals, despite some not-so-secret misgivings, remain confident.

One of them likes to quote a Conservative MP — and the quote has been confirmed at the source — who, inventing the divided ranks of the party in the Commons, narrowed fatalistically: "We have not done anything with 72 members, so how much better are we going to do with 32 after the next election?"

Car Owner Wins A Case

Shoddy Workmanship All Too Common

Ottawa Journal

A man in Vancouver who took his new car back to the dealer 17 times for repairs has had his money returned as a result of a British Columbia Supreme Court judgment.

Mr. Justice Ruttan held that the car company was in breach of a fundamental term of the contract to provide a working motor car. The owner had to have his car towed in seven times. He had constant trouble with the electrical system and the brakes. He had six battery re-charges. He had oil leaks. After eight months of struggle he gave up and went to court.

Consumer Affairs Minister Basford should make the car owner and the judge honorary members of one of those councils he is forever naming. They have struck a blow for the downtrodden.

If more consumers would dig in and refuse to take sloppy goods or accept sloppy services they would accomplish more than Basford, his department, and councils could ever hope of doing.

Manufacturers and service industries have been getting away with murder because shoddy workmanship has come to be regarded as a fact of North American life.

It's not only cars. How many times a new washing machine or TV set arrives with something missing or not working? Do painters ever do a job without being called back to finish something which wasn't done right in the first place? The building trades as a whole are all too ready to try to pawn off careless work. What has happened to pride of craft?

The trouble can't be that the consumer isn't paying enough for goods and services. Indeed, as prices go up, quality seems to be going down.

There will come the revolution. Maybe the man in Vancouver has fired the first shot. Let it be heard around the nation.

Keep Off Telephone

Radio Key to Attack Warning

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Through the medium of your paper may I make the following observations:

The national attack warning system sirens are necessary for warning the public in the event of nuclear attack. So long as there are nuclear weapons and international tensions, a nuclear attack is always a possibility.

The army is responsible for the attack warning system sirens. The signal is carried by the Bell Telephone lines. Accidental soundings in this area have always been caused by a malfunction of the Bell system.

Sirens are not the responsibility of EMO nor does it have any control over them.

Malfunction soundings can be shut off by Bell Telephone in Kingston. This office and with Trenton and Belleville fire departments have a drill for notifying Bell and for requesting that CJBQ announce that it is a malfunction sounding. However, it is almost impossible to implement their drills because our phones are tied up by unnecessary incoming calls.

In an emergency do not use the phone unless it is absolutely necessary. Turn on your radio for information and instruction. The lines are needed by those who have an emergency function.

When sirens sound you can check whether or not it is (a real attack by a) — turning on your radio. If it is a real warning it will be carried on CJBQ; b) — a real attack warning is an undulating sound lasting from three to five minutes. A malfunction is a continuous sound.

Complete instructions on what to do in a National Emergency are contained in the pamphlet "11 Steps to Survival."

This office would be pleased to provide these and any other information on request.

'Red Knight' Crash Tragedy

Peterborough Examiner

The Canadian Forces' showbusiness activities resulted in tragedy with the death of another Red Knight pilot. Twenty-four year old Brian Alston died while rehearsing for this summer's series of 'air shows' which feature the Canadian Forces aerobatic team.

There are no convincing reasons why members of the armed forces should continue their deadly careers as entertainers for a public more interested in the perverted joys of witnessing men flirt with death than seeing the graceful manoeuvers of a speeding jet.

Intricate flying formations are only incidental to the real entertainment and the young Mr. Alston was the victim of the ultimate performance. The possibility of a crash is what draws the crowds and those who witnessed Sunday's tragedy at Moose Jaw, Sask., probably consider themselves lucky to have been in on this great show.

The Canadian Forces Reserves are not supported by the Canadian people to entertain and the government and forces commanders should refuse to subject young pilots to the revolting business of satisfying the sadistic impulses in the Canadian public.

Armed forces directors undoubtedly value the public relations dividends resulting from their side shows but the price is rather high. Mr. Alston was the thirtieth Canadian to die in aerobatic manoeuvers since 1950.

Air shows only serve to romanticize and distort the role of air force pilots. But even the romanticization is in vain; the Canadian military forces in no way through the PR image and we are left to contemplate another senseless tragedy.

El Salvador-Honduras 'Soccer War'

Long-Standing Hostility Sparked Latin Tempers

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The long-term results of the revived "soccer war" of Central America could be far more harmful for the impoverished combatants than the immediate harm they are capable of inflicting on each other.

Emissaries dispatched by the headquarters here of the Organization of American States had apparently arranged at least a temporary ceasefire Thursday between Honduras and El Salvador after three days of fighting, but there were renewed reports of fighting.

Observers, and some diplomats reporting from the region, predict the fighting has undermined the fledgling Central American Common Market and raised the threat of further economic and social conflict there.

If the fighting ends soon the scarcity of the materials of war —including even the necessities to keep eight vintage aircraft each side possesses in the air— would probably be a major factor.

Otherwise the only segment of good that could come out of the affair might be that it has aroused concern within the OAS, the United Nations and in Washington and that together the interested parties might apply new vigor to easing the region's problems.

The one point on which most observers agree is that the dispute over the ill-defined borders of the republics is not the real cause of the hostilities.

At the heart of the problem are the simmering internal and economic social problems that have finally boiled up again.

El Salvador, smallest and most densely populated land in Latin America, has long eased its plight by exporting people.

Despite the harsh hardness of neighboring Honduras, some 300,000 Salvadoreans have migrated there.

Over the years the antagonism of Hondurans over having to share what little opportunity they have with the invaders has led to heavier immigration control efforts to redistribute land held by Salvadorean squatters and the like.

Out of this atmosphere grew repeated rumors—with some basis in fact, but no doubt enlarged upon—of Hondurans committing rapes and atrocities on illegal Salvadorean immigrants.

Things came to a head July 7 when a visiting Honduran soccer team was set upon by Salvadoreans, and assaulted—leading to a break in diplomatic relations.

Although the tabulation of the bloodshed in the fighting remains to be substantiated, indications from the area are that the two countries will not succeed in doing substantial harm on each other.

But Salvadoreans living in Honduras now are hostages to public opinion there. Additionally, hopes of the two countries co-operating in the Common Market venture that is vital to the region seem remote, to say the least, in the near future.

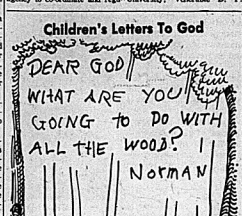
Anglicans to Consider Report On Training for Priesthood

TORONTO (CP) — The Anglican Church of Canada announced Friday that a report to be presented to it next month recommends training for the priesthood be restricted to three regional centres in Vancouver, Halifax and Toronto.

The report, the product of a three-man commission appointed in 1967, says the remainder of the colleges should devote themselves to other areas of theological education. Most of these other colleges are connected with large secular universities.

The commission also recommends that the theological education process be divided into three levels.

The first level would complement formal education or skills acquired in the period immediately following high school. The second level would involve specialized training of one to three years depending on the individual's "theological maturity."



The final level would allow students to "do academic research in theology to the PhD level" or take a one-year course "to equip themselves for special areas of ministry."

The report also suggests a heavy stress should be put on lay training and the continuing education of the clergy.

Other recommendations: adoption of new teaching methods, a national plan of financial assistance for students, a national selection process for selecting ordination candidates, and establishment of a national agency to co-ordinate and regulate all matters relating to theological education.

Members of the commission are:

Dr. John McLeish, dean of the faculty of education at Brandon University; Venerable D. P. Watney, Archdeacon of Vancouver, and Canon John Bothwell, executive director of program of the Anglican Church of Canada.

Minister Preaches From Tent

TORONTO (CP) — Rev. A. W. Ness is doing his preaching from a tent this summer.

But that's the way the 67-year-old former Pentecostal minister wants it. He has rented the 60-by-120-foot circus - type tent because he wants to hold services "based around the idea of an old-time Methodist camp meeting."

Experimentation is nothing new for Mr. Ness. His whole career in the ministry has been described as unorthodox.

He first became interested in evangelistic work while stationed in northern British Columbia with the RCAF. He served as a lay preacher in a nearby settlement.

Then, confronted one day by an angry bear, he promised himself that if he escaped alive, he would go into the ministry.

He has been a successful preacher ever since. A Pentecostal minister with large parishs in Northern Ontario as well as several in Toronto, he has worked with a magic touch in setting up new parishes and raising others from debt.

Mr. Ness has even attempted missionary work. In 1965 he spent a year in Brazil, supported by his parishioners in Toronto.

He subsequently disaffiliated himself from the Pentecostal church, because he felt he should "move out of the confines of one denomination and function on an interdenominational basis."

Now he wants to draw people from all sectors of the population and knit them together without the restrictions of a conventional faith."

British Biblical Expert Says Scriptures Forged

LONDON (AP) — Dr. Hugh Schonfield, the British biblical scholar who aroused a furore in 1965 by suggesting Christ's crucifixion was faked to fulfil Old Testament prophecies about the Messiah, now is questioning the whole authority of the Christian church.

His earlier book, The Passover Plot, held that the events of Passion Week in Jerusalem were an organized conspiracy "of which the victim himself was the principal instigator." Now in Those Incredible Christians—published by Bantam Books in the United States—he strikes a new blow at what he calls vested beliefs and ecclesiastical rubbish.

The new book is hardly likely to win him friends among orthodox churchmen. It may well bury him under fresh sheafs of letters denouncing him roundly as "Satan's stooge."

But there's nothing particularly satanic-looking about the shy, 69-year-old Jewish scholar who has made his claims after more than 45 years of studying ancient texts.

Dr. Schonfield says he subscribes to no religious creed himself, though he believes in God as pure spirit. His books, he insists, are written in an honest search for truth and not to create sensation. What he seeks is approval from his fellow scholars.

Schonfield thinks his new books comes at a very decisive moment in Christian thinking.

"The whole position of the papacy and the Vatican, the very source of all church authority, is being questioned today. At the same time there is this desire to get together as exemplified in the ecumenical movement. But people are just not content to leave this whole matter to be treated on an academic level by theologians discussing fine points of ritual.

"The only way it is possible for people to get to grips with reality is if they are aware of how Christianity originated and what is its mandate. All this has been whittled away in the course of history and now suddenly, in this technological age, we are thrust against it head-on.

"The things that the church prizes are not the things that Jesus Christ stood for. I feel tha only by sudying he beginnings of he church can we put our finger on the vital thing which is really the matter—what the church has lost. It's on this that new thinking must be based. It's this that could be the new reformation."

Schonfield suggests in his new book that control of what the church has taught as doctrine through the centuries was the product of pressures or human ingenuity much later than the time of Jesus.

"The practice of forgery in the early church is well-attested," he writes. "Paul mentioned it and the author of Revelation put a curse on anyone who added to or subtracted from what was in the book."

In fact, says Schonfield, the foundation of the Western church in Rome involved developing literary activity—"the clever construction of some documents, the editing of others, and the writing up of the story of Christian beginnings in the desired sense. . . ."

The story is slanted, he says.

And he goes on: "It is not the whole story or the true story. It omits almost every thing which would suggest that the original character of Christianity was not in accord with what the church was now teaching. This is not to say that there was an instruction to falsify . . . but forgery assisted the formation of real convictions."

Amish Live Close to Soil Spurning Modern Vanities

NEW YORK (AP) — They live close to the soil, convinced that man best finds his true humanity in simple, hard toil, personal kindness and homespun wisdom guided by the Bible. They spurn the modern vanities of fashionable clothes, social status, big cars, big TV sets.

They are the Amish, and for more than a decade, particularly in parts of the U.S. midwest, they've been under recurring pressure by educational systems, officers and courts to train their children according to state-fixed standards.

A new round in that battle is under way in county court in Monroe, Wis., where the state is pressing charges against three Amish fathers for refusal to send their high school-age children to public school.

The case is one of a succession that have turned up in recent years in the midwest—in Kansas, Iowa and elsewhere—in attempts to bring Amish schooling into conformity with state patterns.

Actually, the Amish were among the founders of popular education, nearly five centuries ago, insisting that all believers should be "trained in the Word," and not just the clergy.

They are part of the Mennonite tradition that grew out of the anabaptist movement of the 16th century Protestant Reformation in Europe. Believing in baptism only for adults, and not for infants, they were persecuted as heretics by Lutherans, Calvinists and Catholics.[Thousands were martyred.

The first Mennonites came to the U.S. in 1683, settling in Pennsylvania, where many still live, and where state provisions allow for their own forms of education, involving personal, practical guidance above Grade 8.

Altogether, there are about 150,000 Mennonites in the United States, several church bodies, with various degrees of strictness in custom.

Another 15,000 live in Canada, located mainly in central and western Ontario near Woodstock, Milverton, Norwich, Exeter and Hanover. Others farm in New Brunswick and a few families live in British Columbia's Peace River country.

The Canadian Amish take their children out of school at the age of 14 but have had no trouble with civil authorities.

While others have relaxed their rules on dress and transportation, the Amish stick to their old ways, wearing plain clothes, festened with hooks and eyes instead of buttons, and use horse and buggy for travel.

They shun movies, dancing, showy possessions, drinking, competitiveness for rank and power, the pecuniary, consumer aspects of modern culture, "He not conformed to this world but be transformed by the renewal of your mind," reads Romans 12:2. And they believe it.

The Amish maintain their own full-time schools through Grade 8, but beyond that, sons and daughters learn household and farm skills under personal community attendance rather than through an intensive apprenticeship.

None of the Amish has ever been arrested for a felony, nor have any ever been on public welfare. As farmers, they are highly proficient.

SMITH — KENNEDY

Knox Presbyterian Church, at Tara, Ont., was the setting for the July 12 wedding when Barbara Louise Kennedy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Kennedy, of Tara, Ont., exchanged wedding vows with Ross Arthur Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Smith, of Belleville. Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. Donald Archibald. Rendering appropriate nuptial selections was Miss Brenda Stride, niece of the bride. Soloist was Mrs. Howard Kennedy, sister-in law of the bride.

Her headpiece was a full length mantilla of nylon net with scalloped lace edge to match the lace trim on the gown. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

Maid of honour, Susie Simmons, of Trenton, wore a floor-length A-line gown of blue fiesta, complemented by a blue bow headpiece. Her bouquet was of white pom pom 'mums with blue tinted centres.

Bridesmaids, the Misses Frances Gordon, RRI, Corbyville, Marion Smith, Belleville, sister of the bridegroom and Anne Kennedy of Tara, Ont., niece of the bride (who was junior bridesmaid), all wore identical gowns to the maid of honor and carried the same flowers.

MR. AND MRS. LARRY DENARD

Denard — Pattison

Christ Church, Belleville, was the scene of the recent July wedding, when Linda Joyce Pattison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Pattison, of Belleville, became the bride of Larry Arthur Denard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Manley Denard, of Belleville. Officiating at the ceremony was Canon De Blois Wright. Rendering appropriate nuptial selections was organist John Withers, accompanying five choir boys.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a bridal gown of nylon organza over taffeta with a Chantilly lace bodice and long sleeves. The motif of the lace was carried through into the appliques on the skirt and around the hemline of the gown. The stand-up lace neckline, and the mantilla type train with a Spanish effect, edged with matching lace, flowed out to chapel length. Her headpiece was of organza lilies with seed pearl stamens, attached to a four tier scalloped veil. The bride carried a Bible on which was a cascade of red garnets and red roses mixed with fern.

Maid of honor, Donna Sharp of Brighton was attired in a floor length gown of soft blue crepe with Spanish lace bodice and long sleeves and an empire waist. She also wore a matching headdress and carried a bouquet of soft blue pom pom 'mums.

Bridesmaid, Miss Linda Wills of Belleville, wore a floor length gown of true pink crepe the same design as the maid of honor, as did Miss Pauline Tucker of Belleville except in peach. Both carried bouquets of pom pom 'mums matching their gowns in pink and peach.

Best man for the ceremony was Richard Denard, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Charles Pattison and David Pattison, brothers of the bride.

For the wedding reception, held at the Legion Hall, in Belleville, the mother of the bride received the guests in a street length A-line dress of lilac lace over taffeta with matching white accessories and a corsage of white 'mums. Assisting her, the mother of the bridegroom chose a street length dress of mint green sheer over lace, and white accessories. Her corsage was white and mint green pom pom 'mums. Also assisting, the grandmother of the bride wore a powder blue crepe dress and white accessories with a corsage of pink pom pom 'mums.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the bride donned a yellow and avocado silk jersey dress, complemented by beige accessories. Her corsage was of bronze pom pom 'mums. Upon their return, the couple will reside at R.R. No. 2, Trenton.

WITH PERIL AS PARTNER

(An S. S. Athenia Survivor's Account)

"I have such a sad tale - - - of our "S. S. Athenia - - - " — Edna Campbell.

"At 7:30 p.m. on the night of Sunday, September 3rd, (1939), a torpedo struck our ship, going into the engine room, hurling up the engineers. We were 250 miles northwest of Ireland," continues Edna Campbell, the Canadian survivor and dear friend of Mrs. M. E. Branscombe, in this valuable letter written from England on November 4th, 1939, to her:

"Then, soon after the "sub" came to the surface and fired a shell which exploded on middle deck. It was aimed at our wireless, but missed it, else we'd not have been rescued.

"The fumes from the explosion turned the dead green. There was a strong smell of gas and cordite. I thought the ship was on fire. Many were killed by the explosion and countless were injured by flying glass and debris. People died everywhere from accidents and drowning.

"The Sub" cruised around the sinking ship and we were all seen by numerous persons. There were at the time 1,418 on board (1,101 passengers, 315 crew), 800 of whom had British or European passports and over 200 American passports.

"Survivors were picked up by Norwegian vessel Knute Nelson; by the Swedish yacht, "Southern Cross; by City of Flint and by two British destroyers. The first two landed passengers at Galway, Ireland. The third at Halifax and our destroyers at Glasgow.

"It was all so tragic. Families were separated. They rushed babies down in pails from Athenia. Husbands remained behind. Wives had to go. People slid down ropes. I came into the sea. Some jumped into the sea. One life boat with occupants went down and first and all fell out. Another life boat with over 70 was totally submerged, but came up and all were soaked for a night at sea. People drowned all over, getting rescued on destroyers.

"Some expired when being pulled over the rail. Bad hearts took several. Some died during hours in life boats and were just put into the sea. We had, they told us, probably ten burials from our destroyer ere we started for Scotland, and many, or I should say sanone, died enroute.

"I was seasick in my cabin at the time of the disaster. I had on only scanty silk underwear, and being up and down had on scarlet kid bedroom slippers. My cabin was an inner one and very hot. My door unlocked as stewardesses came and went. Three lights were on. Immediately at the explosion occurred, all lights and mirrors in the entire ship were shattered, plunging us into total darkness.

"I heard someone screaming and I was myself. Steady' I remember saying. I was fainting as I picked myself up out of the debris. That cabin was a shambles. The ceiling fell like matchwood, the berths went down, the wardrobe hung at an angle. I groped and grasped at door and tried to go through. No I could not: it was the wardrobe. Feeling along, I found the cabin door, jammed. I wrenched it free, holding it so, tried to remember what I wanted. Oh, yes, a life belt. I couldn't find it, grabbed a dressing gown and fled.

"I had no stockings, no corsets, no coat. I didn't relieve her money or anything. Stepped high in the little corridor. The ceiling was down there for I crunched wood, the door to the main corridor was closed; it had always been open. (There were six cabins, but apparently all passengers were down at dinner. I heard no one). I jerked it open, found a shrieking crowd running for life boats.

"I remembered to turn left, but we were all ordered back by sailors and made to go another way. Our No. 3 boat station had been blown up I learned afterwards. I was trampled and squeezed and lost my slipper, and I burst out on the deck with a surge. I nearly lost balance. Outside there was twilight and one could see forms, but not faces.

"I shouted, "Where is number five?"

"Here' said a sailor's voice . . . "

Canon R. B. Debois Wright officiated at the July wedding, when Linda Jean Collins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Collins, of Belleville, exchanged wedding vows with David Arthur Halsey, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Halsey, of Belleville. Rendering appropriate nuptial selections was organist John Withers, accompanying the choir boys.

The elbow-length sleeves and bottom of the gown were also edged with lace. A round chapel train with lace appliques extended from the waist. Her four tier three-quarter length veil of imported illusion was held by a headdress of lace and borealis edged in seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white orchids, stephanotis and trailing ivy.

Maid of honor, Sandra Clarke, Belleville, wore a floor-length gown of mauve chiffon over silk with matching headdress. She carried a basque of white cluster carnations.

Bridesmaids, the Misses Heather Ogilvie, Belleville, Pat Shepherd, Belleville and Bea Bedford, Oshawa, were all gowned similar to the maid of honor and all carried basques of white cluster carnations.

Best man for the ceremony was Garnet Bird, of Belleville. Ushers were Don Doyle, Belleville, Michael Follwell, Belleville and Doug Dickey, Montreal.

For the reception held at the Belleville Shriner Club, the mother of the bride received the guests wearing a dress and jacket ensemble of blue silk shantung with matching accessories, complemented by a white orchid corsage. Assisting her, the mother of the bridegroom wore a beige brocade dress and jacket ensemble with matching accessories, completed by a corsage of orange delight roses.

For the wedding trip to northern Quebec, the bride donned a dress of mauve crepe with white accessories. A white orchid corsage completed her outfit. Upon their return, the couple will reside in Cobourg.

START NEW COURSES

VANCOUVER (CP) — The University of British Columbia will start three new diploma courses in the fall to train graduates in one year as specialists in teaching nursery and kindergarten children and those who are mentally retarded or have special learning problems.

From New York The "Tailored" Look

NEW YORK (AP) — With most fall fashion showings wrapped up a month ago, it was beginning to look like all was said and done for another year on Seventh Avenue.

Then along came Norman Norell.

Unveiling his autumn and winter collection Wednesday, Norell upstaged the New York couture community with a fashion line boldly committed to a handful of simple ideas. They are the types of ideas that trends are made of.

The collection's dominant look was the tailored, boxy jacket that is reminiscent of Chanel but uniquely Norell with the addition of big patch pockets, a standing mandarin collar and sleeves cuffed at the wrist.

Most of the jackets, in wool and jersey, sported at least a half dozen buttons, often in a double row down the front.

The Norell jacket came in all lengths for wear over pants, plainly tailored dresses and high-necked tunic tops and skirts belted at the waist by a narrow matching sash.

But the newest length — and one that figures to be important for fall — ends at the waist with a ten-inch bottom band. The short version often came collarless.

Norell again relied on ample use of sequins for evening wear.

Floor-length crepe gowns, in bright orange and blue, picked up added attention with bands of silver or gold sequins applied in delicate patterns around the skirt. Other gowns, tightly fitted at the bodice, were made entirely of sequins.

Sausage Rolls A Delightful Treat

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: . . .do you happen to have a recipe for the pastry used to make sausage rolls? It is a much richer, flakier pastry than we use for pies, but is more than a simple matter of adding more shortening? — Mary W. A.

ANSWER: I have mailed to you my release from May, 1962 giving three ways of making sausage rolls but Non-Roll Puff Pastry is suggested for one if them but the recipe is not given. I am giving it below. I have a suspicion though that your baker used English Pastry (see below) for his sausage rolls. Try all variations to discover the one you prefer.

NON - ROLL PUFF PASTRY

Four cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 lb. cold, hard butter (do not substitute), ½ pint (10 oz.) dairy sour cream. Cut butter into flour with pastry blender until size of large peas. Stir in sour cream lightly. Press into chunky roll, wrap in foil or double wax paper and chill until hard. Roll out to 3-16" thickness and cut out in oblongs to cover cooked sausages. Chill, lapped side down on cookie sheet. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. 18 to 20 min. Some butter cones out so take care in removing from oven. These are a smash hit.

ENGLISH PASTRY

(Often used for deep meat pie)

Mix together 2 cups all-purpose flour, 2 tsps. baking powder, 1 tsp. salt. Cut in ½ cup shortening. Melt another ½ cup shortening in ½ cup boiling water, then add to bowl 2 tsps. lemon juice and 1 small egg yolk. Stir into flour mixture, then knead for 3 min. Let stand 1 hr. Roll out and cut into oblongs or squares to enclose cooked, cooled sausages and place, lapped side down, on cookie sheets. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. about 20 to 30 min.

NOTE: If English Pastry is used for deep meat pies it requires longer baking time — almost an hour.

Washstands Low Cost Item Of the Mid 19th Century

(Picture Credit: The Canada West Society)

wash I col out and pic credit.

Every bedroom once had a washstand. Many had two, sometimes in different sizes for the master and mistress. The washstand illustrated was a typical low cost item of the middle and late 19th century.

By the end of the century Victorian propriety was offended by visible slop jars and chamber pots and the bottoms of "wash-hand stands" were enclosed with doors — or at least a curtain.

By 1900 the towel bars had been elevated to a lyre shape at the back of the washstand which also supported a curtain splashback.

Some washstands have a cut-out section for the basin, probably done by the householder, as the same style may be found with either solid or cut out tops. The bottom shelf often seemed to be an after thought. On most, washstands, if there is all, it is just a board attached insecurely to the bottom legs.

The earliest washstands in this style are usually well made of cabinet woods, dovetailed and doweled. Pieces of Quebec derivation are likely to be more exuberant in design and almost always in pine. By the end of the century washstands were mass - produced in any sort of wood, stained and grained to look like oak. Most have a drawer as well as doors.

In the '70s and '80s washstands appeared in heavy, enclosed, designs with marble tops. The increase in size brought them to the proportions of a small sideboard. They command high prices today. Marble, if chipped or broken, can be repaired by a competent tile shop. Stains are less easy to remove.

Once available for less than $1, light pine washstands cost about $40, repaired and refinished. Washstands, in the rough, can still be picked up for very little at country auctions. Tiger maple commands the highest price, cherry and walnut are expensive, marble tops double the usual price. Varnished oak, lyre-back Edwardian styles are not yet popular and may sometimes be obtained for less than $10. Painted oak is probably the next item to be collected and will, along with Art Nouveau and Tiffany lamps, be a good investment for the future.

World War I mahogany veneered washstands (not antique) are currently more acceptable to the buying public and sell for about the price of a small modern unpainted chest. After World War I the washstand disappeared to be replaced by night tables.

Ann Landers

Prank by Friend Leads to Problem

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last Saturday my wife and I went out with two other couples. We made a few music bars after dinner and had some drinks. One of the places served cocktail mixers with little plastic monkeys on top. I put a couple of the mixers in my pocket, which is not stealing since they can be used only once and would have been thrown out.

ANN LANDERS

Later in the evening I pulled a mixer out of my pocket to look at it. To my amazement a woman's hairnet was hooked to the monkey's tail. I had never seen the hairnet before and I don't know how it got there. Everyone laughed. My wife didn't think it was very funny. It's been a week now and the couch is very lumpy. Any suggestions? — NOT GUILTY.

DEAR NOT: You don't write like a guy who is involved in monkey business. My hunch is that one of your friends framed you. Show this to your wife and tell her I said she's being too hard on you. (P.S. And now, all you guys out there who say I never give the men a break, aren't you ashamed of yourselves?)

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'd like to address my remarks to that lousy crum who wrote: "The women in my office are beginning to look better to me every day."

I'll bet your wife looked better before you married her. She is probably worn out from doing your laundry, cooking, cleaning and raising your children. I'll bet her figure isn't what it used to be either. So she doubt works like a horse and eats like one to keep going.

I speak from experience because this is the way it is with me. Before I got married I had nice clothes; I went to the beauty shop every week and didn't have anything on my mind but myself. Now I have to cater to a lazy husband, do magic tricks with his paycheque and take full responsibility for the kids because he is too busy drinking beer and watching TV.

I'm writing this letter not because I think it will change the big erk who complained, but just to let that man's wife know she is not alone. — AN ALSO RAN.

DEAR ALSO: Here's your letter and I'm sure she'll get the message. It came through loud and clear.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband had a heart attack last year. Our old neighborhood was getting noisy so we bought a home which cost more than we had planned to spend. The man who sold us the home didn't tell us that the women next door runs a boarding house for crazy musicians and a free kennel for friends who take trips.

What with the dogs barking and the clarinets tootling and the drums banging we haven't had a decent night's sleep since we bought this house. My husband's nerves are shot and so are mine. We can't afford to move again. Please suggest something. — FORT LAUDERDALE MACHE.

DEAR HEADACHE: Is your neighbor disturbing the peace? If so, she is breaking the law and you can do something about it. If this suggestion doesn't produce peace and quiet, sell the house. You say you can't afford to move again. I say you can't afford not to.

Disabled Learn How to Ride

By DORIS CLARK

Just a few miles from the centre of London (England), in the suburb of Chigwell, Essex, is a group of people who believe that disabled children and adults can learn to ride horses. And they prove it daily.

It was a rare sunny June day when we visited the Riding Centre for the Disabled. We arrived shortly after lunch. The director introduced us to a group of six or eight youngsters and teen-agers sunning themselves on the grass near the swimming pool. One youth was busily shaving another, while lightbearded comments and directions were being offered from all sides. I discovered when these two young men stood up that one needed crutches to walk with, and the other needed better muscles in his arms, before he could shave himself properly.

But who cared? Apparently nobody there. A dozen residents from nine years up to about 23, climbed onto ponies at lesson time with great expectations.

In the corral they walked their ponies first, their instructor shouting directions and watching that every foot was in place, every hand had a grip of the reins. Helpers were available to guide ponies and steady their riders. After a few minutes they were ready for larger, greener fields, and we followed them out. Here the ponies walked a little faster, then trotted. Riders heeded instructions: "Dot, hang on better with your knees". "Steve, relax, let yourself go with your horse."

There were times when I sensed tension and strain; and then I would see the rider relax a little and begin to enjoy himself.

Because you see, when a child who has difficulty walking alone finds himself atop a pony, he also finds that he is being supported and carried along by four strong legs. A youngster who can scarcely force himself to go through painful and boring exercises for the development of injured and damaged muscles, will bend over backwards — or frontwards — to hang on when he is learning to ride.

Tremendous things happen. Teaching a disabled person to ride is teaching control of mind and body. Here ability counts — not disability. Ordinary saddles are used and as far as possible there are no braces or supports. The stirrups are adjusted so that legs take the best possible position; and the rider is encouraged, gradually, it is amazingly swift in some cases.

The centre started out with children. Help comes from many volunteers, including horses periodically loaned from the Queen's Mews. The centre now takes adults, victims of accident or stroke.

We could take some lessons from Mr. John Davies and his inspired staff. News comes to me that there is a certain rehab physician in Toronto who has now procured one pony toward the development of a similar project there. More power to him!

U.S. Leads Track Meet

LOS ANGELES (CP) — United States runners, both men and women, dominated opening-night action against Russia and Commonwealth track and field teams Friday.

The U.S. runners swept both men's and women's 100-metre dash. John Carlos winning in 10.3 seconds and Barbara Ferrell in 11.5. Miss Ferrell also anchored the U.S. women's 400-metre relay team to victory but the Commonwealth defeated the men's quartet.

Eight Canadians—seven women and one man—are part of the 70-athlete contingent representing the Commonwealth.

Carlos and Ivory Crockett placed one-two in the 100 metre and Donald Quarrie of Jamaica was third in 10.4. In the 400 metres, Lee Evans and Tommy Turner placed first and second for the Americans, Evans winning 45.2. Miss Ferrell of Australia was third in 46.6.

Bob Seagren won the pole vault with a jump of 17 feet, 6¾ inches. John Pennel of the U.S. was second and Deadly Bilinyetsov of Russia was third. Larry Wolfe of Owen Sound, Ont., one of two Commonwealth representatives placed sixth but no height was listed.

Juris Luzins of the U.S. surprised world record co-holder Ralph Doubell of Australia in the 800 metres, winning in 1:46.7. Doubell clocked 1:47.4.

Expos Swamp Alouettes in Head-on Attendance Battle

MONTREAL (CP) — The most recent battle for Montreal's sports dollars has ended as a strictly no-contest affair.

It came about when Montreal Expos of baseball's National League and Montreal Alouettes of Canadian Football Conference clashed head-on in a bid for fandom's favor and dollars.

The Expos attracted 34,134 paid fans for 30,000-seat Jarry Park. In addition, 1,000 youngsters from the city's little leagues attended free of charge.

The Alouettes, on the other hand, drew a sparse attendance of approximately 6,500 to their 32,000-seat, cavern - like Autostade.

The Wednesday night box office confrontation left the Expos battle Pittsburgh Pirates down to the ninth inning before dropping an 8-7 decision, while the Als were nudged to their fourth straight pre-season loss by the Western Conference Edmonton Eskimos by a 20-18 score.

Both attractions were competing against another perennial favorite—harness racing at Richelieu Raceway—an event that drew 7,702 fans.

Wednesday night the baseball game was available here on both French and English television networks of the CBC. However to offset this normal hazard to park attendance, the Expos held a giveaway night. Every youngster under 15 who attended the game was presented with a free baseball.

The game also marked the half-way point in the home schedule for the Expos. For 42 home games on 39 dates they have recorded a gross attendance of 608,235 or an average of 16,006.

Joe Atwell, owner of the Alouettes, doesn't seem perturbed by the current trend. He says he is convinced the club's problems at the gate will disappear with a winner. The Als finished last in the EFC last season.

Will Sell Interest in Bachelors III

Namath Will Return to Jets

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Namath has capitulated to Pete Rozelle, commissioner of the National Football League, clearing the way for his return to New York Jets.

Namath, who announced his retirement from football June 6 after refusing to sell his half-interest in a night club as ordered, agreed Friday to sell after a long conference with Rozelle.

The announcement was made by Rozelle at a news conference after week-long talks with Namath, the colorful quarterback of New York Jets of the American League.

"I'm happy to announce that Joe will be back with the Jets," Rozelle said. "Title and I have privately reached total accord.

"He is selling his interest in Bachelors III and we consider the entire matter closed."

Namath, wearing a gold shirt, striped blue-and-white trousers, no socks and sneakers, then explained why he had changed his mind and decided to sell the night spot that had become the issue in the case.

"I initially didn't feel that it would involve so many people as it has," Namath said. "But because of the things that have been said and written, it's gotten way out of proportion.

"Because of the people this has involved, and because I do want to play football, Mr. Rozelle and I got together and solved the thing.

"I've nothing wrong, but because of the public reading these things it has caused so much trouble for football and for me, so we feel we should divorce ourselves of the restaurant and have nothing to do with it even though everything that's been said about myself having dice games and things like that is wrong."

And then he put his finger on the issue between himself and Rozelle—his contention that he personally was not guilty of any wrong-doing and therefore should not have to sell, and Rozelle's contention that an aura of suspicion creates doubt.

"My principle went as far as my thinking at that time," Namath said, "and when it was just concerned with myself.

"I hadn't done anything wrong, but there still was that area of doubt, that question with the public we are trying to erase now . . . to keep everything on the up and up we are getting out of Bachelors III."

The doubt with the public was cast when Namath was ordered by Rozelle to sell his interest in the swinging East Side bar and restaurant because it was being frequented by undesireable characters, including gamblers.

Canada Wins Bisley's Most Coveted Team Prize

BISLEY, England (CP) — Canadian sharpshooters Friday snatched the most coveted team prize of the Commonwealth target meet—the Kolapore Cup—after being shut out for 18 years.

A team of eight representing the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association fought an uphill battle to nose out the pick of United Kingdom marksmen by a bare two points in a 1,200-point match at three distances.

The Canadians were 11 points down in the United Kingdom at the end of the first stage at 200 yards and had retrieved only one of these after the 500-yard shoot.

But in the final 600 yards the DCRA crew outshot the British by 12 and ended with a score of 1,130 to 1,118 out of the possible 1,200. Guernsey had 1,094 and Jersey 1,091.

Sgt. Gordon of Hull, Que., at 23 the youngest DCRA team member, led the Canadians with 142 out of 150.

Other scores were:

Mike Susick, of Summerside, P.E.I., Ron George of Regina and Dr. Don Brereton of Winnipeg, 141; Larry Fish, Oakville, 140; Gerry Ouellette, 19Wadsor, Ont., 139; Norin Beckett, Hamilton, 1961 Queen's Prize winner, and Arnold Parks, Saint John, N.B., last year's winner, 138 each.

Two of the Canadians also finished high in results announced Friday in the Bisley Grand Aggregate, representing the overall individual championship of the two-weeks' meeting and based on totals in 12 major events.

Susick accumulated 563 out of a possible 600 to finish seventh and just nose out Nelson Colville, 64, of Winnipeg.

Ben Wrey of Britain led with 577.

The Canadians were awarded a second team prize Friday—the Overseas Challenge Trophy —shot Thursday among groups from outside the United Kingdom.

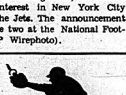
Beckett led the Canadians with 103 and Parks followed with 101 out of a possible 105. . .

Other Canadian scores in the Overseas:

Fish, 100; Marion, 99; Brereton and Ouellette, 98; George and Don Keizer, Powell River, B.C., 97; Susick and Eric Andrews, Victoria, 96; Sandy Peden, Coquitlam, B.C., and Derek Daines, Vancouver, 94.

Britain Scores Doubles Win Over South Africa

BRISTOL, England (AP) — Mark Cox and Peter Curtis upset Bob Hewitt and Fred McMillan 6-4, 3-6, 4-6, 6-4, 9-7 in a doubles thriller Friday and gave Britain a 2-1 lead over South Africa in the European Zone Davis Cup tennis final.



Hewitt and McMillen had previously played in nine Davis Cup doubles matches together and had never been beaten.

All the excitement was in the tennis itself. The anti-apartheid demonstrators who staged a sit-down on the court in Thursday's singles did not put in an appearance.

Students paraded with banners attacking South Africa's racial separation policies," but stayed outside the grounds of the Bristol Lawn Tennis Club.

Britain now needs to win only two of the two singles scheduled today to move on to the interzone semi-finals against either Brazil or Mexico.

Campbell Stands Out

Regina Edges Ottawa 6-5

REGINA (CP) A fourth-quarter touchdown catch by flanker Hugh Campbell gave Saskatchewan Roughriders a 6-5 win Friday over Ottawa Rough Riders in a Canadian Football League exhibition game.

The eight-yard pass from quarterback Ron Lancaster brought Saskatchewan from behind after Ottawa's soccer style kicker Ian McMillan counted five points with a 35-yard field goal and two singles, all in the second quarter.

Jack Abendschan's convert attempt was blocked.

Ottawa drove late in the game from their own 10-yard line to the Saskatchewan 18 but McMillan's field goal attempt was blocked by defensive end Don Gerhardt.

The eastern Football Conference club had another chance later in the final quarter when Alan Ford's punt went off the side of his foot and travelled only 22 yards, going out of bounds on the Saskatchewan 49.

But a fumble on the next play gave Saskatchewan possession and they scored on a touchdown hand last year's Grey Cup champions their second defeat in this year's exhibition series.

Lancaster completed 12 passes in 26 tries for 194 yards while Dennis Jackson, aided by Buster O'Brien, performed below usual with seven completions on 15 attempts for 65 yards.

Campbell was a standout for Saskatchewan with five catches for 128 yards, and rookie halfback Bobby Thompson gained 67 yards on eight carries.

Gerry Shaw of Ottawa had seven three-pass receptions was the best effort by an Ottawa player in a generally listless game watched by 12,880 fans.

Saskatchewan, now 1-1 in exhibition, held an edge in first downs, 15 to 11. Total yardage was 338 to 213 for Ottawa. Both teams fumbled twice with Ottawa losing both theirs and Saskatchewan regaining one of their own.

Bill Van Burkleo punted 13 times for Ottawa for an average of 46.8 yards while Ford had a 35.9-yard average on nine kicks.

Blues' Pair Are Hot

TORONTO (CP) — Red Berenson and Jacques Plante of St. Louis Blues had a net score of 58 Friday to take the first-round lead in the 54-hole golf tournament involving stars of the National Hockey League.

Four teams tied for second with scores of 61—Tim Ecclestone and Bill White of Los Angeles Kings, Gary Dornhoefer and Andre Lacroix of Philadelphia Flyers, Al Arbor and Jim Roberts of the Blues and Bill Hickey and Ted Hampson of Oakland Seals.

Murray Oliver and Paul Henderson of Toronto Maple Leafs came in with 62, Dennis Hull and Doug Jarrett of Chicago Black Hawks had 63.

Dornhoefer and Vic Hadfield shot 68s for low gross honors.

Two teams from each of the 12 NHL cities are competing for a first prize of $5,000. The three-day event is a best-ball tournament counting combined handicaps.

Seek Revenge for 18-7 Setback

Joyces Meet Surging Kingston

The great negro baseball pitcher Satchel Paige often said "Don't look back; somebody might be gaining on you!"

And today if the members of the league - leading Belleville Joyces Eastern Ontario Baseball Association senior team look back they'll find that the Kingston Lakeview Centennials are indeed gaining on them.

Belleville sports a record of seven wins and four losses, but Kingston has jumped to second place and a 5-4 record with three consecutive wins — one of them a lopsided 18-7 rout of the Joyces' at the Kingston Cricket Field last Sunday.

Thus the Joyces will have two spurs prodding them Sunday when they travel to Kingston for a 2 p.m. encounter with the Lakeview Centennials at the Cricket Field.

One spur will be the threat of Kingston moving within two points of the locals and the other will be the revenge for last Sunday's 18-7 whomping.

Kingston has come on strong since the Peterborough tournament where they barely missed winning a trip to Halifax to represent Ontario in the Canadian Senior Baseball Championships in August when they dropped an 8-7 12 - inning decision to the Intercounty all-star squad in the tourney's title game.

Meanwhile Belleville has played only once — last Sunday in Kingston since they dropped a 9-5 decision to the Leaside Maple Leafs in the opening round of the Peterborough tournament, June 28th.

Last Sunday the Joyces had only eight players and coach Jim Whyte was forced to play left field to give Belleville the required nine man lineup.

Whyte is hoping for a bigger turnout Sunday as the Joyces attempt to get back on the winning track and turn back Kingston's bid for first place.

Earlier in the season the Joyces scored three consecutive wins over the Lakeview Centennials and Sunday they'll be trying to resort their mastery over the Kingston club.

Bob Charles Defends Canadian Open Title at Pinegrove

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian open golf championship this year is set for suburban Pinegrove Country Club at nearby St. Luc July 24-27, and Lac Brien, the Pinegrove pro, calls the layout a driver's course.

"Traps come into play on virtually every tee shot," he says. "If you can hit it long and straight you're going to have an advantage."

The course plays 7,021 yards to a par 72 for this year's Open. It was par 71 for the 1964 tournament at the same layout, but the tee has been moved back on the 18th to make it a 467-yard par five, instead of four.

The move will probably mean plenty of birdies coming home.

Brien expects the winning score to be three strokes better than Kel Nagle's 277 back in 1964, conditions being equal.

"Today's players are just that much better," he says. "And the course is more mature. You won't get as many tight lies."

Here is how he expects the field to attack:

No. 1—400 yards, par five: This is a dogleg right that calls for two full woods and then some, probably anything from a three-iron to an eight-iron. It's going to be three first two that count. And two bunkers on the right prevent a straight shot.

No. 2—220 yards, par three: Depending on the wind, all the way from a driver to a three-iron on this one. The trap on the left will catch a lot of balls. It's a big green, but the pin placement can be tough.

No. 3—450 yards, par four: An elevated tee here helps. Because of trees on the left, the hole plays like a dog's leg. The idea is to keep left of center. For a second shot, it will be anywhere from a three- to a six-iron. The green is huge, and it's well trapped on both sides.

No. 4—375 yards, par four: For the first time, the Little Montreal River becomes a hazard. It's 240 to 250 yards out. No one is goidg to try to get across from the tee. Most of the pros will probably go with a four- or a five-iron and then hit a seven- or eight-iron going in.

No. 5—520 yards, par five: The tee, while elevated, has been moved back 12 to 15 yards and it takes a big drive to get across the river ravine and the top of the hill. But if you can do it, there's a reward. It's easy from there, maybe a three-iron or a four-iron to reach the green. But be careful. On the left, a tough trap; to the right, the ground falls off sharply.

No. 6—190 yards, par three: It's not always wise to go for the pin here. Sometimes it's in a sucker's position. The trap on the right is tough. It may call for a three-iron to a six-iron.

No. 7—360 yards, par five: Once more the premium on the drive. It's got to be straight. On the right there is a deep ravine; the left, all kinds of rough. And you have to get out there 240 yards to avoid being on the downslope for your second shot. But if you do it, you can get to the green with a three- or a four-wood. If not, you have to play short of the river with your second shot.

No. 8—340 yards, par three: Oak trees surround this one but there's room. It's a three-wood to a three-iron. Watch the right. It's out of bounds. And the bowl-shaped green is hard to putt.

No. 9—400 yards, par four: All you do here is play it safe with two-irons all the way up to five-irons. On the right going in there's trouble. But on the left, even if you are wide, the bank will usually bring your ball back in. It's a four-iron shot for some; at the other extreme, a seven-iron for others.

No. 10—418 yards, par four: Another dogleg right, and if you can get out there between the traps from the tee, it's a five- to an eight-iron to an elevated green of good size.

No. 11—415 yards, par four: From the elevated tee, you can't see the trouble. But there's a trap on the right out where this fairway gets tight. You should hit it a bit left. The second shot, from a two- to a five-iron, is easy. It's a big, wide green.

No. 12—230 yards, par three: You've got to be there on this one, a three-iron to a four-wood. The green is elevated. On the left it's out of bounds. And there's a bunker that deceivingly falls off left. On the right, trouble; a deep ravine and lots of trees.

No. 13—530 yards, par five: Most of the time the wind is against you. So you don't get there in two. But the second shot isn't hard here. All you have to worry about is rough on the left. From there it's anything from an eight to a wedge and you still have a chance for a birdie.

No. 14—400 yards, par four: Play to the right of the bunker here and you've got a four-iron to an eight-left. But push the tee shot too far left and you are in sand or trees.

No. 15—150 yards, par three: This is the shortest hole on the course and it's a good birdie prospect. You're shooting at a big green and a seven- or eight-iron should bring you close.

No. 16—400 yards, par four: Tight is the word here. You have to carry 210 to 220 yards to get over the trap on the left. From there it's an eight- or nine-iron to the only green on the course not guarded by traps. But it falls off sharply to the left. A good tee shot here and it's easy. A lot of the pros probably will use a one-iron off the tee if the wind is with them.

No. 17—440 yards, par four: Fine tree-lined hole. Keep one or three sides off the tee. You hit through a narrow avenue. Some 200 yards out on the left there's a trap. To avoid it, the ball should be hit with a slight fade. From there it's a three- or five-iron with the green slightly elevated.

No. 18—446 yards, par five: The tee here has been shifted back. However, you still have to river to contend with from the tee and some will go with a three-wood, playing short. Going over the green is a sit the way from a four-wood to a four-iron. But it's tricky. The two-level green is the largest on the course, but it holds. If you land short, for some reason, you usually roll past.

McLain Rebounds; Twins Streak Ends

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Denny McLain, who has had a circulatory problem in his left arm, causing him to miss his last starting assignment, still is winning games for Detroit. Tigers win the six-game right arm.

Returning to the mound Friday night, McLain, who won 31 games last year, pitched the Tigers to a 4-0 victory over Cleveland Indians, sparing seven hits and walking no one to raise his record to 14-5.

He still is short of his winning pace of 1968, but at the rate he is going he could win about 25 games this year.

However, the second place Tigers still remain 13 games behind Baltimore Orioles in the American League's Eastern Division despite the Orioles' 6-1 loss to Boston Red Sox.

In the Western Division, Oakland picked up 1½ games on Minnesota Twins with a 6-3 victory over California Angels while the Twins lost a ten-night doubleheader to Seattle 2-1 and 3-2, ending the Twins nine-game winning streak.

In other games, the New York Yankees stopped Washington Senators 5-0 behind Fritz Peterson and Chicago White Sox beat Kansas City Athletics 6-1 on Tommy Agee's homer.

McLain, who won No. 14 on June 29 last season and had 18 victories by this time, allowed only one runner past first base against Cleveland—Tony Horton doubled with two out in the ninth inning.

McLain also squeezed home a run in the seventh inning, but the big blows off Luis Tiant were Bill Freehan's 12th homer leading off the fifth for Detroit's first hit and Willie Horton's two-run shot, his 12th, in the eighth.

Horton also tied a league record for an outfielder with 11 putouts.

Ray Jarvis, a 23-year old rookie, hurled Boston to its victory over Baltimore with a six-hitter to even his record at 5-5. He also singled in his first major league run and hit a sacrifice fly.

Oakland, behind 3-1 in the eighth, scored four unearned runs as Jose Tartabull singled in another, while a fourth scored on a throwing error on Kubiak's hit.

Ron Peranoski walked Steve Hovley with two out in the ninth inning in force in the winning run. In Seattle's first victory, Hovley homered with one on and scored Ted Talbot singled and scored the decisive run on Tommy Davis' hit in the night cap, cutting the Twins' lead over Oakland to 3½ games.

Peterson yielded only six hits, five of them singles, in his four games.

Frank Fernandez homered in the Yankees' victory.

Ken Berry hit a two-run homer and the White Sox added four more on a bases loaded walk, a balk and Ed Herrmann's two-run single to Buck John, who scattered eight hits.

Gonzalez Strikes Back

Trade Backfires on Padres

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tony Gonzalez, acquired from San iDego Padres just before the trade deadline last month for reserve catcher Walt Hriniak and two minor leaguers, hit two home runs and drove in a grand slam—Friday night as Atlanta Braves swept a doubleheader from the Padres 6-2 and 6-3.

The outfielder's sixth and seventh homers—he hit five since joining the Braves—helped them climb within three percentage points of Los Angeles Dodgers, the National League's Western Division leaders, who edged San Francisco Giants 3-2.

Elsewhere in the NL, New York Mets topped Montreal Expos 5-2 despite the loss of hitting star Cleon Jones after a fifth-inning brawl, Chicago Cubs mauled Philadelphia Phillies 9-5; Pittsburgh Pirates trimmed St. Louis 4-1 and Houston Astros downed Cincinnati Reds 7-4.

Jones, who took a .346 batting average into the Mets' game at Montreal, shattled Expos catcher Ron Brand after being thrown out at the plate in the fifth, when the York scored twice for a 3-2 lead.

After the ensuing melee, which drew players from both benches into a shoving, punching exchange, Jones was ejected from the game.

The Braves trailed San Diego 2-0 in the opener when Orlando Cepeda launched the fourth with a double. A walk, a ground out and Bob Didier's two-run single highlighted the game. Singles by pitcher Ron Reed and Felipe Alou then filled the bases, setting the stage for Gonzales' second career slam.

In the second game, Gonzalez' two-run shot keyed a three-run Atlanta rally in the fourth inning. Larry Stahl's second homer of the doubleheader pulled the Padres' score 3-3 in the sixth but the Braves broke through with three in the eighth, Felix Millan's single knocking in the go-ahead run.

Ernie Banks socked a three-run homer in the fifth inning as Philadelphia, then singled home the tie-breaking run in the seventh, leading the Cubs past the Phillies, who have lost seven in a row.

Roberto Clemente ripped a two-run homer off Bob Gibson as the Pirates snapped St. Louis' winning string at four games. The Cards have dropped only four of their last 16 starts, with Gibson, 11-8, the loser three times.

Joe Morgan's squeeze, bunt delivered the lead run in a four-run ninth inning surprise that brought Houston from behind at Cincinnati. Lee May hit his 28th homer and Tony Perez smacked his 22nd as the Reds scored all their runs in the first inning.

Safe Boating Requires Common Sense

By STAN DAVIES

It must be apparent to anyone who seriously tries to be a safe boater that the techniques of safe boat handling are not spelled out in the rules and regulations of the boating laws. There's much more to it than that.

Actually safe boating lies in the observance of a lot of unwritten rules and customs which have developed over the years and are based mostly on common sense.

Here are just a few:

— Respect your boat. Give it thorough shakedown and know every one of its idiosyncrasies before you blast off.

— Keep a sharp look out. This is necessary not only for others you may be able to help but for your own safety.

— Watch your speed. Small craft such as canoes, skiffs, punts, prams and johnboats may be swamped by a heavy wake. Also moored boats may be chafed badly against a wharf. Every year you'll see more and more "Speed Limit 5 mph" signs.

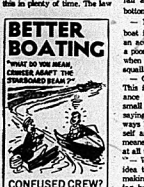
— Signal your intentions. Do this in plenty of time. The law sights. They could indicate someone in trouble.

— Never leave the tiller. That is, unless you have someone to take over. Leaving the wheel unattended could be construed as negligent operation, an offence.

— Stay clear of swimmers. Also skip clear of scuba divers, dredges, barges, scows or any other craft from which men may be working.

— Anchor carefully. Keep well away from other boats so that if your boat should swing on the anchor line there will be no danger of contact and damage.

— Learn skiers' signals. Not only is this necessary if you are going to pull water skiers yourself but if you operate in water frequented by skiers — and what water isn't — you can see what each is about to do.



— Protect water skiers This applies particularly to any that you might tow behind your boat. Don't take a skier into shallow water. He might fall and hit his head on the bottom with drastic results.

— Keep your engine and boat in good condition. Many an accident has resulted from a poor motor which went dead when trying to run from a squall.

— Change places carefully. This is of the utmost importance in moving around in a small boat. There is an old saying amongst sailors "always have one hand for yourself and one for the ship." It means hang on to something at all times.

— Watch turns. It's a good idea to cut the throttle when making a fast turn in a planing hull, particularly if you are alone. It's easy to get thrown out in a sharp turn and you can't catch an outboard by swimming.

All these unwritten rules are simply the application of the most basic common sense. And if common sense isn't the answer, try courtesy. Having consideration for the other fellow will make you a safe boater.

when up to you. Give the other guy a break.

— Investigate the unusual. This could be any odd sounds or unusual occurances or may require you to make certain vitals signals to others, but beware the question of

Delta Research Station Fights Threat Of Waterfowl Eradication

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man. (CP) — The Delta waterfowl research station is for the birds.

That isn't meant in a derogatory sense—it's just a fact.

The station, about 60 miles west of Winnipeg on the marshy southern shore of Lake Manitoba, is the working place of a number of researchers bent on winning a eradication of North American waterfowl.

Dr. Albert Hochbaum, station director for 30 years, said in an interview that biologists and naturalists around the world need no introduction to the station. But Manitobans themselves, he said, are a little blase about it.

They fail to recognize the marshes—shallow, reedy lakes and potholes—as the fine natural resources they are.

Dr. Hochbaum said Manitobans seem to regard a marsh as little more than a nuisance, whereas it is really an important breeding ground for a wide variety of natural life.

The Lake Manitoba marshes and the Minnedosa potholes farther west account for about 25 per cent of the waterfowl flying the Mississippi Flyway every year.

Besides studying a wide variety of factors affecting waterfowl populations, the station also contributes to the numbers bred yearly.

For instance, a mechanized hatchery puts out thousands of mallard chicks each year.

The eggs are taken from mallards trapped at the station and, once hatched, the ducklings are taken to underpopulated marshes and potholes in southwestern Manitoba where they will establish home ranges.

One of the things biologists have learned is that ducks migrate to and from the places where they learned to fly—not where they were hatched.

By stocking the ducklings, it is hoped many of the northern and middle states of the U.S. eventually could become duck breeding grounds.

Tests on what effects hot and cold temperatures have on egg hatching have shown that the ducklings hatched after being subjected to cold temperatures at certain stages are hardier than those incubated at a steady temperature.

It also appears that automation is unlikely to ever mother duck. About 60 to 65 per cent of eggs incubated 90 per cent survive under the natural process.

Other projects include the study of feeding habits and how these habits can work against waterfowl.

A major portion of the duck's diet consists of larvae of midges—which can be poison in years of drought.

When drought occurs, water levels drop and an algae forms on top of the marshes and potholes. A form of bacteria grows in the water, and is eaten by the midge larvae. While the larvae are unaffected by the bacteria, thousands of ducks die each year after eating the infected larvae.

Dr. Hochbaum said there are many pressures affecting populations of wild birds, and the rapidly increasing incidences of marsh drainage and clearance of land rank high on the list.

But even with the increased drainage, there still are not enough ducks to fill the potholes and marshes.

"Water is scarce—but ducks, for the moment, are scarcer."

After 15-minute Battle

Bay of Quinte Yields 16-lb. Muskie

STAFF — Who says there are no fish in the Bay of Quinte? Mrs. Alma Barks of Janlyn Cresc., Belleville, proved the theory to be more than a little erroneous when she hooked into a fine specimen of fighting muskellunge.

Using a worm harness with a dew worm as bait, Mrs. Barks and husband Arthur were in the Bay of Quinte just at the mouth of Hay Bay when the strike was made.

Mrs. Barks fought the fish as hard as she could to tire it and then turned the rod over to her husband who finished the battle. Once near the boat the wily muskie began to circle the boat in an attempt to regain his freedom but with little success.

Finally after 15 minutes of hard conflict the fish gave up the contest and was brought to the boat.

The prize was 41½ inches in length, 15½ inches in girth, and weighed 16 pounds on the scales.

Mrs. Barks has been fishing for the past three years and the muskie was her big gest catch. "I was so nervous I was almost sick," said Mrs. Barks when her husband took over the rod.

After landing her fish they continued to troll in the hope of more of the same luck that had brought her the 16 pounder. As luck would have it she hooked a bass.

But after she hauled in her second fish "lady luck" abandoned Mrs. Barks to seek out some other fisherman to reward for his efforts.

This One Didn't Get Away

Mrs. Alma Barks of Janlyn Crescent, Belleville, proudly displays the 16-pound muskie which she hooked on a recent fishing trip in the Bay of Quinte.

Trout Adapt to Environmental Change

LONDON (CP) — The trout, once an aristocrat of British fish, has become classless.

Plebeian anglers used to dream about the trout which sparkle in the swift chalk streams of Wiltshire, where only landed gentry and successful magnates can afford to lease the banks of those rivers.

Currently a 99-year lease for a stretch of one of the sought-after rivers can cost as much as £30,000.

But the daily demand for millions of gallons of fresh water by Britain's expanding cities has spawned new centres for this cunning fish where even the lowest-paid factory worker can hook fine fighters.

Several of the once-teeming trout rivers now trickle almost fish-free as their water is tapped at the source to fill huge reservoirs for the major industrial centres in the Midlands.

The trout, thought by some to be an exclusively running water breed in this country, has adapted surprisingly well to the calm conditions of man-made lakes.

Scottish and Irish lakes seeded with young trout have quickly produced prize-winning catches.

The flooded valleys and huge concrete bowls scattered through Britain's industrial heartland have also confounded the doubters.

Provided the water has a low acid content and a plentiful supply of food, both Britain's native brown trout and the immigrant rainbow thrive.

The rainbow, originally imported from North America 70 years ago, is considered inferior by some purists, but most anglers claim it is just as doughty a fighter as the brown and can display more spectacular tactics trying to shake the hook.

One of the first vast man-made lakes constructed after the Second World War at Eye Brook in Leicestershire silenced the cynics when it was opened for trout fishing.

Together with the latest reservoir at Grafham Water, Huntingdonshire, which was opened three years ago, there now is a clutch of lake fishing centres which have produced catches rivalling the best free-flowing rivers for the size and quality.

Before the war, an average river-caught brown trout weighed about 6½ pounds and a rainbow around five pounds. Today's adult lake-caught fish average anything between six to nine pounds, although the river trout still hold the weight record by a long way. The heaviest brown on record tipped the scales at 39 pounds.

During the first week of open fishing at Grafham Water in 1966, the reservoir yielded more than 350 fish, all to ordinary fishermen who paid just £1 for a day's sport. It can't have escaped the tweedy lords and hard-headed businessmen paying through the nose for a stretch of chalky river bank that their fish cost a lot more and don't look any better.

But then, casting an expensive line into an exclusive few yards of swift water beats an expanse of municipal lake for sheer snob value if nothing else.

Fish Get Lazy In Hot Weather

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fish, like humans, get lazy in hot weather.

Lake trout lie in the deep, cold water and are hard to find; speckled trout find the shelter of a cold-water spring; pickerel congregate and move little except when they get hungry, and pike chase minnows in the shade of the weed beds.

For the angler, it is necessary to know the habits of the fish. In the heat that is sweeping the province, the first thing an angler should know is that fishing when it is as hot as 90 degrees in the afternoon, is little less than ridiculous.

In other words, save your fishing and patience for the cool hours of dawn or the quiet of the sunset. That's when most fish feed, and when they feed, that's when you'll have success.

At this time of the year, it is also important to watch the surface of the water. Bass, speckled trout and whitefish are feeding on the many hatched flies.

In North Bay, a sign that pickerel fishing is improving is the millions of shadflies that invade the city at night and are so thick on some store windows that you can not see the merchandise behind.

The lands and forests department reports that fishing across the province depends a great deal on were and how you fish.

Here is the report from the department's Eastern area:

Tweed — Lake trout fair in Kamaniskeg. Wollaston and lakes in Miller Township. Speckled trout fair in small lakes and streams. Rainbow trout fair in Vance Lake. Pickerel good in Centennial, Baptiste, Paudash and Fraser most fish feed, and when they feed, that's when you'll have success.

Lakes and Head River. Bass good in Bideau and Trent rivers and bass waters throughout district. Muskellunge good in Baptiste and Stoco lakes, Panfish good throughout district.

Will Take Oath

HALIFAX (CP) — Bill Shakespeare, 16, of Halifax, this year's Nova Scotia tennis singles champion in the under 16 class, will take the oath on behalf of 2,400 athletes competing in the Canada Games here Aug. 15-25. Olympic canoeing competitor Chris Hook of Dartmouth, N.S., will carry the Games torch on the last one-mile leg of its journey into the stadium.

Lower handicap players may find this an easy guide for drawing or fading the ball. To fade, open your left foot. To hook, close it. By opening the foot, the swing becomes more upright causing the club to follow a more vertical plane. By closing the foot, the swing becomes flat and a more horizontal plane is achieved. The upright swing will fade the ball, the flat swing will draw.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D.; F.A.C.P.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: What a wonderful feeling it will be to have a normal temperature again. For two years I've been running a 100-degree reading every afternoon.

I feel achy, tired and run-down — and discouraged. My eyes are heavy and I often get the "shivers" as if I were getting the flu. No wonder I'm not strong enough to finish my ironing and cleaning.

I've been in the hospital twice for study. My doctor has given up. He says it is all due to overpressure. Yet, when I feel better for a few hours I do not complain. Does this sound like "nerves" to you?

— Mrs. B.

Comment: Like all other humans, doctors have special bang-ups. One of mine is never to tell a sick person, with a questionable diagnosis, that the reason is "nerves."

Another bang-up is not to surrender to the diagnosis "fever of undetermined origin" until I have exhausted every possible diagnostic area.

By your case, Mrs. B., I do not know what procedures you have gone through. Nevertheless, my first guess (and it is only a guess) is that it is not your nerves that are causing the fever, but that what's causing the fever is making you nervous. I recall many patients with fever of undetermined origin in whom it was difficult to make a diagnosis — and the fever at last burned itself out. But persistence often paid off.

For example, there was a girl in her early 20's who had low-grade daily fever for many months. She, too, was labeled a neurotic. Her symptoms filled into no particular disease pattern. All her X-ray, blood, urine, stool, etc. examinations were negative. But one day a special test for Brucellosis (Undulant fever) turned positive. In a few months her temperature was normal. And her "nerves" disappeared.

As your doctor has given up, Mrs. B., I am sure he will be willing to refer you to an internal or diagnostic clinic for further studies. Although some stubborn cases of daily fever resist diagnosis, the cause should be sought diligently — and the diagnosis of "nerves" let for the very last.

For Mrs. J.: I agree that postnasal drip can become a dreadful nuisance when it persists for week after week. If your nose specialist hasn't found that sinus trouble, polyps, deviated septum, etc., are responsible, I suggest a second opinion.

For example, the patient's voice may "fade away" after he talks awhile. Or, his eyelids may droop and he often complains of double vision. Patients usually complain of exhaustion. Although there is no specific cure we have drugs which bring great relief to patients.

Fever Lasting Two Years Deserves Close Attention

impulses to muscles because of some trouble in the chemical reaction when acetylcholine" is released. I know this sounds technical, but there it is.

Any muscles can be affected, but common ones are those of the face, eyes, and those of in talking and swallowing.

Backstage Meetings Not Able To End House Rules Deadlock

OTTAWA (CP) — Backstage meetings among party leaders in the Commons have thus far failed to find a way out of a deadlock on new rules. Debate on the rules issue resumes Monday.

Opposition parties remained united Friday in their determination to fight to the finish against one proposal that would allow the government to limit debating time on public bills. The government gave no indication it intends to back down either.

The stalemate is over a package of rule changes proposed by the House committee on procedure, and supported by the government.

The package contains three parts. Proposed rule 75A provides for debating limits where all four parties agree; 75B for limits when three of the four agree. The contentious one, 75C, would empower the government to act alone in allocating time where inter-party consultations have failed.

The House leaders met Thursday in an effort to reach a compromise but their talks proved inconclusive. They have agreed, however, to meet again Monday.

Beyond that, agreement was also reached that a special one-day debate should be held next week on, wheat. No definite date was set.

The opposition House leaders discussed the talks with their individual caucuses Friday morning and sources said all agreed to carry on with the rules debate.

In the Commons Friday, the opposition concentrated its arguments against Government House Leader Donald Macdonald with one Conservative MP charging he had distorted the positions taken by the other party representatives during the negotiations.

Heath Macquarrie (PC — Hillsborough) said Mr. Macdonald went on television after the Thursday meeting with "a total misrepresentation" of the positions.

He said he now had great anxiety about eventually reaching a compromise solution because of the attitude of the government House leader.

The debate was interrupted briefly Friday afternoon when all parties agreed to discussion of a motion to create a special joint Senate-Commons committee to study personal and corporate tax reform.

When the Commons resumed the rules debate, Ray Perrault (L — Burnaby-Seymour) proposed the opposition give the entire package a try.

"If there are any weaknesses . . . there is a government in Thursday meeting with enough courage to institute changes."

He said, however, that 75C should be agreed to and argued that if the opposition was reasonable, it might never be used.

Max Saltsman (NDP — Waterloo) said it was obvious that despite opposition willingness to try and work out a solution, the government was not willing to reciprocate.

He blamed Mr. Macdonald for the protracted debate and promised "those of us in the opposition are prepared to play here as long as it takes and as long as is necessary."

Walter Carter (PC — St. John's West) said the government and the prime minister were obsessed with constitutional theories and the rules issue had been brought in as a red herring.

"Canadians expect to be given the right to participate in the business of this nation," he said.

Most Senators on Tax Body Face Conflict of Interest

OTTAWA (CP) — Most of the senators named to a special parliamentary committee on personal and corporate income tax reform will face a conflict of interest because of the directorships they hold, Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo South) said in the Commons Friday.

A motion to form the committee, which will be made up of 20 elected MPs and 10 senators, was passed a few minutes later over the objections of the NDP.

The committee is being set up to deal with tax proposals to be made by the government in a forthcoming paper.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson said earlier Friday a number of others decisions are yet to be made and the paper is still being written.

Mrs. Saltsman gave a list of directorships, drawn from the Parliamentary Guide and the Financial Post, that the senators named to the committee hold. They included banking, finance, oil, mining, broadcasting and other businesses.

Mr. Saltsman said Senator Salter Hayden (L—Ontario), who probably will be co-chairman of the committee, is director of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Union Carbide Canada, Rio-Algom Mines Ltd., Atlantic Sugar Refineries Co. Ltd., Acadia Atlantic Sugar Refining Co. Ltd., United Steel Corp. Ltd., Parker Pen Co., Allied Towers Merchans, Scotts Restaurants, Capital Wire Cloth Ltd. and 11 other concerns.

Noting that one of the senators is a director of an oil company, Mr. Saltsman recalled that the Carter royal commission report on taxation caused an uproar by proposing that oil companies lose tax depletion allowances.

The Carter report recommended also an over-all approach to taxation to avoid the inconsistencies of the present system.

The Carter commission was appointed in 1962, under the late Kenneth Carter of Toronto, and its report was tabled in Parliament in February, 1967.

Ottawa senators on the committee with their directorships as listed by Mr. Saltsman:

Allister Grosart (PC): None listed.

John Laird (L): Western Ontario Broadcasting Corp., International Wire and Cable Ltd., Liquid Glaze of Canada Ltd.

D'Arcy Leonard (L): Canada Permanent Trust Co., Toronto and London Investment Co. Ltd., Canada Permanent Mortgage Corp., Consumers Gas, and several others.

Election Officials Guilty

TORONTO (CP) — Five Toronto returning officers in the 1967 provincial election Friday pleaded guilty to fraud charges and were remanded to July 29 for sentencing.

Marlen Toplin, returning officer for Parkdale, admitted defrauding the government of $366.

Mona Creah pleaded guilty to padding her expense account by $1,307 when she was returning officer for Beaches-Woodbine.

Erica Arkler, returning officer for Bellwoods, admitted defrauding the government of $564.

The returning officer for York, Norman Cheeseman, pleaded guilty to defrauding the government of $1,138.

Grace DeGuere, returning officer for York Mills, admitted defrauding the government of $224.

Quebec's Finance Minister, Dozois, Takes Hydro Job

QUEBEC (CP) — Paul Dozois ended a 25-year political career Friday when he resigned as Quebec's finance minister and Union Nationale member of the national assembly for Montreal St. Jacques.

Mr. Dozois, who gave health reasons for his resignation, will take on a new job Aug. 1 as a commissioner of Hydro-Quebec, the electric utility.

He fills the post left vacant by Roland Giroux, Hydro-Quebec's chairman, who died following the death last September of premier Daniel Johnson.

Mr. Dozois, a former insurance broker began his political career as a member of Montreal city council and served on the city executive committee for 12 years.

He became well-known early in his career when he got approval for Montreal's first major slum clearance project, Les Habitations Jeanne Mance.

When he entered provincial politics in 1956 under premier Maurice Duplessis, he was named to the municipal affairs portfolio.

He became the Union Nationale financial critic when the Liberals came to power in 1960 and was made finance minister when the Union Nationale again took over in 1966.

Mr. Dozois was highly influential with premiers Duplessis, Paul Sauve and Johnson as well as Mr. Bertrand.

His resignation creates a third vacancy in the 108-seat house and reduces the Union Nationale holdings to 54 seats, with 48 Liberals and three independents.

The two other vacancies were created by the resignations of Yves Gabias (UN—Trois Rivieres), former minister of financial institutions, and Paul Frenchiere, (UN—Hundred Soulanges), former education minister.

Premier Bertrand said the three vacancies will be filled in fall bylelections, but there will be no general election until next year at least.

Bricklayers Will Receive $6.71 Per Hour

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto's 900 bricklayers in commercial construction will vote on a tentative agreement Sunday which would give them a $1.93 hourly increase in wages and fringe benefits in a two-year contract.

If the terms between Local 2 of the Bricklayers and Stonemasons Association and the Toronto Construction Association get ratification by workers, bricklayers will return to work next week.

Under terms of the new agreement, wages would be immediately increased to $5 from $4.35 an hour and to $5.35 an hour Jan. 1, 1970. Eventual wages and fringe benefits under the agreement would total $6.71 an hour.

'I Am Wiser' Trudeau Says After Bull Sessions With Farmers

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — "I am wiser," Prime Minister Trudeau said this week after a bull session with western farmers.

This increased wisdom may rebound in favor of the Prairie wheat farmer, but just how isn't yet known.

"I realize you need dough, the prime minister said during the latter stages of his week's western tour which ended here today.

For four days, farmers and farm organizations drilled into the prime minister their recommendations that the Prairie economy needs an injection of federal funds.

About $250,000,000 worth, they suggested.

After some resistance, Mr. Trudeau agreed that some cash transfusion is needed to compensate farmers for sinking wheat sales and prices.

But how to administer the transfusion, that is the question.

Mr. Trudeau rejected out-of-hand acreage payments, a plan implemented by Ottawa in 1957.

Western farmers are asking the federal government to grant them acreage payments of up to $2,000 a farmer.

But Mr. Trudeau said he would never have the nerve to explain to poor Canadians such payments because they would go to rich farmers as well as those in real need.

Neither did the prime minister think much of the idea of two-price wheat—an export price and a domestic price $1 a bushel higher.

His aides said such a system would drive up the price of bread in Canada by between two and five cents a loaf.

The farmers reply was: Why not?

They claimed the farmer is low man on the economic totem pole and that he is selling his wheat at a price far under his production cost.

The farmers obviously are angry. Some of them put on demonstrations at Regina and Saskatoon to push their proposals.

The prime minister did not appreciate the demonstrations.

He addressed both but told the second he would never do so again if the demonstrators displayed signs he considered insulting.

Mr. Trudeau said he didn't learn much from the demonstrations.

But he did learn a good deal, by his own account, from private meetings.

He chewed the fat with farmers in livingrooms and backyards from Beausejour, Man., to Taber, Alta.

In the shirt-sleeve conversations, the talk got down to specifics—income, taxes, mortgages, prices, costs of production, the lot.

It was through these relaxed but probing conversations that Mr. Trudeau got the real drift of what the Prairies were talking about.

He got a keen insight into what always bothers the western farmer: a return to the 1930s and the grasshoppers, drought, rust, sawflies, weeds, dust—in short, disaster.

Though he may have a big capital investment, the farmer, because of slow wheat sales, cannot raise the cash to pay the grocer and garage operator.

Mr. Trudeau began his Prairie tour by saying he didn't see how the government could single out the western farmer for special treatment.

But by the end of the week, he was saying the farmers had a good point; some cash input into the Prairie economy was needed.

But how this would be done remained to be decided.

Many A Wheat Grower Worth $100,000 Is Broke

By FRED CHAFE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Prime Minister Trudeau sits across a table from troubled prairie farm leaders and asks how he could explain to the rest of the country a government handout to a person worth $100,000 or more.

He could have asked a tougher one.

How can a farmer worth $100,000-or $150,000 or more—be broke and in debt?

Many are. It happened in the space of a couple of years as the wheat boom of the early 1920s turned to a bust when world supply outstripped demand, and the prairie farmers' fortunes ride on wheat.

Although there had been some voices warning of trouble ahead, the collapse generally led to surprise coupled with disillusionment and bitterness.

The bitterness showed through in some of the placards and jeers tossed at the prime minister this week as he met with government and agricultural leaders to discuss how to cope with the effects of falling markets and falling prices.

He, and other members of his government, have held out little hope that the market situation will improve, to the extreme centre on what, if anything, can be done federally to help farmers over their present crisis.

As the experts talk, the farmer expresses his problem in simple mathematics.

He can sell only half of what he grew. And what he can sell, prices have dropped more than 15 cents a bushel in the last year—a slide that has taken his profit with it. The bottom has not yet been reached.

The wheat boom began in 1963 when the drought-stricken Soviet Union entered the Canadian market and pushed exports for the 1963-64 crop year to 537,000,000 bushels.

Then came wheat-hungry China, and in 1965-66 exports hit 546,000,000 bushels. The following year the figure was down to a still-healthy 483,000,000 and by 1968 the Canadian government was talking in terms of an annual export goal stabilized around 400,000,000 bushels.

The goal wasn't achieved and the boom years closed on the 1967-68 crop year ending July 31 at 334,000,000 bushels.

As of July 8, latest date for which board of grain commissioners statistics are available, exports for the current year stood at only 280,700,000 bushels, and it seems almost certain that by the end of the month the figure will be well short of 300,000,000—the first time this has happened since 1959-60.

Prairie crops, meantime, have remained high. In the harvest season of 1966, farmers took a record 807,000,000 bushels off their fields, and in 1967 had a well-above-average 650,000,000 bushels.

It likely will be lower this fall because of reduced acreage. But barring an unexpected upturn in exports, and in the face of domestic demand which has been constant at around 150,000,000 bushels annually, it will be more than the marketplace can accept.

The unsold wheat becomes "carryover" in trade terms—in effect a surplus. Grain officials are predicting a record carryover of around 850,000,000 bushels this year, almost half of it stored on farms.

Under the pressure of supply and demand, prices have followed the same slippery slope as exports.

The Canadian wheat board's Lakehead price for No. 1 northern was $2.13 in December, 1966. It stabilized at just under $2 a year ago when a new International Grains Arrangement came into effect with a minimum of $1.85½—a floor which farmer spokesmen claim was unrealistically high in view of market realities.

Sure enough, cracks appeared in the grains arrangement and prices fell almost immediately.

Friday, the U.S. announced a 12-cent cut. Canadian prices, at $1.80¾ at the time of the U.S. announcement, probably will show the effect on Monday.

Lakehead figures, however, do not represent the net return to the farmer who also pays for elevator and freight costs. His actual return for the 1967-68 crop year ranged from $1.81 for premium-grade No. 1 northern to $1.71 for No. 4.

That was down 15 to 18 cents from the previous year, and takes no mathematician to figure what happens to a farmer's financial condition when the return of his primary product keeps dropping while living and production costs rise.

Add to that the fact some perhaps half his crops, on which he is counting to cover his production costs and turn a profit, is not marketable and the result is a crisis that farm leaders warn can lead to mass bankruptcy.

Stock Markets Remain On Their Slumping Path

By NICK FERRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The continuing saga of Canadian stock markets . . . well, continued this week.

Markets plunged lower Monday and Tuesday, then staged a one-day rally Wednesday before continuing down Thursday and Friday.

Ironically, Wednesday's rally followed an increase in the Bank of Canada's bank rate to a record eight per cent from 7½.

A contributing factor in the markets' June-July slump has been tight money caused by rising interest rates. The last central-bank increase June 11 was followed by what was at the time the sharpest one-day plunge in Canadian stock market history.

Perhaps investors Wednesday took some consolation in a statement by Louis Rasminsky, Bank of Canada governor, that the primary reason for the action was to stop the outflow of Canadian dollars seeking higher foreign interest rates on term deposits.

Possibly they simply were saturated—for the moment—with continuing talk of a credit crunch.

There also were those who thought markets might snap out on any major news—good or bad.

There still appears no sign of a break in the slump.

Markets have fallen by about 13 per cent since the beginning of June, dropping 21 of the 34 trading days in that period.

And volume continues to shrivel up, emphasizing investors' lack of confidence in markets and their preference to remain on the sidelines.

This week's volume was the lightest of any this year.

Only renewed investor confidence can prevent markets from falling even further.

Statistically, on index at Toronto, industrials lost 2.70 to 172.27, golds 6.77 to 222.12, base metals 1.63 to 104.07 and western oils 3.76 to 345.95. Volume was 9,868,000 shares compared with 10,947,000 last week. Losses outnumbered gains 836 to 221.

THE BETTER HALF — By Bob Barnes

Bitter Don Juan of Bourbon Renounces Claim to Throne

LISBON (AP) — With a statement bitterly critical of General Francisco Franco, Don Juan de Bourbon gave up his claim to the Spanish throne today. Franco is expected to designate Don Juan's son, Prince Juan Carlos, as the next king of Spain on Tuesday.

Don Juan—dynastic head of the Bourbon family, count of Barcelone, and son of the last king of Spain, Alfonso XIII—said Franco's decision to pass over him in favor of his son was contrary to "the freely expressed will of the Spanish people."

He described the law that made it possible as "contrary to the historic traditions of the Spanish fatherland."

The 1947 Act of Succession gave Franco, as both president and head of state, the right to nominate the future king and override his nomination at any time. The person he selects must be approved by the Cortes, the country's parliament. That approval is expected to come immediately after he formally announces Juan Carlos' name as his nomination Tuesday.

Franco's nominee must be at least 30 years old, of royal blood, a Roman Catholic and must swear allegiance to the National movement, Spain's only legal political organization.

The new king probably will not be crowned until the death of the 76-year-old Franco, when the Cortes will be called into session to enthrone the king.

Don Juan, 56, had insisted for years that he should be named his successful father, then abdicate in favor of Juan Carlos. But Franco never abandoned his plan to bypass the natural succession and name a new king. Twenty years ago, he won Don Juan's agreement to have the young prince educated in Spain. Since then, Juan Carlos has been groomed to take over the monarchy.

Don Juan lives in voluntary exile at the Portuguese seaside resort of Estoril. He often has praised Juan Carlos as a model son, and it was reported Friday that the prince called him several times before his decision to step aside was announced.

Bold New Approach Is Urged In Managing Water Resources

WINNIPEG (CP) — Otto Lang, minister without portfolio, called Friday for "a bold new approach to water management" based on new government structures and new legislation "to put an end to the buck-passing between overlapping agencies and jurisdictions."

Addressing the Canadian Water Resources Association, Mr. Lang, who has special resources, said wise and realistic management of water resources necessitates careful examination of how they are to be used.

Uniform standards of water quality for the whole country were not practical.

"Does anyone really believe that we should set the same standards for Toronto Harbor as for a trout stream in the Rockies?"

Water used for drinking may be suitable for industrial purposes or for generating power or for watering lawns and crops, he said.

Planning the use of water resources must be comprehensive, providing for all the different uses of water.

In addition, the planning must be in broad geographical terms, covering whole river basins or even groups of river basins.

Mr. Lang said water resources belong to the provinces but the federal government has jurisdiction also in regulating them.

The proposed Canada Water Act would recognize this divided jurisdiction and seek to establish closer federal-provincial co-operation.

Atlantic Dump Abandoned

21,000 Nerve Gas Bombs Will Be Detoxified Inland

WASHINGTON (CP) — More than 21,000 army nerve gas bombs which were to have been hauled across the country and dumped in the Atlantic ocean will be disposed of in Colorado by keeping with recommendations from a group of scientists.

The army announced Friday it would "disassemble and detoxify" the cluster bombs containing liquid nerve gas at the Rocky Mountain Arsenal near Denver where they now are stored.

Officials said about 2,000 tons of the obsolete gas would be poured into a large, sealed, underground storage area which already contains residue of chemical warfare agents.

About 4,000 tons of less-deadly mustard gas is to be burned at the arsenal, the army says.

A National Academy of Science's committee made the recommendation June 25 on how the army should dispose of the obsolete weapons.

The army said it will take 18 to 30 months to carry out "demilitarization" of the bombs.

Still undecided is how the army will get rid of another large supply of nerve gas weapons stored in Utah.

The chemicals are part of 27,000 tons of obsolete bombs the army had planned to haul by train to the East Coast, where they were to be placed on ships and the ships to be sunk in the Atlantic Ocean. The army suspended the plan after congressional inquiries.

Meanwhile, the continuing attack on U.S. gas and germ warfare developments is fuelled Friday by reports there had been an accident July 8 involving nerve gas on Okinawa.

Lower Says Canada Betraying Its Allies

TORONTO (CP) — A prominent Canadian historian said Friday that the country's reduction in its commitment to NATO amounts to "betraying our friends and allies."

A. R. M. Lower, history professor at Queen's University, Kingston, and former president of the Royal Society of Canada, said in a letter to the editor of The Telegram the presence of Canadian troops in Europe ensures the support of other European countries in case of attack by the Soviet Union.

Criticizing Prime Minister Trudeau, he said that if the prime minister "knew European history . . . he would know something about the nature of empire and the course of Russian expansion."

He said Canada's commitment to NATO is important because "we have to face . . . Russian power."

Prof. Lower said that Russia's hinterland is being fed 600 years was one of expansion, culminated by last year's takeover of Czechoslovakia.

Under Peter the Great, he said, Russia expanded to the Baltic Sea and under Catherine the Great, she reached the Black Sea.

"This glacier-like expansion, unless it can be checked, may well bring Russia to the Atlantic, incorporate Scandinavia, Holland, Belgium and even Germany," he said.

Moon Heroes On Way Home

Lunar Soil Looks Moist

HOUSTON (AP) — The Apollo astronauts The Apollo astronauts struck paydirt in their prospecting on the moon.

Their luck especially was in finding a great variety of different rocks, which could tell much about the moon's age and origin.

They saw a curious purple rock and perhaps put it in one of the two treasure chests they are bringing home.

And they cored out a five-inch deep sample of lunar soil that "looks moist," a suggestion there might be water and so perhaps microscopic life beneath the moon's surface. But the moist, dark appearance could simply be from tight packing of fine particles of material, cautioned David McKay, geologist of the Manned Spacecraft Centre.

They found the crust of the moon much harder than numerous geologists and astronomers expected they would. It took work to dig out two core samples.

They found rocks that look like basalt, born of volcanoes, and rocks resembling biotite, a dark colored mica that usually contains two to four per cent water. They found the surface dusty, getting their boots coated coca brown with it.

JODRELL BANK, England (AP) — The Soviet Union landed its unmanned Luna XV satellite on the moon today just as the American Apollo 11 astronauts prepared to take off, Jodrell Bank Observatory reported.

Amid Triumph One Failure

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Scientists at Lick Observatory atop nearby Mount Hamilton tried unsuccessfully Sunday to bounce a ruby laser beam off a reflector placed on the moon's surface by the Apollo 11 astronauts.

Joseph Miller, assistant astronomer, said wrong coordinates from Houston's Space Centre caused the laser beam to be beamed 50 miles away from the reflector.

BULLETIN

HOUSTON (CP) — Apollo 11 astronauts Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. blasted off safely from the moon and into lunar orbit today, beginning the complex manoeuvres to link up with their mother ship.

HOUSTON (CP) — Two Americans who explored the moon's surface for the first time started preparations today for the perilous blastoff for the long journey home to earth.

It will be a suspenseful moment. Never before has a rocket lifted anything off the moon.

Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. awoke at Tranquillity Base on the moon and plunged into systems checks on the lander and engine on which, again, they will stake their lives. The bottom section of the craft, with the four landing legs, will serve as a launch pad and will be left on the moon when they fire the single engine that powers the cabin section of the ship called Eagle.

The firing, scheduled to last more than seven minutes, was set for 1.54 p.m. EDT.

Mission control awakened the moonmen shortly after 11 a.m. following a six-hour rest period. Instruments which monitored Armstrong during the night indicated he slept fitfully. There is only set of biomedical instruments in the cabin so Aldrin was not monitored.

Sleeping in the cramped quarters of the LM is difficult and Aldrin reported: "Neil has been lying on the engine cover and I curled up on the floor."

Checking of systems and switch settings for the critical liftoff was the No. 1 priority after wakeup.

Armstrong, the first man to set foot on moondust, and Aldrin had treated the earth to a spectacular televised showing of their moon walk hours before.

Canadians Enthralled By Leap Into Space

They drank moon juice in Toronto and lessened their liquor intake in Montreal.

Most of them cheered, but a few of them booed.

Some called it man's greatest adventure, others said it was a waste of money.

But millions of Canadians were glued to television sets at 10:56 p.m. EDT Sunday when Neil Armstrong became the first man to set foot on the moon.

Newfoundland declared today a holiday.

The Belleville Intelligencer, an afternoon newspaper, put out a special morning edition at 8 a.m., its first since 1834.

For other stories of man's first visit to the surface of the moon, see Pages 2, 3, 8, 13, 16 and 22.

Yorkville hippies' from Toronto's coffee-house district, meanwhile staged an outdoor ceremony to celebrate the end of the "virginity of the moon."

At Montreal, the downtown area was unusually quiet as residents stayed home to watch the landing and the walk.

Bars reported less business than usual for a Sunday night and blamed the moon landing.

While there was no official viewing spot in downtown Montreal, nearly 80,000 persons crowded through the grounds of Man and his World and watched the event on a huge screen at the French Pavilion.

Said Carlos Lopes, assistant manager of the Queen Elizabeth Hotel: "I haven't seen our lobby so empty for a long, long time."

In Toronto, where an official downtown celebration was held to mark the event, some 35,000 people crowded in front of city hall to watch man's first step on the moon on a 30-by-40-foot TV screen.

An additional 16 normal-size TV sets were set up among the crowd for the event.

Mini-skirted girls pushed themselves through the crowd handed out soft drinks which they called moon juice and sprinkled confetti which they referred to as moon dust.

While most Canadians were enthusiastic about the landing, one person in Montreal kept his back to the TV screen in a bar because he had "other problems to think about."

"The cops are looking for me," he said.

Two other men in Montreal questioned the wisdom of having spent $24,000,000,000 to put man on the moon.

Said Glenn Bradley, an entertainer from Detroit: "Emotionally, the moon landing is an escape. . . Let's correct things down here."

Austin Wyse of Montreal said man now will "probably put slums on the moon."

Lucien Coallier, an enthusiastic amateur astronomer from Laval, Que., claimed he saw the shadow of the lunar module through a telescope, although officials at Houston had earlier said it is impossible to see any spacecraft at that distance.

Tabloid Section Tells Moon Story

Today's edition of The Intelligencer includes an eight-page tabloid section on the moon landing. This supplement was originally published at eight o'clock this morning and distributed free in the downtown area as a goodwill gesture. It marked the first time in the 135-year history of The Intelligencer that a morning edition had been printed.

Because of the demand for the supplement which had built by noon, it was decided to run the pages as part of today's regular edition. As some of the tabloid copy had already been enmarked to run in the regular edition, it meant that there would be some duplication of stories. However, it was felt readers would rather have the souvenir issue intact than have the stories replaced by other news copy. Readers will have to slit the tabloid pages as this was impossible to do during the folding of the newspaper on printing.

Divers Probe West Lake

PICTON (Staff)—Two Belleville divers are still searching this morning for the body of a Scarborough man who is believed to have drowned in West Lake Sunday afternoon.

Police believe that Joseph Varkas, 40, drowned when he fell from his boat Sunday afternoon at 3:50 p.m. in the resort lake.

Mr. Varkas was vacationing at the time of the mishap.

According to police, he was accompanied at the time of the accident by his six-year-old nephew who managed to bring the boat to a halt.

Police were unable to say this morning if other relatives were vacationing with Mr. Varkas.

Divers are continuing their search this morning for the body, after looking for hours last night.

Breakin Suspect Charged

A Hamilton man has been charged with break and enter and theft and a warrant is expected to be issued for a second person following an incident at Pringle and Cooper at 345 Coleman Street.

Charged is Roelbd William Ebert, 32, of Hamilton.

According to police, constables found two saddles behind the establishment, valued at $385 this weekend.

Luck--?--of the Irish

Plaque unveiled at Marmora Sunday commemorates ill-starred ambition of unlucky Irish immigrants Charles Hayes to start one of Canada's first foundries. Venture failed—but helped open up countryside to settlement. Key honor—actual unveiling—went to Marmora's oldest resident, 92-year-old E. D. O'Connor.

Luck of the Irish Paid Off for Marmora

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

MARMORA — They saluted the luck of the Irish here yesterday.

And Charles Hayes, Irishman that he was, probably would have had a black chuckle about it.

For his luck was bad — for him.

But his misfortune turned out one of the better things that happened hereabouts.

Yesterday's events at the Legion Park here saw the unveiling of a provincial government plaque marking one of the first iron foundries in Ontario.

The project was the brainchild of Charles Hayes, an Irish immigrant who launched the smelter in what then was rough bush country.

By 1854, he was out of business, assigning the smelter to creditors.

Various attempts to revitalize Hayes' inspiration were fruitless—for commercial profit.

As an investment in community settlement, however, the ill-starred venture was invaluable.

For the project, through its various failures, created a n d attracted settlement to the area.

It was, as professor S. F. Wise, of the Historic S i t e s Board told the ceremony's spectators, "an important milestone in the history of mining technology of this province and in the economic history of the village and region."

Hayes hoped to draw on iron ore from a deposit near what is now the hamlet of Blairton, west of here.

Actually, the mine itself had a less-chequered career, its last productive period being 1895-73. The Irishman's foundry had long since grown cold. But between various attempts to revive and the need to improve transportation for both its product and shipments from the mine — the area saw a pioneering breakthrough.

"The very struggle to provide adequate transportation roads made a contribution to the settlement of these localities," Hastings County warden Donald Rodgers noted.

Hence, the plaque to t h e Irishman's failure "records past sacrifices and our present affluence," said Warden Rodgers.

Marmora r e e v e William Shannon emphasized the point.

The Ontario government, he said, was justified in marking the spot where "the pioneers came into the woods here and toiled so desperately hard."

Ironically, the village economy today thrives on the element that eluded Hayes — success linked to iron ore.

Major contributor to local economy and that of county — now is big Bethlehem Steel subsidiary, Marmoroton Mining Company, in o p e r ation since 1953.

Treated at the scene was Wendall Gary Ashe, 18, of RR 2, Brealau.

A Scarborough girl suffered lacerations and bruises when the car she was driving went out of control on highway 37 just south of Thomasburg Saturday night.

Deborah Lesley Young, 19, was treated at Belleville General hospital and then released following the 8:32 mishap.

Damage figures were unavailable, but police conceded that they were extensive.

A Madoc man sustained lacerations to his head Sunday afternoon when his vehicle came into collision with a fence just west of Tweed.

Carman Peter Donato was also taken to Belleville General Hospital where he was treated and released.

Damage to the car was estimated at $2,000 and to the fence at $20.

Donato is to appear in court to answer to his head Sunday afternoon.

Two Marmora vacationers escaped with bumps and bruises when their vehicles came into collision in Marmora Sunday night.

Drivers were Francis Ray Deline, 19, of Marmora a n d William Deans, 25, of RR2, Parti. Damage to the car and a half-ton truck was estimated at $1,900.

Squirrels Concern Police

Police chief Douglas Crosbie has issued a warning to persons in Belleville, and in particular, the Grier Street area following a series of squirrel poisonings.

Mr. Crosbie advised caution on the behalf of children after he received reports from Howard Gardiner, a local Humane Society official, of three squirrels discovered poisoned.

Police are concerned for the safety of children if poisoned material should fall into their hands.

Rollins Says No To Regional Gov't

MARMORA — Clarke Rollins, MPP Hastings, here yesterday publicly announced himself against regional government.

Mr. Rollins emphasized his stand during unveiling of a plaque commemorating ore of Ontario's first iron foundries here.

"I am not in favor of regional government," he blunt ly told a crowd of 200 assembled for the event at Marmora Legion Park.

While he desired was municipal governments — both urban and county — "working together on a voluntary basis, and certainly not to be directed," said the MPP.

"As long as I am your member, unless county council directs otherwise, I will oppose any and all types of regional government or any operation that will interfere with the operation . . . of the county government," affirmed Mr. R o l l ins.

Couple Hurt

PICTON (Staff) — A Consecon man and his wife were taken to Prince Edward Memorial Hospital yesterday afternoon following a two-car collision near Wellington.

Police said this morning the accident occurred on the Sandy Hollow Road north of Wellington and that Mr. and Mrs. Earl Goodmarsby of R.R. 1, Consecon were treated and released at the hospital.

Driver of the other car was Hugh Robert Gardiner, 50, of Toronto. He was uninjured.

Cut Ends Flight

Belleville General Hospital officials became suspicious early today when a teenager, seeking emergency treatment for a gashed hand, answered questions vaguely.

They called police and detectives later reported the 14-year-old Toronto youth escaped earlier this week from Bowmanville training school.

Police said the youth c u t himself while breaking a window of a Charles St. home, then had to seek out the hospital for treatment.

The youth was returned to Bowmanville today.

Murky Fire

Firefighter is silhouetted against gap azed in wall of Charles Street shed as he fights blaze in murky interior. Fire, which spread to adjoining garage on Victoria Avenue, was put down with little damage.

Home for Church

Young Belleville musician, John Hutchinson at the keyboard of the organ at St. Columba Presbyterian Church, John comes from Toronto each weekend to play the organ for Sunday service.

Travels 200 Miles Weekly To Keep Choir in Tune

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

A round trip of more than 200 miles each weekend to play a church organ may not be everyone's cup of tea, but that is the kind of dedication which augurs well for the future of a young Belleville musician.

Each weekend 19-year-old John Hutchinson travels from his job in Toronto to fill his role as organist at St. Columba Presbyterian Church in Belleville.

Then its back to Toronto for another stint at his summer job as security officer for an area plant.

But a career in music is the ultimate goal of the young Belleville man who this fall hopes to enrol at Western University in London to continue his studies.

Always a music lover but describing himself as being "serious" only for the past five years, John received his first instruction from his grandmother, Mrs. T. F. Townsend.

He completed his Grade 13 schooling a year ago and this year has taken a break from regular classes to continue local studies in music.

In recent examinations he received first class honors in Grade III history and in Grade III harmony. He took honors in Grade IV history and also achieved his Grade IX piano.

His local teachers during the past year included his grandmother who admits to being a music teacher for "more than 50 years," Mrs. Emily Veley, William Andreyo of Albert College, Mrs. Hubbs and Alec Gordon.

But John credits his grandmother for giving him his first interest in music.

John is the son of Mrs. Wm. E. Potts of 71 Hastings Drive. His grandmother, Mrs. Townsend is the wife of the late Rev. Townsend, who at the time of his death two years ago was acting as visitation minister at Holloway Street United Church.

Colborne Boy Did Feat of Own

TRENTON — While the three American astronauts circled the moon and prepared for the first man to land on it a RR2, Colborne youth performed a remarkable feat of his own.

During the weekend J o h n Dunk, 13, managed to stay with his father's tractor when it went out of control and plunged into a steep ditch on the Little Lake road west of Brighton.

The youngster clung to the steering wheel with both hands as the machine rolled through one complete revolution and came to rest in the upright position on all four wheels!

That the boy came through the experience with a shoulder and arm injury not considered serious still has the OPP investigating officer at Brighton wondering.

Meanwhile the Dunk youth is under observation in the pediatric ward of the Trenton Memorial hospital.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dunk of RR2, Colborne.

Six other accidents involving motor vehicles in the Brighton area during the weekend caused a total of $2,500 in property damage, police reported. None of the drivers or passengers received serious injuries.

Now Julius Bedore Has Seen Everything!

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Suddenly, he's in the Moon Age
In the lunar man made a footprint on, the heavens.
And he's not batting an eye.
But Julius Bedore can take it in his earthbound stride, not needing to move from his close environment to be filled with a sense of wonderment.
He's 101, resident at the Hastings County Manor home for the aged and elderly — and one of Canada's oldest citizens.
He's strayed little beyond the confines of Hastings and his home town of Marmora.
But he can still appreciate the breadth of his fellow man's newest achievement.
Man's moon touch is "one of the most wonderful things that ever happened on this win's Origin of the Species, published just nine years earlier.

Charles Dickens was still to begin his last novel — Edwin Drood in 1870.
Richard Wagner was rehearsing the premiere of Die Meistersinger; Tchaikowsy had yet to make his mark; the dramatist
Tchekhov was an eight-year-old;
Gilbert and Sullivan had yet to be introduced.
The British Empire hadn't even reached its zenith — Gordon of Khartoum wasn't until 1885.
Winston Churchill wasn't born for another six years.
The West had yet to be settled.
But the era was burgeoning with discovery — on the verge of the great communications breakthrough culminated by today's lunar feat.

Julius remembers each facet as it made its startling discovery, then became a social appliance.
THE TELEPHONE: (In 1875
Alexander Grahams Bell culminated a series of experiments by transmitting the human voice)
"Good Lord! Right in your own house. You could sit and talk to your neighbor through a bit of wire."
RADIO: (Marconi astounded the world in 1901 by sending a wireless signal across the Atlantic to Newfoundland. In the early 1920s radio was thriving.)
"Music. Right from far away.
It was beautiful to hear."
ELECTRICITY: (Thomas Edison found a commercial application with the electric light bulb.)
"Electric light? I remember when the first light came on in our part. I thought it was a wonderful thing. And say — it was!"

THE AUTOMOBILE (Henry
Ford pioneered mass production, making the internal combustion engine a fact of everyday life in the early 1900s.)
"The first car I ever saw was a little Ford — just like one of the little old-fashioned buggies.
A man by the name of Tom English, he drove it into Marmora on a Saturday and we all went down to see it. A surprise? Oh, wasn't it! To see it running up and down the street there . . .
AIRCRAFT (the Wrights constructed a biplane at Kittyhawk in 1903. A success, it got man off the ground for the first time under his own direction)
"The first airplane I ever saw flying I thought was a tremendous thing. To see that great big machine up in the air — and nothing to hold it up . . ."

So much scientific evolution was infectious — even in the rural settlements.
"When I was a young lad," recalls Julius, "I used to hear the old people talk that we would see all these things in time. That you'd see traffic flying through the air and cars on the road without horses. Sure enough, it happened."
But as for the magnitude of Apollo 11?
"Oh ho," says Julius. "I never dreamt I'd see it."
Julius was only five years old when an increasingly popular
French novelist — Jules Verne — published his latest romance.
It's title: "From the Earth to the Moon, direct in 97 hours, 20 minutes and a Trip Around It."

MOON WALK TO BE OMEGA TIMED

SPACE CENTRE, HOUSTON TEXAS. First man on the moon Neil Armstrong's every move-ment for 2 hours and 40 minutes of that silent surface is well re-hearsed, and timed to the se-cond.
To keep within that split-second timetable, Armstrong and his moon walking partner, Edwin E. Aldrin Jr., each will have an Omega Speed Master chronograph strapped to his left wrist. This precision watch is the only piece of equipment to be cer-tified on the moon that is exactly the same as you could buy at Ron Keel Jeweller in Belleville. Time is an important factor to the moon-walkers. Their oxygen supply, batteries for power, communication link to earth, all are restricted by time. Two hours and 40 minutes was the safe limit the astronauts them-selves and numerous engineers established after several years of planning and countless re-hearsals.
One such rehearsal took place a few weeks ago in a large warehouse at the Manned Space-craft Centre.
A full-scale lunar module sat in the middle of a man-made moonscape. Fine sand, small rocks, craters and a cosmos of l a r g e boulders surrounded three or four acres of terrain. The lunar scene was as authentic as man on earth could make it without having been on the sur-face.
Walking clumsily like some top-heavy mummy, Aldrin glanced frequently at the watch on his wrist. The bulky Apollo 11 space suit he was wearing hampered his movements slow and deliberate.
As he looked at time, Arm-strong lunar sand into a plastic bag, he looked again at his watch, making sure he was on schedule.
Meanwhile, the moon trip commander, Neil Armstrong, struggled awkwardly to erect an antenna. Also he paid close at-tention to the time on his Omega chronograph. The heavy back-packs carrying the life sustain-ing oxygen and communication equipment added to the extraord-inarily hard work. On the moon, the weight of Armstrong and God's name glorified."
Msgr. Sullivan also reminded his congregation to offer prayers for "all those who are hungry and find it hard to see the ad-vantage of putting a man on the moon when they can scarcely survive themselves."
In the countryside probably the most emphatic demonstra-tion of public feeling came at Marmora, where close to 200 people gathered in the village's Legion park to watch the un-veiling of an historic plaque to a local pioneer.
In the midst of introducing the public figures present at the time, William Shannon linked the his-toric tribute to the moon ven-ture and called for one minute's silence.
Then, Protestant and Catholic clergy led the crowd in the Lord's Prayer for "the success and safety of the three astron-auts."
Hastings County warden Don-ald Rodgers prefaced his speech by calling the lunar landing "a memorable day in the history of the world."
Professor S. F. Wise, of the Historic Sites Board of Ontario, philosophically summed up the significance of the local and universal occasion.
North America's pioneers at-tempted to break out of their surroundings by encountering a "very hard and hostile" environ-ment.
The astronauts symbolized the success of that conquest — "part of an historical process which has led man now to the moon."

At Christ Church Canon R. D. Wright called on parishioners to pray "for the astronauts them-selves as individuals — and also for their extension of our view of the universe and our place in it."
At Tabernacle United Church, in a combined service with Bridge Street United Church the congregation was urged to pray that the mission "might be safely completed . . . that it might both benefit mankind and bring greater glory to God."
At St. Michael's, the Rev. J. P. Sullivan asked Catholic parishioners to pray that the mission would mean "man's life would be enriched and God's name glorified."
Msgr. Sullivan also reminded his congregation to offer prayers for "all those who are hungry and find it hard to see the ad-vantage of putting a man on the moon when they can scarcely survive themselves."

The Omega wrist chronograph is the only timing instrument the astronauts will take with them on the moon. They, of course, will be attired at the time by ground controllers but the watch is the only time-piece the astronauts will have to keep personal track of the time.
The watches will be worn un-der the flap of the gloves to pro-tect them from the sun's harsh, unfiltered rays.
Meanwhile, 60 miles up, circl-ing the moon, astronaut Michal Collins will be on a time sched-ule of his own. He too will be referring to his own Speedmaster.
How does a watch, which could have been taken off the Ron Keel's, reach the moon without the many modifications given other moon-bound consu-mer products?
Undoubtedly, there is a ques-tion of workmanship. The watch, along with other well-known brands, was tested by NASA and only the Omega 4-dial wrist chronograph passed. It has in fact, flown with every astronaut since the first Gemini flight, in which man experienced space walking.
Many of the Gemini and Apollo astronauts use the watch every day. Col. Thomas Stafford has flown the same watch into space three times and wears it con-tinuously. It runs perfectly. Ast-ronaut Richard Gordon took his Omega wrist watch out into space on Gemini 11 and has worn it ever since. In Belleville you can buy this same watch at Ron Keel Jewellers, 256 Front Street.

Many Ignored Sun in Favor of Moon Attraction

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Sunday, June 20, 1969, was a great day for the outdoors in the Quinte district.
But thousands ignored the balmy weather and stayed home. For them, the greatest outdoors spectacle of all time was waiting in their living rooms.
Late into the night they were still by their television screens, fascinated as two men explored the latest open spaces acquired by earth — the lunar landscape.
But even in the earthbound outdoors, few lost contact with the fateful phase of Apollo 11's mission.
Car and transistor radios car-ried the latest developments to parks, picnic areas and beaches.
It was Sunday — and the an-spoken feelings of many were given public voice. Prayers were dedicated for the Apollo astron-auts in Quinte churches.
The fantastic adventure took precedence even at public events.
At Marmora, politicians clergy, the public assembled to unveil a local historic plaque — interrupted their program, stood in silent tribute and of-fered the Lord's Prayer for the space team.
And, into the early hours, when even the lunar explorers themselves were in slumber, the moonstruck wonderment ling-ered.
"Amazing — amazing to see."
Msgr. Sullivan also reminded his congregation to offer prayers for "all those who are hungry and find it hard to see the ad-vantage of putting a man on the moon when they can scarcely survive themselves."

Fantastic Is Reaction of Area Viewers

Rodney Green — like many Bellevillians — stayed by his television set all day Sunday.
He was there for the tense buildup before astronauts Aldrin and Armstrong set their tiny landing craft on course for the moon.
He was there when they made it. He stayed by his set as every preliminary leading to that first fateful footprint was relayed to earth.
Then — just as the first man was about to take that first un-earthly step to ground — Rod-ney had to go to work.
His job as operator of the city's street-sweeping machine calls for him to clock in at 11 p.m.
(Neil Armstrong made it through the space-craft's hatch to touch the moon at 10.56 p.m.)
Rodney is only one of scores who work while others sleep in the city.
There are policemen, hospital workers, taxi drivers, firemen; those who staff all-night restaur-ants, service industries.
But he's among the few of the night people who actually miss-ed the historic moment. Most, at least had the chance to see the memorable event as it hap-pened before reporting for duty.
It was a double viewing bonus for them for originally the moon walk was scheduled for 2.21 but was advanced when the astron-auts said they wished to forego their rest period.
However, last night as he wheeled his sweeper through silent city streets, he was not allowing any chagrin to show.

"I'd have liked to have seen them get out. But — actually that's something I never thought I'd live to see it."
And maybe someday, he muses, people "will spend a couple of thousand dollars to get up there."
But, for himself . . . "I don't know. I'd sooner stay right here on earth."
Most of the night workers who volunteered a response, shared and Aldrin were just getting into their moon-size strides at a common moonstruck reation: Awe at the sheer human accom-plishment of Apollo 11.
The instant relay was still fresh in their minds when they left home for work. Armstrong the time.
Other personal impressions:
Norris Cunningham, taxi dis-patcher: "I think it's the most fantastic thing. It recognizes, to my mind, that science can do anything. It proves another thing — what a man can be trained to do with discipline. It should prove if there was more discipline in the world you'd be far better off."
William Ross, OPP constable: "It was amazing to see them getting out of that craft. Seeing it as it happens is the most as-tonishing part of it. To hear and see things so clearly . . ."
Peter Fortic, store operator: "Fantastic. Fantastic. For years we've seen all those space pic-tures, now you can see the real thing. Let's hope they get back OK."
Jack Smith, hotel night man-ager: "It was a thing quite hard to understand. It's fantastic to live in an age when you can see this. I think more people have been drawn together by this than would be by other things . . . It's the last part (the return phase) that worries me."

Meantime, Back on Earth . . .

Moon or no moon there's still plenty of basic chores to do on earth. Others may have the thrill of watching men on a lunar landscape. But for Rodney Green there's the responsibility of keeping city streets clear and clean.

Who'll Forget This Birthday?

The Quinte district has at least two newcomers who need never fear forgetfulness about their birthdays.
June 20, 1969, is the day man first landed on the moon.
And between the times the Apollo 11 landing craft made its lunar touchdown and its crew made the first footprints on the moon, two babies were born to personalize the new universal date for Quinte parents.
And the communities of Belle-ville and Trenton divided the honors.
The first arrival came at 5.53 p.m. in Trenton Memorial Hos-pital. It was a son to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Rose, of Trenton.
Second on the scene was a girl, delivered in Belleville General Hospital at 6.48 p.m. Parents were Mr. and Mrs. Wil-liam English, R.R. 1 Shannon-ville.
A third arrival just missed the June 20th deadline. Trenton hospital authorities reported a son delivered to Mr. and Mrs. Dean Gurley at 12.25 a.m. today.

The Moon — At Last

Man by nature is a questing individual. Ever since early times he has wandered about the face of the globe and sailed the seven seas. In more recent days he has begun the exploration of space and now, in the most dramatic accomplishment of this phase of his journeyings he has set foot on the moon.

Astronaut Neil Armstrong stepped on the lunar surface late last night followed by Edwin Aldrin.

Now they are aloft again in moon orbit prior to linking up once again with the command module with astronaut Michael Collins aboard.

The flight thus far has been a superb achievement, justifying the foresight of President John Kennedy who predicted a U.S. landing on the moon within the decade, as well as the work of the space administration. The technical achievement alone is something to behold and a reminder of our own relative insignificance in the cosmic scheme of things.

It is a reminder of the perfection of the laws governing the universe, and that man in reaching for the stars has only to harness himself to these laws to tunnel through the unknown. Amid the man-made turmoil of earth, this voyage into outer space affords an opportunity for mankind to make some "course corrections", to use the terminology of the space program.

If there is a lesson to be learned from this mission and from succeeding voyages into the outer atmosphere, it is that the universe is a marvelous creation. A sense of excitement is lacking in the lives of many, but the events of the weekend and early today must surely revive the spirits of the most critical and cynical among us.

New Vacation Mecca

Jumbo jets and increasing affluence, boredom with Europe, and the appearance for the first time in at least one of America's crowded parks of traffic lights have led a U.S. parks authority to predict a big surge of vacation traffic to the South Pacific.

Sam Weems, for 30 years superintendent of the Blue Ridge Parkway recently spent six weeks touring New Zealand's national parks. Previously he had been in New South Wales for two years directing the establishment of a parks and wildlife service there.

In an interview with a New Zealand Weekly News representative, Mr. Weems said that the bulge in tourist traffic "down under" would probably come sooner than was thought. It would begin when the jumbo jets went into service, and these aircraft had already flown.

"The whole world is becoming more affluent, with the medical profession stretching people's lives out longer, with earlier retirements, with shorter working hours. This, and more economic transportation, has all built up, in my estimation, to an on-coming heavy visitation primarily to what you have in Zealand which before have been a little out of the reach of the great bulk of people."

Lauding New Zealand's "beautiful scenery" and the recreational facilities, Mr. Weems said people were getting tired of Europe and were looking for new places to go. He warned however that parks maintenance, accommodation and other facilities would have to be upgraded for such an influx.

In the United States Mr. Weems said mass attendance at parks was threatening their very existence. At one park it had been practically necessary to hang out "no vacancy" signs and traffic lights had appeared in a national park for the first time.

It looks as if a boom is in the offing for this fabled corner of the world. Already tourism there is gathering impetus. Soon it will reach even greater proportions. But Australia and New Zealand must be prepared for it. And this means having the kind of creature comforts assets which North Americans have come to take for granted.

Premature

There is a law to cover most eventualities in Canada — too many in the opinion of some. The one for example which prohibits the wearing of bathing suits in Nathan Phillips Square in Toronto the good was the undoing of Mrs. Elaine Mason last week. There was the lissome bikini-clad Mrs. Mason with daughter Karen in the pram and along came a police officer who told her she would have to move. In a country which has accepted such fashion phenomena as the miniskirt — even in the hallowed confines of Nathan Phillips Square — it seems that any hope Mrs. Mason had of starting a fad was nevertheless a little, shall we say, "premature!"

While Encouraging Other Crops . . .

Canada Must Reduce Its Wheat Acreage

Montreal Gazette

One of the greatest problems of Western Canada is that it is producing wheat on a scale that can't be sold. More than this, as Prime Minister Trudeau said on his western tour, such crops in future can never be sold. There is only one real answer: "We must produce less wheat."

The Western provinces became committed to growing wheat in the years when the world was clamoring for it. But conditions have changed.

The very countries that have been Canada's best traditional customers have been growing more and more wheat of their own. Some of them have become self-sufficient, or expect to attain self-sufficiency in a few years. Others have moved from being wheat importers to become wheat exporters.

Many things have contributed to the change around the world. Mechanization — better farm machinery — has made possible the better use of land. Chemicals have increased the value of fertilization and the effective control of weeds and insects. Small and uneconomic farms have been consolidated, making possible the use of modern methods. In recent years new strains of wheat have been producing far larger, better crops.

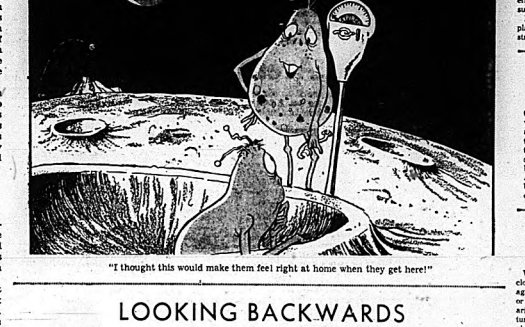
To all these scientific changes must be added the political pressures in many foreign nations to produce more wheat of their own, to become less dependent on imported supplies, and to earn exchange by selling abroad.

This transition has not come suddenly. As long ago as 1949, France, a wheat importer, became a wheat exporter. Now, even a nation such as India, which might have seemed the classic example of a country that could never hope to feed its vast population, expects to be self-sufficient in wheat production early in the 1970s.

As are nation after another ceases to buy wheat, and when most of them begin trying to sell wheat, the competition for the diminishing number of remaining customers becomes all the more intense. The supply, inevitably, exceeds the market.

What has delayed Canada's adjustment to these realities, has been the temporary and abnormal conditions that produced such massive wheat orders from the Soviet Union and China. Even if such windfall orders occur again, it would be impossible to produce Canadian wheat in the present circumstances, year after year, hoping for drought or administrative mismanagement in Russia or China to produce a sudden demand.

The only answer is to replace part of wheat production with other crops, with raising cattle. Though this is the only answer, it is far from a simple one.



Western farmers are in debt for equipment useful for wheat production only. The transition may require large new capital investments. And it might often require retraining. An expert in wheat growing may be inexperienced in other crops, even more so in cattle.

It will never be enough simply to suggest that the farmers themselves get out of wheat and into something else. They will not only have to be encouraged to grow less wheat but helped to change the pattern of their lives. The need for intensive cooperation between Ottawa and the Western provinces is obvious and urgent.

Nor is this only a Western problem. The prosperity of all Canada depends upon the prosperity of the west. The reduction of wheat production to what is likely to be a stable must be accompanied by the expansion of other types of agriculture.

Helping to finance the transition may be costly. But a serious economic dislocation in the West would not be long in launching a national recession.

The re-adjustment of Western agriculture may be one of the biggest re-adjustments that Canada will have to make to meet inevitable and irreversible change. But it is a re-adjustment that reality is demanding, and that responsibility must face.

"I thought this would make them feel right at home when they get here!"

Children Need Watching

Owen Sound Sun-Times

There is constant reason to ask if many parents really do care for their children. Certainly parents, with very few, if any, exceptions make a considerable emotional display when their children are injured or, perhaps as does happen from time to time, killed. But do they care enough to spend the time and effort in training them to avoid such accidents?

Many children can be seen playing in the middle of busy streets. There are times, of course, when there is no other place to play. Such an excuse is seldom justified in a place such as Owen Sound. Most people do have backyards or front lawns.

For parents to ignore their children playing on the roadway of a busy street, with traffic coming and going, is not evidence that they really care. Nor is such evidence to be found when small children are allowed to play along the bank of a deep river, pond or lake unsupervised.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

John T. Scopes, science teacher in Dayton, Tenn., was found guilty 44 years ago today—in 1925—of teaching the theory of evolution in contravention of state law. Scopes agreed to become a test case for the American Civil Liberties Union when Tennessee became the first state to enspond to Fundamentalist pressure and legislate against "any theory that denies the story of the divine creation of man as taught in the Bible". The case became a worldwide sensation, although the judge ruled against any debate on the constitutionality of the law.

Mosquitoes Bow to DDT

Windsor Star

While one school has been clobbering DDT, -or advising against use because of cost or its equivalent, another has arisen to advise that it's premature to denounce insecticides or abolish them.

This opinion, which carries a lot of weight, has come from the World Health Organization, hereinafter called WHO. DDT, it argues, has a number of things going for it. The director general of WHO cites its low cost and the purpose it has served in keeping malaria within bounds.

In fact, this authority suggests "the concept of malaria eradication rests completely on its continued use." And what would malaria be without mosquito squadrons to spread it around? One bitten man gets a certain satisfaction. At a day's end, in picking up a sprayer and letting a swarm of those winged pests have it. A new generation may be in action within the hour and perhaps will go sneaking around window screens or doors to see if it can find an opening. But there again the householder can stand back knowing they can and give more than he gets.

Maybe some day DDT will have to go but at the moment bug killers can take a lot of winged nuisances with them.

Wartime Incident Recalled

The Dark Corners of the Mind

Owen Sound Sun-Times

The Roman Catholic Auxiliary Bishop of Munich has been officially identified as the captain of a Wehrmacht sanitaer. German Army unit in Italy which passed on an order for the execution of 17 unarmed Italian villagers in 1944. The bishop reported never to have denied that he gave the order for the shooting. Under the statutes of limitation no formal complaint can be lodged. The man was designated to the bishop's office four months after the investigation, which clearly showed his guilt, was closed.

The case shows the general, quiet acceptance of such acts which most view with horror. Quite probably the Bishop has repented his action and has received forgiveness by his church. At the same time, the fact that normal people can be guilty of terrible crimes against their fellow men under certain circumstances, that what can be admitted at least closely akin to sadism lurks in the hearts of many people. There have been many instances to prove such thinking, not all by any means coming out of Germany. Russia or countries where it is often suggested to use the impossible is possible. Many occur in Canada, even Ontario — mass rapes, mass beatings, sometimes murders in which several people take part in a sadistic manner.

Several beatings have been reported lately, though apparently not officially, where groups of youths have beset one loner, inflicting brutal punishment. The Kitchener area has been the scene of several rapes in which groups of males participated, inflicting themselves on one or two girls.

Tanzania Gets Prefab Plants from Britain

BBC London Letter

It may seem a far cry from a cool green valley near Winchester in Southern England to the hot sunshine of Dar es Salaam on the east coast of Africa, but the first stages of one of Tanzania's new factories are taking shape beside the River Itchen in Hampshire. There multi-ton cranes in the works of the British engineering firm of Conder (Steel Structures) are moving raw steel girders into position to start making a blanket factory for erection in Dar es Salaam.

Conder's huge international organization had tiny beginnings. It was only 21 years ago that R. T. Cole and his partner F. G. Pinder (hence the name Conder) rented an old forge in a Hampshire village. They set us as general engineers, and their first job was to make steel roof trusses for a chicken house for the local farmer. Now the annual turnover is worth more than £7,500,000. In addition to the eight Conder companies in Britain itself, there are overseas companies in Nigeria and Australia, and licence agreements with firms in Jamaica, South Africa, Spain, France and Malaysia.

When BBC reporter John Anthony went to Winchester he learned that within a matter of a few months of a cabled order reaching Winchester, a whole factory can be standing in the African sunshine. Contract drawings are sent first for the client to check that the building will be just as he requires it, and then work proceeds, every piece of steel is coded and marked, welded and shaped together and finally sprayed with special anti-corrosive paint. Transport is by sea, from London's docks to Dar es Salaam, where Conder's agents will supervise the erection on site. Experience has made them confident there will be no mistakes, because already almost half of the new industrial building in Tanzania consists of these Conder steel structural buildings.

Political Intrigue

Owen Sound Sun - Times

Recently Canberra publisher Maxwell Newton had his home and office raided by Australian police after a confidential cable from the Australian ambassador in Paris had been published in one of his weekly newsletters. The cable told of a conversation the ambassador had with the French foreign minister.

Prime Minister John Gorton was furious. He told Parliament no government could tolerate having its confidential information published in such a way.

Newton is a sworn enemy of the prime minister and regularly makes the most bitter and some say below-the-belt attacks on Gorton in the newsletters Newton publishes.

People of the Isle of Man Are an Independent Lot

Ottawa Journal

The Isle of Man has 51,000 people and Great Britain and northern Ireland have 55,000,000 but the isle has its rights and the English, Scots, Irish and Welsh have again acknowledged them.

The Parliament in London, always conceding something to proud units of what used to be the Empire, has agreed there shall be a standing committee which will meet every six months to discuss "the common interest of the Isle of Man and the United Kingdom." The island off the Cumbrian coast is a crown dependency with its own legislative Assembly, system of local government and courts. It had been tithed by the British Government interfering in what it considered domestic affairs.

The island also wanted its position clarified in relation to the signing of treaties. It is going to be an interesting day if a treaty is laid up because the Isle of Man won't sign. Meanwhile, according to immemorial custom, London says it will keep the matter under review.

The 'Eclectic' Mr. Trudeau

Ottawa Journal

Eclectic is an interesting word, much in vogue since interior decorators adapted it to describe the hodge-podge of styles being proclaimed as current.

The dictionary says:

Eclectic (adj. and n.) — (Philosopher, esp. of antiquity), not belonging to any recognized school or persons borrowing freely from various schools, not exclusive in opinion, taste, etc.

It turns up, interestingly, in a profile of Prime Minister Trudeau in the current New Yorker magazine in which he is quoted as describing himself as "very eclectic."

Flag and Salute

Eagle Lifts Moon Men on Way Home

Then they reluctantly climbed back into their buglike module for a rest before the suspense-filled blastoff to start the trip back to earth.

The two moon-walking astronauts settled down in the cramped confines of the Eagle moonbug for a few hours' rest before blastoff, scheduled for 1:55 p.m. EDT.

As they settled down, ground control radioed:

"We think you've done a magnificent job today." The astronauts replied: "Thank you very much. It's been a long day."

The climactic moment in history came at 10:56 p.m., when Armstrong stepped off the ninerung ladder from the Eagle landing craft and stood on another world. The craft touched on the moon at 4:18 p.m.

He hesitated briefly and then spoke in a slightly shaky voice. "That's one small step for a man but a giant one for mankind."

Aldrin cautiously followed Armstrong down the ladder and in a short time later and together they set out to start unlocking the secrets of the awesome new world they conquered.

But before the astronauts began setting up scientific gear, they took time out for a brief and solemn ceremony—unveiling of a commemorative plaque and the raising of the U.S. flag.

Armstrong read aloud the inscription on the plaque which included the words, "We came in peace for all mankind."

In a moment dear to all explorers, they raised the U.S. flag and left it "fly" on the moon. The flag was fitted with special wire to keep it stiff in the airless linear stillness.

One more formality remained to emphasize the magnitude of the first lunar landing. President Nixon picked up a telephone in his office in the White House and spoke directly to the astronauts.

The president gave his congratulations and those of the world to the Apollo moonmen and assured them of worldwide prayers for their safe return.

Carrying a portable television camera to beam pictures of uncanny clarity, the astronauts took stock of their exclusive domain. Armstrong, 38-year-old mission commander, gazed around at the stunning lunar landscape, and radioed back to earth: "It has a beauty of its own. It's very pretty up here."

Armstrong likened the moonscape to the high desert country in his homeland. Later he and Aldrin dragged the television camera around in stages to share the panoramic view with earthbound watchers 250,000 miles away.

The two Americans walked slowly and warily at first, aware that one false move could end their historic dream, or the airless, grey desert of the Sea of Tranquillity.

But as their confidence mounted Armstrong and Aldrin jumped, bounced and kangaroo-hopped in front of their landing craft, taking advantage of reduced gravity—one-sixth that on earth.

Then, as the astronauts scoured the moon's surface, the second time occurred.

Armstrong reported: "The surface is fine and powdery. It adheres like powdered charcoal to my boot . . . I go in only an eighth of an inch."

With television trained constantly on the astronauts, the dream of centuries became a almost matter-of-fact routine as Armstrong and Aldrin dug into the moon's dust, scooped up rock dust and rock samples, and reported their findings back to earth.

Aldrin reported the lunar surface appeared rather slippery and when he drove a tube into the ground to get a five-inche deep sample he said "it almost looks wet."

Seeing a great variety of rocks around them and worked hard to gather up as many samples as possible to bring back to earth, Aldrin said he found a "purple-colored rock."

As Armstrong logged 20-pound hours of exploration the lunar capsule his heartbeat rose as high as 160 beats a minute but dropped with an average of 90 to 100 the remainder of the moonwalk.

Aldrin's heartbeat never went above 125 a minute.

Space doctors at mission control definitely declared the astronauts in "great shape."

During his spell outside the lunar landing module, Aldrin made a close check of the outside of the spacecraft. He told ground control the spider-like Eagle apparently suffered no damage during a crucial landing time.

The astronauts, standing upright in the tiny moonbug, flew down to the lunar surface controlling Eagle manually. They launched off computer control when it appeared they would touch down on a boulder-strewn area. They landed on a relatively level area some four miles farther than originally selected.

The moon surface easily withstood the shock of the Eagle's landing. The four-legged machine sank only one or two inches into the dust—boding well for future moon landings.

With oxygen life packs strapped to their backs, the astronauts went about their work with the calmness of a Sunday afternoon gardener on earth. They set up on the moon instruments that will continue to give scientists on earth information for some time to come.

Through the magic of television, an estimated 500,000,000 people around the world had a ringside seat to man's greatest adventure.

Among scientists, there was elation that the crew had landed in an area with a variety of rocks, a treasure that held at least the hope of a rich payoff in the search to learn more about moon and earth.

As Armstrong planted his size 9½ left boot on the powdery surface, he spoke words that will be remembered for all time: "That's one small step for man, a giant leap for mankind."

The camera trained on Aldrin as he stepped on the far shore 20 minutes later and exclaimed: "Beautiful! Beautiful! Magnificent desolation."

Among other memorable utterances during the day of high adventure.

Armstrong's words when Eagle separated from the command ship to start the dangerous descent: "The Eagle is flying."

There were Armstrong's—and the world's—words from the moon's surface after touchdown: "Houston . . . Tranquility Base here. The Eagle has landed."

Or when Aldrin relayed this message to the world shortly after the landing: "This is the 4th palo." I'd like to take this opportunity to ask every person listening, whoever, wherever they may be, everyone for a moment and contemplate the events of the past few hours and give thanks in his or her own way."

They unveiled a stainless steel plaque bearing these words:

"Here men from planet earth first set foot upon the moon, July 1969 A.D. We came in peace for all mankind."

They left on the moon a disc which messages from the leaders of 76 nations including Canadian Prime Minister Trudeau had been recorded. They will return to earth with them the flags of 136 nations, including Canada. And they left behind mementos for three Americans and a Russian who died for the cause of space exploration.

Nearly nine hours after landing, the astronauts were still busy filling containers with samples from man's new world. A rendezvous and docking was received permission to extend his lunar stroll by 15 minutes but he declined, and headed back into the capsule on schedule. The mission commander spent about an hour and 14 minutes ordering in the area close to the spacecraft before going back in Aldrin took a one-hour, 40-minute walk.

The astronauts had good reason to be pleased with the EVA —extra-vehicular activity—part of their program. They went out ahead of schedule instead of remaining cooped up in the moon craft and performed every assignment allotted except one. The one scientific program they missed was a minor sampling-gathering experiment, a space agency officials said.

The hair-raising descent of the Eagle capsule and the "fly-by-wire" manual control touchdown was a peak in mankind's technological achievement. But nothing could detract from the drama of the eerie moonwalk and the first pictures from the moon.

One prominent American closely connected with the mission missed seeing the epic adventure on TV.

Michael Collins, third member of the lunar mission team, continued circling the moon's surface above the moon with only radio coverage of the event. The mothership, which was waiting patiently for a reunion in orbit with Eagle, carried no TV receivers.

Armstrong and Aldrin carried out a true exploration of the moon.

Several times they tested their ability to move about in the one-sixth gravity field of the moon, loping like antelopes, and bouncing like kangaroos.

"It's not difficult at all moving about in one-sixth "G," Armstrong reported, as he flashed before the camera like a graceful gazelle.

The camera was mounted about 40 feet away from the LM so that earthlings could watch their entire period outside.

Armstrong and Aldrin collected two boxes of rock and soil samples which they will return to earth for analysis.

The moonmen also deployed two scientific instruments on the moon to relay data long after they left. They were a seismometer to measure moonquakes and other disturbances and a small mirror to reflect earth laser beams first formulated in California back to earth.

The sensitive seismometer, monitored on earth, picked up the footsteps of the astronauts and recorded a thump when they turned litterbug and dumped a bag of unneeded equipment overboard after returning to their landing vehicle.

"The surface appears to be very fine grained," Armstrong commented after his first steps "It's almost like powder. The dirt adheres in fine layers like powdered charcoal to the sole and insides of my boots. I only go in a fraction of an inch, maybe one-eighth of an inch. I see the footprints of my boots and the treads in the fine, sandy particles."

He shouted the camera over thousands of small craters that pocked the surface and at the horizon accentuated against a pure black sky.

He reported the surface was generally soft and cohesive but that he occasionally hit a hard spot when probing with his shovel-like scientific tool.

With television trained constantly on the astronauts, the dream of centuries became almost matter-of-fact routine.

Aldrin reported the lunar surface appeared rather slippery and when he drove a tube into the ground to get a five-inch deep sample he said "it almost looks wet." Aldrin said he found a "purple-colored rock."

Aldrin described various rocks for geologists stationed at mission control.

The samples Apollo 11 brings home could provide clues to origin of the moon, the earth and perhaps the universe.

The bulky, multi-layered spacesuits, which cost $300,000 each, protected Armstrong and Aldrin from extreme temperatures which ranged from 242 degrees above zero in sunlight to 279 degrees below in shadow and from tiny micrometeorites which bombard the moon from space.

The moon walk excited the world as few events have, and it probably had the largest television audience in history.

Headlines around the world screamed the news. Crowds gathered in London's Trafalgar Square and in cities around the world to cheer word of the great achievement.

The day that will be recorded for all time started at 7:08 a.m. when the astronauts were awakened by mission control.

Three hours later, Armstrong and Aldrin had climbed through a connecting tunnel into the LM and were meticulously checking its intricate systems

At 1:47 p.m., behind the moon and out of radio contact, the two astronauts detached their spindly legged vehicle. Minutes later they appeared around the rim of the moon and Armstrong flashed the good news: "The Eagle has wings."

At 3:00 p.m., Eagle's descent engine was fired to start it swooping toward the surface and a dangerous and difficult descent.

Just 9.8 miles above the surface, Armstrong fired the braking engine and for 12 heart-stopping minutes Eagle dropped toward the surface.

In the final minutes, Armstrong and Aldrin skimmed low over the moon's hostile craters.

Suddenly they were over the targeted landing site and in for a LM shock.

As Armstrong reported later: "the auto targeting was taking us right into a football field, a football field-sized crater with a larger number of big boulders and rocks for about one or two crater diameters around us. It required flying manually over the football field to find a reasonably good area."

With the commander in firm control, Eagle stayed to a point four miles beyond the targeted area. It was close, for when the astronauts stood down they had only 49 seconds of hovering rocket fuel left, less than half the 1:44 seconds worth it was supposed to have.

While the world holding its breath, Eagle made a safe landfall on the moon at 4:18 p.m. and Armstrong and Aldrin were assured their place in history man said "there wasn't a soul on the streets" during the walk and movie theatres reported attendance down by about 30 per cent.

Prime Minister Trudeau watched the walk at his Harrington Lake cottage. A spokesman for the prime minister said he would not make a statement.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, watching the event at home, said he was "absolutely entranced."

"I never thought I would live to see men on the moon," he said. "It is a great tribute to man's genius."

In Newfoundland, Premier Joseph Smallwood declared the holiday marking the day in recognition of one of the greatest events in human history."

Max Ward, a Dartmouth, N.S. real estate agent, said he would like to open a branch of his business on the moon to make "sure his customers get the best."

Downtown areas of cities in Western Canada were generally quiet during the walk.

In Edmonton, storekeepers planned to set up TV sets in show windows to give persons attending the annual Klondike Days promenade the chance to watch the landing, but the event was washed out by rain.

In Vancouver, members of the Vancouver Little Theatre, in celebrated the event by wearing make-up showing the different faces of the moon and danced on the beach.

Moon Soil Seems to Be Moist

They set up a seismometer which soon was recording moon tremors, although these might only from the footsteps of the astronauts, especially when they cavorted on the desert-like moon like kids in a playground.

If the moon still shimmies after they leave today, scientists think the ultra-sensitive instruments can tell them if the quakes come from volcanic activity, or hits by meteorites.

Incredibly calm most of the time, the astronauts performed well their role as good observers specially trained in geology.

Medically, their excursion showed the moon to be not so fearful a place as cautious planners had painted it.

The men surprised doctors and others by their quick adaptation to the moon's low gravity. Their energy expenditure in their tasks was within the limits shown in their earth training, said Dr. Willard R. Hawkins, a flight surgeon.

Once, Neil Armstrong's heartbeat rose to 160 a minute, but this was called not critical, and Clifford Charlesworth, flight director, said it occurred when he was doing his hardest labors.

Scientists were particularly delighted that the astronauts landed in an area with a great variety of rock types, as Edwin Aldrin described it.

"Landing near a crater is an unusual opportunity to collect rock samples which come from considerable depths (thrown out by meteoric impact) in comparison to the surface rocks," said Dr. Gerard P. Kuiper of the University of Arizona Lunar and Planetary Laboratory in Flag, staff. "This is an opportunity to pick up lunar lava in a scientifically perfect spot."

Lovely Summer Brides Capture the Spotlight on Their Special Day

MR. AND MRS. PETER McNEVIN

McNevin – Ackerman

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was the scene of the recent July double ring ceremony when Peggy Lee Ackerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Gordon Ackerman, of RR2, Trenton, exchanged wedding vows with Peter Duncan McNevin, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McNevin, of RR1, Consecon, Ont., officiating clergyman was Rev. J. Peyton. Rendering appropriate nuptial selections was organist Harold McNeil, while the soloist was John Williamson.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full length gown of imported Swiss embroidered cotton with an overlay of silk chiffon, lined with taffeta. It featured a scoop neckline, long bell-shaped set-in sleeves, and a full gathered skirt stitched to a fitted bodice. Her detachable train of tulle and chiffon was complemented by her waist-length veil, of tulle illusion and a soft bow headpiece. She carried a cascade bouquet of mauve orchids, stephanotis and ivy.

Maid of honor Miss Marilas Adams, and the bridesmaids, the Misses Beth Wardle, Joanne McNevin, sister of the bridegroom, Patti Ackerman, sister of the bride, and junior bridesmaid were dressed alike.

The attendants were floor length gowns cut from a printed voile in muted raish-w tones, featuring skirts fully gathered to an above the waist fitted bodice with scoop neckline and short bell sleeves. Headdresses were bows of matching fabric, complemented by the baskets of white shasta mums and carnations.

Flower girl was Miss Elizabeth McNevin, niece of the bridegroom. She wore a floor length gown, empire styled with short sleeves and a round neckline. Her gown was of imported white Swiss embroidered cotton over taffeta. She carried a basket of white Shasta mums, carnations and tinted orchids.

Best man for the ceremony was Douglas Boyce, of Belleville. Ushers were Richard Pearson, cousin of the bride, Bill McNevin, cousin of the bridegroom, and Robert McNevin, brother of the bridegroom.

For the wedding reception held at the Pinnacle Room in the Hotel Quinte, the mother of the bride received the guests wearing a coat and dress ensemble of imported yellow eyelet lace over taffeta, featuring a sheath dress, sleeveless, with a coat completed by a rolled collar. Matching yellow and white accessories and a corsage of talisman roses completed her outfit.

Assisting her, the mother of the bridegroom chose a semi-fitted dress in petal pink silk worsated, with a bateau rolled collar and three-quarter length sleeves. White accessories and a corsage of pink gala sweetheart roses added the finishing touch to her ensemble.

For the honeymoon trip to the Canadian Rockies and Pacific Coast, the bride donned a dress and coat ensemble in robin egg blue pure silk worsted. Her skimmer dress was of the sleeveless style, complemented by a matching coat, black patent accessories and a mauve orchid corsage. Upon their return, the couple will reside in Belleville.

Hogan – Wring

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hogan are pictured after their recent wedding in St. Michael the Archangel Church. Mrs. Hogan (the former Mary Anne Wring) is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Wring of Belleville. Robert Hogan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hogan, also of Belleville. The couple are residing in Belleville.

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS LOCKE

Locke – Butcher

The July wedding was solemnized at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, when Karen Anne Butcher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Butcher, of Belleville, became the bride of Thomas Ivan Locke, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Locke, of Belleville. Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. A. L. Sutherland. Rendering appropriate nuptial selections was organist Mr. F. Martin. Soloist was Gerald Doyle.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in nylon organza over taffeta with the bodice and long lily point sleeves in alencon lace. The skirt was of plain sheer organza with two bands of lace running around it. Her detachable chapel length train was edged with a wide band of lace. Her four tiered net headpiece, centred with a rosebud was complemented by the open bouquet of coral sweetheart roses and 'mums which she carried.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Erma Dainton, sister of the bride, wore a mint green lace over taffeta floor length gown, featuring an empire waist and bell sleeves completed by a matching headpiece of tulle netting. She carried a cascade of shasta daisies.

Bridesmaids Mrs. Donna Johnson and the Misses Brenda Keller, Judy Dainton and Janie McGee, were attired the same as the matron of honor, except in coral. Flower girl was Miss Lisa Craig, who wore a short white battiste cotton dress, trimmed with yellow daisies. Completing her outfit, she wore a small organza head piece, trimmed with yellow daisies. She carried a basket of shasta daisies. The ring-bearer was Master Douglas Dainton.

Best man for the ceremony was Rickey Backe, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Bob Butcher, brother of the bride and Ken Leachman, friend of the bridegroom.

For the wedding reception, held at Tops Motor Hotel, the mother of the bride chose a pale green shantung dress with white accessories, completed by a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses. Assisting her, the mother of the bridegroom wore a mauve lace dress with a matching coat, white accessories and a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses.

For the honeymoon to points north, the bride donned a pale pink fortrel dress trimmed with white eyelet lace, white accessories and a corsage of white and pink 'mums. Upon their return the couple will reside in Brampton.

The president, Mrs. Clifford Reid opened the meeting and welcomed all those present.

Included in the correspondence was a letter from Peggy Thomson, a 4-H Club girl who has obtained her Provincial Honors through the six clubs sponsored by the Quinte WI. She was appreciative of the material things she derived from attending these courses and thanked the Institute and the Club leaders for all their help.

The 4-H Homemaking Club leaders chosen for the next project are: Mrs. Bessie Keene, leader, Mrs. Joyce Mitchell and Mrs. Doreen Stoliker, assistants.

Mrs. Bertha Atkins, Mrs. Bernice Parrot and Mrs. Doreen Atkins were appointed as a committee to look after display at Quinte Exhibition. Plans were made for next meeting to be a picnic at Fry's Park.

Mrs. A. Mitchell and Mrs. E. Denyes, conveners for Home Economics and Health took over the meeting. The motto "one third of the food you eat keeps you alive and the other two thirds keeps your doctor alive" was given by Mrs. Edith Thomson.

Mrs. E. Denyes gave an interesting paper on the "Roadside Window" by Dr. Ethel M. Chapman. This book contains 81 short stories, and Mrs. Denyes closed with the story of the "Red Hat".

The 4-H girls put on a skit "Tension Troubles to well hangings". The girls also displayed their needlecraft consisting of cushions, table covers, and pillow cases.

The Institute presented gifts to the club leaders. Mrs. Edith Thomson, Mrs. Bessie Keene and Mrs. Joyce Mitchell and silver spoons to the 4-H Club girls.

All the guests had previously lived on the Canadian Forces Base in Portage La Prairies, Manitoba, during the 1959's.

The reunion was in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Hoover and family, who had just returned from their Germany and were holidaying with Mr. and Mrs. Graff before they travelled to Moose Jaw, Sask. to reside.

Guests came from several points in the province.

A turkey dinner was served in Mount Pleasant, Rawdon Church hall and the daughters of the families served the meal.

Prevents Wear

CALGARY (CP) — Use throw rugs to prevent excessive wear on your wall-to-wall carpeting in front of chairs and sofas most frequently used, advises the National Institute of Rug Cleaning Inc. Move furniture locations from time to time to equalize wear and cut down on texture change.

Will the New Unisex Fashions Bury the Battle of the Sexes Forever?

SAINT TROPEZ (Reuters) — Unisex fashions get top billing at this fashionable French Riviera resort this season.

Clothes become the common denominator here and at a distance it is often difficult to tell the difference between the sexes.

The most virile-looking males are turning up in lace shirts, the girls wear pants from dawn until sunset and nearly everyone has long hair.

Such summer perennials as actress Brigitte Bardot, writer Francoise Sagan, impresario Jacques Chazot, and director Anatole Litvak set the pace in the seasonal dictates in food and mode of dress.

Fads change radically from one summer to the next and what appeared as the height of chic last year may now be as outmoded as high button shoes.

For no known reason, purple currently happens to be the hot color.

The status car is no longer a sleek Italian or German sports model, but the relatively inexpensive new Citroen jeep, often decked out with a canvas roof edged with a fringe or pompoms.

Even the classic Saint Tropez uniform based on jeans, the polo or tee shirt, and wide brown belt, varies slightly from one summer to the next.

This is the season of the lace shirt, often in marvelously revisions made of see through material in floral patterns.

Flat canvas beans in pastel hues and all the bright sunstruck colors are still big sellers but there is also a parade of jeans in corduroy, suede and wool jersey.

The "hobo" look has replaced the Indian trend which produced an epidemic of squaws and braves in fringed leather trousers and vests last summer.

Affluent young "hobos" walk about in canvas jeans and jackets printed in vivid patchwork effects and crazy-quilt patterns of neon-bright colors.

Another dominant trend in jeans emanates from the South Pacific. Bathing suits and beachwear in bold Gauguin-inspired floral printed cottons look right at home at Tahiti Plage, the most famous local beach.

Other trademarks of unisex are sunset-shiny silhouettes, jeans and Bermudas with stovepipe legs and flaring flappy pyjama styles girls have been wearing recently.

While the bikini is unrivalled for real suntanning, there is a growing tendency toward more coverage.

Almost every suit is accompanied by its own printed voile shirt or matching tunic to wear to and from the beach.

The boys have picked up the lace shirts, and the girls have countered with eyelet embroidery. The effect is always tailored, however, and these embroidered white cottons and organdies, styled in neat shirts and tunics, are a far cry from the frilled and ruffled shirts which Brigitte Bardot once put on the fashion map.

Women Must Understand Their Role in Society

TORONTO (CP) — Before women can change things, they must learn what it means to be women in a masculine society. That learning is mostly what the Women's Liberation Movement is about.

Ellen Woodsworth, an anthropology student at the University of British Columbia, says the UBC WLM began as an offshoot of Students for a Democratic Society.

It is primarily a study group. Members look at women's education, child care, discrimination, how women are limited in the marriage relationship. The group exists in several cities, including Toronto and Montreal, though there is no national organization.

"It is the Women's Liberation Movement, the Women's Caucus—it's called different things. It began with a group of students involved with the radical political movement, the SDS. We were being discriminated against in the movement. We want to know what it means to be a woman.

"Before anyone can say what he wants and go ahead and shape things, he must know what he is.

"Women's position everywhere is similar to the Indians' position in Canada. Women tend to be more gentle and soft-spoken. To really make it, you have to sacrifice so much as a feeling human being that you wind up far from where you are."

Miss Woodsworth says they are not anti-male, nor are they latter-day suffragettes. She believes they want more profound change than the suffragettes did.

"We don't believe in superficial change any more. You have to start working with yourself as well as with the larger society.

"Men have their problems, too. They're supposed to be dominating and successful.

"They are willing to learn from us, but we have to know first what we want. That's a very strong position they're in, and the strong don't give up their positions. The weak must band together."

She says WLM members do research and present papers, invite speakers to their meetings and talk to other groups of women. Miss Woodsworth says she has done research that convinces her women work about four hours a day more than men—and get less sleep.

The group is interested in concrete projects, too, such as a co-operative nursery school set up at Simon Fraser University in Burnaby, B.C.

Miss Woodsworth is working with the YWCA this summer in leadership sessions that involve Indian and white girls. She feels the Y has been and is useful partly because it is a women's organization.

"It is a vast organization involving women on many different levels, and many different groups of women. It has been part of the Y to give that segment of the population a voice.

"It also has an idea, a spiritual idea, that the community can't just be individuals working against one another. There must be some emotional involvement that today's society is lacking.

"Emotion and warmth is not just a feminine quality, it is a viable quality in both sexes.

"What the Y has is partly an opportunity to learn what it means to be a woman in a masculine society."

Children Learn to Appreciate Value of Cleanliness Via Microscope

By DORIS CLARE

"We saw germs today, Mother!" Johnny and the twins had long since learned to appreciate the value of cleanliness in preventing disease, but today's whole new world had been opened to them.

Mrs. Harper listened while they explained to her how the school nurse had let their class look through a microscope at all the germs that lived in a single drop of swamp water.

"The nurse says they are like people. Some are bad and some are good!" explained Hazel. . . .

"The bad ones are the ones that make us sick," added Helen.

Johnny had been particularly interested and spoke with enthusiasm. "When bad germs get on a spoon, you kill them by boiling the spoon, but when bad germs get inside your body it fights the germs itself. If there are too many germs though, you get sick and the doctor has to give you medicine to help your body kill them."

"The doctor knows what medicine to give, too," volunteered Hazel.

At that point Johnny very solemnly announced that he was going to be a doctor.

"And I'm going to be a nurse," added Helen decisively.

Hazel made no comment. She was carefully examining the baby's spoon for germs. — from Chapter XI, Red Cross Home Nursing.

Dear Doris: My big problem is, I don't know what to talk about. I start talking to start a conversation, but the other girls and boys think it sounds stupid and they make fun of me.

If you don't talk quite a bit and tell lots of jokes, you are not in the group. So please give me some hints, because I don't know any good jokes and I don't know what to talk about.

We're moving this month, so please help me get a new start in making some good friends —Talk-Less

Dear Talk-less: There are some people who never get over the tendency to make fun of somebody else; and they always pick on the shy one who isn't good at talking back. Let's hope the tenants in your new place will have better manners.

But you know what? There are lots of talkers in the world. What we are short of is good listeners; ones who hear and think about what is being said, and make a comment which shows warm interest. Ask a boy about himself and then listen while he tells you, and you'll soon have him in the palm of your hand.

Read something besides the comics in the paper, and get so you know what's happening where you are. This will make for both talk and good listenability. And ignore the unkind jabs — if any.

Tasty Curried Chicken Wings

By MARY MOORE

Here is Fellyanna, all sweetness and light. This time, believe it or not, it is curried chicken wings cooked in the double boiler that I bring for your inspection and consumption. I bought mine for 33 cents per pound.

The charm of this dish are its no fuss no bother features and its low cost.

CURRIED CHICKEN WINGS IN DOUBLE BOILER

NOTE: You should allow four chicken wings for each one at your table with an average appetite.

2½ lbs. chicken wings
1½ cups hot water
½ cup finely chopped celery
¼ tsp. celery salt
⅛ tsp. garlic salt
3 tbsps. arrowroot flour or corn starch
1 tsp. (or more) curry powder
½ tsp. salt

With a sharp heavy knife cut off and discard the chicken wing tips. Put disjointed wings into top of large double boiler and add the hot water, celery and celery salt and garlic salt. Place over boiling water, cover and reduce heat to simmer for 4 hrs., gently turning wings over at half-time.

Tip off broth containing celery and measure. I had 2 cups. (Note: if desired and if you have time chill and skim fat from broth. I did not.)

Mix together arrowroot flour (or corn starch), curry powder and salt and stir into broth until smooth, then cook stirring until thickened. Pour over chicken wings in double boiler and reheat to serve.

We served this curried chicken wings with fluffy boiled rice and asparagus.

Please do not hesitate to prepare this flavorful and economical dish. The tender wing meat separates easily from bones and you end up with a little pile of slender bones on the edge of your dinner plate.

Ann Landers

Should the Lazy Starve the Deserving?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from that 17-year-old kid who complained about the food they were getting from welfare really burned me up. He mentioned everything but work. I am up to here with government handouts — county, state and national, and yes, international, too. Our country didn't get to be the richest nation in the world because our forefathers sat around on their duffs waiting for somebody to give them something. They worked.

ANN LANDERS

Eight years ago we bought a beautiful home in the suburbs. Last year we had to sell our dream house because we couldn't get anyone to work out here. The man who promised to shovel the snow never showed up. The bum who called himself a gardener worked when he felt like it and he didn't feel like it very often. I hired and fired four day-ladies and two laundresses in less than nine weeks, three quit. To interest a sitter, I had to promise her the moon. Finally I gave up. We couldn't get the storm windows up or the screens off or the garage painted. Nobody wants to work. They'd rather collect welfare.

If you are fair, Ann Landers, you'll print the other side of the story instead of urging your readers to write to their Congressmen in behalf of a bunch of lazy bums. — DISGUSTED IN MINNEAPOLIS.

DEAR D IN M: In a system such as ours, freeloading is inevitable. It is still the best system in the world, nevertheless, and I'd rather have it, with all its imperfections, than any other.

We must not deny help to the aged, the handicapped, the sick, or the children of those lazy bums. No one must be allowed to suffer from hunger for any reason. I am willing to be duped by ten parasites in order to make sure one deserving person does not starve. Are you?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell men not to marry because they feel sorry for the girl and figure on making her over into something better after marriage. It won't work. If a man feels superior to the woman he marries, she will discover it sooner or later and it will destroy her.

Both my husband and my son made this mistake. After they grew weary of their "inferior" wives they found younger women who were more attractive and more interesting. Since they are both honorable men, there was no laundering of soiled linen in public, no broken homes, no open cheating. It's all very discreet. But the heartache is unbearable.

My daughter-in-law turns to me for comfort, courage and counsel — never suspecting that for me, it is the second time. —HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

DEAR HISTORY: Your story contains more than one lesson. I hope those who believe "mother-in-law" is a dirty word will read your letter again.

Confidential to EGGHEAD WHO MADE THE SCENE AND LEFT IT TO THE DULLARDS: The yolk's on you, Brother. Those "dullards" may not have your classy credentials but their chances of succeeding are better than yours. There's a lot to be said for sticking with a situation and getting it out.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Son: "I wish I had a new English bike. I'm the only kid with a heavy old second-hand bike."

Father: "I was hoping you could get along with your old bike this summer, but I suppose I'll have to get you a new one."

Father: "I know this old bike is hard to ride, so if you will earn half of what you need to buy a new one, I'll give you the rest. The Smiths are looking for a boy to do yard work"

Children should not grow up thinking that all it takes is wishing to achieve their desires. Working to help earn luxuries will give them a sense of their own worth and help instill independence.

Training Pays Off

Transcript Shows Astronauts Took Casual View of Walk

HOUSTON (AP) — Here is the conversation between Mission Control here and Tranquility Base, beginning as astronaut Neil Armstrong left the landing craft Eagle to precede astronaut Edwin Aldrin onto the surface of the moon:

The hatch opened, Aldrin talked Armstrong through his manoeuvres with a television camera and backpack through the Eagle's exit:

Aldrin: Up, now you're clean . . . now move it toward me. Straight down. Relax a little bit. Plenty of room. Have you lined up nicely. Toward me a little bit. Down. Okay, now you're clear . . . You're touching the . . . hinge . . .

Armstrong: What hinge?

Armstrong: Okay, now I'm gonna check . . . here.

Aldrin: Okay, you're not quite squared away. Go to the go right a little. Now you're even . . . That's good. Got plenty of room to your left. It's too close on the, uh, other side.

Armstrong: How am I doing?

Aldrin: You're doing fine.

Aldrin: All right now, you want this bag?

Armstrong: Yeah. Got it, Okay, Houston, I'm on the porch.

MC: Roger, Neil.

Aldrin: Okay, stand by Neil.

MC: Columbia, Columbia, this is Houston. One minute 30 seconds to LOS, all systems, go, over.

Armstrong: Need a little slack?

Aldrin: I need more slack, Buzz?

Aldrin: No, hold it just a minute.

Armstrong: Okay.

Aldrin: Okay, everything's nice and straight in here.

Armstrong: Okay, can you pull the door open a little more? . . . I'm gonna pull it now . . . Houston, The MESA came down, all right.

MC: This is Houston, Roger, we copy and we're standing by for your TV.

Armstrong: Houston, this is Neil. Radio check?

MC: Neil, this is Houston, loud and clear. Break, break. Buzz this is Houston, radio check and verify TV circuit breaker's in.

Aldrin: Roger. TV circuit breaker's in . . . Loud and clear.

MC: Roger. And, we're getting a picture on the TV:

Armstrong: You had a good picture, huh?

MC: There's a great deal of contrast in it and currently it's upside down on our monitor, but we can make out a fair amount of detail.

Aldrin: Okay. Would you verify the position, uh, the opening I had to have on the camera?

MC: Stand by. Okay, Neil, we can see you coming down the ladder now.

Armstrong: OK. I just checked getting back up to that first step . . . ladder didn't collapse too far, but it's adequate to get back up. It's a pretty good little jump.

MC: Buzz, this is Houston, F-2, one-one sixtieth second for shadow photography on the sequence camera.

Aldrin: Okay.

Armstrong: I'm at the foot of the ladder, the LEM foot pads are only depressed in the surface about, uh, one or two inches, although the surface appears to be very very fine grained as you get close to it. It's almost like a powder down there. It's very fine. I'm going to step off the LM now. That's one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind.

Armstrong: The surface is fine and powdery. I can pick it up loosely with my toe. The dirt adhered in fine layers like powdered charcoal to the, uh, to the sole and insides of my boots. I only go in, oh, an eighth of an inch, but I can see footprints of my boots and the treads and the fine, sandy particles.

MC: Neil, this is Houston, we're copying.

Armstrong: There seems to be no difficulty in moving around, as we suspected. It's even perhaps easier than the simulations of one-sixth G (one-sixth gravity) that we performed in various simulations on the ground. No trouble to walk around. Okay, the descent engine did not leave a crater of any size. It's, uh, there's about one foot clearance from the ground. We're essentially on a very level place here. I can see some evidence of rays emanating from the descent engine, but very insignificant amount. Okay, Buzz, we're ready to bring down the other camera.

Aldrin: Have to pay out all the LEC (Lunar equipment conveyor). Looks like it's coming out nice and evenly.

Armstrong: Okay, its quite dark here in the shadow and a little hard for me to see that I have good footing. I'll work my way over into the sunlight here without looking directly into the sun.

Aldrin: Okay.

Aldrin: Say, I think you're pulling the wrong one . . .

Armstrong: I'm just . . . okay, I'm ready to pull it down now. There's still a little bit in the . . .

Aldrin: Okay, don't hold it quite so tight.

Armstrong: Okay.

Armstrong: Looking up at the LM, I'm standing directly in the shadow now, looking up at Buzz in the window, and I can see everything illuminated by. The light is sufficiently bright back lighted into the front of the LEM.

Armstrong: Still in the LEC on the secondary struts . . .

Aldrin: I'll step out and take some of my first pictures here.

MC: Roger, Neil, we're reading you loud and clear, getting some pictures and the contingency sample, over.

MC: Neil, this is Houston, did you copy about the contingency sample, over.

Armstrong: Roger, gonna get to that just as soon as we finish these pictures . . .

Aldrin: Okay, gonna get the contingency sample?

Armstrong: Right.

Aldrin: Okay, that's good. Okay the contingency sample is down . . . It's a little difficult to dig through the crust . . .

Armstrong: It's very interesting. It's a very soft surface. But here and there where I plug with the contingency sample collector I run into very hard surface, but it appears to be very cohesive material of the same sort. Try to get a rock in here. Just a couple.

Aldrin: Ah, that looks beautiful from here, Neil.

Armstrong: It has a stark beauty all its own It's like much of the highest desert of the United States. It's uh, different, but it's very pretty out here. Be advised that a lot of the rock samples out here, the hard rock samples, have what appear to be vesicles (small, thin-walled caveties in the surface) . . .

MC: Houston, Roger, out.

Aldrin: Okay, the handle is off the . . . It's about oh, six or eight inches into the surface . . .

Armstrong: I'm sure I could push it in further, but it's hard for me to (push the) end down further than that. You can really throw things a long way up here.

Armstrong: That pocket open, Buzz?

Aldrin: Yes, it is. It's not up against your suit though. Hit it back once more. More toward the inside Okay, that's good.

Armstrong: That in the pocket?

Aldrin: Yeah, push down.

Armstrong: That it?

Aldrin: No, it's not all the way in. Push it. There you go.

Armstrong: Contingency sample is in the pocket. I, uh, oxygen is 81 per cent. I'm in minimum flow.

MC: This is Houston, Roger, Neil.

Aldrin: Okay.

Aldrin: And I've got eight zero per cent . . .

Armstrong: Are you getting a TV picture now, Houston?

MC: Neil, yes we are getting a picture. You're not in it at the present time. We can see the foot on the LEC being moved by Buzz, though. Here you come into our field of view.

Aldrin: Okay, you read for me to come out?

Armstrong: Just stand by a second. I'll move this over the handrail. Okay.

Aldrin: Okay, that's got it. Are you ready?

Armstrong: All set. Okay, you saw what difficulties are . . . I'll try to watch your . . . from underneath here.

Aldrin: All right, the bellow camera is on.

Aldrin: Now a little, uh, foot movement . . . arching of the back.

Armstrong: Looks good.

MC: Neil, this is Houston. Based on your camera transfer with the LEC, do you foresee any difficulties in the SRC (sample return container)? . . . Over.

Armstrong: Negative

Aldrin: Now I'm gonna back up and partially close the hatch. Making sure not to lock it on my way out.

Armstrong: A pretty good thought.

Aldrin: It's our home for the couple of hours and we wanta take good care of it.

Aldrin: Okay, I'm on the top step and I can look down over the RCA and . . . it's a very simple matter to hop down from one step to the next.

Armstrong: I found it to be very comfortable, and walking is also very comfortable. You take three more steps and then a long one.

Aldrin: I'm going in, leave that one foot up there and both hands down to about the fourth rung up.

Armstrong: There you go.

Aldrin: Okay, now I think I'll do the same.

Armstrong: A little more, about another inch. There you got it.

Aldrin: It's a good step.

Armstrong: Yeah, about a three-footer.

Aldrin: Beautiful view

Armstrong: Isn't that something? Magnificent sight out here.

Aldrin: Magnificent desolation.

Aldrin: Reaching down fairly easy. Getting my suit dirty at this stage The mass of the backpack does have some effect . . . There's a light tendency, I can see now, to, uh, backwards due to the soft, very soft texture.

Armstrong: Traction seems quite good . . . least in our area.

Aldrin: About to lose my balance in one direction and recovery is quite natural and very easy. And moving our arms around doesn't . . . pot quite that light footed.

Aldrin: And, Neil, didn't I say we might see some purple rocks?

Armstrong: Find a purple rock?

Aldrin: Nope. Very small, sparkly fragments are . . . in places . . . First guess is some sort of diolite (a brown mica substance). You don't dig down more than a quarter of an inch (apparently referring to footprints)

Armstrong I noticed . . . where we had footprints nearby an inch deep but the soil is very cohesive and it will retain a slope of probably 70 degrees . . .

Aldrin: That end come off?

Armstrong: . . . the rock here.

Aldrin: We'll have to extend that one.

MC: Columbia, Columbia, this is Houston. AOS (acquisition of signal), over.

Collins: Hiesh, read you loud and clear. How's it going?

MC: Roger, the EVA is progressing beautifully. I believe they're setting up the flag now.

Collins: Great!

MC: I guess you're about the only person around that doesn't have TV coverage of the scene.

Collins: Roger, and I don't mind a bit. How's the quality of the TV.

MC: Oh, it's beautiful, Mike. Really is.

Collins: Oh gee, that's great. Is the lighting halfway decent?

MC: Yes, indeed. They've got the flag up now, and you can see the stars and stripes on the lunar surface.

Collins: Beautiful! Just beautiful!

Aldrin: Loud and clear, Houston.

MC: Roger, Buzz.

Aldrin: I'd just like to evaluate the various paces that a person can use, travelling on the lunar surface. I believe I'm in your field of view, is that right, Houston?

MC: That's affirmative, Buzz, You're in our field of view now.

Aldrin: All right. You do have to be rather careful, uh, to keep track of where your centre of mass is. Sometimes it takes about two or three paces to make sure that, uh, you've got your feet underneath you. About two to three or maybe four easy paces can bring you to a fairly smooth, uh, stop. Switch directions, it's like a football parry, you just have to put out to the side and tread a little bit.

So-called Kangaroo Hop. Does work but it seems that your forward ability is not quite as good as it is in the conventional one foot after another. Or saying what a main pace might be, the one that I'm using now, could get rather tiring after several hundred . . . But this may be a function of this suit, as well, as, uh, lack of gravity forces.

MC: Tranquility Base, this is Houston. Can we get both of you on the camera for a minute please?

Armstrong: Say again, Houston.

MC: Roger, we'd like to get both of you in the field of view of our camera for a minute. Neil, and Buzz, the president of the United States is in his office now and he'd like to say a few words to you, over.

Armstrong: That would be an honor.

MC: Go ahead, Mr. President, this is Houston out.

President Nixon: Hello, Neil and Buzz, I'm talking to you by telephone from the Oval Room at the White House. And this certainly has to be the most, historic telephone call ever made. I just can't tell you how proud we all are of what you've done. For every American who has to be the proudest day of our lives. And for people all over the world, I am sure they too join with America in recognizing what an immense feat this is.

Carol Mann Withstands Charge in Lady Carling

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — Carol Mann withstood charging Kathy Whitworth and steady Sharon Miller and won the $20,000 Lady Carling open golf tournament Sunday with a final-round 72 for a 54-hole total of 215.

Miss Whitworth and Miss Miller were two strokes back at 217, one over par on the 6,306-yard, rain-soaked Ridgewood Country Club course.

Miss Whitworth, the leading money winner, birdied the final two holes in her closing 71, and Miss Miller registered 36 pars on route to an even-par 72.

In grabbing the $3,000 first prize, Miss Mann won her third tournament this year and moved past Sandra Haynie into second place in the LPGA dollar derby. Miss Haynie finished well back at 225. The $2,666 second prize tie pushed Miss Whitworth's earnings this year to more than $30,000 and her career earnings over $250,000.

Rudy Turcotte Follows Brother to the Big Time

TORONTO (CP) — Young Rudy Turcotte is riding horses where the money is—in the United States—and his older brother, Ron, agrees. "You gotta go to the green," Ron says.

Rudy, 19, first came to Ontario last fall from Grand Falls, N.B., on his summer holidays and began racing competently.

Veteran jockey Pat Remillard took Rudy under his wing, just as he tutored both Ron and Noel Turcotte when they first came to Ontario.

"At this stage, he's better than either Ronnie or Noel," says Remillard.

To give Rudy a chance at better competition, Remillard released the youngster's contract to Al Scotti, a top trainer in New York and Florida, who pays Rudy a salary to ride all his horses and also allows him to ride freelance at times. Remillard receives a monthly fee.

Brother Ron thinks Rudy has made the right choice in going to the U.S.

"It's nice to be in Canada, but you gotta go for the green," he says. "I've been down here (New York) for six years now and each season, my earnings have won over $1,000,000. So figure it out. I'm in for roughly 10 per cent.

"Besides that, there's prestige. If you can make it in New York, you can ride any place because this is the biggest racing there is.

"It wouldn't be any different with a hockey player. He might be doing great in a senior league, maybe even making a good dollar. But unless he tried the NHL, he's never be satisfied—if he was any kind of a hockey player and had any pride in himself."

And Ron thinks Rudy is in capable hands in Scotti.

"This man Scotti taught Rudy an awful lot about riding and Pat showed him plenty, too, just as he did with me. Pat used to have him in the front room almost every day, showing him where he'd done things wrong or where a different move would have been better.

Other riders on Ontario tracks also helped Rudy but Ron says he isn't likely to get this help in the U.S.

"I'm not even sure I'll tell him anything after the way he started out. I mean how many guys have won with the first horse they ever rode in New York? Maybe he should be giving me pointers."

Rudy won his New York debut with Flying Gaucho, while Ron came in seventh in the same race at Aqueduct in New York.

Napanee Pair Wins CFB Golf Tourney

The golf scene was busy over the weekend as two tournaments were held.

At CFB Trenton a Mr. and Mrs. Tournament was run with Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Medd of Napanee winning the trophy.

Belleville winners were Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Wonnacott, Darf Mahoney, Norm Wilson, Fred Fisher, Steve Bowerman, Jack Glover, Doug Bannon, Bill Philip, Fred Hebden and Alex Ingram.

The Napanee Ladies' Field Day was held Saturday with Cookie Cartright of Kingston taking the low gross with a 78.

Belleville winners were Betty Ingram, Betty Wermaer, Audrey Moorman and Evr Campbell.

Fifth Place For Local Pair

Two local members of the Kinsmen Track and Field Club placed fifth in their races Saturday at the Central Ontario Juvenile and Junior Track and Field Championships in Etobicoke.

In the 100 metres, Juvenile division, Ralph Vandervoort placed fifth while his club-mate, Jim Sled came in fifth in his two events, the 100 and 200 metre dashes.

Toronto competitors dominated the meet as athletes from all over Central Ontario gathered in Etobicoke for the championships.

McCullough Wins Three

A record crowd was on hand at Riverview Speedway in Trenton Saturday to see Hugh McCullough take the checkered flag three times in as many races.

Hugh took his qualifying heat, the V-8 feature and the 15 lap event, to complete his successful night.

The six cylinder event was won by Sam Dingman while the special event, the six cylinder trophy race, was taken by Jerry Delosse who carried off the laurels and the cash.

Locals Win Pair

Belleville teams won two of three exhibition softball games from Peterborough, Saturday.

Saco defeated the Peterborough Bantams by a score of 6-3 while Belch Construction downed the Peewees by a similar score.

The loss was suffered by Belleville A.C. Travellers who dropped a 5-5 decision to the Peterborough Squirts.

Track Record Broken

Sunday's lunar landing was responsible for the small crowd that turned out at Brighton Speedway to see Pork Brown of Port Hope break a track record by running a lap in 18.8 seconds.

Bob Bebee of Toronto took the major part of the prize money by winning three races in his Flathead Ford 123.

The V-8 feature was captured by Hazlet Fuller of Whitby while the six cylinder class was won by Claude Harness.

Powerful Vehicle

The longest trip begins with the first step as the world's largest rocket is moved to its launching pad. The Saturn five rocket performed flawlessly last week, as it hurled the three man Apoll o crew off on their date with history.

Batting—Syd O'B pin, Red Sox, cracked a single, triple and home run leading Boston to a 6-5 victory over Detroit's Tigers.

Pitching—Jim Perry, Twins, earned two victories, hurling the final two innings of Minnesota's 18-inning 11-7 suspended game triumph and then coming back to shut out Seattle 4-0 in the regularly-scheduled game.

OFF TO EUROPE

CBC reporter Norman DePoe visited Belgium and France in May to prepare a report on planned ceremonies commemorating the 25th anniversary of D-Day.

A NEW NAME

MONTREAL (CP) — The railroad pavilion at Man and His World will be back this summer, with a new name—Locorama—and a new experience. Visitors will be able to climb aboard a locomotive and roar across Europe. Optical and high-fidelity acoustical effects, in a reproduction of an engine cab, give the illusion of high speed and power. A three-dimensional color landscape moves past the windscreen while a four-track recording provides typical train noises.

Marksmen Return Home After Bisley Conquest

BISLEY, England (CP) — After one of the most successful Canadian campaigns in Bisley history, Canada's shooters began heading home from the Commonwealth rifle meet during the weekend.

"It was beyond our wildest expectations," said Dr. J. L. (Johnnie) Johnston of Islington, Ont., commandant of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association contingent.

The commandant, medical director of the Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan, was especially exuberant over the association's feat Friday in winning three big team competitions and a couple of lesser ones.

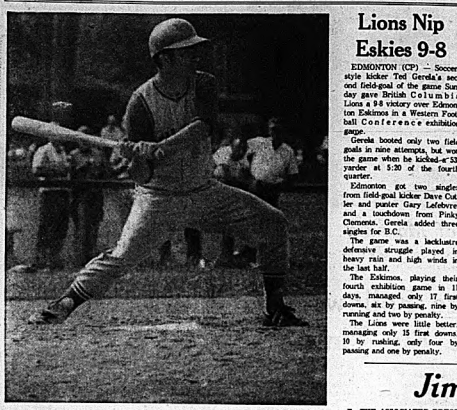
No Canadian team in all the previous 99 Bisley meets had ever won the Kolapore, Mackinnon and Overseas Trophies, the top team awards.

The lesser trophies were the Zambia and the Dominion that go with aggregates from some of these three matches.

The last time the triple was accomplished was in 1965 when it was done by Rhodesia, no longer in the Bisley meet.

Canada's services team, most of them members of the 3rd battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, from Valcartier, Que., won the Canada's Mobile Command a new inter-unit championship trophy for the best all-round team in service-rifle and submachine-gun shooting in a variety of distances and positions. The Canadians soundly trounced the best of the British services.

Apart from this, the servicemen took nine of the first 20 places in the top-rated service-rifle championship.



They also took two major individual events as Sgt. Jake Chaston, a Winnipeg airman, won a challenge cup for the best aggregate in deliberate-aim shoots and Sgt. Jacques Dugas of Neufchatel, Que., a Van Doo, scored a possible 50 to win the sitting event for service rifles.

The cadet team of 17- and 18-year-olds missed out on team wins but placed two qualifiers in the select "Queen's Hundred" who shot it out for the Queen's Prize Saturday.

They were Bill Brereton of Winnipeg and Steve Tibbetts of Saint John, N.B. Brereton and his father, Dr. Don Brereton, also won the Families Trophy for the best father-and-son combination.

Top Canadian in the Queen's was Don Keiser, an RCMP officer from Powell River, B.C., who had two points less than the winner and was counted down to fourth place.

Arnold Parks of Saint John, N.B., last year's Canadian winner, was eliminated in Saturday's semi-final.

A Big Hit

Newcomer Jackie Elliott was a big hit Sunday. Shortstop Elliott rapped out three singles and a double and drove in a pair of runs for the Belleville Joyces during the club's 14-13 EOBA Senior loss to Kingston. (Story on page 11)

"I don't much care about winning." Hill said after winning the sudden-death four-play playoff. "I care about playing well," Hill, 32, a pro since 1959, beat Tommy Jacobs, R. H. Sikes and Gay Brewer for his third triumph in his last four starts. The victory put him in the top spot on the money winning list at $129,433.

Lions Nip Eskies 9-8

EDMONTON (CP) — Soccer-style kicker Ted Gerela's second field-goal of the game Sunday gave British Columbia Lions a 9-8 victory over Edmonton Eskimos in a Western Football Conference exhibition game.

Gerela booted only two field goals in nine attempts, but won the game when he kicked-a-53-yarder at 5:20 of the fourth quarter.

Edmonton got two singles from field-goal kicker Dave Cutler and punter Gary Lefebvre, and a touchdown from Pinky Clements. Gerela added three singles for B.C.

The game was a lacklustre defensive struggle played in heavy rain and high winds in the last half.

The Eskimos, playing their fourth exhibition game in 11 days, managed only 17 first downs, six by passing, nine by running and two by penalty.

The Lions were little better, managing only 15 first downs, 10 by rushing, only four by passing and one by penalty.

Fosbury, Beamon Disappoint

U.S. Women End Drought

LOS ANGELES (CP) — The United States defeated the Soviet Union and the Commonwealth in a three-sided track meet which ended here Saturday night, but disappointing performances by some of the U.S. stars whittled down the U.S. lead in the final day.

The high point for the U.S. was the victory of the American women's team over the Soviet squad. It marked the first time in eight meetings between them that the American women have won.

Although their victory wasn't decided until the final event of the two-session competition, the U.S. women finished with 70 points to 60 for the Russians.

The U.S. men also outscored the Russians, finishing with 125 points to 110 for the U.S.S.R.

In the separate competition with the Commonwealth, the U.S. men won 137-98 and the women 81-54.

The U.S. men won 12 events during the competition, the Russians seven and the Commonwealth three. The American women's team won seven events to four for the Russians and two for the Commonwealth.

Under the arrangements for the meet, the Russians were not involved in a dual meet with the Commonwealth.

Main disappointments for the U.S. were Bob Beamon, the long jump world record holder, who finished fourth in his event, javelin star Mark Murro, who finished last and Dick Fosbury who developed the jump known as the Fosbury Flop but was last here.

But the U.S. aped to triumph on the wins of their short distance runners, John Carlos and Barbara Farrell won doubles by coming first in the 100- and 200-metre men's and women's events.

The Commonwealth team suffered a blow Saturday when it lost one of its top hopes, Ron Clarke of Australia. He was forced to withdraw because of bruised feet from his victory in the 10,000 metres the previous night.

The games saw no world records established.

Jim Perry Too Much for Pilots

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minnesota Twins, after struggling to a 16-inning standoff against Seattle Pilots Saturday night before an American League curfew rule suspended play, turned to pitcher Jim Perry Sunday and he quickly produced results.

Perry pitched two scoreless innings in the resumption of the suspended game and doubled to launch a four-run burst in the 18th that beat Seattle 11-7.

Then he started, and finished, the regularly scheduled game, scattering five hits as the Twins blanked the Pilots 4-0 for a four-game lead in the AL's Western Division.

The two victories, which gave Perry an 11-4 season mark, moved the Twins another length ahead of second-place Oakland Athletics who divided a doubleheader with California Angels, winning 9-6 after a 7-3 first-game loss.

Elsewhere, Boston Red Sox downed Baltimore Orioles Eastern Division leaders, 6-3; Kansas City Royals swept a twin bill from Chicago White Sox 8-6 and 3-2 in 11 innings; Detroit Tigers edged Cleveland Indians 3-2 before bowing to the Indians 5-4 in 10 innings and New York Yankees shaded Washington Senators 3-2 in 11 innings.

Saturday, Detroit dumped Cleveland 10-4, Chicago nipped Kansas City 5-4, Oakland beat California 3-2, Boston defeated Baltimore 5-3 and Washington and New York split a doubleheader, the Yankees winning the first 9-0 and losing the second 4-0.

The Twins and Pilots were deadlocked 7-7 when Saturday night's marathon was suspended because of the 1 a.m. curfew. When play resumed Sunday, Perry took over on the mound for Minnesota and rookie John Gelnar did the pitching for the home club.

The tie stood until the 18th, when Perry laned a one-out double. Ted Uhlaender beat out an infield single. Rod Carew walked, filling the bases, and Gelnar balked, scoring Perry with the go-ahead run. Chuck Manuel's two-run double and Rick Renick's sacrifice fly capped the rally.

With both pitching staffs depleted during Saturday night's endurance test, Perry and Gelnar also got the starting assignments in the regular game.

Perry again stopped the Pilots cold, but Gelnar was tagged for bases-empty homers by George Mitterwald and Cesar Tovar before being lifted in the eighth.

Home runs by Aurelio Rodriguez and Jim Spencer, coupled with four Oakland errors, helped the Angels win the opener. But Reggie Jackson smacked his 37th homer and two doubles in the nightcap and Sal Bando and Danny Cater hit second-inning homers as the Athletics bounced back.

Jackson's wallop put him six games ahead of the 1961 pace of Roger Maris, who set the homer record with 61.

Syd O'Brien rapped a homer, triple and single, knocking in three runs, as the Red Sox completed a three-game sweep over the Orioles. O'Brien's two-run triple in the eighth keyed a three-run burst that offset a three-run Baltimore rally in the ninth, giving Ray Culp his 14th victory in 20 decisions.

Perry and Astronauts Make It Together

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The way Gaylord Perry swings a bat he stands as much chance of hitting a home run as a ... oh ... as a man does of walking on the moon.

Perry and astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin made it together Sunday. The San Francisco right-hander tugged his first career homer and pitched the Giants to a 7-3 victory over Los Angeles, tightening up the National League's Western Division race while the astronauts took a moon stroll that lightened up the universe.

Perry's third-inning homer was the first hit off Claude Osteen and he shook the Dodger pitcher that he walked Bobby Bonds, Bonds stole second and then scored as Osteen threw the ball into centre field on an attempted pickoff.

Later, Willie McCovey hammered his 30th homer and Willie Mays tagged a single and double, running his career hit total to 2,885 and into 16th place on the all-time list.

Elsewhere in the National League Sunday, Atlanta Braves slithered San Diego Padres 10-3, Chicago Cubs took a doubleheader from Philadelphia Phillies 1-0 and 6-1 and Montreal Expos split with New York Mets, winning 3-2 before losing 4-3. Houston at Cincinnati and St. Louis at Pittsburgh were postponed by rain.

In Saturday's games, Montreal shaded the Mets 5-4, Cincinnati outslugged Houston 10-9, Phillies edged the Cubs 3-4, Pittsburgh nipped the Cardinals 3-2 and San Diego whipped Atlanta 4-1.

Perry's homer was his seventh base hit this season and raised his batting average to .169. Actually, Gaylord has been a lot of a slump this season. He batted .113 last year, .143 in 1967 and had a career high of .186 in 1966. Then the numbers dip again to .156 in 1965 and a disastrous .054 in 1964.

The way he started Sunday, it didn't look like he'd be around long enough to get a swing. The Giants bunched four hits for three quick runs but Perry hung on and only allowed two hits after that.

The victory left the third-place Giants just one game back of first place Atlanta and three percentage points short of the runnerup Dodgers in the West.

SEA OF TRANQUILITY, MOON — Wearing United States Air Force colors, Neil A. Armstrong Sunday night broke the established men's record for the hop, step, and jump by about 40 feet.

Armstrong — who runs out of the Cape Kennedy Lunar Track and Field Club, Florida — also fought off a challenge by teammate Edwin Aldrin, Jr. to set a new mark for the 422,400,000-yard dash with a time of 102 hours, 45 minutes, 42 seconds.

Soviet Union officials immediately disputed both records, claiming track conditions were not up to Olympic standards.

The Russian team — losers to Armstrong and Aldrin by 422,400,000 yards in the 422,400,000-yard sprint — said they will not recognize the records until they themselves have established them.

A spokesman from the Soviet Embassy in Washington said he has positive proof that both American runners are in violation of the Olympic Code by virtue of being paid by the United States Air Force for their athletic endeavors.

Informed sources close to President Richard Nixon interpreted the official American reaction as "Nuts to them."

U.S. track experts admitted they had some reservations before race time as to how greatly climatic conditions would affect their team's performance.

But a lack of wind, rain, and air eased fears that IOC president Avery Brundage would declare the records invalid.

Site of the event — the first global meet ever held by moonlight — was the Sea of Tranquility. It marked the first recorded incidence of lake-walking for some years.

A graduate of Purdue, the 38-year-old Armstrong is also known as a distinguished flyer. The native Ohioan, whose relatives hold his pilot's licence since age 16, before he had a driving permit.

He and 39-year-old teammate Buzz Aldrin usually fly to meets in which they are competing.

Aldrin's career since graduating third in his class from West Point has been relatively routine.

He was born in Montclair, New Jersey, son of the former Marion Moon.

Almost overshadowed by the Armstrong-Aldrin feat was an all-time marathon solo glider flight of some 23 hours' duration by Michael Collins in the aircraft Columbia.

Collins was unaware of his achievement, noting that he had only been hanging around waiting to fly Armstrong and Aldrin back to the Lunar club's Florida headquarters.

The threesome is expected to return home Thursday to accolades only previously exceeded by those accorded such all-time sporting greats as Joe Louis, Otto Graham, and Mickey Mantle.

A jubilant U.S. spokesman chortled: "Today the world, tomorrow . . . ! "

Joyces Lose Despite 20-hit Barrage

KINGSTON — Outstanding stickwork by the Belleville Joyces' sixth, seventh and eighth batters boosted the club's future outlook, but went to waste as the Kingston Lakeview Centennials racked a trio of Joyces' pitchers for 18 hits en route to a 14-12 win over the visitors Sunday afternoon at the Cricket Field.

Bill Barberstock, playing in only his fourth game since joining the Joyces in mid-season, Jackie Elliott playing his first baseball in nearly seven years, and Terry Wellesley, who missed the Joyces' last three games, combined for a total of 12 hits, nine r.b.i's, and eight runs scored, to pace the Joyces' 20-hit attack.

All three collected four hits and had their biggest day of the season. In fact, Elliott had his biggest day in many a year. The former Belleville Kenmore Intermediate player was playing for the first time since the summer of 1962. The long layoff apparently didn't hurt the 29-year-old veteran though.

Elliott rapped out three singles and a double in five at-bats, drove in a pair of runs and scored twice. "I was just trying to meet the ball; not kill it," Elliott said after the game. "I'm a bit out of shape and it was a long tiring day — I can hardly walk now."

Wellesley, just returned from the contact world of pro football during his tryout with the Ottawa Roughriders of the CFL, carried the contact motif over to the baseball field. He counted a three-run double and a two-run single among his four hits in five plate appearances and scored twice.

The centrefielder doubled both his hit and run production and his five r.b.i's. boosted his season's total to six.

First sacker Barberstock also doubled his season's hit production. Barberstock slammed a triple and three singles, drove in two runs and scored four, to mark the first time he has crossed home plate in a Joyces' uniform.

The top part of the Joyces batting order also did its share Sunday. Leadoff man Carl Boomhower drew four walks, second place hitter Pat Anastase slammed a pair of doubles and drove in a run, and fourth and fifth place hitters Larry Mavety and John McKibbon had a pair of singles each.

Gary Goyer, who batted third, and Rodger Hunter, who relieved left fielder McKibbon in the fifth inning, each singled to round out Belleville's attack.

Pitching — or rather the lack of it — led to the Joyces downfall. Starter Bill Latchford, who had's pitched since June 28th, was driven from the mound by the Centennials five-hit, five-run fifth inning rally early in the game at 7-7.

Dave Thenkston came on to get the final out in the fifth frame and end the Kingston rally, but he gave up six hits and seven runs over the next three innings before giving way to Joe Hastings in the bottom of the eighth frame.

Hastings allowed a double and single apiece, just enough for Kingston to bring around the two men Theakston left on with the tying and winning runs.

In all the trio of Belleville pitchers gave up 18 hits. They walked four men and fanned five, but were hindered by four errors afield.

Starter Jerry Harness, who was relieved in the fifth inning but came back to the mound again in the seventh, picked up the win for Kingston. Terry Speagle and Ted Paradis both pitched following Harness' first stint on the mound. The Kingston trio struck out six men and issued 11 free passes.

The win was an important one for the Centennials and gave them two wins in three weekend games plus a share of first place in the EOBA Senior loop.

Saturday afternoon Kingston downed Port Hope 11-7 and Saturday evening they dropped a 7-3 decision to the Leaside Maple Leafs.

Both Kingston and Belleville now sport 7-5 records, thus their Wednesday night encounter at the Belleville Fairgrounds will be fore sole possession of first place. Game time is 8 p.m.

Cash Princess Runner-up Again

Cash Princess may not be the biggest winner in local harness racing circles, but she's hardly ever out of the money.

That was the case again Saturday night at the Fairgrounds when Al Vance piloted Gord Irwin Junior's seven-year-old bay mare to second place in the featured eighth race of the Quinte Riding and Driving Club's nine-heat harness racing card.

Saturday night's second place finish was Cash Princess' third straight second place performance at the Quinte Riding and Driving Club's weekly harness racing meet. And the week before that she captured the featured eighth race to further the consistency of her performances.

This week it was Junta Lad who beat out Cash Princess. He covered the mile in 2:09.2 — the fastest time of the night.

The biggest payoff for a win came in the fifth heat when Country Mite driven by Ben Wemp paced the mile in 2:13 and returned $8.10 for a two dollar bet.

Roy Buchanan topped the drivers by winning three races for the second time this year. He crossed the wire ahead of the field with Borsec in the third heat, Magic Tom Lee in the sixth and his own Bridgit in the ninth and final race of the night.

Baseball Minors Win Eight of Ten

The minor baseball leagues of the area were filled with activity over the weekend with Belleville teams having a big weekend by taking eight victories in ten games.

In EOBA action Sunday, Belleville took both ends of a doubleheader from Oshawa by scores of 7-6 and 9-1 after losing out to Peterborough 6-4 Friday.

The Peewees were also successful as the Belleville Trainmen downed Port Hope 11-7 on Saturday and then went on to defeat Whitby 5-3 on Sunday.

In the Tyke division Booth's T.V. edged Cobourg 11-10 as Belleville held of a last inning rally to hold on to win.

A Midget "A" contest saw another Belleville team, the Lions, score in the last inning to defeat Cobourg 3-2. Stan Brooks was the winning pitcher as he gave up five hits, two walks and struck out nine during the nine inning duel. It was Paul Wolfe's single that brought the winning run across the plate and ended the ball game.

Merchants Defeated

The Brooklin Redmen defeated the Quinte Merchants 19-12 in an Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior "A" contest Saturday night.

Elmer Tran scored five goals to lead the Redmen while Neil Armstrong added three more.

Merchants scorers were Kim Guerin, Bill Armour, Jim Hickey, and Bobby McCarthy with two goals each and Doug Aylward, Larry Heffernan, Don Grahame, and Mike Self with singletons.

League Leaders Tighten Grip

Shannonville tightened its grip on first place with the help of Latta as they defeated Plane's Concrete and Latta downed second place Read 3-1.

In the Shannonville game Plane's Concrete was trounced 10-3 with Dave Lewis striking out five and walking two to pick up the win.

The loss was charged to Ted Abrams who allowed 13 hits.

Shannonville hits came from Bud Hill who had a double and a single and Larry Marshall with three singles.

In the Read-Latta contest Latta scored two of their three runs in the fourth inning.

Doug Green was the winner allowing five hits, three walks and striking out seven. His rival, Harold Pascoe, was not too far behind as he gave up seven hits, and three walks while fanning seven.

The big hit for Latta was the pitcher Doug Green who hammered out a double and a triple. Other hits were added by Terry Casselman and Bob Farrell.

The Car Buyers Problems:

HOW TO SURVIVE A FRONT END COLLISION

Jim Patterson

First of all- here is what you're up against in terms of impact:

If your car was to hit head on into a barrier at 30 mph you would hit with the same force as if your car dropped head first from a four-storey building.

If your car was to collide equivalent to a drop from a nine-storey building. At 50 mph you would hit with the impact of a 20-storey hill. At 70 mph you would hit with the impact of a fall from 34 storeys high—a skyscraper.

Automobile manufacturers have gone to great lengths to make the modern cars more shock absorbing with some success. Is this going to soften the blow if you have a front end smash?

Very little — unless you fasten your seat belt. At 100 mph with your belt unfastened, the collapsible front end helps not at all since tests show the unbelted passenger will hit the windshield before the car has stopped at 100 mph also.

In other words, the expensive front end safety improvements which you are paying for in a new car are largely wasted unless you make use of your inexpensive seat belt. Drivers who think they could brace themselves with their arms and legs would have to withstand 2400 pounds on the arms and 3000 pounds on the legs in a high speed collision.

Buckle up.

Richie Allen Returns to Phillies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Richie Allen of Philadelphia Phillies of the National League was reinstated Sunday after 26 days under indefinite suspension without pay.

Allen missed 29 games and at his reported $80,000-a-year salary lost more than $11,000 in pay.

He was supposed to show up at Connie Mack Stadium for a meeting at 9 a.m. Sunday, but did not appear until shortly before 11 a.m. The meeting between the slugging infielder and Phils' manager Bob Skinner was set up by Allen's business manager, Clem Caporozzi, and Phils' owner Bob Carpenter.

Carpenter was asked if Allen understood he would have to conform to all of the club rules.

"We discussed all phases and I think he'll make every effort," Carpenter said.

Skinner also was asked if there was any mention of a trade for Allen in the future.

"You can't predict the future," Skinner said. "When fall comes around Bob Carpenter, John Quinn (general manager) and I will evaluate the Phillies."

Skinner also was asked whether Allen could get back the money he lost during the suspension by his future achievements.

"We didn't discuss any of the finances," Skinner said. "Richie understands he was suspended without pay."

A Phils spokesman said Allen was expected to leave for Houston with the Phils on Thursday, but emphasized he would not play until he was in shape.

Allen was suspended June 24 when he failed to show up for a doubleheader against the New York Mets at Shea Stadium.

Skinner said in a terse statement: "Richie Allen is reinstated as of today. He will not play since he is not in shape to play. It would not be fair to him.

Astronaut Neil Armstrong

China's People Are Exception

Herding Reindeer or Tracking Luna, World Listens to History Being Made

LONDON (CP) — Laplanders pasturing their reindeer listened on transistor radios. Japanese stayed up all night to watch on television. Millions around the world hung on every word from the two U.S. astronauts walking on the moon.

In some countries many remained unaware. Communist China, with one-quarter of the world's population, did not broadcast news about Apollo 11, nor did North Vietnam or North Korea.

As Neil Armstrong's boots scuffed the lunar dust, it was just before sunrise in most of Europe and a crowd of 2,000 still clustered around a giant television screen in London's Trafalgar Square.

At the Jodrell Bank radio observatory near Manchester, England, Sir Bernard Lovell, Britain's leading space expert, stopped tracking the progress of the Soviet craft Luna XV over the moon to watch Armstrong.

"I'm just speechless with amazement," Lovell said. "There is nothing more I can say than that it is absolutely fantastic. One can scarcely believe it is taking place as one of hundreds of churches pealed through the night. Laplanders sees it."

In Vietnam, Americans gathered around radios at midmorning to hear the broadcast of the walk.

Parents Comment

He Was Pleased: Mother Same Old Neil: Father

WAPAKONETA, Ohio (AP) — "Great! Great! Great!"

That's the way the happy proud parents of Neil Armstrong felt about their son's historic steps on the moon.

"We could tell he was pleased and tickled," Viola Armstrong said early today.

"It was the same old Neil," Stephen Armstrong said.

Mrs. Armstrong said she had feared the moon crust might be unsafe.

"I was worried that they might sink in too deep. But, no, they didn't, so it was wonderful."

Asked at her home if she could recall her son's first words upon stepping onto the moon, she thought for a moment.

"Oh dear, My mind has gone blank," she said. But then she remembered the gist of the message—"that's one small step for man but one giant leap for mankind."

When Eagle touched down Sunday, Mrs. Armstrong exclaimed:

"Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

"There he is," Mrs. Armstrong said as her son first appeared on the television screen.

The 7,000 townspeople plan no celebration until Thursday when the Apollo 11 crew makes its splashdown and is safely aboard the recovery aircraft carrier Hornet.

TV Coverage On Until Six

NEW YORK (AP) — Scheduled Apollo coverage on the three major U.S. television networks all times EDT:

Monday: CBS and NBC, conclusion of 31 hours continuous coverage through 6 p.m.; ABC, conclusion of 20 hours continuous coverage through 6 p.m.; 7:30-8:30, special.

In Canada, CBC concludes 32 hours of continuous coverage Monday 6 p.m.; CTV concludes 31 hours of continuous coverage at 6 p.m.

Girl Tries To Phone Moon

WOODSTOCK (CP) — An 11-year-old Woodstock girl tried to call the moon Sunday night—collect.

Shortly after President Richard Nixon spoke by telephone in Washington to astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin (Buzz) Aldrin on the moon, Jane McIsaac dialled a long-distance telephone operator and said:

"I'd like to put through a collect call to Neil Armstrong on the moon."

"Oh, would you?" the operator said.

"Well," Jane insisted, "the president just did it."

"Maybe if you were the president you could do it," the operator said.

Proud! Proud!

Neil Armstrong's mother clasps her hands as she views the astronaut's performance on the moon.

'Go for Descent' Started Venture

HOUSTON (AP) — "Eagle, this is Columbia—they just gave you a 'go' for powered descent."

Eagle: Our position check downrange shows us to be a little off.

MC: You are go to continue power descent. It's looking good. Everything's looking good here, over.

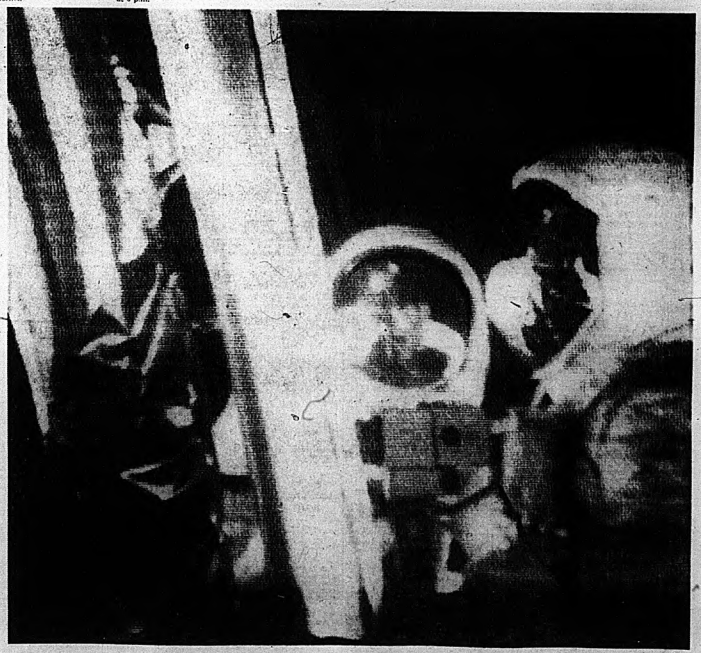
Eagle: I'm getting a little fluctuation in . . .

MC: Looking good.

Eagle: You're go to continue power descent, you're go to continue power descent. You're looking good.

Eagle: Altitude lights out. Got the earth right out our front window.

MC: You're looking great, Eagle, you're looking great. You're go for landing.



Eagle: Roger, understand. Go for landing. 3,000 feet . . . 2,000 feet . . . Okay, looks like, it's holding.

MC: Roger. We've got good data. You're looking great at eight minutes . . . Eagle looking great, you're go. . . .

Eagle: 540 feet . . . 400 feet . . . coming down nicely . . . 200 feet; 10.0 feet . . . 75 feet, still looking good. Drifting to the right a little. Okay. Engines stopped.

Mc: We copy you down, Eagle.

Eagle: Houston, uh, Tranquility Base here. The eagle has landed.

We Came in Peace for All Mankind

The first man to walk on the moon, astronaut Neil Armstrong stands beside the lunar module and reads a plaque which tells the world "we came in peace for all mankind." Armstrong stepped onto the moon's surface at 10.56 Sunday night and was followed 20 minutes later by his partner Eugene Aldrin.

TO LET

YOU NEED ONE WHEN YOU'RE LOST !

One of the handiest tools for hikers and campers is the compass. The earliest ones were invented around 1200 A.D. and floated in a bowl of liquid. Now "dry" compasses we use today was invented around 1879 by an English man, Lord Kelvin.

Take the right direction when you need to sell some no longer used things . . . dial 962-9171 to place an inexpensive Want Ad and ask for Classified . . . it's the handiest tool you can use !

Kitchener by bus on the week-end cannot ever forget their visit while in Kitchener.

Reaching the market at ten o'clock, they were told that they should have been there five hours earlier when it opened, and by ten many farmers had sold out and gone home.

The group was amazed by the quantity and variety of produce for sale. Mrs. William Raycroft, chairman of the committee which made the arrangements, said that although this was her third visit, she still could not fully appreciate it.

As well as visiting the market, the group also had a chance to do some shopping and see some historical sites.

Astronauts Took First Steps on Moon Like Boys Testing Ice

HOUSTON (AP) — They took their first steps on the moon cautiously, like prudent boys testing the first ice of winter on a country pond.

When first they walked, they walked carefully and slowly, leaning forward, plodding heavily like tired old policemen on a beat.

As they gained confidence, they walked faster, now with a slow bounce in the one-sixth gravity of the moon. And then they ran and their strides were longer than on earth and their shoes seemed suspended off the strange lunar surface, with something of the floating quality of figures on slow motion film.

When they were still, they seemed frozen, and they looked forward like puppets in a lunar form of attention when President Nixon spoke to them from earth.

All the while, the earth was "bright and beautiful" above the earth was above them.

In the distance, the lunar surface looked pocked and leathery like the back of a dead alligator. Closer up, it looked like rubble, like earth leveled roughly after a disaster, dead.

They looked ghostlike on the soundless, silent, mostly colorless moon. Over the curving horizon, only one and a half miles away on a planet smaller than earth, there was the blackness of space and infinity. The foreground was starkly lighted by the sun and the men and their vehicle cast long shadows.

It was dawn on the moon and a dawn in the history of man.

Armstrong extended his left foot onto the moon.

"That's one small step for man, a giant leap for mankind," he said. The first words were fine. History would be content.

Now for the scientists: "The surface is fine and powdery. It clings like charcoal to the soles of my shoes. You go down only about an inch."

And for the doctors: "There seems to be no difficulty in moving around."

And for the geologists and the biologists and the others seeking the age of the solar system and the secret of life he immediately began collecting "contingency" samples of rock. "Contingency" in case he had to leave in a hurry.

And Buzz Aldrin came down, the second man on the surface of the moon. And together they walked and ran like kids at recess and then like men with the responsibility of the ages they went to work.

They gathered rocks, they set up a foil panel to measure the solar wind, they installed a seismometer to probe the interior of the moon, they set up a small mirror to reflect laser beams from earth, to measure the 250,000 miles between the two planets to an accuracy of six inches. And they planted the flag of their country on the still face of the moon.

Mother Earth kept reminding them of their time left on the moon with calm, sweet tones of a relatively confident mother telling the kids about the dinner deadline.

Finally, Aldrin to earth: "Anything for us before I head up?

Earth: "Negative. Head on up the ladder, Buzz."

Buzz was first up. Armstrong stayed a few minutes longer, carefully guiding the hoisting of the rock boxes like the last pirate off an island with a load of gold. Then Armstrong climbed up, the captain being the last to return from alien land.

And now the moon was a desolate again. All that remained was the landing craft, looking like a surrealistic crab, and the scientific instruments, and the American flag frozen in arrested motion, and in the stillness the mystery of the moon began to end for poets and lovers.

A Wife's Reaction

Evening Unbelievably Perfect

HOUSTON (AP) — The proud Apollo 11 wives struggled to find enough adjectives to express their feelings for their men on the moon.

"The evening has been unbelievably perfect," Mrs. Neil Armstrong said today after watching the moon explorations of her husband and Edwin Aldrin. "It is an honor and privilege to share with my husband, the crew, the Manned Spacecraft Center, the American public and all of mankind this magnificent experience of the beginning of lunar exploration."

Earlier, Mrs. Armstrong expressed her feelings much more simply. "I was tremendously excited," she said.

"It was hard to think it was real until the men actually moved," said Mrs. Aldrin. "I felt I was looking at another simulation."

After the moon touchdown Mrs. Aldrin said she wept "because I was so happy."

"I thought it was fantastically marvellous," said Mrs. Michael Collins, whose husband flew a moon orbit in the command capsule while the two other astronauts visited the lunar surface.

"Don't you think he is with them then in spirit?" Mrs. Collins replied when asked if her husband was disappointed because he was not in the landing party.

All Apollo families planned to sleep late today before the next critical phase, blastoff from the moon.

Mrs. Armstrong did not consider the moon landing the greatest moment of her life.

"That was when we were married," she said.

The astronauts' children shared in Sunday's excitement, and in the praise of their fathers.

"It was pretty exciting," said 12-year-old Ricky Armstrong. "I'm proud of daddy."

"It was very exciting," said 11-year-old Andy Aldrin. Had Andy any ambition to become an astronaut?

"Oh Lord, I couldn't go through this twice," Mrs. Aldrin answered.

Good Luck, Neil !

Mrs. Neil Armstrong keeps her fingers crossed today as she awaits 1.55 blastoff from the moon of her husband and his space mate Eugene Aldrin.

Pope Hails Feat

Pope Paul hailed the Apollo 11 astronauts as "conquerors of the moon." Above the Pope is shown viewing through telescope the lunar area where the astronauts landed. The Pope was at a summer retreat at Castel Gandolfo, Italy, where he followed the lunar landing on television. (AP Photo).

Right Words Needed

HOUSTON (AP) — It is the habit of earthmen, in time of need, to turn to his clergyman for guidance.

The world's second moon man is no different.

Several weeks ago, Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. sought out his minister. His problem: To find the right words for when he steps onto the moon and to come to grips with the meaning of it all.

"We just talked about it in general," Rev. M. Dean Woodruff of the Webster, Tex., Presbyterian Church said about his meeting with the spaceman several weeks before Apollo 11 rocketed into space.

"He didn't ask me to help him write a speech," the minister added, "but I knew he was thinking about what he would say."

Aldrin is an elder of the Webster church.

Woodruff said that during their meeting Aldrin asked him to consider some ideas from scholars about the spiritual and philosophical significance of man's first moon landing.

The report given Aldrin, the minister said, is an exploration of "the mythic dimension of man." It notes that science is the basis of a new civilization, apart from the old self-sufficient cultural groupings.

The moon landing could be a force to join men together in space, Woodruff told Aldrin.

Two Men Are Charged With Capital Murder

ST. BONIFACE, Man. (CP) — Two men have been charged with capital murder in the slaying of a 26-year-old St. Boniface policeman late Friday night, after he had left his control car to investigate a robbery.

A police spokesman said Saturday night a third unidentified man is being questioned in connection with the robbery and the death of Const. Leonard Shakespeare.

Daniel Crab, 37, of Winnipeg and Clifford Wickett Lavrey, 32, of Vancouver are to appear in court today

In answer to an alarm about 11 p.m. from a small supermarket at a shopping centre in this Greater Winnipeg community, Const. Shakespeare and his partner Const. Lyn Giles, 37, pulled into the lot just in time to block the exit of a taxi-cab at the door of the store.

As Const. Shakespeare moved toward the cab,' he was 'felled by a bullet. Eye-witnesses said later he was shot again by one of the fleeing gunmen.

Const. Giles supplied his revolver after one of the men who fled behind the store to the

Around the Cat

Belleville lawn bowlers have brought home several prizes after a busy week on the greens throughout the district.

On Wednesday afternoon a mixed trebles tournament was held on the local greens with 14 rinks from Kingston, Trenton and Belleville in play and a rink from the Belleville Club of John Sager, Marg Fairburn with Jack Avery as skip won the tournament. The two-game high score was won by a rink from Kingston of Doris Moore, Mary and Dick Edney. Another Kingston rink skipped by George Tulloch won the second-game high, while a rink from Belleville of Millie Wright, Phyllis Graham and William VanTassel won the one-game high.

At Kingston on Saturday, 22 men's trebles rinks from Belleville, Trenton, Stirling, Peterborough, Perth and Kingston competed and Belleville rinks came away with most of the honors. The second three-game high was won by a rink of Roy Hall, William VanTassel with Percy Graham as skip, while the two-game high was won by a Belleville rink of Gordon Picken, Jerry Hyde Jr. and Jerry Hyde Sr. as skip. The one-game high was won by another Belleville rink of Bob Semple, Wally Lavergne with Bill Fuller as skip. Two other rinks of Ken Soble, Herb McIntyre with Walter Elliott as skip and Jack Tory, Jack Avery and Orlo Smith from Belleville competed.

At the same time a trebles tournament for women was held with 16 rinks competing. A rink of Millie Wright, Phyllis Graham with Millie Smith as skip won two games but not high enough to figure in the prize list. Rinks were present from Peterborough, Smiths Falls, Belleville, Kingstch, Trenton and Ottawa.

The district chairman's tournament will be held at the Belleville greens on Wednesday afternoon. The money derived from this tourney is used for expenses to run the district business and it is to be hoped that a large entry will be on hand. It will be a men's doubles tournament.

On Saturday the zone titles for rinks, doubles, singles and Colts will be held and Belleville will have two entries. In the doubles Johnny Sager and Wally Lavergne will compete while in the Colts, Bob Semple, Owen Gray with Frank Morrell will be in hand. The draw-starts at nine o'clock in the morning and continues all day.

On Tuesday afternoon a women's trebles tournament will be played. On Thursday afternoon the tea hostesses were Nora Kyle, Dorothy Price, Edna Jackman and Winnie Smith. There was no bowling.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"
By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.

Be careful. Don't offer yourself as a subject to be hypnotized by just anyone. In several columns I have warned against the potential dangers of taking hypnotism as a fun-game. It is serious business.

Therefore, I read with interest, a report recently sent me from the University of Kansas on the subject. Two of the university faculty members addressed a meeting on the problems of hypnosis for entertainment illegal.

For example, Dr. Erika Fromm, professional lecturer in the Department of Psychology says: "There are certain people who should not be hypnotized — Mainly the pre-psychotic or psychotic because they are in danger of being overwhelmed by their unconscious.

"Therefore, it is absolutely necessary that the hypnotist be somebody who knows something about psychiatry, medical psychology and that we eventually get laws banning stage hypnosis."

Time does not to say: "They don't know who should be hypnotized and who should not. One should respect a person's defenses and one never should force a patient or hypnotize someone for whom it might be dangerous."

And Dr. Frederick P. Zuspan, Professor of Gynecology and Obstetrics concurs with her. He has often used hypnosis to alleviate pain. He feels that people who are well compensated (emotionally) and have a good relationship and understanding with the hypnotist normally respond well. However, he says: "When I find a deviation from this, at least as an obstetrician-gynecologist, I back off a bit, send them to a psychiatrist and a psychologist to tangle with the more technical problems of hypnosis. Most often when such problems occur, I would decide not to hypnotize.

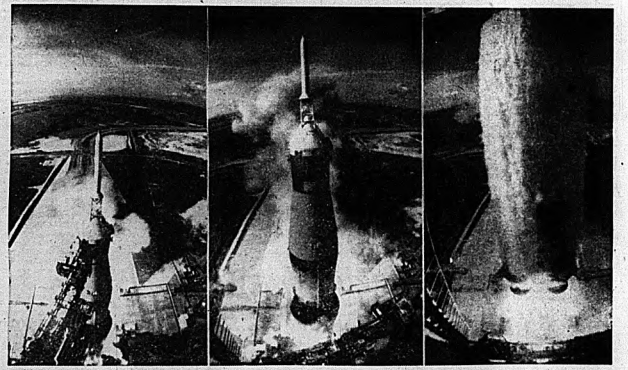
People have many misconceptions about hypnosis. I think you will be better informed if you take the time to read the following:

* A person in hypnosis is not totally unconscious and do-

Hypnotism Is Dangerous If Done One Not Qualified

by a trained clinical hypnotist who is qualified and can be of value in controlling pain.

* Auto - hypnosis, as regular hypnosis, should be done only under the guidance of an expert in medicine or psychology. Otherwise, a pre-psychotic who gets himself into an auto-hypnotic state can become terribly overwhelmed by his unconscious.



* Hypnoanalysis and hypnotherapy are being used more frequently to treat neuroses, without forcing a patient to bring forth material he cannot face.

What it all adds up to is that hypnotism is a tool. When used with care it may be quite helpful, but when one uses it carelessly, it is potentially harmful.

History's Longest Long Distance Call

President Nixon speakes directly from White House desk as Apollo 11 astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin stand by American flag, just unfurled. Photograph from television screen was taken at instant of action; instantly relay of historic event was awesome sequel to lunar landing.

World History in the Making

This picture sequence showing the Saturn V rocket with the Apollo 11 space craft on its nose starting on its journey into space was made by a remote camera attached to the 360-foot level of the tower. At left, the firing of the rocket begins on the Cape Kennedy pad. In centre, the huge rocket begins its slow liftoff and at right, frost and water from the liquid fuel streams off the end of the rocket as its engines roar out white-hot fire.

GIANT LEAP FOR MANKIND

A Banner Event - - On the Moon

Photograph taken during television relay to earth late Sunday shows astronauts (right) about to hoist Stars and Stripes on lunar landscape. LEM touchdown craft, (left) functioned perfectly as Apollo 11 mission achieved historic breakthrough in what astronaut Armstrong called "giant leap for mankind".

Place Reserved in History for Moon Heroes

History shall have a special place for Michael Collins, Edwin E. Aldrin, Jr. and Neil Armstrong, the crew of Apollo XI. These were the men who, representing the entire human race, landed on the moon Sunday and made a dream come true for all mankind.

Exuberant Astronauts Rest Before Blastoff for Home

HOUSTON (CP) — Neil Armstrong and Eugene (Buzz) Aldrin, the first men to walk on the moon, sealed themselves back in their buglike module and went to sleep for a few hours before they hold the world in suspense once again with a perilous blastoff later today for the long haul back to earth.

Armstrong, the first man to set foot on moondust, and Aldrin climbed reluctantly back aboard after a spectacular stroll which saw them bounding exuberantly across the dusty, rocky surface of man's newest frontier.

The two moon-walking astronauts settled down in the cramped confines of the Eagle moonboat for a few hours' rest before blastoff, scheduled for 1:55 p.m. EDT.

As they settled down, ground control radioed:

"We think you've done a magnificent job today." The astronauts replied: "Thank you very much. It's been a long day."

The climactic moment in history came at 10:56 p.m. when Armstrong stepped off the nine-rung ladder from the Eagle landing craft and stood on another world. The craft touched on the moon at 4:18 p.m.

He hesitated briefly and then spoke in a slightly shaky voice. "That's one small step for a man but a giant one for mankind."

Aldrin cautiously followed Armstrong down the ladder and in a short time later and together they set out to start unlocking the secrets of the awesome new world they conquered.

But before the astronauts began setting up scientific gear, they took time out for a brief and solemn ceremony—unveiling of a commemorative plaque and the raising of the U.S. flag.

Armstrong read aloud the inscription on the plaque which included the words, "We came in peace for all mankind."

In a moment dear to all engineers, they raised the U.S. flag and left it "fly" on the moon. The flag was fitted with special wire to keen it stiff in the airless lunar silvers.

To move formally remained to emphasize the magnitude of the first lunar landing. President Nixon picked up a telephone in his office in the White House and spoke directly to the astronauts.

The president gave his congratulations and those of the world to the Apollo moonmen and assured them of worldwide prayers for their safe return.

Carrying a portable television camera to bring back pictures of the ceremony shortly, the astronauts took stock of their surroundings. Armstrong, the 38-year-old mission commander, gazed around at the grayish lunar landscape, and radioed back to earth: "It has a beauty of its own. It's very pretty up here."

Armstrong moved to the moon scene in the high-desert country in his homeland. Later he and Aldrin donned the television camera around in stages to show the panoramic view with earthbound watchers 250,000 miles away.

The two Americans walked slowly and warily at first, aware that one faux pas could bring instant death on the lifeless, grey desert of the Sea of Tranquility.

But as their confidence mounted, Armstrong and Aldrin jumped, bounced and kangaroo-hopped in front of their landing craft, taking advantage of reduced gravity—one sixth that on earth.

Then, as the astronauts scoured the moon's surface, the secrets came tumbling out.

Armstrong reported: "The surface is fine and powdery. It adheres like powdered charcoal to my boot . . . I go in only an eighth of an inch."

With television trained constantly on the astronauts, the dream of centuries became almost matter-of-fact—routine as Armstrong and Aldrin dug into the moon's surface, scooped up dust and rock samples, and reported their findings back to earth.

Aldrin reported the lunar surface appeared rather slippery and when he drove a tube into the ground to get a five-inche deep sample he said "it almost took work."

Seeing a great variety of rocks around them and watched hard to gather up as many samples as possible to bring back to earth, Aldrin said he found a "pumice-colored rock."

As Armstrong lugged 20-pound boxes of rocks aboard the moon capsule his heartbeat rose as high as 160 beats a minute compared with an average of 90 to 100 the remainder of the moonwalk.

Aldrin's heartbeat never went above 125 a minute.

Space doctors at mission control jubilantly declared the astronauts in "great shape."

During his spell outside the lunar landing module, Aldrin made a close check of the outside of the spacecraft. He told ground control the spider-like Eagle apparently suffered no damage during a crucial landing time.

The astronauts, standing upright in the tiny moonbug, flew down to the lunar surface controlling Eagle manually. They knocked off computer control when it appeared they would touch down on a boulder-strewn area. They landed on a smooth-ee area some four miles farther than originally selected.

The moon surface easily withstood the shock of the Eagle's landing. The four-legged machine sank only one or two inches into the dust—hoding well for future moon landings.

With oxygen life packs strapped to their backs, the astronauts went about their work with the calmness of a Sunday afternoon gardener on earth. They set up on the moon instruments that will continue to give scientists on earth information for some time to come.

Through the magic of television, an estimated 500,000,000 people around the world had a ringside seat to man's greatest adventure.

Armed scientists, there was elation that the crew had landed in an area with a variety of rocks, a treasure that held at least the hope of a rich payoff in the search to learn more about moon and earth

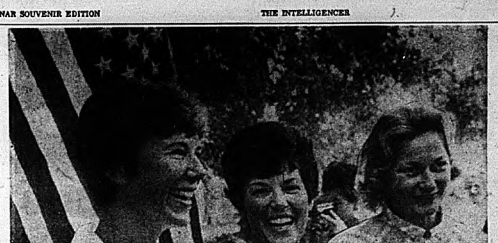
As Armstrong planted his size 9½ left boot in the powdery surface, he spoke words that will be remembered for all time: "That's one small step for man, a giant leap for mankind."

The camera trained on Aldrin as he stepped on the far shore 20 minutes later and exclaimed: "Beautiful! Beautiful! Magnificent desolation."

There were other memorable utterances during the day of high adventure.

There were Armstrong's words when Eagle separated, from the command ship to start the dangerous descent: "The Eagle is flying."

There were Armstrong's—and mank—first words from the moon's surface after touchdown: "Houston . . . Tranquility Base here. The Eagle has landed."



Or when Aldrin relayed this message to the world shortly after the landing: "This is the LM pilot. I'd like to take this opportunity to ask every person listening, whoever, wherever they may be, to pause for a moment and contemplate the events of the past few hours and to give thanks in his or her own way."

They unveiled a stainless steel plaque bearing these words:

"Here men from planet earth first set foot upon the moon, July, 1969 AD. We came in peace for all mankind."

Then left on the moon a disc on which messages from the leaders of 76 nations including Canadian Prime Minister Trudeau had been recorded. They will return to earth with them the flags of 136 nations, including Russia. Adn they left behind mementos for three Americans and two Russians who died for the cause of space exploration.

Nearly nine hours after landing, the astronauts were still busy filling containers with samples from man's new world.

Happy Wives— And Why Not?

No Rescue Possible

It Is One Shot Return for Eagle

HOUSTON (AP) — Death awaits the Apollo astronauts if they become marooned on the moon—and they know it. For there is no rescue vehicle that could save them. Their takeoff is scheduled for noon today.

Even if another spacecraft were poised on the Cape Kennedy launch pad, it would take four days to reach the moon. Astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin will land with only a 43-hour supply of oxygen.

If, in landing, their lunar module becomes tilted more than 35 degrees, they cannot fire their ascent engine to rejoin the command ship orbiting above them. The trajectory would not be right. And they have no tools to set the LM upright. Even on the moon, the LM weighs 16,000 pounds, too heavy for men in bulky space suits to shove around.

The command ship, piloted by Michael Collins, could not come down, pick them up, and blast off again. It has neither the rocket engines nor guidance equipment to do so.

Were another Apollo spacecraft already in moon orbit, or near it, its LM with two men aboard couldn't pick up the castaways. There isn't room in the LM for more than two men.

"The assurance going for Armstrong and Aldrin is that "engineering talent has been concentrated on reliability and basic design," says Christopher Kraft Jr., director of flight operations.

A rescue vehicle would cost several times more than the Apollo spacecraft and it would have to have far more intricate flight capabilities, Kraft explained.

Practically every system involved for crew safety has a backup system in case the primary one fails, he says. This includes such things as electrical and cooling systems, the gyroscopes and computer, engine pressure valves and regulators.

In ordinary airplane flight, the greatest dangers come at takeoff and landing. And the launching of a highly volatile Saturn rocket is incredibly risky, Kraft admits.

But of Apollo's safety, he said: "I expect it is as safe as a transport plane flight, certainly if you don't include the landings and takeoffs. Take out the launching, and reliability numbers are very high."

Londoner Wins $26 Moon Bet

LONDON (Reuters) — The successful U.S. moon landing Sunday won £10,000 (about $26,000) for bachelor David Threlfall, 36, who placed a bet five years ago that the feat would be accomplished before 1971.

Threlfall, who bet £10 ($26) at odds of 1,000 to one in 1964, said:

"I've no idea why I did it. It just came to me one day. And that was that."

The bet was made with one of Britain's legal bookmakers.

Threlfall bet on a human setting foot on the moon or any other planet, star or heavenly body of comparable distance from the earth before January, 1971.

A spokesman for the bookmaker who accepted the bet said: "We stand to lose more than £41,000 ($106,600) if both the Americans and theRussians land before 1971."

Famous First Words

The Eagle Has Landed

HOUSTON (AP) — "Houston . . . Tranquility Base here. The Eagle has landed."

Those were the first words from the lunar surface, from command pilot Neil Armstrong after the touchdown on the moon.

Other famous first words through history:

Charles Lindbergh, on arriving in Paris May 21, 1927, after the first solo flight across the Atlantic:

"I'm Charles Lindbergh."

Sir Henry Morton Stanley, on meeting Dr. David Livingstone in Ujiji, central Africa, Nov. 10, 1971:

"Doctor Livingstone I presume?"

General Douglas MacArthur, arriving in Australia March 24, 1942, from Corregidor and the Philippines:

"I shall return."

Samuel F. B. Morse, in transmitting the first long-distance message over the first telegraph line from Washington to Baltimore, May 24, 1844:

"What hath God wrought."

Admiral Richard E. Byrd, as navigator with Floyd Bennett in first airplane flight over North Pole, May 9, 1926:

"The dream of a lifetime has at least been realized."

Alexander Graham Bell, on March 10, 1876, in the first intelligible words transmitted by telephone, to his assistant:

"Mr. Watson, come here. I want you."

Brigham Young, on reaching the Great Salt Lake in Utah, July 24, 1847, with vanguard of Mormon pioneers seeking a new home for their church:

"This is the place."

Wives Given Roses

HOUSTON (AP) — A Guelph, Ont., couple showed their admiration of the Apollo 11 crew Saturday by sending the astronauts' wives a box of long-stemmed red roses.

Mrs. Neil Armstrong and Mrs. Michael Collins received their flowers shortly before the astronauts began their orbit around the moon. A similar bouquet went to Mrs. Edwin E. Aldrin Jr.

"With all our appreciation and wishes of good luck," said the card from Mr. and Mrs. Howard Burke of Guelph.

The Burkes wired a Houston florist Friday specifying that the flowers be delivered before the moon orbit.

The three wives stayed close to their mission control radio monitors most of Saturday.

Mrs. Aldrin and Mrs. Collins took time to visit a hair dresser but hurried back before the moon orbit began.

Pope Hails Destiny Of Man

CASTEL GONDOLFO, Italy (AP) — Pope Paul hailed the Apollo 11 astronauts Sunday as conquerors of the moon and said man looks forward to "the expanse of endless space and a new destiny."

The 71-year-old pontiff, who followed the lunar landing on color television in the pontifical summery at his summer retreat south of Rome, declared:

"Honor, greetings and blessings to you, conquerors of the moon, pale lamp of our nights and our dreams! Bring to her, with your living presence, the voice of the spirit, a Hymn to God, our creator and our father.

"We are close to you, with our good wishes and with our prayers. Together with the whole Catholic Church. Pope Paul VI salutes you."

In a dramatic, unscheduled address, the Pope greeted news of the lunar landing by exclaiming: "Glory to God in the highest and peace on earth to men of good will."

It was one of the most emotional speeches the pontiff has ever delivered.

Morality Wrong If Life Lost

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — The Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano says that space flights would be morally intolerable if they involved the sacrifice of a single life.

In a front-page article on the moral problems involved in space exploration, the newspaper says the price of progress "is much much less than the life of a man."

Casual Conversation of Lunar Pair Evidence of Training of Apollo Crew

HOUSTON (AP) — Here is the conversation between Mission Control here and Tranquility Base, beginning as astronaut Neil Armstrong left the landing craft Eagle to precede astronaut Edwin Aldrin onto the surface of the moon.

The hatch opened, Aldrin talked Armstrong through his manoeuvres with a television camera and backpack through the Eagle's exit:

Aldrin: Up, now you're clean . . . now move it toward me. Straight down. Relax a little bit. Plenty of room. Have you lined up nicely. Toward me a little bit. Down. Okay, now you're clear . . . You're touching the . . . hinge . . . .

Armstrong: What hinge?

Armstrong: Okay, now I'm gonna check . . . here.

Aldrin: Okay, you're not quite snapped away. Go to the . . go right a little. Now you're ever . . . That's good. Got plenty of room to your left. It's too close on the, uh, other side.

Armstrong: How am I doing?

Aldrin: You're doing fine.

Aldrin: All right now, you want this bag?

Armstrong: Yeah. Got it. Okay. Houston, I'm on the porch.

MC: Roger. Neil.

Aldrin: Okay, stand by Neil.

MC: Columbia, Columbia, this is Houston. One minute 30 seconds to LOS, all systems, go, over.

Armstrong: Need a little slack?

Armstrong: I need more slack, Buzz?

Aldrin: No, hold it just a minute.

Armstrong: Okay.

Aldrin: Okay, everything's nice and straight in here.

Armstrong: Okay, can you pull the door open a little more? . . . I'm gonna pull it now . . . Houston, The MESA came down, all right.

MC: This is Houston, Roger, we copy and we're standing by for your TV.

Armstrong: Houston, this is Neil. Radio check?

MC: Neil, this is Houston, loud and clear. Break, break, Buzz this is Houston, radio check and verify TV circuit breaker's in.

Aldrin: Roger. TV circuit breaker's in . . . Loud and clear.

MC: Roger. And, we're getting a picture on the TV:

Armstrong: You had a good picture, huh?

MC: There's a great deal of contrast in it and current it's upside down on our monitor, but we can make out a fair amount of detail.

Aldrin: Okay, would you verify the position, uh, the opening I had to have on the camera?

MC: Stand by. Okay, Neil, we can see you coming down the ladder now.

Armstrong: OK, I just checked getting back up to that first step . . . I sure didn't collapse too far, but it's adequate to get back up. It's a pretty good little hump.

MC: Buzz, this is Houston. F-2, one-one sixtieth second for shadow photography on the sequence camera.

Aldrin: Okay.

Armstrong: I'm at the foot of the ladder. the LEM foot pads are only depressed in the surface about, uh, one or two inches, although the surface appears to be very very fine grained as you get close to it. It's almost like a powder down there. It's very fine. I'm going to step off the LM now. That's one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind.

Armstrong: The surface is fine and powdery. I can pick it up loosely with my toe. The dirt adhered in fine layers like powdered charcoal to the, uh, to the sole and insides of my boots. I only go in, oh, an inch or two, maybe two and a half, but I can see footprints of my boots and the treads and the fine, sandy particules.

MC: Neil, this is Houston. we've copied you.

Armstrong: There seems to be no difficulty in moving around, as we suspected. Uh, even perhaps easier than the simulations of one-sixth G Cose-Sixth Gravity that we performed in various simulations on the ground. I can be able to walk around. Okay, the descent engine did not leave a crater of any size. It's, uh, there's about one-foot clearance from the ground. We're essentially on a very level place here. I can see some evidence of rays emanating from the descent engine, but very insignificant amount.

Aldrin: Buzz, are ready to bring down the other camera.

Aldrin: Have to pay out all the LEC (Lunar equipment conveyor). Looks like it's coming out nice and evenly.

Armstrong: Okay, its quite dark here in the shadow and a little hard for me to see that I have good footing. I'll work my way over into the sunlight here without looking directly into the sun.

Aldrin: Okay.

Aldrin: Okay, I think you're pulling the wrong one . . .

Armstrong: I'm just . . . okay, I'm ready to pull it down now. There's still a little left in the . . .

Aldrin: Okay, don't hold it quite so tight.

Armstrong: Okay.

Armstrong: Looking up at the LM, I'm standing directly in the shadow now, looking up at Buzz in the window, and I can see everything quite clearly. The MESA is sufficiently bright back lighted into the front of the LEM.

Armstrong: Still in the LEC on the secondary struts . . . Aldrin: I'll step out and take some of my first pictures here.

MC: Roger. Neil, we're reading you loud and clear, getting some pictures and the contingency sample.

MC: Neil, this is Houston. did you copy about the contingency sample, over.

Armstrong: Roger . . . gonna get to that just as soon as we finish these pictures . . .

Aldrin: Okay, gonna get the contingency sample.

Armstrong: Right.

Aldrin: Okay, that's good. Okay the contingency sample is down . . . It's a little difficult to dig through the crust . . .

Armstrong: It's very interesting. It's a very soft surface. But here and there where I plug with the contingency sample collector I run into very hard surface. but it appears to be very cohesive material of the same sort. Try to get a rock in here. Just a couple.

Aldrin: Ah, that looks beautiful from here. Neil.

Armstrong: It has a stark beauty all its own it's like much of the highest desert of the United States. It's uh, different, but it's very pretty out here. Be advised that a lot of the rock samples out here, but I can see footprints of my boots and the treads and the fine, sandy particules.

MC: Neil, this is Houston. we've copied you.

MC: Houston, Roger, out.

Aldrin: Okay, the handle is off the . . . it's about oh, six or eight inches into the surface.

Armstrong: I'm sure I could push it down, but it's hard for me to (push the) end down further than that. You can really throw things a long way up here.

Armstrong: That pocket open, Buzz?

Aldrin: Yes, it is. It's not up against your, uh, thought. Hit it back once more. More toward the inside Okay, that's good.

Armstrong: That in the pocket?

Aldrin: Yeah, push down.

Armstrong: That it?

Aldrin: No. it's not all the way in. Push it. There you go.

Armstrong: Contingency sample is in the pocket. I, uh, oxygen is 81 per cent. I'm in minimum flow.

MC: This is Houston, Roger, Neil.

Aldrin: Okay.

Aldrin: And I've got eight zero per cent . . .

Armstrong: Are you getting a TV picture now, Houston?

MC: Neil, yes we are getting a picture. You're not in it at the present time. We can see the bag on the LEC being moved by Buzz, though. Here you come into our field of view.

Aldrin: Okay, you read for me to come out?

Armstrong: Just stand by a second, I'll move this over the handrail Okay.

Aldrin: Okay, that's got it. Are you ready?

Armstrong: All set, Okay, you saw what difficulties are . . . I'll try to watch your . . . from underneath here.

Aldrin: All right the backup camera is on.

Armstrong: Okay . . . looks like it's clear and okay . . . there you go, you're clear. And laterally you're good. Got an inch clearance . . .

Aldrin: Okay, you need a little bit of arching of the back to come down. Hope . . . How far are my feet from the edge?

Armstrong: Okay, you're right at the porch.

Aldrin: Now a little. uh, foot movement . . . arching of the back.

Armstrong: Looks good.

MC: Neil, this is Houston. Based on your camera transfer with the LEC do you foresee any difficulties in the SRC (sample return container)? . . . Over.

Armstrong: Negative

Aldrin: Now I'm gonna back up and partially close the hatch. Making sure not to lock it on my way out.

Armstrong: A pretty good thought.

Aldrin: It's our home for the couple of hours and we wanta take good care of it.

Aldrin: Okay, I'm on the top step and I can look down over the RCA and . . . it's a very simple matter to hop down from one step to the next.

Armstrong: I found it to be very comfortable, and the hefting is also very comfortable. You take three more steps and then a long one.

Aldrin: I'm going to leave that one step up there and both hands down to about the fourth rung up.

Armstrong: There you go.

Aldrin: Okay, now I think I'll do the same.

Armstrong: Little more. about another inch. There you got it.

Aldrin: It's a good step.

Armstrong: Yeah, about a three-footer.

Aldrin: Beautiful view

Armstrong: Isn't that something! Magnificent sight out here.

Aldrin: Magnificent desolation.

Aldrin: Looks like the secondary strut had a little thermal effects on it right here. Neil.

Armstrong: Yeah, I noticed that. That's the, seems to be the worst. although similar effects are on, uh, all around.

Aldrin: Very, very fine powder, isn't it?

Armstrong: Isn't this fine?

Aldrin: Right in this area I don't think there's much of anything . . . fine powder . . . hard to tell whether it's a clod or a rock.

Armstrong: Now you can pick it out.

Aldrin: Yeah, and it bounces and then . . .

Aldrin: Reaching down fairly easy. Getting my suit dirty at this stage The mass of the backpack does have some effect . . . There's a light tendency, I can see now, to, uh, backwards due to the soft, very soft texture.

Armstrong: Yeah, you're standing on a rock . . .

Aldrin: No crater there at all from the engine.

Armstrong: No.

Aldrin: I wonder if that right under the engine is . . . side like that . . .

Armstrong: Yeah, that's. I think that's a good representation of our sideward velocity at touchdown . . . folded the probe.

over on the, uh, the minus "Y" strut, broken off . . .

when it's on there, it's filled up all the very little fine pores of his suit . . . tend to slide over it rather easily.

Armstrong: Traction seems quite good . . . least in our area.

Aldria: About to lose my balance in one direction and recovery is quite natural and very easy. And moving our arms around doesn't . . . not quite that light footed.

Armstrong: I have the insulation off the MESA (modularized equipment stowage assembly) now and the MESA seems to be in good shape.

Aldrin: I have to be careful that you're leaning in the direction you wanta go. Otherwise you . . . in other words you have to cross your foot over to stay underneath where your center of mass is .

Aldria: And, Neil, didn't I say we might see some purple rocks?

Armstrong: Find a purple rock?

Aldrin: Nope. Very small, sparkly fragments are . . . in places . . . First guess is some sort of (unintelligible) mica substance). You don't dig down more than a quarter of an inch (apparently referring to footprints)

Armstrong: Okay, Houston, I'm gonna change lenses on you.

MC: Roger. Neil.

Armstrong: Roger, Houston, tell me if you've got a new picture.

MC: Neil, this is Houston. That's affirmative. We're getting a new picture. You can tell it's a longer focal length lens. And for your information, all LM systems are go, over.

Armstrong: We appreciate that, thank you.

Aldria: Neil is now unveiling the plaque . . .

MC: Roger, we've got you foreshjted out back to one side

Armstrong: We have on read the plaque, uh, read the plaque that's on the front landing gear of this LM. This is two hemispheres, one showing each of the two hemispheres of earth. Underneath it says: "Here men from the planet earth first set foot upon the moon, July, 1969, AD They came in peace for all mankind." It has the crew members' signatures and the signature of the president of the United States.

Armstrong: Ready for the camera? I'll get it . . .

Aldrin: I'm afraid these . . . materials . . . hard, dusty. The surface material is, uh, powdery. I don't know how good your lens is but if you can . . . very much like a very finely powdered . . .

Armstrong: Yes, uh, pull out some of my cable for me, Buzz?

Aldrin: Houston, how close are you able to get things in focus.

Quinte Area Joins Rest of World In Viewing Spectacular Lunar Epic

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Sunday, June 20, 1969, was a great day for the outdoors in the Quinte district.

But thousands ignored the balmy weather and stayed home. For them, the greatest outdoors experience of all time was waiting in their living rooms.

Late into the night they were still by their television screens, fascinated as two men explored the latest open spaces acquired by earth — the lunar landscape.

But even In the earthbound outdoors, few lost contact with the fateful phase of Apollo 11's mission.

Car and transistor radios carried the latest developments to parks, picnic areas and beaches

It was Sunday — and the unspoken feeling of many were given public voice. Prayers were dedicated for the Apollo astronauts in church services.

The fantastic adventure took precedence even at public events.

At Marmora, politicians clergy, the public — assembled to unveil a local historic plaque interrupted their program, stood in silent tribute and offered the Lord's Prayer for the space team.

And, into the early hours, when even the lunar explorers themselves were in slumber, the moonstruck wonderment lingered.

"Amazing — amazing to see," mused a policeman on overnight duty.

"Science can do anything," responded a taxi dispatcher.

About the only fretful presence on the whole historic Sunday scene was the moon itself.

In the Quinte area it came up brightly in the clear skies of early evening. As the night drew on — and the descent deadline for Aldrin and Armstrong neared — the pale yellow crescent was streaked with overcast.

Finally, it disappeared entirely from ground view — just about the time, ironically, when its most minute geography was being revealed on television by the astronauts descended from their lunar landing craft.

While the awesome communications feat created a universal experience, church services earlier in the day already had joined many in common prayer.

Clergy throughout the district singled out the moon mission for special commendation to their congregations.

At Christ Church Canon R. D. Wright called on parishioners to pray "for the astronauts themselves as individuals — and further for their extension of our view of the universe and our place in it."

At Tabernacle United Church, in a combined service with Bridge Street United Church the congregation was urged to pray that the mission "might be safely completed . . . that it might both benefit mankind and bring greater glory to God."

At St. Michael's, Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan asked Catholic parishioners to pray that the mission would mean "man's life would be enriched and God's name glorified."

Msgr. Sullivan also reminded his congregation to offer prayer for "all those who are hungry and find it hard to see the advantage of putting a man on the moon when they can scarcely survive themselves."

In the countryside probably the most emphatic demonstration of public feeling came at Marmora, where close to 200 people gathered in the village's Legion park to watch the unveiling of an historic plaque to a local pioneer.

In the midst of introducing the public figures involved, Reeve William Shannon linked the historic tribute to the moon venture and called for one minute's silence.

Then, Protestant and Catholic clergy led the crowd in the Lord's Prayer for "the success and safety of the three astronauts."

Hastings County warden Donald Rodgers prefaced his speech by calling the lunar landing "a memorable day in the history of the world."

Professor S. F. Wise, of the Historic Sites Board of Ontario, philosophically summed up the significance of the local and universal occasions.

North America's pioneers attempted to break out of their surroundings by conquering a new land and hostile environment.

"The astronauts symbolized the success of that conquest — "part of an historical process which has led man now to the moon."

Fantastic Is Reaction of Area Viewers

Rodney Green — like many Bellevillians — stayed by his television set all day Sunday.

He was there for the tense buildup before astronauts Aldrin and Armstrong set their landing craft on course for the moon.

He was there when they made it, He stayed by his set as every preliminary leading to that first fateful footprint was relayed to earth.

Then — just as the first man was about to take that first unearthly step to ground — Rodney had to go to work.

His job as supervisor of the city's street-sweeping machine calls for him to clock in at 11 p.m.

(Neil Armstrong made it through the space-craft's hatch to touch the moon at 10.56 p.m.)

Rodney is only one of scores who work while others sleep in the city.

There are policemen, hospital workers, taxi drivers, firemen; those on all-night restaurants, service industries.

But he's among the few of the flight people who actually missed the historic moment. Most, at least had the chance to see the memorable event as it happened before reporting for duty.

It was a double-viewing bonus for them. Rodney's relief at noon walk was scheduled for 2.21 but was advanced when the astronauts said they wished to forego their rest period.

However, last night as he wheeled his sweeper through silent city streets, he was not allowing any thoughts to show. . . and he liked to keep them get out. But — actually that's something I never thought I'd live to see it."

And maybe someday, he muses, people "will spend a couple of thousand dollars to get up there."

But, for himself . . . "I don't know, I'd sooner stay right here on earth."

Most of the night workers who volunteered a response, shared a common moonstruck reaction: Awe at the sheer human accomplishment of Apollo 11.

The instant relay was still fresh in their minds when they left home for work. Armstrong and Aldrin were just getting into their moon-size strides at the time.

Other personal impressions:

Norris Cunningham, taxi dispatcher: "I think it's the most fantastic thing. It recognizes, to my mind, that science can do anything. It proves another thing — what a man can be trained to do with discipline. It should prove if there was more discipline in the world you'd be better off."

William Rose, OPP constable: "It was amazing to see them getting out of that craft. Seeing it as it happens is the most astonishing part of it. To hear and see things so clearly . . ."

Peter Fortis, store operator: "Fantastic. Fantastic. For years we've seen all those space pictures and now we see the real thing. Let's hope they get back OK."

Jack Smith, hotel night manager: "It was a thing quite hard to understand. It's fantastic to live in an age when you can see this. I think more people have been drawn together by this than would be by other things . . . It's the last part (the return phase) that worries me."

Meantime, Back on Earth . . .

Moon or no moon there's still plenty of basic chores to do on earth. Others may have the thrill of watching men on a lunar landscape. But for Rodney Green there's the responsibility of keeping city streets clear and clean.

Laser To Reach Moon

FORT DAVIS, Tex. (AP) — A blue green laser beam was fired at the moon this week as a step toward Monday's earth to moon measurement with the help of the Apollo 11 astronauts.

The visible blue green argon laser was used for locating the alignment.

A ruby laser, invisible to ground observers, will be fired through the MacDonald Observatory's 107-inch telescope — third largest in the world—at a reflector to be placed on the moon by the Apollo crew.

Scientists hope the reflected laser beam will tell them the answer to several questions, including exactly how far it is from the earth to the moon.

The reflected beam should enable scientists to measure changes in the distance within six inches.

Lasers have been bounced off the moon's surface in the past but the beams would hit the lunar terrain and scatter in all directions.

The 18-inch by 18-inch reflector is expected to guarantee that the light will be reflected back to its source.

"I thought this would make them feel right at home when they get here!"

The Moon — At Last

Man by nature is a questing individual. Ever since early times he has wandered about the face of the globe and sailed the seven seas. In more recent days he has begun the exploration of space and now, in the most dramatic accomplishment of this phase of his journeyings he has set foot on the moon.

Astronaut Neil Armstrong stepped on the lunar surface late last night followed by Edwin Aldrin.

The flight thus far has been a superb achievement, justifying the foresight of President John Kennedy who predicted a U.S. landing on the moon within the decade, as well as the work of the space administration. The technical achievement alone is something to behold and a reminder of our own relative insignificance in the cosmic scheme of things.

It is a reminder of the perfection of the laws governing the universe, and that man in reaching for the stars has only to harness himself to the laws to find his way through the unknown. Amid the man-made turmoil of earth, this voyage into outer space affords an opportunity for mankind to make some "course corrections", to use the terminology of the space program.

If there is a lesson to be learned from this mission and from succeeding voyages into the outer atmophere, it is that the universe is a marvellous realm. A scene of wonderment is lacking in the lives of many, but the events of the weekend and early today must surely revive the spirits of the most critical and cynical among us.

Lunar Landing Price

Man's Pollution Reaches Moon

HOUSTON (AP) — Like a spreading virus, man in his time has corrupted and polluted the waters, the air and the land of the earth that gives him life.

And now, he is reaching out to contaminate the moon.

He will pollute its thin atmosphere. He will spread his own bacteria on to its surface. He will—as he has done already—litter the moon with things he no longer needs.

Such is the price the moon will pay for receiving two astronauts this weekend. It is unavoidable if man is to go there.

The braking rocket which will settle the lunar module on the moon's surface will discharge five tons of exhaust gases on to the moon, by one estimate.

This will equal five per cent of the moon's total existing atmosphere, if the guesses of some scientists are correct. The earth, by contrast, has about six quadrillion tons of atmosphere.

Bacteria and other organisms will leak out at the rate of 1,000 a minute from each of the two special spacesuits worn by Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. That totals more than 300,000 germs during their walking and working on the moon.

So common are microbes—many of which are essential to maintain animal and human health—that Dr. Theodor Rosebury, emeritus professor of bacteriology at Washington University in St. Louis, estimates in a new book, Life on Man, that the average adult daily releases 100 trillion microbes.

An international space agreement stipulates sterilization for all rockets, probes and equipment landed on the moon, or on the earth's sister planets.

But total sterilization has proved to be unpractical because such chemical treatments foul up delicate electronic gear.

So some previous unmanned probes—both American and Soviet—landing on the moon are assumed to have started out with some earthly germs. The LM on Apollo 11 has not been sterilized, says a spokesman for the manufacturer, Grumman Aircraft, Corp., although the landing craft will be exposed to the sterilizing effect of heat and ultraviolet light during its flight.

The astronauts will leave on the moon their walking boots and gloves, a TV camera, the special tools with which they pick up moon rocks, a seismometer to see if the moon has moonquakes, a reflector to receive and retransmit laser beams sent from earth. None of these, as far as could be learned, has been sterilized.

Armstrong and Aldrin twice will depressurize their LM, once before they step out on to the moon, later before they toss overside the boots and other articles they will not take home. The air they let out will contain germs from their breath. The LM will also leak some fuel as it sits on the moon for nearly 24 hours.

On the positive side, the moon is bathed in fierce ultraviolet light from the sun. The light is a most efficient killer of bacteria if it strikes them. Also, the moon has no surface moisture and its thin air is nearly a vacuum. So most of the germs the astronauts carry up or release there personally should probably die soon.

Aldrin Keeps Faith

HOUSTON (AP) — Astronaut Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. went to the moon Sunday with a piece of communion bread he will use there to symbolize fellowship with his home church on earth.

The safety of Apollo 11 crew members and the success of the mission were included in prayers of all space centre churches Sunday.

"Pray for Neil, Mike and Buzz," said the Rev. M. Dean Woodruff, minister of the Webster Presbyterian Church where Aldrin is an elder. Mrs. Aldrin and their three children listened to the sermon from a pew near the front.

"On this journey keep them; grant them keen judgment, sharp mind and razor edge body. At this point all the training pays off," the minister said in his opening prayer.

When Woodruff brought out the bread for communion, a portion of the loaf had been broken away. The minister explained that Aldrin took a portion of the loaf with him on the moon trip and at some time during the afternoon, after the moon landing was made, Aldrin would symbolically join the other parishioners in communion during one of his rest periods.

Members of St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church, where Mrs. Michael Collins and both her children attended mass, offered a special prayer for "a safe landing and ascent from the moon."

At the beginning of the mid-morning service it was announced that all masses Sunday were "offered for the safety of the astronauts and the success of Apollo 11."

Mrs. Collins, in a white suit with a black head veil, sat on a seat near the front and was one of the first to take communion.

Mrs. Neil Armstrong remained in her home Sunday morning, listening closely to reports from mission control centre. The only activity outside the house occurred when Mark, 6, came out to get the Sunday newspaper.

A space agency spokesman who had been in the home said Mrs. Armstrong, Mark and Eric, 12, "had their morning devotional together, alone" in a bedroom while guests in the house waited in other rooms.

Mrs. Aldrin said before the church services that there were no special prayers to be offered. She said, with a smile, that her husband sounded "confident and strong" over the communications monitor, which all the wives can hear in their homes.

After the service Mrs. Aldrin was surrounded by a pushing group of newspaper men, photographers and spectators. Finally, apparently almost in tears, she broke through those surrounding her and ran to her car.

Millions See First Step

Different, Pretty Armstrong's Reaction

HOUSTON (AP) — They kept the whole world waiting while they dressed to go out, but once there the whole world saw Neil Armstrong's "one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind."

Never before had so many been eyewitnesses to such high adventure: Armstrong's white boot coming down a ladder.

"It's different, but it's very pretty out here," Armstrong said as his eye roamed a vista a human eye had never held — the moon.

The picture was like a nickelodeon of grandma's time, starkly black and white, somewhat jerky, hard to see. Like a 1920s movie, but with real life, breathtaking drama.

But it was man first stepping down to the moon.

The world watched as Armstrong guided his companion, Edwin Aldrin, down that historic ladder, seeing Aldrin's foot tentatively seek that last step.

"It's a very simple matter to hop down from one step to the next," said Armstrong. "It's very comfortable, you've got three more steps and then a long one."

And the world saw, and heard Aldrin breathing hard from the unusual exertion go down that last step, and then, for practice, leap up again.

"That's a good step," said Aldrin.

"Yeah, a three-footer," Armstrong said.

"Beautiful, beautiful," Aldrin added.

"Isn't that something."

Astronauts Have Language of Own

HOUSTON (AP) — Here are definitions of terms to be used in earth to moon conversations between flight controllers and Apollo 11.

DPS: Pronounced "dips." Stands for descent propulsion system, main LM braking rocket needed for landing.

APS: Pronounced "apps." Stands for ascent propulsion engine, a rocket on LM needed to propel astronauts off moon's surface and back into lunar orbit.

Descent stage: Bottom section of LM containing braking rocket and landing gear Used as a launch pad when astronauts blast back into lunar orbit.

Ascent stage: Upper portion of LM containing landing craft's cockpit section.

PLSS: Portable life support system, the oxygen-filled backpack to be worn by the astronauts walking on the moon.

EASEP: Early Apollo scientific experiments package, consisting of a seismic device to listen for moonquakes, a device to reflect laser beams fired from earth so scientists can measure exactly the distance between earth and the moon, and a sheet of aluminum foil which will trap gas particles spewing from the sun.

Apolune: Point at which an object launched from the moon into lunar orbit is farthest from the lunar surface.

Perilune: Point at which an object launched from the moon into lunar orbit is closest to the surface. LM's orbit will be measured as apolune and perilune after it blasts off from the moon.

The Eyes of the World

Commander Neil Armstrong holds the camera he used to show Edwin Aldrin digging in the lunar surface. Through the use of television the entire world was able to witness the moment that man has awaited since the dawn of time — man's first step on the moon's surface.

Moon Survival Suits Complicated, Expensive

HOUSTON (AP) — Staying alive on the moon requires the world's most expensive wardrobe.

The $300,000 suits donned by Apollo 11 astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. to protect them on the lunar surface are really an attempt to bring their earth atmosphere with them.

On the moon, there is no oxygen, water or shade. Nor is there an atmosphere to shield them from the sun's radiation or burn up meteorites streaking toward the lunar surface.

And temperatures in the middle of the lunar day range from 250 degrees above zero in the sun to 250 degrees below zero in shadows only a few yards away.

To survive, an earthman must carry his own atmosphere—oxygen, air conditioning, sun visors and a meteorite shield. The astronauts' spacesuits are really balloons inflated with oxygen.

A plastic bubble helmet attaches to the neck of the suit and a metal ring. Two visors on the helmet filter sunlight and shield meteorites.

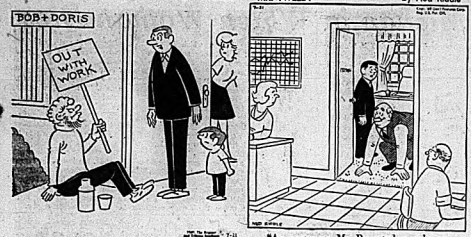
Gloves designed for maximum flexibility also attach with metal rings.

Oxygen to inflate the suit is from an elaborate backpack.

The pack, called the portable life support system of PLSS also provides electrical power for radio communications and air conditions the suit.

Together, suit and pack weigh a staggering 190 pounds on earth but only 30 pounds in the moon's one-sixth gravity.

As a final precaution, lunar astronauts wear fireproof overalls designed to stop tiny meteorites at a velocity as high as 64,000 miles per hour.



Working properly, the backpack has supplies for four hours and can be recharged in the lander. It also has a 30-minute emergency oxygen supply allowing the astronaut to return and hook into the spacecraft oxygen system if the basic oxygen supply fails.

The spacesuit is clumsy, but astronauts who were intentionally tripped during ground practice were not hurt when they crashed to the ground. It is so bulky that the astronauts cannot bend over in them to touch the moon's surface. They will use special tools to pick up the precious lunar samples they will bring back to earth.

Special Tool

Neil Armstrong practises with the moon shovel he used during his walk around the LEM module. The shovel was one of several specially designed for the trip but are to be left behind when the time for lift off arrives.

OFF THE RECORD — By Ed Reed — MR. TWEEDY — by Ned Riddle

Prairie Farmers Will Receive $250,000,000 for Stored Grain

LETHBRIDGE (CP)—Prairie farmers will begin receiving in August $250,000,000 in advance cash payments for their farm-stored grain, Prime Minister Trudeau said at a news conference here Saturday as he completed a six-day western tour.

Farmers last year received about $160,000,000 cash payments in advance of delivery of their grain to elevators.

Since then, Parliament has passed legislation to double to $6,000 the maximum amount a farmer may receive in advance for grain stored on his farm and waiting for room in country elevators and shipping terminals.

Mr. Trudeau was booed by farmers in Regina Wednesday when he mentioned the doubling of advance payments as one measure taken by his government to help the Prairie grain producers.

That legislation, first introduced by then Prime Minister John Diefenbaker a decade ago, enables the farmer to get some of the money due him for his grain before he delivers it.

Mr. Trudeau said there is a cash shortage on the Prairies because of falling wheat sales and prices brought on by a world grain glut.

"This is an emergency," he said.

He said the advance payments to farmers for their grain will inject an estimated $250,000,000 into the Prairie economy.

Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson says the amount could conceivably reach $500,000,000.

Asked whether there would be a new program to assist the farmers, Mr. Trudeau there might be "something else." But he indicated that "something else" would be in place of the advance payments system, and not in addition to it.

Mr. Trudeau said he got a lot out of his tour, especially in parlor and kitchen chats with farmers.

He said: "Some deep undercurrent sours feelings among Canadians." Many westerners thought they were not getting a fair deal from central Canada. They referred to the tariff-protected East and the unprotected West.

Mr. Trudeau said some people do not like it when he tells them their proposed solutions to various problems are not all that good.

He wanted to tell as much of the Canadian public as possible.

"Hopefully, in the last year before an election, I will try too a little more cheerful," he added.

He hoped new policy directions to help the farmers would emerge in the months and years ahead. Grain was selling at the same price as 10 or 20 years ago. But farm machinery now cost three times more.

The prime minister did not reply directly when asked whether the government will invoke closure to end the current rules debate in the Commons.

He did say that he cannot see why arguments in a debate cannot be expressed in four or five days.

Mr. Trudeau also said the government's proposed new method of closing off debate is "much softer" than the British method.

The prime minister flew to Ottawa from Lethbridge Saturday night in a transport department Jetstar. He started his tour in the previous Monday at Churchill, Man., and visited more than 30 places, including individual farms, mines and oil wells. He had private talks with all Prairie premiers and argued publicly with angry farmers at Winnipeg, Regina and Saskatoon.

"I learned a lot of facts," he told reporters.

Accord Is Again Sought On House Rules Change

OTTAWA (CP) — With the rules debate going into its 10th day, representatives of Parliament's four political parties will try again today to reach agreement on ending the deadlock that has kept the Commons sitting far beyond its original June 27th adjournment date.

It will mark the third day of consultations among party house leaders. Meetings Thursday and Friday resulted in little, if any, progress.

As the debate droned on Friday, several Opposition MPs were indicating their willingness to stay in Ottawa all summer unless the government was willing to give ground on the new proposed rules.

"The snow will be coming down and you'll still be here," said Robert C. Coates (PC—Cumberland Colchester North).

Marc Saltzman (NDP—Waterloo) also criticized Mr. Macdonald and said "those of us in the Opposition are prepared to stay here as long as it takes and as long as is necessary."

Indian Defence League Stages Border Crossing

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — About 300 Indians and whites took part in the 42nd annual Indian Defence League of America's free border crossing here Saturday.

A parade from Niagara Falls, N.Y., across the Whirlpool Bridge, symbolized the free border crossing rights given to Indians in Canada and the United States by the Jay Treaty of 1794.

The treaty between the United States and Britain, which the Indians say gave them duty exemption, has never been ratified by the Canadian Parliament.

During Saturday's ceremonies Chief Clinton Rickard of the Tuscarora Indian nation, a founder of the Indian Defence League, was honored for his defence of human rights for American Indians in a citation from Niagara University.

Fairfax Lands in U.S. After Rowing Across Atlantic

HOLLYWOOD BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Tanned, whiskery John Fairfax received ashore Saturday after a 4,000-mile journey to become the first man to row the Atlantic Ocean alone.

"This is bloody stupid," the exhausted London adventurer protested after being aboard a boat declined to take him in tow and urged him on for the last mile.

Pulling wearily, Fairfax sang Hail Britannia and put ashore at a white sand beach as hundreds of weekend swimmers ran to greet him.

His 24-foot orange, shoe-shaped rowboat Britannia was badly flaked and faded from 108 days in the often-stormy Atlantic.

Fastened to his bow were dried grey shark fins, a reminder of a battle he did with a giant hammerhead shark 120 days at sea.

The 31-year-old unemployed bachelor said the shark attacked him as he scraped barnacles from the bottom of his tiny vessel and he managed to kill it with his knife.

His long hair streaming out from under a faded blue suncap, the lean, wobbly-kneed sailor exchanged greetings with sunbathers.

Aboard a yacht which followed Fairfax in was his London sweetheart, Sylvia Marvest, 30.

"He looks marvelous, a little thinner, I think," she beamed as she waved him on.

John Austin of London, one of Fairfax' sponsors, said the record voyage would be financially profitable.

"It's bound to be worth much more than $10,000," he said. Austin said two U.S. magazines and at least three television net-work talk shows were interested in speaking to the lone oarsman. He also said two London book publishers were in contact with him.

Fairfax left the Canary Islands last Jan. 30 in his small craft, a mahogany plywood boat similar in style to lifeboats aboard ocean liners during the Second World War. The boat is unsinkable and, if capsized, will automatically right itself in a matter of seconds.

Executives Predict Future

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

It's been nearly 90 years since the British Society for Psychical Research was founded at Cambridge, and only now for the first time is the idea of "extrasensory perception" — or ESP — acquiring a degree of scientific respectability.

We know that the serious science of astronomy grew out of primitive astrology; that the modern marvels of chemistry developed from alchemists of the Middle Ages; but we are reluctant to admit that such stuff as dreams and "hunches" and "intuitions" may be the precursors of a new psychology that goes far beyond anything yet apprehended by man.

One of the most interesting of recent experiments was reported this spring in the journal, "Medical World News." In the tenuous field of what is known as "precognition" — that is, anticipating future events, — a professor at Newark College of Engineering in New Jersey selected an unusual test with the aid of a computer.

He had 67 presidents of engineering firms — hard-headed men who would normally have no truck with the occult — try to predict through an IBM punchboard what numbers a computer would print, at random, hours later. By pure chance, the executives should have predicted correctly only one number out of 10.

In a prior interview, two-thirds of this group had already told the testers that a kind of ESP seems to operate in their important decisions — that "they had consistently been right with hunches, against logic, facts, and recommendations of operation researchers."

The findings confirmed their feelings about the results. These presidents who had done best with their business hunches — whose companies had doubled profits in the past five years — picked the right number about one out of eight times. But executives with weaker profit profiles (some of whose firms had gone into the red) could not even equal mere chance — they averaged about one out of 12 correct choices.

"The higher you go in business, the more decisions are made on intuition," said the director of the experiment, "and the top man apparently have it working for them."

Card players have known this for centuries. The top players in any game seem to have an extra sensitivity that goes far beyond card technique — bridge experts now which finesses to take and which to avoid, and have an uncanny skill in "placing" the opponents' cards that is not a mere matter of logical inference or probability.

What the experts themselves call "the feel of the table" is the most decisive ingredient in tournament competition; and what can this "feel" be but a form of ESP?

Shortage of Mechanics Critical

By RAY STAPLEY

A friend of mine who has operated his own garage for 20 years called me recently. His best mechanic had left him a month ago and he was desperately seeking another man. He had spent hundreds of dollars advertising for help, interviewed several mechanics and apprentice mechanics, but could find no one suitable. While he is a first-call licensed mechanic, he cannot run the business and take care of a partner, but no one seems willing to share his problems. Completely fed up, he is going to sell out.

The shortage of well-trained mechanics is critical, and each year it becomes more difficult to locate good men. As a result, in many instances unskilled personnel or green apprentices are attempting to perform major surgery that should only be done by skilled technicians, and sometimes the results are disastrous.

The complexities of modern vehicles call for at least each year it becomes more difficult for a mechanic to familiarize himself with all the phases of automatic transmission, power steering, power brakes, four-barrel carburetors, limited - slip differentials, power seats and windows, air-conditioning, and others. These are but a few of the intricate innovations that have become popular in recent years.

The main reason why young men are not willing to enter the trade, or why skilled mechanics are leaving it, is money. I know licensed mechanics who make as little as $2.50 per hour — picking up garbage is far more lucrative. There is no established union for auto mechanics, and time-and-a-half or double time after a full day's work is unheard of. They either work on the flat rate (a percentage of the labor) or for whatever the boss can afford or is willing to pay them.

All those connected with the automobile industry are concerned about the existing conditions and are desperately trying to upgrade the mechanic's image, as well as the servicing and public relations end of the industry.

In small towns and isolated areas, usually a general all-around mechanic is the only answer. However, as I see it, in larger cities about the only salvation is specialization where a man is highly skilled in one phase of vehicle repairs and therefore is an expert in that particular field.

In all the years I have been involved in the auto repair business the complaints I have heard have been valid and many, but without doubt the greatest cause of aggravation is the average motorist's has been questionable workmanship, inability to communicate with mechanics or management, and wrong diagnosis leading to unnecessary and expensive repairs.

Until such time as auto mechanics enjoy the same fringes and rate of pay as other tradesmen, I fear that the situation will become more and more critical.

Ted Kennedy Walks Away From Mishap in Which Woman Dies

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (AP) — A complaint charging Senator Edward M. Kennedy with leaving the scene of an accident will be sought as the result of an auto wreck in which a woman died, police said Sunday.

The victim, Mary Jo Kopechne, 28, of Washington, D.C., former secretary to the late Senator Robert F. Kennedy (Dem. N.Y.), was riding in a car that skidded off a narrow bridge and into a pond on Chappaquiddick Island. Kennedy was driving. He supposedly escaped with what apparently was only a mild concussion.

The accident happened between 11 p.m. Friday and 1 a.m. Saturday, but went unreported until 10 a.m. Saturday.

"I am firmly convinced there was no negligence involved," police chief Dominic J. Arena told reporters Sunday. "But the matter of the time period after the accident—there is, in my opinion, a violation concerning going from the scene, leaving the scene."

Arena said notice of the complaint had been sent by registered mail to Kennedy, but because today's mail deliveries have been suspended in the U.S. in observance of the Apollo 11 mission, the earliest Kennedy could receive the notice would be Tuesday.

Once the notice is delivered, Arena said, Kennedy will have 24 hours in which to request a hearing. If no such request is forthcoming, Arena said, a summons will be issued automatically.".

Under Massachusetts law, persons convicted of leaving the scene of an accident in which personal injury has been sustained may be imprisoned for from two months to two years.

Kennedy remained in seclusion Sunday at the family compound in Hyannis Port, on Cape Cod, and issued no statement. His wife Joan was believed with him.

The New York Times quoted a physician as saying the 37-year-old Massachusetts Democrat sustained a mild concussion in the accident, but had been given a sedative and was resting comfortably.

Kennedy was here Friday for the annual regatta of the Edgartown Yacht Club, an event in which he and his late brother had taken part for years.

He supposedly went to Chappaquiddick Island Friday night for a late dinner with several friends and political associates. It was after this dinner that the accident occurred.

Chappaquiddick Island is just to the east of the resort island of Martha's Vineyard, and is separated from the Vineyard by a narrow channel and harbor.

Kennedy said in a police statement that the mishap took place as he was driving Miss Kopechne to catch a ferry to return to the Vineyard.

The last ferry between the two islands was scheduled at 1 a.m.

The car skidded over the side of the bridge, which is only about 11 feet wide and has no rails, and landed bottom-up in eight feet of water.

Kennedy said he was dazed by the accident and in a state of shock. He said he could not recall how he escape. But he said he remembered diving several times in an effort to locate Miss Kopechne. Her body was found by a scuba diver later Saturday in the auto's rear seat, and a medical examiner said the cause of death was accidental drowning.

Exhausted, Kennedy said, he walked the quarter-mile to the home where the dinner party had been held and climbed into the rear seat of a car parked outside.

"I then asked someone to bring me back to Edgartown," he said. "I remember walking around for a period of time and then going back to my hotel room. When I fully realized what had happened this morning I immediately went to the police."

This was the second time that Kennedy, the last of the famous Kennedy brothers, had narrowly missed death. He suffered a broken back in a plane crash five years ago. All three of his brothers met violent deaths.

Three Charged After Protest March to Beach

PORT COLBORNE, Ont. (CP) — Three men were charged Sunday with creating a disturbance and trespassing following a brief morning scuffle at the entrance to nearby Sherkston Beaches.

Fighting between about a dozen persons—youths from St. Catharines and Welland and employees of the beach—started when 150 demonstrators tried to go through the turnstiles to the beach in an advertised protest against privately-owned beaches.

Charged were Peter Kormos, 18, of Welland; Rod MacDougall, 28, of St. Catharines; and John Witman, 43, of Niagara Falls, Ont.

Led by a youth playing a bagpipe, the demonstrators tried to muscle their way into the beach claiming the road leading to the beach was public property and there should be no $1.25 admission fee.

The scuffle was quickly broken up by police, but not before several persons had received black eyes and bruises.

Sherkston Beaches, occupying 500 acres of Lake Erie beachfront, has been in operation 24 years. Port Colborne is about 10 miles south of Welland.

Rev. Robert Wright, 36, of Welland, an executive member and past chairman of APPEAL—Association for the Preservation of Erie East Lakefront—arrived after the scuffle. He told the demonstrators they had not been trespassing but were on a public roadway.

Members of APPEAL say beaches, like roadways and parkland, belong the public.

In 1940, Ontario amended the Navigable Waters Act to say that beds of waterways, such as Sherkston Beaches, were public property right up to the high-water mark. But the act was repealed in 1951. APPEAL wants it back on the books.

Police Back Off From Fight

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police Sunday backed off from a clash with members of Satan's Choice motorcycle club rather than risk "a battle in which many people could have been injured."

Supt. A. E. Kirkby, commander of the Niagara Falls detachment, said more than 60 police officers went to a field just outside the city where about 250 Satan's Choice members had gathered Saturday for what they termed sports activities.

Supt. Kirkby said the officers —some equipped with riot helmets and clubs—were executing a liquor warrant when club members threw beer bottles, chunks of wood and chains at them. The officers retreated.

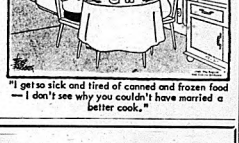
CREATES MEMORIAL

SYLVAN LAKE, Alta. (CP) — Lloyd Staples, a retired teacher in this central Alberta community, has created a memorial to the 37 men from his home town of Belmont, N.S., who served in the First World War. At a cost of $1,200, he built a cairn on land on which members of the Staples family are buried.

Spider Bites Ottawa Man

OTTAWA (CP) — An Ottawa construction worker, bitten by what might have been a black widow spider Friday night, was reported in normal condition Sunday after receiving anti-venom serum flown from Montreal.

Gordon P. Dean, 48, was bitten Friday night when working on a manhole in a suburban area, said Dr. Nathan Schecter.



Mr. Dean was not alarmed when bitten on the left wrist by a large black spider, but awoke at 4 a.m. Saturday with severe pain and numbness in his left hand.

Dr. Schecter said the symptoms—a 105-degree fever, chills, headache, extreme weakness and a progressive effect on the nerves running up the arm —were those that could be expected of a black widow spider bite.

George Holland, director of entomology research for the department of agriculture, said in an interview black widow spiders had been found elsewhere in Canada, but not in Ontario.

He said it was more likely that Mr. Dean had experienced an abnormally violent reaction to the ibte of some spider native to Ontario.

Mrs. Gandhi Scores Victory

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi won a major political victory by default Sunday when her ousted deputy prime minister, Morarji Desai, announced he would continue to support her government.

Desai's statement to parliamentarians of the ruling Congress party ended speculation that he might attempt to undermine her slim parliamentary majority in retaliation for her having removed him from the cabinet.

Desai's pledge of loyalty defused the crisis threatening the party and eased the political pressure on Mrs. Gandhi, who had strengthened her position Saturday by nationalizing India's 14 top banks.

Desai was relieved of his position as finance minister in Mrs. Gandhi's cabinet Wednesday because of his alleged disagreement with the nationalization policies. He then resigned as deputy prime minister.

Her Crew All Safe, Apollo Flies Home

Next Apollo Flies In Fall

HOUSTON (Reuters) — Apollo 12 will be ready to make the second American manned landing on the moon in November, the director of the lunar anding program said today.

At the same time, the head of the manned spacecraft centre predicted the concept of lunar orbit rendezvous would be the model for future exploration of Mars.

Lt.-Gen. Samuel Phillips, in charge of Apollo moon landings, told a press briefing that instructions would go out for Apollo 12 to make the second man-to-the-moon mission in November following the successful return to earth of Apollo 11 Thursday.

He explained that Apollo 12, now being prepared at the Cape Kennedy moonport, was scheduled to be "a repeat attempt at a first lunar landing" had anything gone wrong with Apollo 11.

But he said word was sent to Rocco Petrone—director of launch operations at the Cape, that "if Apollo 11 was on the way back for a successful landing on the 23rd of July, when we were scheduled to roll it out (for launch), he should not roll it (Apollo 12) out."

He said the next touchdown on the moon probably would be on a site in one of the waterless seas in the western half of the visible lunar face. Apollo 11 astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin landed in the Sea of Tranquillity, in the east central part.

Robert Gilruth, director of the centre here, said the idea of linkup in lunar orbit has proven sound.

"You're not going to believe this!"

Moon-walkers Back With Joyful Mate

HOUSTON (AP) — Brushing moon dust from their clothes, the crew of Apollo 11 turned home to earth today, their scientific treasures intact, their place in history secure.

They were together again: Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin the first humans to tread and feel the soil of the moon; and Michael Collins, who girdled that barren globe in the mother ship, awaiting their return.

From liftoff on the moon, through linkup with Collins, through the manoeuvre that started them home, the astronauts were unrestrained in their joy that everything worked.

"The Eagle is back in orbit, having left Tranquillity Base and leaving behind a replica from our Apollo 11 patch with an olive branch," said Armstrong after their lunar lander roared off the surface of the moon.

And 3½ hours later, as the two ships again became one, mission control asked Collins how it felt to have company.

"Damned good, I'll tell you," he replied.

And finally, Collins announced they were off for home with a shouted: "Open up the LRL doors, Charlie," referring to the lunar receiving laboratory that would be their home on earth for at least 16 days while doctors make sure they brought back no moon bugs.

For "The Moon Landing . . . What Does It Really Mean?" see Page 15

"Roger," said Charles Duke at mission control. "We got you coming home."

The astronauts went into a rest period at about 2:40 a.m. EDT. Mission control said "wake up time is not critical and they probably will be allowed to sleep until they awake."

Weather conditions in the primary splashdown area were described as "acceptable." Mission control said the forecast was for partly cloudy skies, easterly winds at about 11 miles an hour and seas of three feet.

Apollo 11 was behind the moon for the 31st and last time and out of touch with earth at 12:57 a.m. EDT today when the engine fired for 2½ minutes. The push speeded the ship to 5,700 miles an hour, breaking it loose from the moon's pull and heading it toward the brilliant, cloud-swaddled ball of earth 237,489 miles and two days, four hours away.

As they broke away, their speed dropped rapidly due to the continued influence of the moon. Not until later today, when they passed through that invisible line where earth's attraction overcomes that of the moon, would they begin to go faster again.

Awaiting them at splashdown in the Pacific at 12:51 p.m. EDT Thursday is the strangest welcome a nation has ever accorded its heroes. They'll be sprayed with disinfectant, sheathed in an air-tight garment with a gas mask to breathe through, hustled into a leak-proof trailer and flown in it to a quarantine laboratory at the Manned Space Centre.

The president of the United States will be on their recovery carrier in the Pacific, the Hornet, to greet them—but it will be through the trailer's window.

Weak communications kept whatever joy they expressed during the return routine from reaching the ground. There was a little problem in the docking—never explained. Collins was heard to say "all hell broke loose."

"I'll bet you'll almost be talking to yourself up there after 10 revs (revolutions) or so," said mission control.

"Oh, no," Collins replied "It's a happy home up here. It'd be nice to have some company, Master of fact, be nice to have a couple of hundred million Americans up here."

"They were with you in spirit," said mission control.

That spirit had caught the world like no other since Lindbergh flew the Atlantic and Yuri Gagarin and John Glenn had flown in space.

Quarantine Has Begun For Crew of Apollo 11

HOUSTON (AP) — The lunar quarantine has begun.

Apollo 11's three astronauts became untouchables for 21 days Monday as they made their last lunar orbits and prepared for the voyage home to earth.

At 1.54 p.m. EDT, the moment they blasted off in the moon ship called Eagle, the lunar explorers started a three-week isolation which cannot end until Aug. 12 but could extend longer.

It is a $10,000,000 insurance policy against something most scientists agree is remote at best, but something they cannot ignore—the possibility that an organism from the moon is hitchhiking a ride aboard Apollo 11 and could threaten life on earth.

"There's an extreme low probability of life on the moon," says Dr. Walker W. Kemmerer Jr., chief of the biomedical specialties branch of the Manned Spacecraft Centre here.

Nevertheless, doubt remains. Elaborate precautions are planned for handling astronauts Neil A. Armstrong, Michael Collins and Aldrin in case they harbor a lunar bug that could infect earth people who have no vaccines or drugs to guard against it.

Precautions will begin when Apollo 11 splashes into the Pacific Ocean at 12:51 p.m. EDT Thursday. A frogman dressed in a special suit with a gas-mask like breathing filter will aid them opening the hatch. He will hand similar biological isolation suits to the astronauts.

The astronauts will board a rubber raft filled with an iodine solution designed to kill bacteria, then be picked up by a helicopter with a special compartment to keep them separated from the aircraft's crew.

The frogman will scrub down the spacecraft hatch with the iodine solution, seal the door and sink the raft. After the helicopter carries them to the waiting recovery ship, they will walk to a trailer-like structure without wheels called a Mobile Quarantine Facility.

They will be sealed in it with a physician, technician and the containers of lunar rocks. After reaching Hawaii, the van will be transferred to an aircraft, flown to Ellington Air Force Base near Houston then trucked to an $8,500,000 lunar receiving laboratory at the manned spacecraft centre.

Doors to the laboratory will be sealed Air inside is at a slightly lower pressure so that any leaks will be into the laboratory, not from it. Expelled air will go through surgical room filters.

Altogether, about 15 persons —cooks, doctors, medical technicians—will be quarantined with the crew.

Expert Says Luna Failed

MANCHESTER, England (AP) A space expert at Jodrell Bank Observatory says the Soviet Union's Luna XV spacecraft demonstrated a new ability to alter lunar orbits, but that the Russians probably intended it to do something more.

Prof. John G. Davies, Jodrell's expert on calculating lunar orbits, made the assessment Monday as Luna XV ended its puzzling nine-day flight with what appeared to be a crash-landing on the moon.

The Soviet news agency Tass announced that Lunar XV had landed, ending its program of research in "space near the moon." But the Soviet launch announcement July 13 said the mission was "scientific exploration of the moon and space near the moon," and nothing was said Monday about exploration of the moon.

Davies said Luna XV performed with a high degree of accuracy and showed the ability —new for unmanned Soviet spaceships—to change lunar orbits with flexibility and precision.

Praise, with Reservations

Russian Comments on Apollo

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's top space scientist said Monday the U.S. Apollo mission is an "outstanding achievement" but more data per ruble could have been gathered by unmanned space probes.

"For the same price, it would have been possible to do significantly more with unmanned spacecraft," said Georgy Petrov, director of the Soviet Institute for Cosmic Research.

But he told a television audience that the presence of a human being on another celestial body besides earth is a "great step."

"It really concerns the determination of man, born on earth, to enter into the mastery of the entire universe," Petrov said.

The scientist said "it is still too early to tell" whether the moon will be economically important.

Wide Coverage Given

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russian newspapers today gave wide coverage to the Apollo 11 moon flight, carrying reports by Tass news agency and correspondents as well as photographs received from the moon.

Academician A. Vinogradov, in an interview with the party paper Pravda, expressed his admiration for the "courage and self-control of the astronauts who boldly faced the unknown."

"The Americans have calculated that it costs $18,000,000 to transport a kilogram (2.2 pounds) of material from the moon to earth. It is difficult for me to imagine what could be that valuable."

The government newspaper Izvestia gave the Soviet people their first relatively detailed account of the U.S. moon landing Monday, but the news was subordinated to a big spread on Soviet-Polish friendship and a day-old communique on Luna XV.

City Step Closer to $1,500,000 Water Plant Extension

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

City council by bylaw yesterday authorized construction of a $1,500,000 extension to Belleville's water purification plant, but it will be two years before it is completed.

Mayor J. R. Scott said it would also be two years before the proposed secondary treatment facility at the city's Foster Ward sewage plant would be completed.

Gore and Storrie, Toronto consulting engineers, have recommended that the city proceed "without unnecessary delay" on the proposed extension to the ily's water purification plant.

The proposal is to extend the plant capacity to 16 million gallons per day.

The present rate capacity of the city's water plant is eight million gallons per day with a maximum rate of 10.8 million gallons daily. The maximum day use last year was 7.7 million gallons and the engineering firm says it is clear the demand can exceed the available supply by the time proposed enlargements can be completed.

The estimated cost of the enlarged water plant which the local public utilities has been considering for several years is in the area of $1,500,000. An amount of $1,600,000 for the project has been approved by the Ontario Municipal Board in this year's capital works budget.

Plans call for upgrating the existing plant to a capacity of 16 m.g.d. thus avoiding the cost of constructing new filters, settling and mixing tanks. The feasibility of extending the present plant rather than building a completely separate system has been established by tests, the report indicates.

However, the increase to the existing plant will require replacement of the filter media and other modifications in order to improve plant hydraulics.

It will also require the moving of micro strainers from their present location and their installation along with new micro straining equipment in a new building.

Micro strainers at the plant remove a major portion of algae from the city water and thus extend the life of filter operation, but do nothing to improve the taste left by the algae.)

The existing micro strainer building at the plant would be used as a laboratory, control room and general administration building.

The costliest single item in the proposed water plant extension will be a new 2,100-foot long, 36-inch diameter intake to cost an estimated $420,000. Revision to the existing plant would cost an estimated $260,000, a new loft-lift pumping station and p u m p s, $334,000, and a new micro strainer for a capacity of 16 m.g.d., $270,000.

Roadways and landscaping are estimated to cost $20,000.

With 15 per cent engineering charges and contingencies of $196,000, the total cost estimate comes to $1,500,000.

Assuming that 30-year debentures are issued, the total annual cost of the debentures would be $207,400 and the average additional cost per 1,000 gallons delivered $4.

The proposed plant extension will not do anything to improve the taste problems in the water but provision will be made in the design so that odor removal equipment may be incorporated at a future date without major disruption to the plant operation.

Tests at the local plant have shown that the quality of water can be materially improved by the use of powdered carbon but to apply the treatment would require the construction of separate tanks where the water and carbon could be held and mixed for a sufficient time to allow the carbon to absorb the odor producing substances.

Possible Objector

Zoning Change OK'd For Four Seasons Inn

Belleville city council yesterday gave unanimous approval to the application of Four Seasons Hotels Ltd. for a change in zoning to allow construction of the proposed new motel complex on the city's waterfront.

The Four Seasons Hotels organization has won a contract from Bell Telephone to provide accommodation and educational facilities for their training school which operates for 10 months each year in Belleville.

However, before construction can commence a zoning change for the property is necessary. Both the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board and the city traffic and light committee have given their approval to the zoning change application.

Bit there still could be a delay before the construction go-ahead is received.

At the planning board meeting earlier this month when that body gave approval to the zoning change request a letter from a local resident objected there could be objection to the motel in the proposed location.

The objector was not named in the letter, but if an objection is lodged the zoning change would have to be approved by the Ontario Municipal Board.

Alderman Douglas Boyle said he had been glad to see the planning board deal "appropriately" with the matter of the unnamed objector.

"In the past city council has never entertained such an objection and I was glad to see the planning board deal with it appropriately."

Mayor J. R. Scott said any objector would have 14 days to lodge his objection from the time of city council approval.

Fred Ilen, representing Four Seasons Hotels Ltd., expressed his appreciation to city council for its co - operation in his company's zoning change request.

Council also gave approval to an application from Maurice H. Rollins Construction for a zoning change on Turnbull Street to allow construction of a new senior citizens apartment complex.

It also approved an application from J. R. Ellis for a zoning change south of Bridge Street East and east of the Belleville shopping plaza to allow construction of a high-rise apartment development.

A condition of the zoning change approval calls for the developer to construct a 66-foot roadway to run along the easterly boundary of his property. A sidewalk will also be requested along Bridge Street.

Approval was also given for Shell Oil to move its service station at the corner of Bridge and Herchimer.

Council went along with a planning board recommendation calling for refusal of a rezoning application from Charles H. Lambert for part of Lot 11 west of Farley Ave.

Still another rezoning application, this one from F. S. Pope, was also refused on the recommendation of the planning board.

Ald. Jeffrey Resents Labor Letter

Alderman Robin Jeffrey has taken strong objection to a letter to Mayor R. J. Scott from Ray Bradshaw, president of the Belleville and District Labor Council, claiming that it is a "vicious personal attack" and "totally unwarranted."

The letter read at yesterday's meeting of city council accused Alderman Jeffrey of being opposed to labor representation on the citizens committee on urban renewal.

It accused the alderman of being the champion of business and commerce in city council, inferring that she was biased in her judgment.

But Alderman Jeffrey claimed the accusation was totally false and completely unwarranted.

She said it was a false and defamatory accusation and left Mr. Bradshaw dangerously open to a libel suit.

"I have never at any time questioned the right of labor to be represented on the committee," she said.

"Mr. Bradshaw has abused the trust placed in him by labor council members and in the future would be well advised to check carefully any statement from the executive."

In his letter Mr. Bradshaw pointed out that business and commerce has 11 members on the urban renewal committee to 15 members for the labor council. He claimed that in proportion to the numbers of people involved this would seem more than fair.

"They are property owners, represent a wide area of working trades and office workers and are directly interested in Belleville," Mr. Bradshaw wrote.

The labor council president did not feel that urban renewal should be used as a political plum.

He noted that council had turned down a request by Alderman Jeffrey that would have given direct representation to East and West Belleville on the committee.

"The new ratepayers Association (in east and west Belleville) is being organized urgently, for one reason, to apply pressure," Mr. Bradshaw concluded. "This should not be necessary for Urban Renewal."

Belleville's Opus-Teen group is ready and willing to work at odd jobs for local residents, but the teens aren't seem to find any employers. David Bergeron, registered with the group, Valerie Slater, program co-ordinator, and Steve Burtch are of the opinion that a job "well done" is a job done by Opus-Teens.

'Opus-Teens' Looking For Jobs--Odd and Others

By JUDY SCHRIEDER
Staff Reporter

"Opus-Teens" are ready to work, but the work just doesn't seem to be anywhere in sight.

"We've only received three or four job calls this summer," said Valerie Slater, program director for worn en's and girls' activities at the "Y" and co-ordinator of the Opus-Teen group.

The organization, sponsored by the Belleville YMCA, is run by youth for youth in an effort to secure summer employment.

This year the group numbers 20. Job-seekers, half of the registered applicants in the organization enjoyed in its initial summer session last year.

We were late starting this year and we haven't had enough advertising for the organization," offered Miss Slater as one reason for the decrease in teen participation.

Any teen looking for summer employment is requested to fill out a registration form stating any previous job training.

A list of possible job opportunities is also given to each applicant and he is asked to check off the ones which he would prefer to be involved in.

However, Opus-Teens are not particular about the type of work they do. "No job too small" is their motto, and they mean exactly that.

In the short length of time that the group has been in existence, lawn-cutting has been an old stand by on its list, with baby-sitting and farm help running a close second.

Over half of the students registered with the group this summer have offered their services free, to do volunteer work in the community.

Once the form has been filled out, all the teen can do is wait. Employers and local residents have to take the next step.

The "Opus-Teens" services are available at the Belleville YMCA, 962-9245.

PUC Pay Up

By a seven-to-four vote city council yesterday approved remuneration increases for members of the Belleville Public Utilities Commission.

The chairman of the commission will have his remuneration increased from the present $750 per year to $1,000 while the two commission members will get an increase of $300 from the present $600.

With tongue in cheek Alderman Douglas Boyle suggested that it must be just a coincidence that the increase in remuneration requested by utility commission members came immediately after increased hydro and water rates had been announced.

Mayor J. R. Scott, as commission member, had no direct reply for Ald. Boyle's suggestion but did say the commission had observed with interest that council members this year had raised their own salaries.

Two Bids Accepted For Arena Projects

Hibbard Electric Company of Belleville will install the electric heating for the seating area of the Belleville Memorial Arena.

The tender of the local firm at $14,200 was the lowest of five received. Bids ranged up to $19,400.

At the same time Canadian Seating Co. Ltd. will install 946 tip-up type seats at a contract price of $10,854.

Installation of the electric heating units for the arena seating area and the new seats was recommended earlier this year by the recreation and arena committee and provision for the cost was made in this year's city current budget.

City council at yesterday's special meeting approved the contracts for the arena heating units and new seating.

Rats Running About Like Pets?

Despite the fact that Mrs. Mary McLaughlin, representing the Belleville Furniture Exchange, claims that rats constitute what could be a serious problem in the city, Mayor J. Russell Scott does not feel the rodents are any more numerous than they were years ago.

Mrs. McLaughlin told council last night that if something was not done the rats could present a serious problem in the city.

City council however, felt the problem was one for the board of health and later in the meeting passed a motion assuring that body the city's support in any action taken.

Today, George Westlake of the county health department told The Intelligencer Mrs. McLaughlin had contacted his department about the rat problem.

"But we have not had that many complaints," he said.

He said that the property complained about by Mrs. McLaughlin had been inspected by both he and the city building inspector but no rats had been seen during two different visits.

Brooke-Bond Permit Boosts City Total

The permit for the new Brooke-Bond plant in the city's northeast industrial park area made up the major portion of the June building activity in Belleville.

The value of the Brooke-Bond building permit was $1,300,000 with the total permits for the month valued at $1,535,400.

By way of comparison the June building total in 1968 was $830,995.

The six-month building total for the city to June 30 was given as $4,883,475, compared with $2,323,195 for the same period last year.

Rotarians Reflect On 'Moon Day'

Yesterday, on "Moon Day" as Rotary president Bob Lanning termed it, the Rev. Lloyd Sutherland of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, spoke to fellow members on the choices before mankind and the theme of freedom with responsibility and integrity.

He spoke against the background of Rotary's four-way test: Is it the truth? Is it fair to all concerned? Does it build goodwill and better friendships? Will it be beneficial to all concerned?

Mr. Sutherland examined a number of areas of endeavor where he felt these 'ideals have been violated. From contemporary reading he cited "The Retirement Trap," illustrating how retired people can be misled by scaled-down furniture and mirrors into acceptance of apparent opulence and space in new living complexes.

Another realm of study was "The Plot to Make You Buy," affording further examples of how the public can be misled. In this regard Mr. Sutherland referred to a statement by former Consumer Affairs Minister John Turner (now Justice Minister) in which he said Canadians wanted protection against misrepresentation, and that safety and health standards should be observed.

The exploitation of sex in advertising involving risque and double-meaning advertising in a variety of products from hair dyes to sugar was another area which Mr. Sutherland suggested was open to question.

In life he said there was freedom of choice — but this was a privilege which must be governed by a sense of responsibility and integrity.

West Lake Search Continues

Picked Wrong Pedal

PICTON — Momentary confusion on the part of Mrs. Maria Koch, Rexdale, caused the first accident on Ross Street, Picton, since the installation of the new stoplight.

In an attempt to bring her car to a stop at the corner, Mrs. Koch told police she applied what she thought to be the brakes, but hit the accelerator instead. Her car struck one driven by Fred E. Young, Deseronto.

Damage to the Young vehicle is estimated at $300. Damage to the car driven by Mrs. Koch and owned by passenger, William Gill was estimated at $200.

Picton police preferred no charges.

Lords Block Labor's Bill

LONDON (Reuters) — The House of Lords Monday night set itself on a constitutional collision course with the Labor government of Prime Minister Wilson.

Conservative peers turned out in force to challenge the government's right to make piecemeal changes in several constituency boundaries.

The Commons is expected to throw out the amendments Thursday, but the Lords can still delay the measure until the fall of 1970.

City to Invite Township Neighbors To Talk Amalgamation

Belleville city council will invite representatives from the neighboring municipalities of Sidney, Ameliasburg, Thurlow and Tyrone to meet with them to discuss amalgamation.

This was the decision yesterday when it approved an amendment to a motion presented by Alderman Arthur Keegan which asked the province to undertake the study for parts of Sidney township with the view of early amalgamation or annexation with Belleville.

But Alderman Paul Russell felt council would be going about the matter in the wrong way.

He suggested that talks be held first with the view of getting co-operation, and that Ameliasburg and Thurlow townships be included in any discussions.

Alderman E. A. Orr echoed Alderman Russell's feeling. He agreed that amalgamation of some sort had to come, but felt the city had to be diplomatic about the matter and take the municipalities into the city's confidence.

The motion by Alderman Keegan was included in a four-part recommendation which asked that a complete investigation of drainage problems of the city and area be investigated.

The motion also urged that the city of Belleville not supply sewer or water services to any other municipality or sections of a municipality until the area requiring the services becomes part of the city.

In view of the amendment to the first part of the motion calling for an invitation to adjacent municipalities to discuss amalgamation, the motion regarding investigation of drainage problems was withdrawn.

The motion calling for no services to be supplied to adjacent townships, was tabled for rewording.

Speaking to his motion against providing services to the municipalities, Alderman Keegan said he wanted to cooperate with the neighboring townships, but at the same time did not want to "give the horse and barn away."

He said the city had offered to co-operate with Thurlow township by allowing them to participate in the construction of a new sanitary sewer up the Moira River but the offer had not been accepted.

Provision of services to the townships would see these areas grow at the expense of the city, he said.

Mayor J. R. Scott said the Belleville area had to grow but asserted it must be on an orderly basis.

"Then are you changing your mind about a policy approved by council that services would be provided to the townships when they are available?" asked Alderman Douglas Boyle.

Mayor Scott replied that this was true.

"I am opposed to extending city services," he added.

The mayor said the previous offer to extend services when they were available was with the understanding that suitable agreements would be signed by the townships.

The only part of Alderman Keegan's four-barrel recommendation to see approval without amendment was a section stating that the city of Belleville wanted no part of the suggested Hastings Planning Board.

The alderman said he was opposed to the proposed county planning area.

"The cost would be too great," he said, adding that he would not like to see an empire built on a county basis.

Council Draws Line

Belleville city council balked yesterday at giving blanket concurrence to outside resolutions which have only specific area ramifications.

Three such resolutions were simply "filed" at yesterday's council meeting after council members noted they had only area interest.

One of these was a brief from Scarborough asking concurrence in a report of the Ontario Law Reform Commission covering the relation of landlord and tenant.

Another was from Brockville asking provincial government to rescind Bill 44 and revert back to the local school board system. The third was from St. Catharines asking that the regional development council in that area be dissolved.

But council concurred in a County of Hastings resolution asking that phosphorus be eliminated as a filler in commercial detergents, and also in another from Port Colborne asking that the province clearly define the authority of municipalities in removing abandoned vehicles from streets and private properties.

International Achievement

With the landing of the United States astronauts on the moon there is a feeling that mankind stands to benefit enormously, not only by enlarging our knowledge of the universe but by uniting men in a common, peaceful goal.

The fact that the Soviet Union, the original leader in space flight, sent its congratulations to Washington is significant. Earlier Soviet scientists had assured the U.S. that its own unmanned lunar craft would pose no danger to the American mission.

All in all it has been an international occasion, with the moon landing being seen by millions of people around the world.

Leading members of the U.S. space program also reflect the international character of the lunar achievement. For example, Dr. Werner Von Braun, who had much to do with the development of the mighty Saturn rocket that propelled the astronauts on their epic journey, is German by birth. Dr. William Pickering, director of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in California is a New Zealander.

Canadian equipment is included in the Apollo system and a Toronto blood specialist is one of the medical men who will be examining the astronauts on their return to earth.

The accents of others interviewed on television during the moon probe reflected origins in other countries. It is a factor that bodes well for the future of a world sorely in need of some great achievement to lift men's minds from the common rut. The lunar landing and all that went into it is just that. It has been a great moment in history.

The Nazi Cult

The wearing of Nazi German medals, helmets, swastikas and other emblems of that melancholy period where Hitler threatened the peace of the world is a fetish of some members of the younger set today.

Now a Hamilton member of The Wild Ones motorcycle club has been charged under a rarely-used section of the criminal code prohibiting the wearing of military medals.

Most of these youths were born after the end of the second World War and can have no conception of the gravity of the events of that time. To that extent the wearing of such emblems is harmless enough: on the other hand it is an offence to those who lived through that period of history, and particularly to those who in a variety of ways suffered from the depredations of the Nazis.

Perhaps the charge being brought by the police against the young man for wearing the medals, described as authentic, will serve to show his kind that they are flaunting not only the law but the sensitivities of millions who know what Nazism meant in days past.

Toronto Gloom

You know the "Prepare to Meet Thy Doom" look that passengers on the Toronto subway effect as they scuttle around the city.

Well perhaps there is little to be happy about on the subway in a concrete jungle like Toronto. A fellow would rather be over on the island where it is cool and there are trees and shady inlets and it is peaceful and far from the maddening crowd.

Perhaps the city's Transit Commission should introduce movies or if this is not practicable music or some other stimulus for the mind. Moscow has its ornate subway interiors, Stockholm its art displays and even Montreal's subway is architecturally interesting.

Toronto's is strictly utilitarian . . . clean and practical but patronized by those unhappy people who seem to frequent big cities.

Phyllis Axler, one of 20 senior university students in the Varsity Downtown Education Project, writing in the University of Toronto magazine, "Graduate," sees it thus: "On the subway, going home one evening after one creative drama workshop, I remember thinking how great it would be if all those hundreds of people packed into the subway with such tired looks on their faces could have spent the day the way we had. My participation in the creative art, drama and writing workshops made me feel so full of life.

"I became convinced after spending a week in a public school in West Central Toronto of the tremendous need to promote creative arts among children in the downtown area. Later, I worked for six weeks on the outreach program — going right into the streets, back alleys and courtyards."

Miss Axler has the right idea. Young people need to be motivated in a manner that will enable them to rise above the impersonal atmosphere of the big city. Without such motivation they will end up as tomorrow's sorrowful facts on the subway.

Ten-Cent Ferry Runs Into A Mountain of Red Tape

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Ever think of Ottawa as a manufacturing city?

Certain it always has been, and ever may be, that the National Capital is a "one-industry town" of civil servants, even a "company town" with the federal government, of course, playing the part of the dominating corporative giant.

But a manufacturing centre? A factory city?

Yep, manufacturer of a very specialized product . . . red tape . . . rules . . . regulations . . .

Every businessman knows just how needless the irritating miles of red tape can be, every private enterprise from the chairman of the board of the largest corporation to the proprietor of the smallest operation.

How small?

As small as the young ferryman who, like his father, grandfather and great grandfather, runs a six-seater rowboat "ferry" across the Ottawa River on Sundays between suburban Rockcliffe Park on the Ontario side to Gatineau Point on the Quebec shore.

The four generations have charged a nickel for the half-mile ride.

But why would anyone want to go, of a Sunday afternoon, from an Ottawa suburb across a wide river by rowboat to an undistinguished Quebec village?

Well, perhaps for the cool ride on a hot day, but mostly for a few beers, gins and tonics, Cuba Libres, Scotch-on-the-rocks, or what-will-you-have.

For Gatineau Point, like Hull and "The Strip" along the Aylmer Road, historically has been an after-dark and weekend watering hole. All three places swing and sway or rock and roll with night spots from posh pleasure palaces offering such Broadway, Las Vegas or television stars as Jack Carter, Shecky Greene, Louis Armstrong and Shelly Berman to joints with strippers.

In Gatineau Point, though, they do not wait for the sun to go down — the fun starts early Sunday afternoon.

And while you can get over to the Quebec shore by four different bridges, there are types who prefer, perhaps for the change of pace of it, the water route.

So the ferryman, his dad, grandpappy and great grandpop have been obliging these many years at a nickel a ride.

Then along came inflation, and the fourth generation ferryman figured the ride was worth a dime.

That was when he discovered what a tangle red tape can be.

He had to apply, just like Air Canada or Canadian Pacific, to the Transport Commission for permission to change the rates.

The Commission required him to clear it with the Ontario government and the Quebec administration, the Ottawa River being an interprovincial stream.

The Quebec government wanted to know if he had cleared it with the Gatineau Point Council, the Township of Gatineau, and the County of Hull, the Province of Quebec, required him to clear it with Rockcliffe Village Council, the City of Hull, Gloucester, the city of Ottawa and the new Regional Carleton-Russel administration.

Then as an afterthought, they all wondered if he had cleared it with the National Capital Commission.

The ferryman sensibly is charging the dime, and figures that his grandson, with luck, might be able to finish up the mountain of paper-work making it all tidily legal according to the rules, regulations and endless miles of red tape of the multiplicity of governments at multi-levels budded on his business.

But be not without hope.

There may be a turn for the better in the long long trail of red tape awinding.

Justice Minister John Turner, that white knight in shining armor, may ride to the rescue of the taxpayers.

He has let it be known that "something must be done" about those ever-multiplying hordes of "faceless men" of the bureaucracy who run what he calls the "always-changing and increasingly remote machine called government."

A way must be found, says John Turner, to protect citizens from "bureaucratic trespassing against their rights and provide redress from red tape wrongs."

It could be done, he suggests, through re-organization of the Federal Exchequer Court, setting it up as a sort of "Ombudsman of the Bench."

The Justice minister is working on it, and as he is the kind of man who usually gets things done, something good could be happening.

Strong Heart Necessary For the Figure Skater

German Features

Figures skaters are under greater heart stress than other high-performance athletes, according to a study recently conducted in West Berlin.

The study revealed that even during relatively light warm-up exercises on the ice the heart-beat rate of skaters runs about 60 per minute above normal. During performances it runs considerably higher than that, the degree depending on the figure the skater is cutting.

The study involved recording electrocardiograms (curves of heart-activity) of eight skaters while they warmed up and gave their performances. This was done by attaching mini-transmitters to the skaters able to send their information up to a distance of about 1.5 miles.

Physicians from West Berlin's Institute for Preventative and Rehabilitation Sport Medicine, sponsors of the project, conducted the recording from the sidelines.

Based on the results, the physicians say ice skaters should generally be subjected to heavier physical training preparatory to performances in order to reduce the heart stress during them.

The study was designed to aid sport doctors in developing the most possible training program for figure skaters.

Pacific Tourist Magnet

Japan Air Lines

Perhaps from envisouly observing the results of tourist invasions in such places as Hawaii, Japan, and Hong Kong, where whole industries thrive on them and even the national economy depends on them —

Perhaps as a result of persistent, intensive promotion by the Pacific Area Travel Association —

Whatever the reason, suddenly the whole oriental side of the Pacific is bidding avidly for tourists. From India to Suva to Sydney, countries and islands and cities and mountain and seaside resorts are competing with lurid ads and all sorts of fanfare for tourists and their dollars.

A Year Under the New Divorce Laws

Ottawa Journal

A year's trial has confirmed many of the forecasts about a spiralling divorce rate under Canada's relaxed rules.

Since last July, when grounds other than adultery have been accepted, the number of applications in Ottawa has tripled and special court sittings are scheduled in the fall to cut down on the backlog.

Despite this, the idea of "quickie" divorces which many critics feared is still foreign to the measured pace of Canadian judicial process.

In ideal circumstances—where the action is not contested and no children are involved — a divorce technically can be processed in five months. Most take at least a year.

The new grounds were introduced along with the decision to include divorce among actions eligible for assistance under Ontario's legal aid plan, and this has helped swell the total of applications.

The main change is that previously dead but legally insoluble marriages can now be terminated under the desertion or "breakdown of marriage" concept introduced in the new Divorce Act.

Officials handling documents at the Ottawa courthouse estimate 85 per cent of the 1,340 applications filed since last July involve desertion or prolonged separation — some, they note, of 20 or more years.

The main criticism of divorce law in Canada was once encapsulated by Senator Arthur Roebuck, long-time chairman of the senate divorce committee, when he said with some cynicism that there were only two grounds for divorce in Canada — "adultery and perjury."

As the evidence of the past year would indicate, there were clearly many more reasons.

Enzyme Preparation Aids Boy Given Up for Dead

German Features

For six months, nine-year-old Peter Otte lay in a trance-like death at a Karlsruhe hospital. In fact, he had already been ruled clinically dead —— there was no evidence of any brain activity whatsoever though his heart continued to beat.

But now Peter is back among the living and well on the way to recovery —— thanks to an enzyme preparation and the patient care of his doctor.

Over a year ago, the youngster was delivered to the hospital unconscious after a bicycle-car wreck. He had suffered serious brain damage. The case seemed hopeless. Peter's heart was beating and he breathed, but there were only slight indications of brain activity according to measurements by an electroencephalograph. In six months, the brain activity ceased completely.

Then Peter's doctor heard about the recently developed enzyme preparation which was made in Holland, which had been used with success in similar type cases. He ordered some, begin treating Peter and soon the youngster regained consciousness.

Four months later, the child was able to leave the hospital in a wheelchair and was transferred to the Medical Clinic of Heidelberg University, where he is being taught to speak and walk once again —— both abilities were lost to Peter as a result of the damage he suffered in the accident.

But he can laugh, recognizes his surroundings, eats and understands what's said to him.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The King David Hotel in Jerusalem, headquarters of British forces in Palestine, was blown up by mimbers of the terrorist group Irgun Zvai Leumi 23 years ago today—in 1946. Nearly 100 persons were killed and half as many were wounded. In April an Anglo-American committee had recommended partition of Palestine and immediate admission of 100,000 Jewish refugees but British, holder of a UN mandate, refused to allow this unless the United States shared the cost. Terrorism and reprisals continued until the British withdrawal in 1948.

1796 — Napoleon captured Cairo.

1924 — John Dillinger was shot in Chicago.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1944—a two-pronged Russian drive toward eastern Poland gained momentum; United States bombers gave German rocket-launching sites a fourth hammering in 24 hours; Allied Supreme Headquarters announced 18 Canadian battalions had fought in France from D-Day to June 14.

Political Crisis in India

Leftist-Leaning Mrs. Gandhi Faces Party Split

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — India is in the grip of a political crisis in which the long-ruling Congress Party is badly split and the question arises whether Mrs. Indira Gandhi can survive as prime minister.

There is little doubt that despite the boiling war within her own party, the strong-willed daughter of Jawaharlal Nehru is still is the best known and most popular political figure in India.

But she remains prime minister only because she has managed a form of surface unity between the right and left factions of her party which barely managed to retain a majority in the 1967 general election.

Since then more states have tended to shift to the left and Mrs. Gandhi appears to be more in sympathy with that side of the political arena than with the advocates of the free-enterprise, business-before-socialism right.

Two recent issues started a showdown: Mrs. Gandhi's expressed sympathy with the left-wingers' desire to nationalize India's banks and her support to the right-wingers' choice of a party candidate for the country's presidency.

The party swung behind the right in choice of its candidate— Sanjiva Reddy, Speaker of India's lower house of Parliament —and Mrs. Gandhi's man, V. V. Giri, an elderly former trade union leader, immediately announced he would stand without the party's formal support.

Mrs. Gandhi then declared war on the right, making Jagjivan Jessai as finance minister and he promptly walked out of his other role as deputy prime minister. Desai had ambitions to become prime minister but it has been clear for some time he does not have Mrs. Gandhi's national popularity.

In her declaration of war against the right, Mrs Gandhi has inherited the worst panic of any crisis in a decade with questions raised whether the party could hope to continue its long rule when the next general election comes up in 1972 or earlier.

It appears likely she already has measured the risks involved and decided on a policy that would align the Congress Party with other groups of the left, thereby allowing her to shut out the right entirely.

All Safe, Flying Home

Seven women in Lima, Peru, gave birth to sons on the day Armstrong and Aldrin walked the moon—and they named them all Neil. A woman named her daughter Selena, for the Greek goddess of the moon. Newspapers sold out, of especially heavy press runs. There were estimates that more than 500,000,000 people—the largest television audience ever—saw their walk.

But it was the scientists whose pulses ran quickest, for at last they could see and analyse soil and rocks from another heavenly body. This was the treasure Apollo 11 sought. This is the treasure it returns.

Armstrong and Aldrin stayed on the moon for 2 hours 31 minutes before the ascent engine of their moonship Eagle fired to start them back to the command ship Columbia.

They left behind their descent stage, with its American flag and plaque proclaiming their feat "in peace for all mankind." They left an experiment to measure moon tremors and one to enable scientists on earth to measure the distance to the moon precisely with a laser light beam.

Before they floated through the tunnel from the lunar ship Eagle to the command ship Columbia, Armstrong and Aldrin used a vacuum cleaner to remove moon dust from themselves and from the equipment they were bringing home.

"It doesn't appear as though the red hose is going to be much of a competitor to the leading vacuum cleaner brands," Aldrin observed.

The two ships were designed so that air pressure was greater in the command ship, causing air during the linkup to flow toward the lunar module—another measure to reduce possible contamination from foreign organisms.

Not long after they had rejoined Collins in Columbia—some two hours ahead of schedule—Eagle was kicked loose to go into orbit around the moon and eventually crash into its dust.

Even as derelict, the trusty moon taxi served a purpose. A cooling system for the guidance system was turned off to see how long it would last. Scientists thought the time would be an hour. It lasted seven. When mission control announced it had gone "really up," Armstrong commented: "Okay, very good. It was the death of a real winner."

For a while, Armstrong and Aldrin watched the ship that had carried them into man's greatest adventure as it moved one mile above and 20 miles behind.

Collins described its departure as beginning with a "fairly loud noise, and it appears to be departing. I'd guess about several feet a second."

But Armstrong and Aldrin bade it a fond goodbye, as Thomas Stafford and Eugene Cernan did with their "Snoopy" on the Apollo 10 rehearsal flight. All Armstrong said, as he inspected the derelict, was: "I can see some cracks on the outer-stroking around the tunnel."

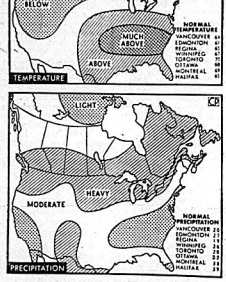
Snoopy shattered on the moon's surface. So, on Monday, did Russia's unmanned Luna XV.

Now, for the next two days, there is mostly rest for the astronauts who inscribed their names beside those of other audacious explorers.

They are returning home with treasures from a far away shore.

B.C. to Vote August 27

VICTORIA (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett, who says "politics is my life," Monday set Aug. 27 for his seventh general election since his Social Credit government assumed power in 1952.



The 68-year-old premier announced the election date with an obvious broadside at the New Democratic Party, saying the people of the province faced a challenge in the form of "a philosophy of Marxist socialism masquerading under another name."

Almost all heavily-populated areas of Canada are expected to have below-normal temperatures and heavy precipitation during the next 30-days, according to the long-range forecast of the United States weather bureau.

Northern areas of the western provinces will have normal temperatures and precipitation.

The outlook is not a specific forecast and changes may occur. (CP Newsmap).

REAL ESTATE

The Best Properties May Not Be Advertised

ED McKINNEY J. E. McKINNEY Realty Ltd.

Years ago I knew a young man who had been unemployed for a long time. He used to scan the "Help Wanted" column and decide there was nothing available.

He never realized the best jobs are often not advertised at all, but filled by applicants who hear about them by word of mouth.

Many people make the same mistake about real estate. They scan the newspaper, and if there is nothing advertised that interest them, they conclude there is nothing on the market that they would want. It never occurs to them that some properties — like jobs — are often never advertised.

Realtors aren't operating a secret selling service for favored clients. It's just that some properties are such good buys the moment word gets around they are for sale, the realtor quickly gets a firm offer before he has had time to compose an ad.

That's one good reason why, if you're thinking of buying, it will pay you to contact a reliable realtor and let him know what your requirements are. He will record them and call you the moment a listing that would interest you shows up.

Space and TV

Great Potentials Are Demonstrated

NEW YORK (AP) — The great potential for space was ably demonstrated by Apollo 11 —and so was the great potential for global television.

For one stirring moment as Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin walked the lunar surface, the world was bound together.

The television commentator mentioned only in passing that the greatest audience ever to witness a historic event saw the moonwalk.

It was easy to take television's role for granted amid the drama. You build a camera, load it aboard, and it works. Television is so much a part of our common experience. We watch it, we are enthralled by it, so often we are disappointed by it. Those ghostly images from another planet made it all worthwhile.

When world leaders get around to discussing ways the space program can promote peace and tranquillity, perhaps some thought can be given to using the communications satellite network. What a potential it has for global understanding.

Maybe some way can be found to get Russia and China to participate. They were the only major nations which did not carry television of the moon walk. The Soviet Union showed taped sequences of the lunar walk Monday.

Meanwhile, the networks ended their marathon coverage of the lunar phase of the Apollo mission and prepared for live coverage of the splashdown in the Pacific Thursday.

The liftoff from the moon and the rendezvous Monday afternoon went smoothly and there was little for television to do other than present the facts and demonstrate it as best they could with models and animation.

After Sunday night's thrilling pictures it apparently was anticlimactic to many people and audiences were down considerably.

There were many highlights of the long coverage, but here are a few things we will remember:

—Walter Cronkite rubbing his hands in great relief and exclaiming "Wow!" at the safe landing of the Eagle on the Sea of Tranquility.

—Jules Bergman's informed comments on every step of the critical operation.

—David Brinkley's way of wringing profound meanings out of a few and simple words. After all the scientific explanation of Eagle's liftoff from the moon he commented, "They're up and that's the important thing."

—Harry Reasoner's wry way of putting things in perspective when we are most in danger of taking them too seriously. In an essay, he said disenchantment with the moon had already set in and observed that as a symbol it had inspired a "lot of good songs and bad poetry."

Nixon Salutes Baseball

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon salutes baseball's 100th birthday today before acting out on a globe-circling trip timed to coincide with the scheduled return to Earth of the Apollo astronauts.

Although he had three baseball-related events on his schedule for the day, Nixon still put his trip first. He invited Republican and Democratic leaders of Congress to a breakfast conference at the White House to discuss his 24,000-mile journey to seven nations "and other matters."

Nixon has to be the most enthusiastic baseball fan in the White House since W i l l i a m Howard Taft, who was the first president to throw out the opening day ball, and Woodrow Wilson, whose library contained much baseball material.

Whoever you are...

Bill is employed by a big company. After October 1st, he's employed and every employer of 15 or more employees must join OHSIP, and every employee must pay 1/2 of the premium. To collect this benefit group requirement, OHSIP is voluntary.

Frances likes to travel. She'll be protected by OHSIP against the cost of health care she may need outside Ontario, at OHSIP rates. If she decides to live or reside in another province, her OHSIP coverage will be "portable". She'll remain insured for up to 6 months.

Sally and John are expecting another baby in February. Sally will be able to choose her own doctor, and he'll be free to accept her as his patient. She will advise John in advance if he intends to charge more than OHSIP covers. In addition, OHSIP will pay at the rate of 90 per cent of the Province of Ontario Schedule of Fees (1969) for most services except this deductible and payment. The cost of Sally's hospital room will be paid for by their Ontario Hospital Insurance.

Albert is still working but he's not sure for how much longer. Unemployment, illness, or financial difficulties won't prevent him from having OHSIP protection—he can apply for temporary premium assistance. Full or partial premium assistance will also be available to him, determined by his annual taxable income.

Pete is receiving Old Age Assistance from the Province of Ontario. After October 1st, his present coverage from OMSIP will simply continue from OHSIP, automatically. All he has to do is wait. He knows OHSIP will be the health insurance he can count on.

Mario works for a small firm, but he'll be covered by OHSIP just like Bill. Any employer who employs more than 5 but fewer than 15 people may apply for group coverage for his employees. Mario's boss plans to form such a group.

as of Oct. 1st.

Points for Parents
By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I worried all afternoon fixing a hot meal and you all gobble it down without a word of appreciation. I might as well have given you cold sandwiches."

Mother: "It was such a hot day, I didn't try to do any cooking. We're having a nice cold supper tonight on the patio."

A cold meal served joyfully will nourish the body and the spirit better than a hot meal served with resentment.

Work Tour Comes to Tyendinaga

TYENDINAGA RESERVE — Summer is for travelling, and that fact was never truer than for the six young people and their camp mother, Mrs. Judith Daniel, who are working on the reserve as part of an Overseas Work Tour program.

Mrs. Daniel, the wife of an Anglican clergyman, and Marjorie Gardiner are from Jamaica, while Keith Hall a high school teacher and Beverley Gibson, a student, are from British Guiana. There are three Canadian students in the group, Steve Nixon from New Brunswick, Nancy Pécepiece from Niagara Falls and Dale Farrell from Sault Ste. Marie.

The group had expected to camp out, but instead lived in the rectory. Through the efforts of Arnold Maracle, junior lay reader and Garnet Maracle, rector's warden of Christ Church, and the cooperation of the residents of the reserve, the rectory was furnished with articles lent by the residents.

They came prepared to do any type of work required of them and completed a parish census which has long been needed.

Afternoons and evenings the group has free to acquaint themselves with the district. During the week a "meet the young people night" and a wiener roast, arranged by Maracle, rector's warden of Christ Church, and the cooperation of the residents of the reserve, the rectory was furnished with articles lent by the residents.

Accessories For Fashion

NEW YORK (AP) — The current craze for nudity in fashion has sparked a whole series of new products ranging from body stockings for the model to body jewelery for the daring.

The latest idea probably will raise more eyebrows than all the rest put together.

It's makeup for the bosom. The new line of cosmetics was introduced Thursday by Kenneth, the hairdresser turned cosmetics entrepreneur. He showed the makeup to 200 fashion editors at the New York Couture Group's fall and winter showings this week.

Kenneth said that although he feels "the human body looks better covered up," the times are against him. "We are going to start to feel more conscious of how we look naked," he said.

- We need a volunteer to do odd carpentry jobs.

Ann Landers

Song of Praise For 'Unsung' Newsmen

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm becoming a little bored with your defence of doctors, ministers, hotel maids and meter readers. It's about time you said a good word about newspapermen.

ANN LANDERS

My husband doesn't perform surgery or deliver babies, but he sees to it that the newspaper gets out every day and this means a lot to people who consider their newspaper as an important part of their daily lives. In our town the sky would fall if we didn't get Ann Landers.

A holiday is just like any other day to my husband. We works on Thanksgiving, Christmas, the Fourth of July and New Year's. When something big happens my husband works all night and half the next day. On Election night he worked 20 hours straight. When President Kennedy was assassinated he didn't take his clothes off for three days. So please, Ann, say something nice about the unsung heroes — the guys who put out the paper rain or shine — MARRIED TO ONE.

DEAR MARRIED: Happy to — some of my best friends are newspaper men, and I mean it sincerely.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm so ashamed I can-hardly hold up my head. Last night my boyfriend and I went too far. Not all the way, but nearly. We were in the rec room downstairs and the lights were off. Mom thought we were still out to a movie and she came downstairs with a flashlight because she thought she heard some noise. Of course, she caught us. She looked so hurt it nearly killed me. Thank heavens she was very calm and didn't yell or anything. She asked Harvey to leave while she talked to me. Harvey insisted on staying. He said it was more his fault than mine and that he wanted to face the lecture with me. Honestly, Ann, he was wonderful. Harvey apologized and asked Mom to give us another chance. He promised we would never do anything like that again if she would let us keep seeing each other. Her decision was that we could date, but not steady. She said I'd have to go with the other boys and that Harvey should date other girls.

Ann, I don't want to go with anyone else. I love Harvey and he loves me. We are both 16 and have been going steady for 14 months. Please help us convince Mom we can be trusted and that she should give us another chance.—BALTIMORE BLUES.

DEAR BLUES: In my opinion your mother was pretty darned generous. Accept her decision, consider yourself lucky and cool it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Many teen-agers look to your column for the final word as to what is right and wrong. Please print this letter from a mother who is so mad she can hardly see straight.

I maintain that when a high school boy breaks up with his steady, there should be no question regarding the boy's class ring, his letterman sweater or anything else that symbolized the closeness of their relationship. When they split up the symbols should go back to the boy. Am I right?

My son went steady with a ding-a-ling who didn't have sense enough to come in out of the rain. They broke up two weeks ago and the little gold digger hasn't returned any of the things he gave her. He told me he asked her twice but she says she is entitled to something for all the time she spent with him. She also called him "cheap."

I say this is rotten behavior for a young lady. What do you say? — MARTINS FERRY.

DEAR M.F.: She may be young, but she's no lady. I agree, the girl should return all symbols of togetherness when apartness occurs. But now, Mother, having said your piece, stay out of it. Few things are less attractive than a mother who involves herself in her son's life.

WEDDING

COLLINS — WICKETT

Sharon Margaret Wickett and Roy Charles Collins were recently married in St. John the Baptist Church, Peterborough by the Rev. Raymond Heffernan.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Blakely and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Collins, all of Peterborough.

The bride wore a toe length A-line gown of stiffened taffeta and organza with insets of lace and rhinestones and pearls. The hemline and the chapel train were bordered with lace motifs.

A cluster of satin and organza roses held the shoulder length veil and she carried a bouquet of stephanotis and white roses.

Miss Ruth Beamish was the maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Jack Evans and Mrs. Peter McCarthy, sister of the bridegroom. Miss Jana Lee Blakely was flower girl.

They were pink, green and yellow floor length empire style gowns with floor length trains. They wore roses in their hair and carried crescent bouquets of tinted mums.

Peter McCarthy was best man. Larry Wickett, brother of the bride and Leonard Collins, brother of the bridegroom, were ushers. Steven Collins, brother of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

A reception was held at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club. The couple will live at 572 Wolfe St., Peterborough.

Successful Living

Reader Speaks About Solitary Life

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I recently saw a letter from a lady I live alone, so I thought I would write as a man live-alone. I am enjoying the grand experience of having everything in one's own hands. Also to make all the decisions as to when to go to bed, when to get up, what to eat, what to view on TV, and even what record to play on the record player my wife left, when she passed away.

I joined the Joggers the other night, being the only one over 70 years old in the group. I made the two-mile trip o.k., and wasn't the last one b a c k either.

I also spend much time in the park, as I live near there, and enjoy talking to people wherever I meet them. Last weekend I invited a family with three boys in for dinner after church.

They brought a large vegetable dish and I had the rest that we needed. I gave her the take-over of the kitchen and supervising of the meal, of course, and we had some sacred hymns on the record player while we ate to keep the spirit of the day going; and we all really enjoyed the repast.

I might say that very soon after I was left alone I decided my destiny was largely in my own hands, now that I have lived out my allotted three score and 10 years; and that I would eat to live and exercise properly, get adequate rest and maintain a cheerful attitude, thus hoping to add 10 to 15 years to my happy life.

There is nothing wrong with me that I know of, only that I may be half cracked in mind!

Now to the other loner male housekeepers — keep a cheerful attitude; keep the house clean so it will look good, and keep the blinds up in the d a y-time so all the sunshine possible will come in; and hope for the best. — Just Fred

Dear Fred: Jogging, keeping house, having company, circulating, making friends at the drop of a hat — if that's being cracked, here's to t h e crackpots!

Dear Doris: What could be wrong with a child who is always moving his arms and hands one way or other. He can't be near a wall or table without scraping it with his hands.

He does these gestures with his hands at any time and often drags his feet. Otherwise he is normal and very bright.

What are the symptoms of brain injury? — Alarmed

Dear Alarmed: I'd have to know more about him; age, home situation, emotional development. If he is bright, and not getting enough outlet for his capacity, frustration might cause some of these movements. People who are bored drag their feet — don't they?

Your doctor is the one to discuss possible brain injury. But I can't see this, with a bright boy. Your guidance about this should come from a child specialist or child care expert.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Try Uncooked Hollandaise

By MARY MOORE

Nine years ago a recipe for uncooked Hollandaise caused quite a flurry. The reason that our readers liked it was because the worry of keeping the water in the bottom of the double boiler below boiling point was eliminated. The only heating you had to do was barely melt the butter. Every other step was m a d e away from the heat. Another appealing characteristic is that it may be made in advance and refrigerated, then stirred over warm water to reheat it somewhat at mealtime. Any that is leftover may be stored covered a n d rewarmed later.

To compare its quality with another Hollandaise sauce I made two different batches yesterday to serve on broccoli.

To give our timid Hollandaise lovers courage I am giving both of those recipes today. Go ahead now and m a k e them with confidence to serve over our wonderful summer vegetables or Sunday morning Eggs Benedict.

UNCOOKED HOLLANDAISE

2 large egg yolks
½ tsp. salt
Shake of cayenne pepper
¾ cup (6 tbsps.) melted but not hot butter
1 tbsp. lemon juice

Gently melt butter. In small beater bowl with rotary or electric beater, beat yolks with salt and cayenne until thick. Then start adding warm melted butter, while beating on high, 1 tbsp. at a time. Between each addition of 1 tbsp. butter add ½ tsp. of the lemon juice. By the time all of the butter and lemon juice a r e added the mixture has emulsified. If desired refrigerate until mealtime or serve it as is. It melts as soon as it touches your hot vegetables.

A Hollandaise sauce that is frowned on by French chefs calls for ¼ cup boiling water, but I like it for beginners so here it is.

HOLLANDAISE SAUCE FOR BEGINNERS

3 tbsps. butter
2 large egg yolks
¼ tsp. salt
Shake of cayenne
¼ cup boiling water
1 tbsp. lemon juice

In the top of the double boiler (not over boiling water) cream the butter, then beat in yolks, salt and cayenne. Slowly stir in boiling water. Place over steaming, not boiling, water and stir constantly until it thickens. It does not thicken much. Remove top of double boiler from bottom and slowly stir in lemon juice. Serve in small saucebout or bowl.

NOTE: Genuine Chef's Hollandaise does not call for any water at all.

Forest 'Barbershop'

Tree-pruning is part of work program for junior Rangers. Helping thin out forest near Weslemkoon Lake yesterday were John Hinchey, R.R. 2 Shannonville, and Tim McCullough, Toronto.

Junior Rangers Clear Bush, Make Beds In $5-a-Day Camp Training Program

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

CASHEL LAKE — There's something stirring in the forest hereabouts, and it's more than the breeze in the trees.

It's a man-organized enterprise — although its participants are working like beavers.

In fact, work is the keynote of the project — a camp for junior lands and forests rangers still being completed on the shores of this pleasant strip of water in bush country 25 miles due north of Tweed.

The camp, organized this year by the Department of Lands and Forests Tweed district office, engages the full summertime attention of teenagers in various work schemes tied to the surrounding natural environment.

There's the comradeship and fun of living together in new surroundings, growing accustomed to a different atmosphere — plus the $5-a-day pay.

But, emphasises Bert Dunn, forest protection supervisor for the Tweed forestry district it is a "comprehensive work program."

It's the latest of a chain of camps operated by the department across the province—the first in nearly 20 years in the Tweed district.

As such, it provides unlimited opportunities for work.

The three-acre site on the north shore of the lake was cut from the bush starting May 10. There's still plenty of improvement work to be done.

Under the supervision of department foremen and crew bosses the 39 youths — from various Ontario points — have much to do clearing bush.

Then there's a new dock planned, plus a lecture hall.

However, the planned departmental programs preoccupying much junior — ranger time is in the forest hereabouts.

Two such projects now underway are pruning the various reforestation plantations in the area and a stream improvement scheme.

There is instruction and training in various phases of forestry work.

There's also comfortable living — despite the rough bush-country surroundings.

Four big bunk houses can roomily accommodate up to 60 people. The facilities include hot and cold running water.

Then there are three big main meals daily, in a modern-equipped cookery and dining hall, where a chef and his assistant serve a hearty and varied diet.

The department lays down strict regulations for the young rangers' health and comfort.

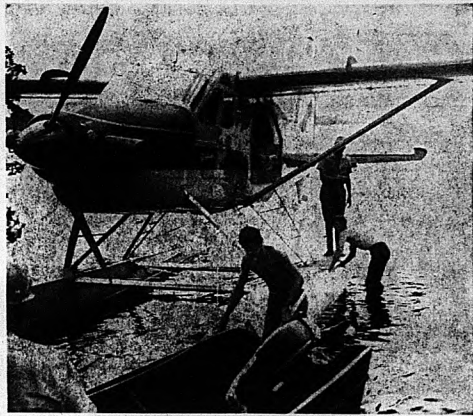
In turn, there are certain rules to ensure the project may operate in the necessary orderly fashion.

The youths may not have their own vehicles in camp. Cars and motorcycles must be parked for the season at the nearest ranger's office—Bancroft in this instance. Transportation is provided by the department — a local school bus is used to take the rangers to various daily work sites.

They must swim in groups of not less than four, must make their own beds and are not allowed near neighboring cottage resort areas.

If extra recreation is needed there are such pursuits as ball games — the nearest ball park is on the other side of the lake at Gilmour.

The young rangers are taken to town — Madoc or Bancroft — Saturday afternoons.



The group here are part of some 2,000 17-year-old youths — the program stipulates the age level — in various department camps around the province.

The sites are not commercial recreation camps, emphasized Bert Dunn. They are work camps with planned educational programs, which impart a working knowledge of the outdoors.

For many it aids in deciding their future education and work patterns, says the forest supervisor.

The applicants undoubtedly have an interest in the outdoors. Working conditions will sort out those who are still keen in making it a career.

These will be the ones to enter public service in forestry and wildlife.

Under Their Wing

Young rangers gingerly manoeuvre lands and forests float plane toward shore of Cashel Lake work site. Among projects in offing is dock to facilitate mooring boats, aircraft.

Bethel Bronc Rider Long Way from West

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — It's a long way from the wild and woolly western confines of a Calgary bat Prince Edward County's Lyle Mitchell doesn't let that dampen his enthusiasm for bronco riding.

Lyle placed fourth among the 22 riders who competed at the Ottawa Valley Western Horse Association's weekend rodeo at the Lazy R Ranch.

The interest in riding was nurtured as a member of the Quinte Western Horse Association, and Lyle was a leading light in the organization of the Sophiasburg Riding Club.

"Western games and rodeos are my kind of sport," grins the tall cowboy whose trademark is a large black stetson.

Where did Lyle learn to ride so well? Until he was 15 years old the young Roy Rogers rode his uncle's work horse. Then came the red-letter day when he bought a horse of his own.

"Prince," a lively bay with plenty of speed taught Lyle a great deal about horses and riding. This little horse, now in his teens, earned a permanent home on the Kicking Horse Ranch where Lyle hangs his hat.

In 1967 Lyle Mitchell travelled west to Alberta where he worked on the Melba Ranch, six miles east of the Calgary Trans-Canada.

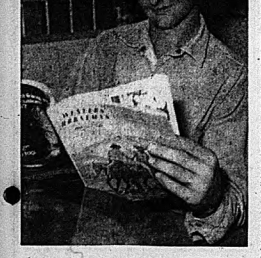
While there, he did quite a bit of rodeoing but found competition "stiff." "The kids out west start to ride calves when they are lads of eight or so," he says.

Any cowboy nearing 30 years of age can consider his career in rodeo all but over according to Lyle. Rodeo riding demands lightening quick reflex actions and the old cowhands just can't compete with youth.

Returning from the west, Lyle brought two Pinto horses with him to train as western games mounts.

He and his pretty wife, Carol, compete regularly in Prince Edward County games competitions and usually bring home their share of ribbons.

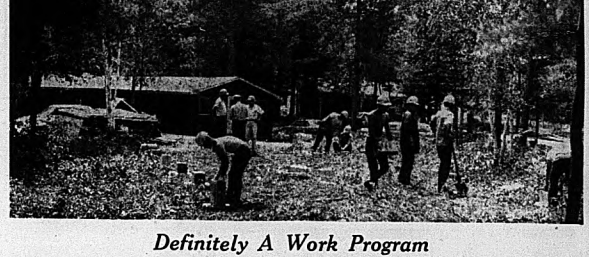
Mitchell was one of the first horsemen in the county to introduce chariot - racing at district horse shows and fairs.



Driving a custom - built chariot especially designed to eliminate wind resistance, Lyle teams his ponies to the top at many of the local shows.

Wife, Carol competes successfully in the powder puff chariot races popular at most shows.

Lyle expects to head back to the Ottawa Valley in September to compete in another points rodeo to be held there. "Winning doesn't mean that much to me." "I like to enter just for kicks, but it would be nice to take home a trophy all the same," he added.



Glancing at his watch the cowboy observed, "It's time I was heading down the road." "Down the road" is Lyle's Bethel farm where he works and trains his horses assisted by his wife.

Prince Edward County's rodeo rider is looking forward to competing near Ottawa next fall but he does have one misgiving. Now in his mid-twenties Lyle feels that he will soon be "too old" for his sport.

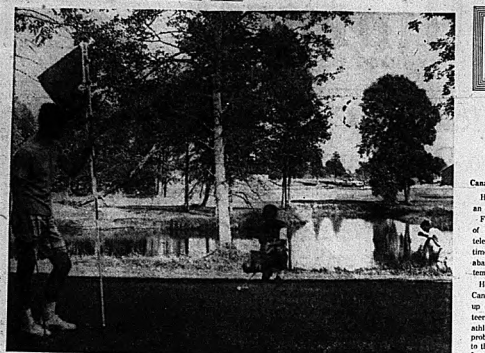
Pointers

Prince Edward County's own rodeo performer — Lyle Mitchell — leafs through horse publications for tips on a favorite pastime — bronc-riding.

Definitely A Work Program

Emphasis is on work at lands and forests camp for junior Rangers at Cashel Lake. Here youths are helping construct building which will be used as lecture hall.

Army-Navy Duffers Aiming for Sunday



Another good sized contingent of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit Golfing enthusiasts have signed up for the tournament next Sunday. It will be played at the Sioux Golf Course and all players are reminded that the first tee off starts at 8.00 a.m. Comrade Bob Jones would like to organize a foursome to play in the Provincial Command Golf Tournament and anyone interested is asked to get in touch with him for further information as to date, place and rules of procedure.

Another large crowd was on hand last Friday evening to enjoy the comfort and facilities of the Tartan Lounge and the last appearance of Cam Walsh and Alex Adams in music and songs for the next few weeks but they will sure be back. The social evenings have become a very popular spot with the members and their guests. Winner of the first draw was Cde. Annie Haley and the second draw winner was Cde. Stan Melbourne.

Cde. Johnny Foxon was celebrating his birthday and got a rousing chorus of "Happy Birthday to you." Johnny is one of the longest serving members of the ANAVETS having joined the Winnipeg Unit in the very early twenties. At that time, together with Bob Cook, they played on the champion Winnipeg Soccer Team and both their names are in the Winnipeg Sports Hall of Fame. Cde. Hank reports on another group whose name, so far is a mystery will continue the trend of delightful evenings that have been appreciated by the members and guests since the start of the year.

Chairman of the sick committee reports that Cde. Ross Steward is coming along nicely and hopes to be able to take over his position in the near future. Cde. Ben Feather is still eager to receive visitors or cards. They are so welcome. Cdes. H. Dunphy and R. Mondeville manage to get home for the odd weekend but have to return to Kingston Hospitals on Mondays. Cde. T. O'Neil is still in BGH and Cde. K. Sam Green is at St. Michael's in Toronto. All the sick have been cared for.

The 32nd Battery has started their preparations for their annual reunion to be held in Peterborough, Saturday, October 11th.

1969 Canada Games Will Be 'An Exercise in Nationhood'

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

HALIFAX (CP) — "This is an exercise in nationhood."

Finlay MacDonald is head of one of the largest radio-television outlets in the Maritimes, a job he has almost abandoned in favor of his temporary occupation.

He is president of the 1969 Canada Games Society, made up of more than 1,000 volunteers working to bring 4,500 athletes, 400 officials and probably thousands of tourists to the Halifax-Dartmouth area for the Aug. 15-25 period.

"Many of us would not be involved in this massive undertaking if we didn't think that that which we loosely call Canadian nationhood — the determination of our future was exceedingly important," MacDonald says.

He realizes the 16 games on the 10-day calendar will bring in tourists and publicity, but it is the Olympic-like philosophy behind the Games which excites him.

"There is a mounting degree of evidence—and I hope that this evidence will eventually be total—that amateur competition may have far more educational and social value than it normally gets credit for.

"This is one of the finest stepping stones we have in Canada—as a matter of fact, it's the only way we can bring together top-ranking Canadian amateur athletes not only to be recognized as champions but to feel like champions.

"There is a strong suggestion that we haven't placed the proper value on those types of recreation—of physical and athletic participation —that are really needed to prepare youngsters for life in a competitive world."

MacDonald realizes that few of the athletes will go home with medals, but "winning has never really been the name of the game."

"Excellence, effort, doing your best, trying, trying to improve yourself—realizing that there is somebody who has just possibly worked a little harder: That is the goal."

There will be other advantages.

"Specifically, the beneficial effects are the magnificent facilities which will be left behind as a result of the capital funds available to build."

But even more important, he says, we will have, as a result of three years' work, a cadre of people trained . . . to act as coaches, officials, organizers and administrators of all the things that will come after these games."

"We will have physical resources and we will have human resources which we might not otherwise have had for maybe a decade or longer."

MacDonald says he realizes that his theories, and those underlying the 1969 Summer Games, may not be shared in other circles.

"There are many reasons why this type of competition might be frowned upon in a pure academic sense," he says.

"But from the point of view of recreation, coaching and facilities, the big thing is the underwriting.

"As they say in the arts 'You don't underwrite the actor. You underwrite the theatre'—and if this theory applies to amateur athletics in Canada, we are eventually going to produce, by the proper means, a breed of champions."

Whether these are champions in the gold-medal sense of the word doesn't concern MacDonald.

"What is important is that they feel like champions."

A Cool Course

Even if the Barcoven course is a 20 mile drive from the city three Bellevillians find there is relief from the heat in the shaded green by the artificial lake north of the clubhouse. The threesome, Rod McNeil, Wayne Storms and Stan Muldoon, also welcomed the occasion as an opportunity to practise their favorite game of golf.

Sports On All Fronts

CAO PAULO, Brazil (AP)—Mexico and Brazil split two singles matches Monday in the American zone Davis Cup tennis competition won Sunday by Brazil in doubles matches.

Mexico scored its first victory against Brazil when Jaquim Loyo Mayo defeated Brazil's Adson Mandarino 2-6, 5-7, 7-5, 6-3, 7-5.

Thomas Koch of Brazil downed Luis Garcia 4-6, 6-1, 6-2, 6-4 in the final match.

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto and District Soccer League's disciplinary board Monday suspended two players for five years following incidents of attacking referees.

The two players, barred until 1974, are Ildebrando Paris of Celano and Armando Carbonaro of Juventus. The board found Paris guilty of attacking referee George Duncan July 24 at Oakville.

Carbonaro was found guilty of striking referee Tony Evangelisita during a game between Juventus and Glewolst June 27.

OTTAWA (CP)—Three Ottawa district golfers and one from Montreal will represent Quebec in the interprovincial Willingdon Cup matches at the Canadian amateur golf championship at Kitchener next month.

The four-man squad, named following the Quebec Open at Lucerne, Que., last week, and an 18-hole playoff at the Ottawa Hunt CClub Sunday, consists of Don Davidson, Don Rieux and Andy Nezan, all from Ottawa district clubs, and Graham Cooke of Montreal.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cliff Richey, Jr., of the United States knocked off Australia's Allen Stone 6-1, 6-2 for the men's singles title of the $17,000 Western tennis championship Monday.

Richey, seeded third, breezed through the two matches, experiencing little difficulty against Stone, unseeded and ranked seventh in Australia. Stone had gained his way to the finals with two upsets.

One of Three Yankees on All-Time Team

Ruth Named Greatest Player Ever

NEW YORK (AP) — The Baseball Writers Association of America settled some age-old arguments Monday in naming major league baseball's greatest all-time players.

Babe Ruth, the slugging right fielder who slammed a career total of 714 home runs, was named the greatest player ever. Ruth was one of three New York Yankees' players named to the greatest-ever team.

The others were first baseman Lou Gehrig, who followed Ruth in the Murderers' Row lineup that led the Yankees to total domination of the sport in the 1920s and 30s, and centre fielder Joe DiMaggio, slugging star of the 40s and 50s.

Joining Ruth and DiMaggio in the outfield was Ty Cobb of the Detroit Tigers, who had a career batting average of .367.

The infield, besides Gehrig, listed Rogers Hornsby at second base, Pie Traynor at third and Honus Wagner at shortstop. The catcher was Mickey Cochrane with Walter Johnson picked as the right-handed pitcher and Lefty Grove as the left-hander.

John McGraw, who took New York Giants to 10 National League pennants, was named manager of the team.

Also selected was a greatest-living player team with Di Maggio, Traynor and Grove the only players named to both.

George Sisler and Stan Musial tied for the first base job on the greatest-living squad, with Charlie Gehringer at second, Joe Cronin at shortstop and Traynor at third.

Ted Schoendienst isn't about to admit that the AL's homer advantage will be enough for them to snap the six-game losing streak that has given the NL a 21-17 edge.

The AL power-parade features Jackson, the major league's homer leader with 37, and Howard, the runner-up with 34.

And it has Rico Petrocelli of Boston Red Sox, 25 homers; Boog Powell of Baltimore Orioles, 24; Frank Robinson of Baltimore, 22; Sal Bando of Oakland, 18, and Bill Freehan of Detroit, 13. Only Rod Carew of Minnesota Twins among the starters, is under double figures, with six.

On the bench are other power hitters, including Carl Yastrzemski of Boston, 29, and Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota, 28.

The NL has Willie McCovey of San Francisco Giants with 30, and Lee May of Cincinnati Reds, a reserve, with 29.

Three other National Leaguers have reached the 20-homer plateau. Hank Aaron of Atlanta Braves, 24; Tony Perez of Cincinnati, 22, and Ron Santo of Chicago Cubs, 22.

The NL will try to counter the AL's home run edge by starting left-hander Steve Carlton of St. Louis, who has a 12-5 pitching record and a 1.65 earned run average that is best in the majors.

The AL starting pitcher will be Denny McLain, last year's 31 game winner who has a 14-5 record this season. Smith said his second pitcher will be Sam McDowell of Cleveland Indians.

Mel Stottlemyre of New York Yankees or John (Blue Moon) Odom of Oakland.

Schoendienst is likely to follow Carlton with either Juan Marichal of San Francisco or Bill Singer of Los Angeles Dodgers.

Yankee Clipper Shares Spotlight

WASHINGTON (AP) — "It doesn't matter how far you hit 'em," Joe DiMaggio likes to tell Oakland's young fence busters. "You can only tag four bases."

DiMaggio, the Yankee Clipper of bygone days, Monday night shared the spotlight with the immortal Babe Ruth at a gala awards banquet honoring the greatest players in professional baseball's first 100 years.

Ruth, the home run king of New York Yankees' first Golden Era, was named the Greatest Player Ever in a poll of U.S. baseball writers and broadcasters. He hit 714 home runs.

DiMaggio, who has returned to the game as a vice-president and coach of the Athletics, was named the Greatest Living Player and best centre fielder in history.

DiMaggio, was one of three living players selected to the all-time team—and the only one active in the last 25 years.

Third baseman Pie Traynor and pitcher Lefty Grove, both 69, also accepted their awards before an applauding crowd which included former Apollo astronaut Frank Borman.

Ruth, whose widow, Claire, accepted his award, and Ty Cobb, were the other outfielders on the all-time team, which also included right-handed pitcher Walter Johnson, catcher Mickey Cochrane, first baseman Lou Gehrig—also a Yankee—second baseman Rogers Hornsby and shortstop Honus Wagner.

Right hander Bob Feller and Grove were the pitchers and Bill Dickey the catcher on the honor roll of living players. Stan Musial and George Sisler tied for the first base spot, Charlie Gehringer was named at second, Traynor at third, Joe Cronin at short and Ted Williams and Willie Mays in the outfield along with DiMaggio.

The late John McGraw was named Greatest Manager Ever and Casey Stengel, Greatest Living Manager.

The tipoff to DiMaggio's sweep of centre field honors came when Mays was picked as one of the Greatest Living Players—as a right fielder.

"Don't this something here?" mused the San Francisco centre fielder while accepting his trophy.

"I've played right field maybe two or three days in my life. Centre field must be reserved for my idol, Joe D."

Power-laden AL Out To Snap Losing Skein Tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — An estimated 43,000 fans, including President Richard Nixon, will watch the power-laden American League try to break a six-game losing streak against the National League in tonight's 40th Major League baseball all-star game.

Eight hitters in the American League starting line-up, including Oakland Athletics' Reggie Jackson and Washington Senators' Frank Howard, have a total of 179 homers. This compares with 105 homers for the National League's eight best.

"We've got power on this club the American League hasn't had in recent years," manager Mayo Smith of Detroit Tigers said Monday. "I think, after the last three games people would be very happy to see some balls go out and I think some balls will be popped pretty good."

The National League won 2-1 in 1966 and 1967, and 1-0 last year.

"I don't think the pitchers can overpower the hitters as in the past couple of years," NL manager Red Schoendienst of St. Louis Cardinals said.

But Schoendienst isn't about to admit that the AL's homer advantage will be enough for them to snap the six-game losing streak that has given the NL a 21-17 edge.

The AL power-parade features Jackson, the major league's homer leader with 37, and Howard, the runner-up with 34.

And it has Rico Petrocelli of Boston Red Sox, 25 homers; Boog Powell of Baltimore Orioles, 24; Frank Robinson of Baltimore, 22; Sal Bando of Oakland, 18, and Bill Freehan of Detroit, 13. Only Rod Carew of Minnesota Twins among the starters, is under double figures, with six.

On the bench are other power hitters, including Carl Yastrzemski of Boston, 29, and Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota, 28.

The NL has Willie McCovey of San Francisco Giants with 30, and Lee May of Cincinnati Reds, a reserve, with 29.

Three other National Leaguers have reached the 20-homer plateau. Hank Aaron of Atlanta Braves, 24; Tony Perez of Cincinnati, 22, and Ron Santo of Chicago Cubs, 22.

The NL will try to counter the AL's home run edge by starting left-hander Steve Carlton of St. Louis, who has a 12-5 pitching record and a 1.65 earned run average that is best in the majors.

The AL starting pitcher will be Denny McLain, last year's 31 game winner who has a 14-5 record this season. Smith said his second pitcher will be Sam McDowell of Cleveland Indians.

Sets Sights on Third National Title

Carol Postpones Retirement Plans

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Sportswriter

Carol Armstrong, the Canadian Women's Archery Champion in 1967 and again in 1968, has decided to postpone indefinitely her planned retirement from competitive archery.

On June 28th Carol announced she was packing in competitive archery after this summer because of financial problems which have beset her since she first won the Canadian Women's title in Toronto in 1967. Carol and husband Floyd estimated that Carol's archery had cost them $3,500 in the past two years, not counting extras like babysitting for two children.

But last week Carol placed fifth in the 1969 Canadian Archery Championships in Victoria, British Columbia — although her third place standing after the first two rounds of the four-round competition earned her a spot on the Canadian team which will compete in the August World Archery Championships in Valley Forge, Pennsylvania.

"If I were to quit now people would feel that I was a poor sport or a quitter," the 28-year-old East Moira Street housewife asserted.

"So I'll have to come back — I know that I can do better than my fifth place finish in Victoria last week," she added. "If I had shot like I should have in Victoria I would have at least finished second."

Carol's laminated recurve target bow was the culprit in last week's fifth place performance — which marked the first time that she had ever finished below third in the annual national competition.

"In my previous two recent competitions at Zwick's Island, June 28th and July 5th, my arrows fluttered but we figured that was because it was so windy," Carol revealed. "We thought that my sight markings were adjusted correctly but we didn't know for sure."

"It was very calm out in Victoria but my arrows still fluttered on the first day and since we weren't given time to make any adjustments the best I could do was ninth place."

"That night four members of the Ontario team, Betty MacIntosh from B.C., Floyd and myself, worked until almost midnight adjusting my sight markings," Carol continued.

"I went out for the second round on Tuesday not knowing what to expect but the adjustments worked and I jumped all the way up to third place to clinch a spot on the Canadian team," Carol added.

However the two rounds of field shooting on Wednesday and Thursday turned to be "just practice" for Carol because she didn't have time to re-adjust her sight markings to the necessary field settings from those of the target settings.

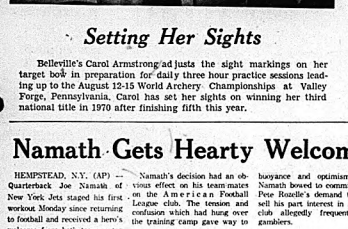
"This was the first time I went to a tournament and could place some blame on my bow — usually when I fail it's my own fault," Carol revealed.

"If I could just get my arrows flying straighter now that would help a lot. This experience has shaken my confidence a bit," Carol admitted.

So now it's on to the back-yard practice range for daily three hour practice sessions until Sunday, August 10th, when Carol leaves for Valley Forge, Pennsylvania, and the 1969 World Archery Championships.

Monday, August 11th, will be the official day of practice and the world competition will begin Tuesday with the first round of the "Fita" target shoot.

The "Fita" competition will last two days as will the subsequent field shoot competition, and Carol will return to Belleville following the conclusion of the field competition, Friday, August 15th.



There will be Carol's second world competition. In 1967 at Amersfoort, Hollalid, Carol topped the Canadian women and placed 15th overall.

"Something's due to break," Carol said, "my turn is bound to come. The last two or three months my shooting has been terrible."

Financially things are better than in the past for the Armstrongs despite the fact that they still haven't received the $300 grant from the federal government for the trip to Regina last year.

A grant of $200 from the city and private donations totalling almost $200 covered virtually all of Carol's expenses of $400 incurred in the trip to Victoria, British Columbia.

But the Armstrongs will still have to dig into their pockets for $150 which the Canadian Archery Association has informed Carol she will need for the trip to Valley Forge, Pennsylvania.

Setting Her Sights

Belleville's Carol Armstrong adjusts the sight markings on her target bow in preparation for daily three hour practice sessions leading up to the August 12-15 World Archery Championships at Valley Forge, Pennsylvania. Carol has set her sights on winning her third national title in 1970 after finishing fifth this year.

Eben's Long Punt Return Sparks Argos to Victory

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Mike Eben ran back a punt 100 yards for a touchdown Monday night to give Toronto Argonauts a 25-19 victory over Calgary Stampeders in Canadian Football League exhibition game.

Toronto's win at Calgary was the second Monday night for an Eastern Conference team against a western team.

In a game at Hamilton, the Tiger-Cats downed Winnipeg Blue Bombers 28-14 before 16,523 fans.

Eben's touchdown came in the fourth quarter following an unsuccessful first half which ended with Argos holding a slim 4-3 lead. Toronto quarterback Wally Gabler also got a fourth-quarter touchdown on a one-yard plunge while Dick Cohee scored the other Argo touchdown in the third quarter.

Tom Johansen converted all the Argonaut touchdowns, kicked a field goal and scored a single on another field-goal attempt that went wide. For Calgary, Gerry Shaw scored a touchdown which was converted by Larry Robinson. Robinson also kicked a field goal.

Toronto had a total offence of 311 yards to 271 for Calgary, and 16 first downs compared with 14 for Calgary.

Mel Profit was the top pass receiver for Argos, catching three passes for 85 yards while Bobby Taylor got two for 23. Herm Harrison was Calgary's top pass catcher with five receptions for 83 yards.

Al Hamilton, quarterback Joe Zuger tossed three touchdown passes to lead the Tiger-Cats, who had jumped into a 28-0 lead before the Bombers found their offence.

Zuger passed to Dave Fleming for 51- and 19-yard touchdowns and Tommy Joe Coffey for 20 yards. John Eckman, replacing Zuger in the third quarter, threw a 10-yard pass to flanker Neal Petties for the other Hamilton major.

Coffey also called three converts and a single for a 10-point evening, the best of both teams.

Winnipeg quarterback John Schneider passed for two touchdowns, 17 yards to end Ken Nielsen in the third quarter and 22 yards to Amos Van Pelt in the fourth.

Winnipeg, without the services of star halfback Dave Ramsey, managed to outrush Hamilton 133 to 103 yards, but Hamilton's air attack made the difference. Tiger-Cats gained 256 yards to Winnipeg's 167.

Zuger completed seven of 12 passes for 141 yards, Eckman was five for 11 for 76 yards and John Mandel four for seven for 22 yards.

Schneider, who played most of the game for Winnipeg, completed five of 17 passes for 93 yards. Don Weiss had eight yards on one completion in four tries and Luther Selbo teased for 66 yards on four of seven completions.

Gene Lalusiak converted both Winnipeg touchdowns.

Rainey, one of Winnipeg's veterans, left the club during the weekend and returned to Winnipeg.

He said he had an "exchange of words" with Schneider, but hoped that matters could be straightened out.

Namath Gets Hearty Welcome

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — Quarterback Joe Namath of New York Jets staged his first workout Monday since returning to football and received a hero's welcome from both team-mates and fans.

The Jets ran through plays in the morning and practised passing for two hours in the afternoon. Five policemen had to restrain 500 children behind the barricade as Namath, conspicuous in his red practice jersey, sauntered off the field into the locker room.

For 10 minutes they chanted: "We want Namath, we want Joe."

A lucky few cornered him for autographs when he left the locker room, but Namath had little to say to reporters.

"I'm glad to be back. I feel fine. I'll play in the all-star game Aug. 1 in Chicago if they'll let me."

Namath's decision had an obvious effect on his team mates on the American Football League club. The tension and confusion which had hung over the training camp gave way to buoyance and optimism after Namath bowed to commissioner Pete Rozelle's demand that he sell his part interest in a night club allegedly frequented by gamblers.

The Moon Landing: What Does It Really Mean?

Apollo 11 is the 21st U.S. manned space shot. It also is the 21st covered by Howard Benedict, Associated Press aerospace writer who has seen the American space program grow from the early Vanguard series failures to the stunning grandeur of the bird named Eagle. In the following story he looks at where man now is in the space age and where he is headed.

By HOWARD BENEDICT

HOUSTON (AP) — For eight years the world has been conditioned to the idea that one day man would land on the moon. Now it has happened. The world is excited. But does it really understand what has happened?

By landing on the moon, American astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin have carried man's eternal questing for the unknown to another celestial body. They have opened the limitless frontier of space. That door will never close.

Men cheer the explorers of Apollo 11, marvel at how fully grasp the mechanical complexities and the technological and human skills that got them to the moon.

Those who do understand are amazed at the technological progress made in the last decade because of the space program.

When President John F. Kennedy, stung by Russian space exploits, declared the United States in the moon race in 1961, virtually none of the equipment to do the job existed.

The largest, most imaginative government - industry - university team ever assembled for a single project went to work and the miracles began. In eight years, the team, reaching a peak of 420,000 people, put together a remarkable and powerful set of machines that carried the first men to the moon on Sunday, July 20, 1969.

At the start, test rockets exploded, spaceships failed.

But then John Glenn put the United States in the orbital race in 1962. The two-man Gemini program sent the U.S. soaring past the Soviet Union in space in 1966.

Then, the three Apollo 1 astronauts died in a fire that swept through their space cabin during a launch pad test at Cape Kennedy in 1967.

The goal seemed beyond reach.

But the tragedy opened the eyes of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Management, design and inspection techniques were overhauled.

More than a year was lost. But the results are shown by the record. Since resuming manned launchings last October with Apollo 7, the U.S. had conducted four perfect missions, stepping stones to the grand adventure of Apollo 11.

It was done with things that didn't exist a dozen years ago—sophisticated computers and guidance systems, micro-miniature electronics and new metal alloys.

But history will record that Apollo 11 was the moon belongs to all men. It was truly a triumph of man's indomitable spirit to push to new horizons.

Visionary men like Galileo, Kepler, Newton, Archimedes, Copernicus, Tsiolkovsky, Oberth, Goddard and others from many lands provided the basic knowledge years and centuries ago.

And man dreamed of landing on the moon long before he created nations. So Armstrong and Aldrin were there as representatives of everyone on earth.

They planted a U.S. flag. But they made it plain they were ambassadors for all nations when they left behind a plaque which said in part: "We came in peace for all mankind."

Man's urge to seek the unknown of space, which began in the spirit of competition, may reach maturity in a co-operative effort to build scientific camps on the moon and to use it as a base for exploration of the universe.

Since the Apollo 8 crew circled the moon last Christmas, there has been a thawing of relations between the United States and Russia. There have been more talk of conducting joint space efforts. There was a moderate hint in Russian Apollo 8 commander Frank Borman's recent successful visit to Russia.

As Russia's unmanned Luna XV was circling the moon, while Apollo 11 headed for its touchdown, Borman telephoned an official of the Soviet National Academy of Sciences seeking information on Luna's course. In unprecedented gesture of co-operation, the Russian cabled Borman the exact course of Luna XV and assured it would not interfere with Apollo 11 landing mission.

The three American Apollo crews who have flown to the vicinity of the moon have given man a new perspective of his home planet, whirling a lonely vigil through the solar system, protected from the deadly radiation of the searing sun and the cold of night only by a thin layer of gases trapped in a gravitational field.

Beyond the veil of gases is a hostile world that many nations may want to conquer together. By working in unison on such a great endeavor as space exploration, the leading nations of the world might join together to improve humanity's lot on earth.

That is one of the hopes engendered by the flight of Apollo 11.

But in the absence of any such co-operation, the United States plans to press on with its own exploration of space.

Nine more lunar landings are planned in the next three years, each to a different area to probe various geological features. These missions gradually will increase man's stay-time on the moon and scientists will be flown on the later flights taking along flying and roving machines to increase their area of exploration.

These landings will determine the feasibility of establishing an Antarctica-type base on the moon to conduct scientific, medical and engineering experiments.

The future U.S. course in space may be set in September, when President Nixon receives if report from a committee that is to recommend goals for the next decade.

The head of the committee, Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew, suggested during the flight of Apollo 11 that the United States set a goal of landing man on Mars in this century. He is expected to be overruled because space leaders believe it would be inadvisable to set such a goal, cannot until after a series of unmanned probes have been sent to the red planet in the next few years.

Instead, the committee is expected to recommend the mid-1970s launching of a 10- to 12-man space station that could conduct weather, communications, engineering and scientific experiments. By adding segments to the station from time to time, it could accommodate 100 or more men and women.

The station could become the home of specialized industries, using the unique vacuum and weightlessness of space to manufacture such items as perfectly round ball bearings, precision optical lenses and superstrong materials.

The day may come when pediatrics are recognized as orbiting hospital wards. Some medical experts believe weightlessness might be beneficial in curing certain diseases. Hearts, for example, would not have to pump so hard in the absence of gravity.

When U.S.-Soviet co-operation does come, it probably will be directed at a base base which would be manned by scientists and engineers of many nations. Considerable spadework has been done at several international space meetings.

And one day man will fly to the planets and deep into the universe, because that frontier has been opened to them by the courage of men who today fly Apollo 11 back to earth.

Wives' Worries Are Over

HOUSTON (AP)—With their hero husbands en route back to earth, the Apollo 11 wives agree that their worrying days are just about over.

"It's all downhill now," Mrs. Edwin Aldrin told a news conference after the moon-landing craft rejoined the command capsule Monday. "I don't expect any more tense moments."

Mrs. Neil Armstrong, whose husband was the first human to walk on the moon, also agreed there were no more crises in sight, "but let's remember they haven't landed yet."

The wife of the Apollo commander went on to say she thought "there's more danger in driving down a freeway than these missions they go on."

"I've no more worries from now to splashdown," Mrs. Michael Collins said, "but I have never really had any all along."

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — An Apollo 11 rally on the Toronto-stock market appeared to be ending in mid-morning trading today as prices pulled moderate losses.

The rally began Monday when American exchanges were closed.

Volume continued at a light pace with 539,000 shares traded by 11 a.m., compared with 527,000 at the same time Monday.

Western oils and oil refiners, which posted healthy gains Monday, were among the heavy losers today.

In western oils, Dome Pete dropped 2 to 91, Home A 1 to 69¼ and Pacific Pete 1 to 34.

Among oil refiners, Imperial was down ¼ to 18¾, Shell Canada ¼ to 27¼, Texaco ¼ to 28 and Gulf Canada ¼ to 18¾.

On index, industrials were down .63 to 172.50, western oils 3.09 to 247.25 and golds 1.34 to 220.48. Base metals gained .14 to 104.27.

The total number of issues traded Monday was the lightest in more than seven years as the market lacked a strong advance.

Volume was 1,361,000 shares compared with 2,243,000 Friday. It was the lightest volume since July 11, 1962, when 1,251,000 shares were traded.

With American exchanges closed to celebrate the moon landing, Toronto moved mindlessly, opening with a small gain and then holding before making a late surge.

The industrial index was up .86 to 172.13, its highest level of the day.

The closing of American financial institutions and the consequent lack of confidence in Canadian markets was blamed for the light volume.

Strong advances in real estate, oil refining and western oil stocks led the advance.

Revenue said it has agreed to sell its 290,000 Seaway shares to family trusts of Alex Robin, Revenue president, and Harry Robin, executive vice-president. At Revenue's original cost of $25.50 a share.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"
By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: At last I've found the motivation to give up smoking. I have emphysema and I want to breathe!

It has almost reached the point of no return. I can't sleep I can't walk more than about 100 feet without having to stop to catch what breath I have left.

I've been told by friends that when it reaches this stage there is little one can do. Our family doctor has prescribed a cough medicine which does not seem to help. Isn't there something that will make me feel like a human being again? — Mr. P.

Comment: The word emphysema, has lately become as familiar to the public as appendicitis. Unfortunately, though, most people are still unaware of the potentialities for improvement under wise and sagacious treatment.

Therefore, Mr. P., I am not surprised that your friends have given up on you; and that your doctor has prescribed only a cough medicine.

Pulmonary emphysema is an obstructive lung disease often associated with chronic bronchitis or bronchial asthma. But in many patients there is been no similar history. For some reason the airways lose their elasticity, and the air-way-walls fail to keep normally open.

I believe, Mr. P., that you should ask your family doctor for consultation with a chest specialist. I am sure he will agree to make arrangements.

Meanwhile, to learn all about emphysema, I suggest you read a recently published book A Treatment Manual For Patients with Pulmonary Emphysema, published by Grune and Stratton of NYC, and written by a physician whom I consider one of the world's greatest experts in diseases of the chest. He is Alvan L. Barach, M.D., Consultant in Medicine, The Presbyterian Hospital, New York City.

(In the Foreword, William F. Miller, MD, Professor of Medicine, University of Texas Southwestern Medical School, has written: "It is indeed appropriate that this manual of treatment should be written by Dr. Alvan L. Barach, who has devoted his life to the search for a means to alleviate the suffering of the patient with shortness of breath.")

I find that his latest book is another important contribution Mr. P. I hope it helps you and many others understand emphysema and benefit from what you read about your condition.

For Mrs. O.: Most women enter their menopausal period in their 40s, but some not until their early 50s. And please remember that the majority of women go through the change with few if any discomforting symptoms.

For Mrs. H.: It is not true that there is a direct connection between having varicose veins and getting high blood pressure. So I doubt that having varicose veins removed will cause the blood pressure to return to normal.

• • •

For Mr. H.: If you have been having frequent nosebleeds they deserve investigation. As you say, "They haven't been due to a punch in the nose," so why not begin with an examination by a nose and throat specialist? If he finds no local reason for the bleeding, then study by an internist, with appropriate blood tests and other examinations, should reveal the reason.

Hurlers Slapshoot Ball With 2½-Lb. Ashwood Clubs

MONTREAL (CP) — A hurling match begins with the lone referee rolling a knobbly ball into a swarm of club-wielding participants and standing back to watch what appears to the uninitiated to be mayhem.

However, veteran players maintain that hurling—the ancient Irish sport—is less injurious than such Canadian sports as hockey, football and lacrosse.

In hurling, each team has 15 men armed with hurleys—2½-pound ash wood clubs—used to catch and propel the ball in much the same way as lacrosse and field hockey players do.

Hurlers swing these clubs like a hockey player propelling a slap shot or a baseballer slashing a line drive.

The ball is similar to a baseball, except that the seams stand out more. Scoring is achieved, by hitting the ball between football-style uprights that are used as goals.

Over the bar and between the uprights is one point; under the bar is a goal worth three points.

There is a goaltender to guard the lower zone but, unlike hockey or lacrosse, the hurling goalie plays without the benefit of padding.

Passing is done by whacking the ball along the ground or through the air. You are allowed to catch the ball, but must not run more than three steps with it.

You can try to dribble it on the short blade of your hurley, as the opposition whacks away much the same as opposing lacrosse players.

Hurling has the components of other sports—the short-bladed stick of field hockey, football's uprights, the jersey and shorts of soccer, the passing of ice hockey, the fly-ball catching of baseball, the 15-man sides of rugger, and an upside-down dribble akin to basketball.

However, it is unique with its field—which measures 150 yards by 100 yards.

With all the aspects of other sports thrown in, you would consider hurling a game with international appeal. However, exponents of the game here say it does not seem to appeal to the masses.

It's strictly an Irish game all the way and is ruled strictly by the worldwide Gaelic Athletic Association from its headquarters in Dublin.

The game itself is centuries old, but was revived only in the latter part of the last century as part of Ireland's revival of its national culture.

In North America the game has become totally dependent on the flow of Irish immigrants.

The game fails to attract outsiders because of skills special to the sport that must be developed gradually. As the post-war flow of Irish immigrants diminished, so did the game's popularity here.

The problem is especially noticeable in Montreal, says Tom Daly, a member of the local Montreal Shamrocks.

During the peak immigration years, Daly says the Shamrocks could count on some 70 players to beef out their roster. In 1961 the club won the all-American championship.

Today the number of aspiring players for the team has dwindled to some 30 enthusiasts.

Daly says changes in immigration laws, especially in the United States, have been the main cause of the game's decline on this continent.

He says bilingualism has caused the majority of Irish here immigrants to bypass Montreal in favor of Toronto and cities in Western Canada.

However, a core of ardent supporters of the game continue to work at it here in the hope of repeating their triumph of 1961.

This handful turn out regularly, but even their practice field appears to be against them. The only facility available for their workouts is a regulation football field, 110 yards long instead of 150.

Daly says the field may be short, but the spirit is long and the nucleus of a strong and healthy sport still exists here.

Americans Lead Qualifying Round

MONTREAL (CP) — Three United States golfers led a field of 80 qualifiers with three-under-par 69s Monday in the qualifying round for the Canadian open golf championship, which gets under way Thursday.

George Hixon of Tulsa, Okla., Jim Jamieson of Moline, Ill., and Claude Harmon, Jr., of Mamaroneck, N.Y., topped the field of 200 trying for the $80 open spots for the national championships.

Hixon shot 34-35 over the par 72, 6,729-yard Richelieu Valley Golf and Country Club course, site of the 1971 Canadian Open.

Jamieson also came in with a 34-35 round while Harmon shot a three-under-par 37 on the front nine and then had an even-par 36.

The other 70 berths to round off the 155-man field for this year's open are automatic. The Open will be held at nearby Pinegrove Golf and Country Club.

Eight other golfers, including Butch O'Hearn of Dartmouth, N.S., were one stroke off the pace at 70.

O'Hearn was top Canadian in the field with a 36-34 round.

The 80 who qualified, along with the 70-man automatic field and eight alternates, will spend today and Wednesday practising at Pinegrove.

Colts Fall Apart

ABINGDON, England (CP) — The touring Canadian Colts fell apart after ten Monday and failed by 34 runs to match Berkshire Bantams in a cricket match here.

The Colts were 46 for one at tea—and all out for 99. Schonon had 26, Marvin Meissner of Vancouver, 30, John Harvey of Toronto and Peter Burn of St. Catharines six not out.

Small Town Kids Easier to Coach - - Veitch

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

"Big-city athletes are tougher to coach than kids from the small towns."

The statement belongs to Denny Veitch, youthful general manager of British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference.

Denny, at 37, is the secondyoungest team boss in the Canadian Football League, the Edmonton Earthquake Earl Lunceford of Winnipeg Blue Bombers has a year or two on him.

And Denny takes his job—which is selling tickets to B.C. Lions games—seriously.

If he can stir up a bit of inter-team controversy, it won't hurt the gate.

"Deep-south kids and kids from the prairies play for the love of the game, so coaching methods are different," Veitch says.

"If you ask a kid from the smaller towns to go through a tackle to get at a quarterback, he'll try it. Coast athletes and those from larger centres such as Toronto and Montreal will ask you why."

Veitch cites as his authorities Bud Grant, formerly of Winnipeg and now running Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League; Tommy Prothro of the University of Southern California and John Ralston of Stanford.

"It's wise to recruit with an eye to the weather and bias size of the community an athlete comes from," Veitch says.

"It may be unwise to take a boy from a warm climate into a cold area or move a big-city boy to the smaller centres.

"There are built-in disciplinie levers in the smaller centres such as Regina. For example, an athlete identifies more easily with the community when everyone knows who he is. In larger centres such as Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver, there are more alternative social outlets.

"You can demand things from players in a small town that you can't get in larger communities."

But stirring up controversy isn't the only thing Denny Veitch goes about selling tickets.

One of his projects this year is the blank ticket, to be sold through 20 outlets in the vicinity of Vancouver.

"Most places send out blocks of tickets to their various outlets and when you ask for the best in the house you get the best that particular outlet has to offer," he says.

Under the new scheme, the outlet will check by phone with a central point for the best in the park. When the customer makes his selection, the appropriate numbers are filled in on the ticket.

"Therefore, we have 20 opportunities to sell the same ticket."

The main obstacle to the sale of season tickets in Vancouver is the stadium design.

"We have only 14,000 of our 32,000 seats between the goal lines," Veitch says.

"Compare that with Calgary which has 20,000 seats in prime location."

Despite this, Lions forecast a season ticket sale of 18,000 this year—"our target is the playoffs and 22,000 season tickets."

Morrall Continues

WESTMINSTER, Md. (AP) — With football flying in the pro training camps, Quarterback Earl Morrall has decided he will continue launching his version of the missile for another season.

"I think I will play," Morrall said Monday night after dinner at the Baltimore Colts' training camp, obviously relieved his decision had been made.

The lone hurdle remaining for the 13-year National Football League veteran is agreeing to a new contract. He and Steve Rosenbloom, assistant to Colts' president Carroll Rosenbloom, have been negotiating.

Kennedy Will Attend Funeral Despite Advice of Physician

PLYMOUTH, Pa. (AP) — Friends say Senator Edward M. Kennedy is expected to attend the funeral here today of Mary Jo Kopechne, who died when a car driven by Kennedy plunged off a bridge.

Miss Kopechne, 28, was trapped in the car and was drowned early Saturday in the accident near Martha's Vineyard, Mass. The senator, 37, was charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

Kennedy, whose doctor said the Massachusetts Democrat suffered a blow on the head, remained in seclusion at his Cape Cod home. A spokesman said the senator's physician had advised him against attending Miss Kopechne's funeral.

However, Dann Gifford, a friend of the Kennedy family, said Kennedy would attend the funeral at St. Vincent's Roman Catholic Church here.

Gifford said Robert Kennedy, widow of Senator Robert F. Kennedy, also would attend.

Miss Kopechne once worked as a secretary to Robert Kennedy.

A simple vase of yellow flowers from the Kennedy family was placed near Miss Kopechne's coffin.

Joseph Kopechne, father of the young woman, told reporters Monday night he was "more than satisfied" with police reports that listed his daughter's death as accidental.

Kopechne said he talked to Kennedy by telephone and said Kennedy told him he wished he, and not Miss Kopechne, had died in the accident.

Asked what else the senator had said, Kopechne replied: "He was so broken up I could hardly understand him."

Kopechne, tired, dry-eyed, but his wife was sobbing as she left the funeral home Monday night.

Although the Kopechnes live in Berkeley Heights, N.J., they brought the body of their only child to the family home here for burial.

"This is where she had her roots," her father explained.

Miss Kopechne was eight when the family moved from Plymouth, but they returned often to visit relatives here and Miss Kopechne had worshipped at St. Vincent's.

At the time of her death, Miss Kopechne was working for Matt Lesse Associates in Washington, D.C., an organization that sets up campaign headquarters for politicians. She had gone to New England last week with other former aides to Robert Kennedy for a regatta.

In Edgartown, Mass., a formal complaint charging Kennedy with leaving the scene of the mishap was filed by Police Chief Domenic J. Arena.

District Court Clerk Thomas A. Teller set July 28 as the date for a hearing, requested by Richard J. McCarran, an Edgartown lawyer who said he is representing Kennedy.

Arena said that while he was "firmly convinced there was no negligence involved," there was, in his opinion, "a violation concerning going from the scene, leaving the scene."

The accident occurred sometime between 11 p.m. Friday and 1 a.m. Saturday. Kennedy did not make a report to police until 10 a.m. Saturday, after the submerged car had been spotted by two boys and reported to authorities.

Habitual Criminal Law Called Unconstitutional

TORONTO (CP) — Lawyer Stewart McKeown said Monday that sentencing a person to preventive detention on the grounds that he is a habitual criminal is a direct contravention of the Canadian Bill of Rights.

Appearing for Ralph Reginald Lundrigan, a Toronto man charged with being a habitual criminal, Mr. McKeown said Parliament has no constitutional power to impose preventive detention on a person.

After Mr. McKeown's argument in the chart of general sessions, Judge Walter Martin said that Mr. McKeown's motion would have to be argued before the attorney-general of Ontario and the justice minister of Canada. He postponed proceedings against Lundrigan until Sept. 9.

Mr. McKeown said that section 660 of the Criminal Code which deals with habitual criminals allows the Crown to imprison a person indefinitely for crimes a court believes he might commit even if he has already served a sentence for a crime.

Under such a procedure, he said, a court can punish a man for what he is instead of punishing him for what he has done.

"And there is no power in the Parliament of Canada to provide for the sentencing of the respondent upon the finding of his status or any other," Mr. McKeown said.

Section 660 provides for declaration as a habitual criminal if a person convicted of a crime has previously been convicted on at least three other occasions of an offence liable for five years imprisonment, and if that person has been leading a "persistently criminal life."

That section of the Criminal Code was introduced in 1947 and has raised numerous arguments since then.

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker said once that under section 660, the Crown and police could pick at will persons convicted on several criminal charges.

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker said once that under section 660, the Crown and police could pick at will persons convicted on several criminal charges.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the section does not provide for uniformity either.

"A man could be declared a habitual criminal in one place and not in another," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

In York County, no person has been convicted of being a habitual criminal in more than 10 years.

Judge Defends Expulsion Of Counsel for Legal Aid

TORONTO (CP) — A judge who had a legal aid lawyer ejected from his courtroom last Wednesday said Monday he did it because he does not want his court to be used as an interview room.

Judge P. J. Bolshy, who spoke for about 10 minutes during a regular sitting in court, also said Monday he does not want a lawyer identifying himself as acting on behalf of legal aid—a provincial plan where legal costs are paid for needy persons by the government.

Giving other reasons for having lawyer Sidney Lumden ejected, the 66-year-old judge said that the legal aid counsel blocked his view when he spoke to an accused woman during court proceedings.

The judge also said he is convinced that Lidiuna Rosa, a Portuguese immigrant, whose shoplifting case sparked the dispute with Mr. Linden, was properly convicted when she pleaded guilty without the services of a lawyer.

A transcript of the proceedings shows that Mr. Linden sought to intervene in the case after Mrs. Rosa said she did not speak very good English" after the charge was read to her.

Judge Bolshy said Mr. Linden then walked across the court-room and took up a position "in front of Mrs. Rosa and sought to conduct an interview which he asserted as his right."

He said Mr. Linden completely blocked his view of the woman, and shifted only slightly when directed to sit down.

"It was . . . obvious that he was deliberately defying my appropriate ruling," Judge Bolshy said. "I took some suitable measures."

Judge Bolshy said the lawyer had no right to advise Mrs. Rosa.

"He had no client to serve, no cause to advocate, or any authority to act as he did, and no duty to discharge."

A legal aid counsel on duty, he said, only has the right to represent a person who has retained him.

Following the incidents, Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said he would investigate Judge Bolshy's actions, but the judge said Monday there is no need to investigate because all was done in public.

Gomulka Wants West To Accept Oder Border

WARSAW, Poland (Reuters) — Polish Communist Leader Wladyslaw Gomulka said Monday night it is time for West Germany to finally recognize the western post-war frontier of Poland.

But in a speech to the 460-member Sejm (parliament), he reiterated that Poland is ready to wait until after West German Bundestag (lower house) elections in September for a concrete answer.

Soviet Leader Leonid Brezhnev and Communist chiefs from Czechoslovakia and East Germany attended the session, which marked the 25th anniversary of Communist Poland.

Gomulka was referring to a proposal he made two months ago for a separate treaty with West Germany recognizing as final Poland's western frontier along the Oder and Neisse rivers.

The frontier, separating Poland from East Germany, gave the Poles about 40,000 square miles of territory formerly part of Germany. Bonn has maintained that final regulation of the frontier must await a German peace treaty.

Stelco Men May Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Nearly 18,000 steelworkers on strike against International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd., may be joined Aug. 1 by another 11,500 men at the Hamilton operations of Steel Co. of Canada Ltd.

Carl Goldenberg, chairman of a conciliation board attempting to avert a shutdown at Stelco, submitted his report Monday to Ontario Labor Minister Dalton Bales.

This leaves Local 1005 of the United Steelworkers of America clear to call a strike if no settlement is reached before the present contract expires at the end of the month.

The union entered negotiations with a demand for a wage-and-fringe-benefit package of $1.40 over two years.

Strictly Personal

Forced Retirement Wrong

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

When we arbitrarily force men to "retire" at 65 — as we do more and more in our closely geared society — we are offering some of them a blessing, and others a curse.

It seems to me that, just as we require candidates for serious jobs to take application tests, we ought to provide the same individual scale for candidates for retirement, and not banish so many men by some generalized ruling that is grossly unfair.

In the arts and sciences, for instance, where activity can flourish without the heavy hand of the payroll department on its wrinkle, the history of achievement includes some of the greatest masterpieces of all time.

If Kant had been forced to "retire" even at 70, his "Anthropology," "Metaphysics of Ethics," and "Strife of the Faculties" would have remained unwritten.

If Tintoretto had been put on the shelf at 70, he never would have painted his magnificent and tremendous "Paradise," a canvas extending 75 feet by 30, which he completed at age 74.

And Verdi at the same ripe age, composed his most profound opera "Otello" — and 3 years later, at 83, he gave us his "Ave Maria."

If Lamarck had been swept into the dust-bin even as late as 75, he would not have completed his classic work in zoology, "The Natural History of Invertebrates," which came out when he was 78.

Oliver Wendell Holmes wrote his most charming and pungent book, "Over the Teacups," when he was 79. And, most remarkably of all, Titian painted his priceless "Battle of Lepanto" at the age of 98!

Now, there is no reason to believe that men in the arts and sciences retain (or even augment) their talents more than men in other fields. The distributional curve of abilities must be pretty much the same along the age-scale in any occupation not calling for intense physical exercise.

Some men, it is true, may become senile in their 70s; others may already have been senile in their 40s, but nobody knew it; while still others may retain their keenness and improve their judgment, as Goethe did, whose final book, "Dichtung under Wahrheit," the supreme distillation of his thought, was finished a year before he died at the age of 83.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and tends to stop healing of the inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a number of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Deadlock Unbroken

OTTAWA (CP) — Party House leaders met Monday night but reported no progress in talks on the deadlocked Commons rules debate which goes into its ninth day today.

However, there were suggestions of a compromise to break the impasse between government and opposition and a further meeting was to be held today.

Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin said after the meeting there appears to be some room for both sides to manoeuvre to a solution.

Mr. Baldwin said the atmosphere of the discussions had eased considerably since the House leaders met last Thursday.

Two Die in Riots in Ohio and Pennsylvania

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two persons were killed Monday night in disturbances that hit Columbus, Ohio, and York, Pa. Curfews were declared and National Guard troops were ordered out in both cities.

There also was a minor disturbance in Washington, where police used tear gas to disperse a crowd of 150 persons.

Columbus police reported one dead, 25 injured and 130 arrested Monday night in rioting that apparently was started by the fatal shooting of a Negro man Monday afternoon.

Gov. James A. Rhodes called up 1,300 guardsmen after city officials reported that the disturbances, the city's first major racial outbreak, had spread over a 10-square-mile area.

The man killed Monday night was George Stultz, 47. Police said he was slain by a sniper. Lieut. Richard Born said Stultz, white, was hit while holding a flare to assist police.

In York, Lillie B. Allen, 27, of Aiken, S.C., was fatally hit by sniper fire as she stood by her car in a troubled area of the city.

Four other persons were injured in the fifth day of sporadic shootings.

Gov. Raymond P. Shafer ordered 200 guardsmen into armories in York and nearby Columbia at the request of Mayor John Snyder. There were also 67 state troopers on hand to assist 70 York policemen on duty.

Jacob W. Hose Sr., director of public safety, said: "It is impossible to classify this as racial. Whites and Negroes are involved, but whether they are fighting each other is difficult to say.

Stanfield's View on Wheat

Canada Has Failed to Obtain U.S. Co-operation

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield told the Commons Monday that Canada had failed completely to convince the United States that it is in the interests of the two countries to act together on questions related to international wheat marketing.

Price reductions announced last week by the U.S. represented further confirmation of Canada's failure.

Mr. Stanfield spoke during a special debate on wheat, proposed by NDP Leader T. C. Douglas and tied to the Washington announcement last Friday that the U.S. was cutting export prices by 12 cents a bushel.

Also in the background was the Canadian wheat board's announcement in Winnipeg Monday that Canadian prices are being cut by two to seven cents a bushel.

The Commons set aside its scheduled business—debate on a contentious rules change proposed by the government—to discuss the wheat-marketing situation. The special debate lasted until 12:26 a.m. today.

The rules debate is to be taken up at today's regular session.

Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson, defending the government's wheat policy in the face of heavy opposition attack, told the Commons that Prairie wheat farmers with wheat to sell will qualify for up to $6,000 each beginning next week in interest-free cash advances on farm-stored grain.

The government-paid advances could mean a total injection of $472,000,000 into the Prairie economy, but in any event between $250,000,000 and $300,000,000 was likely to be pumped in during the next three months.

They will be paid regardless of whether the farmer is indebted to the government on advances in the current crop year, which ends July 31. Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin said earlier such indebtedness at present totals $6,000,000 to $65,000,000.

Mr. Pepin, referring to opposition demands for cash grants to wheat-growers in the form of acreage payments, said, "This is a remedy of some kind . . ."

Mr. Pepin said the wheat marketing problem is not exclusively a Canadian problem, but an international one.

Mr. Douglas, opening the special debate, urged the government to start a $100,000,000-a-year program to convert the Western Canadian wheat economy to other farm products and institute a promised plan of income maintenance for Prairie farmers.

In the last crop year farmers of Western Canada received a final wheat payment 17.8 cents a bushel less than the previous year. Their final price for barley was down 9.4 cents per bushel, and for oats 1.5 cents per bushel.

Thus the farmer was faced with two problems: Inability to sell all the grain he has on hand, and reduced prices even for the grain he is able to sell.

"Consequently, he is finding himself in an impossible position."

Mr. Douglas told Mr. Pepin bluntly that on the basis of results, his tenure as trade minister has been "a total failure."

Mr. Stanfield said the government has little choice but to institute some form of acreage payment, "which has the merit of getting cash into the hands of the farmers quickly."

Bernard Dumont (Creditiste — Frontenac) said the Bank of Canada and the chartered banks should be able to find money—perhaps through their currently high rates of interest—to finance wheat shipments to needy countries.

Otto Lang, minister without portfolio, who represents the Saskatchewan riding of Saskatoon-Humboldt, said that Canada's share of the world wheat market rose to 19 per cent this year from 17 per cent last year. However, this year's total market was much smaller.

GM MARK OF EXCELLENCE

Every Chevrolet has to make it before we mark it

Chevrolet. Everybody's talking sale. including us.

Nobody's talking re-sale but us.

All year long your Chevrolet dealer's been selling a maximum of car for a minimum of money.

Well, now that summer's here, he's not about to shake the habit. (After all, that's what keeps him first in sales year after year.)

So much for the competition's much-ballyhooed end-of-year price cuts.

And now a word about something else our rivals would rather forget: trade-in value.

Happily for you, Chevrolet has a rewarding way of bringing in the highest average resale prices of any car in its field.

Which means you get more car for your money when you buy. And more money for your car when you sell.

But don't bother asking the competition about that. They're too busy fighting price wars.

Which isn't even half the battle.

Putting you first, keeps us first.

After the Debate - - More Discussion

Discussion on local-provincial problems went to the highest source yesterday in Belleville — Premier Robarts. After public debate with community spokesmen at Centennial Secondary School, there were more intimate groupings — like this one. The premier and provincial treasurer Charles MacNaughton give serious attention to Mayor Russell Scott. (For story and other pictures see pages 2 and 17.

El Salvador Keeps Truce But Refuses to Pull Back

WASHINGTON (AP) Latin American foreign ministers will meet to consider what steps to take against El Salvador for refusing to pull its troops out of Honduras.

The council of the Organization of American States decided late Tuesday to convene the foreign ministers' meeting after El Salvador refused to heed an OAS peace formula calling for withdrawal of its forces from Honduran soil by Tuesday night.

Reports from the war front said Salvadorean troops remained in battle positions. But OAS peace negotiator Guillermo Sevilla Sacasa of Nicaragua reported from Tegucigalpa, the Honduran capital, that both armies were honoring the ceasefire called by the OAS last Friday.

On a French Initiative, the foreign ministers of the six Common Market countries agreed to a summit conference this autumn to resudy Britain's seven-year-old application for membership.

Maurice Schumann, the French foreign minister, said the chiefs of government of France, Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg, should meet as soon as possible to "re-open the British dossier and to fix long-term community goals.

Used Car Dealer Finances Divorce

VANCOUVER (CP) — Used car dealer Joe Hargitt has an interesting little sideline. He finances divorce suits.

He launched his no-money-down, 30-months-to-pay way of splitting up last week with a newspaper advertisement.

Mr. Hargitt, 35, arranges financing to cover legal costs and charges a two per cent fee, or a minimum of $35. On a $500 loan arranged by him, the borrower would pay $153.06 in interest over a 30-month period, plus his $35, fee.

Home Earth Looks Good

HOUSTON (AP) — Apollo 11's moon explorers, yearning for home, streaked even faster toward earth today on a perfect course that is to land them in the Pacific Thursday.

"No matter where you travel, it's nice to get home," Edwin Aldrin said as the astronauts beamed a television picture of earth more than 180,000 miles away Tuesday night.

"It's getting appreciably larger now," said Michael Collins. "It's looking more like a world."

For other stories on Apollo see Page 14

And, looking ahead to splashdown, Apollo 11 commander Neil Armstrong asked about the weather in the recovery area.

"It looks real good out there," mission control told him. "The forecast is for scattered clouds at 2,000 feet and a visibility of 10 miles. So it looks real good for recovery."

Apollo 11 is to land at 12:49 p.m. EDT Thursday about 1,200 miles southwest of Hawaii.

The astronauts set their course Tuesday by firing a short engine burst to steer onto a precise path intended to land them near the aircraft carrier Hornet. They ended their historic exploration of the moon early Tuesday by shooting themselves out of lunar orbit and gradually gained speed as they raced deeper into the grip of earth's gravity.

The final television show from Apollo 11 is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. EDT tonight, on the eve of the astronauts' homecoming to a hero's welcome.

As they head for their fiery dash back through the atmosphere, the astronauts may see an unusual number of lights along the west coast of the United States.

Cheaper Wheat Sought

TOKYO (Reuters) — Japan will find it difficult to buy wheat from Canada and the United States for some time unless the two nations lower the prices of their wheat, the Japanese government food agency said today.

The agency made the statement after rejecting all offers of Canadian and U.S. wheat at a weekly tender here because of high prices.

No other nations offered their wheat today.

The agency said Japan resents the attitude of Canada and the U.S., which have decided to keep prices of wheat for Japan unchanged while cutting those to be shipped to Western Europe.

The agency said it would push ahead with negotiations with the two nations in an effort to persuade them to discontinue discrimination against Japan.

The agency said Japan, as the largest wheat importer in the world with purchases of 4,000,000 tons—146,800,000 bushels —a year, felt offended by the present situation. About 40 per cent of the total purchase comes from the U.S.

Closure Plan Stirs Tempers

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau is expected to defend in the Commons today his government's imposition of closure to end a 10-day debate on a proposed rule change which will permit the administration to limit debate on any and all legislation.

His entry into the debate is likely to provoke a Commons sitting as stormy as any seen since the 1956 pipeline debate, also ended by closure by the Liberal government of Louis St. Laurent.

The opposition has threatened that at the renewed session scheduled to open Oct. 22 it will work to rule. If it carries out this threat, the government will have to apply the new debate-limiting rule on every piece of legislation.

The opposition shouted "Heil Hitler" and "King Trudeau" at the prime minister Tuesday when the government announced its use of closure to end the rules debate.

Mr. Trudeau took a hard line in cabinet Tuesday after the opposition asked for a bigger compromise than the government was prepared to make.

As a result, even the government-proposed compromise was withdrawn.

The proposed rule change would permit the government to limit a debate on any bill to two days in a span of 10 days.

Mr. Trudeau gave his views on closure Saturday to a press conference in Lethbridge, at the close of his week-long prairie tour.

Mr. Trudeau said that by the time the next election comes around Canadians will not even remember whether the government had used closure in 1969.

He also said people 50 yards from Parliament Hill are not aware that a rules debate is in progress.

He added that the new debate-limiting rule is softer than the comparably British one and that he cannot see why all arguments in a debate on legislation cannot be presented in four or five days.

Meanwhile, party whips were summoning absent MPs to Ottawa for the climax of the debate. A vote on the closure motion will be taken no later than 1 a.m. Thursday.

The contentious rule 75C recommended by the Commons procedure committee would give the government the power unilaterally to set limits for debate where agreement on time allocation cannot be reached with the opposition parties.

Passage of the motion to concur in the committee's report would make the rules proposals part of Commons standing orders.

Rain Again Threatens All-Star Game

WASHINGTON (AP) — It continued to rain in parts of the capital today making prospects bleak for All-Star baseball game play.

The game was reset for 1:45 p.m. EDT after a three-inch downpour drenched Washington Tuesday night, causing flooding in several areas.

The weatherman predicted an 80-per-cent chance of rain for tonight.

Carrot Crop Fails On Quinte Farms

Nixon Is Off to Greet Astronauts

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — President Nixon heads today for a Pacific midocean rendezvous with the Apollo 11 crew—the first men to walk on the moon.

The president and Mrs. Nixon landed at San Francisco's International Airport in the early morning hours and drove directly to their hotel.

The Nixons will fly to different destinations this afternoon —the president heading for the Apollo 11 splashdown area and Mrs. Nixon going to Honolulu.

Nixon will make a seven-hour flight over 2,240 miles of the Pacific to tiny Johnston Island. There he will board a helicopter for a 90-minute flight to the Arlington, a communications ship, for an overnight stay.

Early Thursday Nixon reboards the helicopter and flies to the Hornet, the recovery aircraft carrier, where he will stand on the flag bridge to witness the scheduled splashdown of the Apollo spacecraft with its crew of three astronauts.

Before leaving Washington Tuesday, Nixon set up elaborate celebrations to honor the astronauts, including ticker-tape parades in New York and Chicago and a formal dinner in Los Angeles.

Nixon also dwelled on space exploration in addressing 3,000 students. He predicted that by the end of the century spacemen will fly beyond the moon to other places in the solar system. And he expressed hope other countries will join the U.S. in the "next great venture of space."

After viewing the recovery of the Apollo 11 astronauts, Nixon will rejoin Mrs. Nixon on Guam Thursday night.

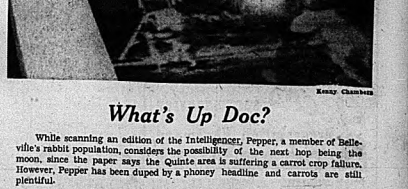
They will go on to stops in the Philippines, Indonesia, Thailand, India, Pakistan, Romania, Britain—and perhaps South Vietnam. The 25,000-mile tour ends Aug. 3.

The Moon Is Trembling

HOUSTON (AP) — A seismic experiment left on the moon by the Apollo 11 astronauts has picked up unexplained tremors.

The seismometer has detected "several distinct events," or surface movements, which may come from natural sources, said John Small, manager of the lunar surface projects office.

The experiment, powered by solar panels, is apparently slowly dying from overheating, Small said.



He said it was designed to discharge heat through radiation, but its radiation surface has been damaged, possibly from the blast of the rocket which lifted Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin from the lunar surface.

Temperatures during the lunar day reach 250 degrees, and Small said the device would not survive if this heat couldn't be dissipated.

Another experiment left on the moon so far has been a failure, Small said.

A mirror-like device designed to reflect laser beams had not been located by astronomers after several attempts.

He said McDonald Observatory at El Paso, Tex., and Lick Observatory in California have aimed laser beams at the Sea of Tranquility landing site of the lunar module, but the beams have not been reflected back.

What's Up Doc?

While scanning an edition of the Intelligencer, Pepper, a member of Belleville's rabbit population, considers the possibility of the next hop being the moon, since the paper says the Quinte area is suffering a carrot crop failure. However, Pepper has been duped by a phoney headline and carrots are still plentiful.

'Same Old Tune'

Peaceful Protest Against Pollution

Bill Hawthorne personally introduced Premier Roberts to his anti-pollution campaign yesterday.

The immediate result was a colorful welcome for a cabinet team headed by the premier, as it rrived in Belleville to discuss problems with l o c a l government spokesmen.

Mr. Hawthorne, who h a s been waging a one-man war over water conditions at his Crystal Beach resort on Moira Lake at Madoc, was not too certain of the long-term results.

He said he wouldn't be happy until "something material" develops from his brief meeting with the premier outside Centennial Secondary School.

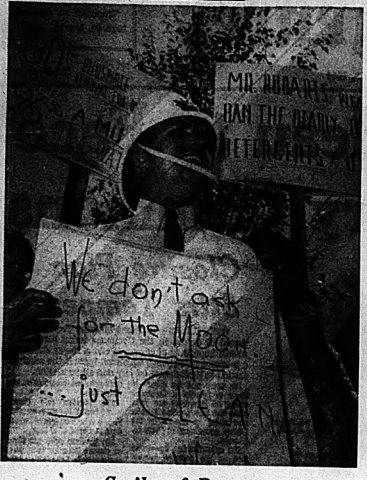
The occasion had all the trappings of protest.

Mr. Hawthorne marshalled his resort guests in a body down to Belleville and placed them on both sides of h e school entranceway.

Everyone had a banner demanding action on awter pollution. Some were clad in fancy-dress provided by Mr. Hawthorne. Two of the protesters were mounted on ponies and — for good measure — there was even a bagpiper.

Police stood easily among the demonstrators. The sergeant in charge of the guard detail earlier had a chat with Mr. Hawthorne and had been given assurances there would be no excitement.

When it came, the confrontation was calm, gentlemanly.



Mr. Robarts strolled between the placards.

Mr. Hawthorne, wearing a white pith helmet for the occasion, introduced himself. The premier said he hadn't recognized him with his hat on. There was a brief discussion — then the cabinet group passed through the school entrance.

The resort owner said Mr. Robarts told him the situation was being looked into and "they will do something about it."

Three years ago Mr. H a w thorne claimed the premier had said the same thing to him in a letter.

"It's the same old tune," he added as the demonstrators dispersed as quietly as they had protested.

Smile of Protest

Bill Hawthorne, Madoc resort owner, smiles as he awaits arrival of Premier Roberts at Centennial Secondary School. But the occasion was serious. Mr. Hawthorne organized anti-pollution protest to greet premier.

Corby Park Beauty Enhanced by Lights

A joint venture between four Belleville organizations will shed a little light on Corby Park tomorrow night.

The Belleville Horticultural Society, the parks board, the Public Utilities Commission and the Ontario Hydro have planned a "light-in"-at Corby Park.

With the institution of the light above the flowers and plant life of one of Belleville's loveliest parks will be seen during darkness as well.

The lighting system will consist of a network of floodlights and mushroom lights and will be continued into October.

It is hoped that the lighting will attract a larger number of photographers and visitors to the park.

City Prepared to Enter Fire Pact with Loyalist

The city of Belleville will be prepared to enter into an agreement with Loyalist College to provide fire protection for that institution which is outside the city limits in Sidney township.

And it will also be prepared to talk with industries outside the city limits which might wish the same service.

This was indicated Monday at a special meeting of council when a request from Loyalist College for fire protection service was discussed.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds told the council that the college was prepared to enter into an agreement with the city either on the basis of fee per call, on a standby fee, or a combination of both.

The agreement with the college will not be signed until after the holidays, but in the meantime the city fire department will answer any calls to the college.

The request by the college for city fire protection came after Sidney township decided against renewing its agreement with the city for fire protection in the township. The township now has its own volunteer fire department.

The city manager said there had been no other direct enquiries by industry or individuals outside Belleville asking for city fire protection.

'Nitwits at Wheel' Said Danger Factor

PICTON — "There is little I can do about the nitwits behind the wheels of the automobiles," said County Engineer Donald Clark when asked what he could suggest concerning dangerous crossings at Woodrow's Corners and East Lake road.

Bloomfield Reeve Alan Anderson questioned the engineer about the crossings after receiving a telephone call from a concerned resident in that area. Mr. Clark remarked, "There is a stop sign at this intersection. I see little I can do."

The engineer added that a second, stop sign might reduce accidents in the area reported as "apparently a speedway." He did not feel, however, that this was a very real possibility.

Possibly the man suffering most each time a motorist overshoots the stop sign is Picton jeweller, X. P. Mayhew. In the past four years five cars have careered onto his front lawn.

Veterinarian In Trenton

TRENTON — A graduate of the Ontario Veterinarian College, Dr. J. P. Downey, began a general practice in Trenton this week.

Dr. Downey has been practicing in Dunnville for the past four years.

While attending college he spent three summers working with the Cattle Breeding Association out of the Belleville office.

Mr. Downey is married with three children.

Olympics At Trenton

The Little World Olympics are being held today in the high school grounds, Trenton. A large number of children, who are taking part in the summer playground program in Trenton, participated in the track and field events.

A p a r a d e started the program and flags of many nations were marched into the stadium. Each team of youngsters is representing a different nation and the country which gathers the most points during the day will be presented with a trophy. The events got under way at nine this morning and continued all day.

To Arms

Weight Watchers Unite!

Women who are overweight can enroll in diet and physical fitness programs at local recreation centres, but what of men who want to lose weight?

One male Belleville resident has discovered that Belleville offers no diet clubs for overweight men and would like to start some type of "gluttons anonymous" program in the area if others are interested.

Weight Watchers International is one group the man would like to see established in Belleville. The organization has 30 centres in Ontario with approximately 30,000 members throughout Canada.

At a typical class, there is a weigh in, a talk and participation in a question period.

The purpose of the meetings, according to one graduate of WW is to "sell will power because you can't buy that at a drug store."

Anyone interested in helping to establish such an organization should phone 962-0211 during the day or 962-6278 in the evening.

IN MEMORIAM

REID — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Andrew Reid who passed away so suddenly July 23rd, 1966.

A light is from our household gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
Some may forget,
But we will not.
Though on earth you are no more,
But in memory you are with us
As you always were before.

Easy Does It

Believe it or not, this event is known by all local playground children as the toothpick and lifesaver game. The object is to pass the lifesaver to each player on your team, using only a toothpick. If by some odd chance the lifesaver should slip, the team has to start over again. Pat Adams and Mary Meens demonstrate the champion style.

The city-wide parents vs. children night at local playgrounds ended in a mad rush to find a pair of shoes. The shoe scramble, just one of the many events at Parkdale playground, was an organized game of mass confusion!

Parents Meet Children In Playground Contest

Scores of Belleville youngsters matched their physical agility with their parents' last evening, but it was hard to say who came out the winner.

The second in the Recreation Centre's scheduled series of special weekly playground events, Parents vs. Children night was a rollicking success.

Somewhat of a field day, the children joined forces against their parents in softball games, shoe scrambles and "toothpick and lifesaver" games.

In most cases both teams were willing to concede it was a "close" race right to the finish.

The pie-eating contest can't go without mention. At Parkdale playground, none of the blind-folded contestants could come close to the winner. Sharon Coughlin's appetite outdid even that of the hungriest father.

Results of the wheel-barrow and three-legged races only emphasized the fact that mothers and fathers have been away from the playgrounds for a while and that the youngsters practiced for the event a week before.

Following the program, participants brought out their pitchers to quench their thirst.

Interest on School Levy Concern to Councillors

PICTON (Staff) — The fact that a member of Prince Edward County School Board's needs."

Following the discussion, council decided to have its finance committee investigate time to suit the Prince Edward County School Board's in the hope that municipalities would have the interest situation corrected.

County Assessor S. G. Manley told county council last night that as soon as area assessment director Craig Innes in Belleville he will see him to request completion of the assessment of Prince Ed ward County. Mr. Manley reported that more than two-thirds of the county has been assessed.

"It will be my request of the province to have a concentrated effort made to complete the assessment of Prince Edward county next year," stated Mr. Manley.

Mr. Manley expressed his confidence in the possibility of completing the assessment.

He will become an official employee of the province of Ontario as of Jan. 1.

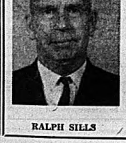
Look-Out Site Gets Green Light

PICTON (Staff) — Discussion at the Prince Edward County Council meeting last night has led to a decision by council to build a look-out site at Dugway Hill near Black Creek.

It was the idea of South Marysburg reeve, Allan Ratley, who drove past the site and noticed it.

The area in question has been a quarry and of late has been used as a garbage dump.

Mr. Ralley's idea involved filling the half-acre area and turning it over to the Prince Edward County Regional Conservation Authority.



The authority will then turn it into a park complete with picnic tables and will construct a 30-foot observation point for naturalists.

PICTON — "Man's greatest achievement has taken place while I am Warden of this county," said George Foster at last night's county council meeting.

Warden Foster described Monday's moon landing as a magnificent piece of work.

"We in Prince Edward County must take off our hats to the friendly country to the south of us — to the United States of America," concluded Mr. Foster.

In A Tough Spot

Under sheer weight of numbers the police are as entitled as anyone else to regard discretion as the better part of valor.

It has happened of late in Northern Ireland in the course of religious rioting there, and now there is word of a similar situation in Niagara Falls involving police and members of Satan's Choice motorcycle club.

Provincial police, 60 strong went to a field outside the city where 250 gang members had gathered for what they termed sports activities. The police were executing a liquor warrant when they became the target of beer bottles, chunks of wood and chains and decided to retreat.

An OPP spokesman said his men backed off rather than risk "a battle in which many people could have been injured."

That could well have been the case, but for how long must the police and public tolerate the sub-culture activities of these hedonistic young men? In this case, whatever other purpose the meeting had, they were apparently violating the liquor laws. This in turn, in immature young men of this type, can lead to other forms of lawbreaking. Yet it seems they were allowed to go free.

The report of the occurrence said some of the police were equipped with riot helmets and clubs. In the circumstances all should have been so equipped. Nevertheless, it could have been an unequal battle. What to do then? The only answer would seem to be, match the gang gathering in numbers and issue all officers with riot equipment.

It Was Worth It

There are those who say it should not have been done at this point — because of pressing problems of earth, not least of them poverty.

But had there been no moon program it does not necessarily follow that the money would have been directed consciously to this, that or the other problem.

The moon probe, like any other initiative, creates jobs. It is an outlet for the creative endeavor in man that will not be stilled.

And the money? Well, isn't the United States the wealthiest nation on earth. Isn't it capable of tackling poverty, slums, urban blight and other problems as well as the moon program?

When this subject of relative values and priorities was raised on television the other day someone quite rightly pointed to the public's own extravagances.

Like alcohol, cosmetics and tobacco. Add it up and what do we get — billions of dollars spent every year. Not to mention the billions spent on a host of other things considered essential to modern living. And not to mention defence spending.

Then again, man needs something of the magnitude of the moon flight to uplift and inspire him, and to divert his thoughts from the often sordid affairs of life on earth. This is no unexpected feat; it is the culmination of years of research and of still earlier, hesitant, beginnings by scientists in Europe, the United States and the Soviet Union.

It is also in line with the great adventures of exploration of the past. The names of Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins will go down in history with those of Eric the Red, Columbus, Cabot, Magellan, Vasco da Gama, Tasman, Cook, Scott of the Antarctic, Amundsen, Hillary and Chichester, not to mention the early Viking and Phoenician explorers, whose journeyings have contributed so much to man's knowledge and onward progress.

Aid for Prairies

The federal government is injecting money into the Western farm economy where farmers are caught with a vast glut of unsold wheat.

The loans will not solve the crisis but it will help put the prairie economy on its feet and give the farmers breathing space while the government and farmers try to find some way out of the grain impasse.

It is a crisis, and that is the farmers must diversify. What at the moment clearly has no market and even countries like India are virtually self-sufficient.

There may come a time when the Soviet Union and China will want more wheat, but meanwhile Western farmers must use their wits and their brawn to change the face of the prairie agricultural scene. That way they may find prosperity once again.

Earth's Problems Abound

Moon Landing and Its Place in the Scheme of Things

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — After eight years and $24,000,000,000 the United States has put the first footprints on the moon.

President Nixon, with fellow earthlings left struggling to find words to match the accomplishment, declared a national day of participation Monday to mark "the moment of transcendent drama."

It would be nothing short of churlish, perhaps, to question whether it was worth it. Certainly, taken by itself, the magnitude of the adventure and the ordered courage of the astronauts is not questioned by anyone.

It is when the lunar adventure is placed against the background of terrestrial war, poverty and social injustice that some thoughtful men question its validity and stop man's scale of priorities.

As a fact, it is considered by many scholars to be equal to, if not greater than, the two other major technological and scientific achievements within the lifetime of many alive today —the splitting of the atom and the unlocking of the genetic code in 1953.

In each case, as the Washington Post put it, "men have pried out of nature some of the very fundamentals of creation." But success brings responsibility as well as glory and "few greater evils could befall mankind than for men to carry their earthly disputes to the stars."

To the realist, mankind's record on earth is a poor one—not one that inspires much hope that he will behave much better as he extends the new frontier of space, as he surely will from now on.

As the two Americans walked in the bleak and utter silence of the moon, four wars were being fought on earth—in Vietnam, the Middle East, Nigeria and between El Salvador and Honduras. Border disputes and linguistic or cultural frictions within countries threatened violence in dozens of countries.

Much of the world still is deprived of basic freedoms by Communist dictators—the one-quarter of the world's population that lives in China was not even permitted to know there was a moon landing. Others, in Latin America, Greece and elsewhere, are under right-wing military rulers.

Aside from the bitterness brewing on the campuses, in the churches and the ghettos, United Nations figures show that more than half the world's population is undernourished.

That is not to suggest, of course, that had the $24,600,050,000 not been spent on the moon project the world would be appreciably better run.

But put side by side, the gap between man's almost incredible accomplishments when the funds, the will and the desire are present, and his equally incredible shortcomings in managing his social affairs is a tragic indictment.

It is in the face of such considerations that many in Congress already are campaigning for a cut in space spending after the moon landing to deal immediately with the immediate problems besetting mankind on earth.

On the surface it would seem the U.S. has won the race but there are some who contend Sunday's landing was just the first lap.

Indeed, in view of the strategic value of a moon base in perhaps eventually even holding the rest of the world captive, it is reasoned by some that the American lunar landing was an act of war.

"Are you sure you don't have any change? I don't think my wallet can hold 12 bushels of wheat!"

Letter to the Editor

'A Marvellous Thing,' Says Teenager of Moon Landing But Peace Must Be Goal

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The fantastic happenings of the past few days have prompted me to write this letter.

I am a teenager, and in this day, like so many others my age am fascinated with the doings of man. However, my feelings toward man conquering the moon can bring peace and tranquility" are mixed. I have summed these up at the end of this poem composed on the eve of one of man's greatest adventures.

A small step on the shore of time,
A jump on the moon for all mankind
If man can venture so far away?
Can he achieve peace someday?
Man's mind is mighty, his endurance great,
What is mankind's greatest forte?
To live and learn, to explore and find,
The origin of mankind?
To jump from earth to moon and maybe even Mars.
To reach, and touch,
the twinkling stars.
Man has done a marvellous thing,
But Peace only God can bring.
If man cannot achieve true peace in his own self and nation, how can mad conceive of world peace?

Urban Diversification Vital

Orilla Packet and Times

The concentration of nearly all Canadian urban expansion into just three cities — Toronto, Montreal, Vancouver—at the expense of other established cities across the land, is not only depriving the rest of Canada of vigor and variety, but it is imposing an intolerable burden on the three metropolises themselves. Jane Jacobs, a leading writer on urban affairs, told a seminar on civic design at Stratford, Ont. recently that the runaway growth of Canada's three "great" cities was saddling them with staggering economic and social burdens, and recommended that the solution lay not in the creation of new towns, but in the revitalizing of existing cities. If the economies of Winnipeg and Halifax could be revitalized, she pointed out, there would not be the same drift of people from these cities to Toronto in search of better jobs.

Miss Jacobs has put her finger on the most crucial problem of Canadian urban development; the unplanned, uncontrolled growth of these huge urban sprawls — they no longer rate the name of cities — which is sucking in the overwhelming bulk of our existing population, and almost all of our new Canadians arriving from abroad, into a frustrating and unrewarding environment.

Surely some economic incentive could be given to promote the relocation of industry in St. John and Calgary, Regina and London, Windsor and Saskatoon, Quebec and Sydney, Guelph or Moncton, and the dozens of other Canadian cities which could offer a more pleasant way of life, and healthier sharing of economic growth. Why should millions huddle in crowded Megalopolis when all around them in this beautiful, empty land there are scores of pleasant cities and towns offering good housing and schools and room to breathe?

Far in the Arctic wastes of Siberia, Russia has created huge and vibrant cities, teeming with life and offering ballet as well as hockey. Yet Canadians look upon Sudbury as a sort of northern outpost — and Sudbury is south of Seattle.

The Lachine Canal, Canada's first step towards opening up the Great Lakes for salt-water ships, was completed 144 years ago today—in 1825—after four years of work. The Canal bypasses the rapids immediately upstream of Montreal in the St. Lawrence and was first planned by the French in 1700. A shallow canal at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., was dug in 1798 and in 1841, immediately after the union of Upper and Lower Canada, the Welland Canal past Niagara Falls was improved. By 1855, steamers drawing 11 feet of water could move up from the sea to Lake Superior.

Public Participation Necessary

Value of Sport as A Basic Element of Education

UNESCO Features

The "Pierre de Coubertin" International Fair Play Trophy for 1968 was recently awarded to the Japanese National football team. We reproduce below extracts from the speech made by M. Rene Maheu, Director-General of UNESCO, before he handed over the Gold Medal to Mr. Ken Naganuma, the captain of the Japanese team, at a ceremony at UNESCO House.

Today sport is so popular that major sporting events such as the Olympic Games, wherever they are taking place, can be seen by millions all over the world on their television screens. Yet paradoxically—and we must have the courage to face this depressing fact — there is not a single country where sport holds its proper place in the preoccupations of those who are trying to rethink and reform education in bring it into line with the needs of society and the aspirations of youth.

Unfortunately, neither educational authorities, teachers nor even the pupils themselves are in general sufficiently aware of the value of sport as a basic element in education. All too often, even in this day and age, physical activity is brought into disrepute by the same sort of spurious intellectualism which discredits manual work. At school sport is all too often looked upon as time lost to academic study, which is considered more important and worthwhile. This alienation from sport begins at school; and it is because sport is not closely integrated into school life that so many people become accustomed even as children to regarding it as extraneous to the real business of life.

Adult sporting activities hardly help matters. Present-day sport is restricted to the few people who have the necessary freetime or who are outstanding enough to enter the competitive field — where they may, if fortunate, be able to make their living for a few years it is cut off from real life of the community (and this is true of even spectacular mass sporting events); it lends itself all too readily to a state of alienation. It strikes us as surprising that young people are so little concerned about sport: that is this not because both players and spectators see in it a means of distracting man from his problems? Although sport in fact has a vital part to play, through character training and the balanced development of the personality, in defending human values against the inroads of an increasingly oppressive mechanistic civilization, it is chiefly valued today for the opportunities it provides for entertainment and escapism.

It is high time we reacted against this situation, and helped sport to return to its rightful place and rank in man's self-development.

But if we want sport to recover its true significance and its role in education, and to become once and for all, as it is for today's finest sportsmen, a means of fostering fairness, fellow-feeling, self-discipline and respect for others, we must first of all think about its place in the renewal of education which is going on throughout the world today and undertake the necessary organization.

The introduction of sport into the curriculum of course entails the provision of suitable facilities (though these need not always be luxurious), and calls for increased efforts for the training of physical education instructors. But apart from the financial problem — which is far from being insurmountable — there is the task of changing the attitudes of public authorities and individuals towards sport.

Here again, nothing deep or lasting can be achieved without the active participation of youth. Sports clubs and organizations must become centres for real contact between adults and young people. Adults should abandon all their sterile paternalistic attitudes, and give the younger generation the opportunity not only of expressing their views but also of taking part in the whole planning and management of the clubs and federations. What is happening in the universities will probably lead young people sooner or later, if they have not already done so, to insist on playing an active part in every aspect of sport and its organization. And personally, I believe they should be encouraged to do so, for their fresh ways of approach and inventiveness are bound to be of help in restoring to sport vitality and meaning.

Prince Juan Accepts Bid to Be King

MADRID (AP) — Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon officially accepted today the nomination to become king of Spain and heir to Gen. Francisco Franco's title of head of state.

The 31-year-old prince, grandson of King Alfonso XIII, signed the acceptance at his Zarzuela Palace after a delegation from the Cortes, Spain's parliament, called on him with official notification that the Cortes had designated him Tuesday night to be the country's leader when Franco retires, becomes incapacitated or dies.

Juan Carlos' wife, Princess Sophie of Greece, and his children were at his side as he signed. They included 17-months-old Prince Felipe, his only son, who one day will be the king. The royal couple also have two daughters, Princess Elena, 5, and Princess Cristina, 4.

Before signing his acceptance, Juan Carlos said:

"I do accept for the day, which I ask God to be very far off, when the chief of state is not with us any longer.

"I'm fully conscious of the responsibility that upon me and my successors will fall starting this moment. May the Lord illuminate me to be perseverant in the service of Spain, to which I deliver all my exclusive dedication, as well as to its unity, grandeur and liberty."

As king, however, he will have severely limited power rather than the virtual blank cheque Franco has enjoyed since he led the revolution that overthrew the Spanish Republic in 1939.

The government will be run by a premier whom the king must choose from nominees of the Franco-picked Council of the Realm, and the premier can be removed only on recommendation of the council.

Franco nominated the prince to be his successor during an extraordinary session of the Cortes. The 553-member parliament promptly ratified the nomination by a vote of 491 to 19. Nine members abstained and 34 were absent.

The generalissimo in effect quashed speculation that he might resign soon. He told the Cortes that he would keep Juan Carlos by his side "to perfect his knowledge of national problems."

Franco's elevation of Juan Carlos appeared to put an end to any chance at the throne for the prince's father, Don Juan, the 56-year-old Count of Barcelona and Alfonso's heir at the time the Republicans drove him from the throne in 1931.

Don Juan, an exile in Portugal, abandoned his claim with a bitter statement Saturday and left Tuesday aboard his yacht for a Mediterranean cruise.

The 76-year-old generalissimo disposed of Don Juan's claim as well as that of the Carlist pretender, Prince Carlos Hugo of Bourbon-Parma, with these words in his speech to the Cortes:

"The kingdom which we have established, with approval of the nation, owes nothing to the past. We are not trying to go back into the past but to incorporate the principles of our historical tradition.

"Our case is one of installing and not restoring. Only after the crown has been installed in the person of a prince will the regular order of succession foreseen by the laws begin."

Rehabilitation Methods Are Still Ineffective

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario government corrections officer says modern techniques of rehabilitation work no better on prisoners than old-fashioned methods.

W. R. Outerbridge of the Ontario Provincial Probation Service says statistics on repeat offenders show "modern treatment methods espoused by behavorial scientists apparently are no more effective than the more 'punitive' less 'humane' methods which they are replacing."

Mr. Outerbridge made his comments in an article in Chitty's Law Journal, a monthly publication for the legal profession.

A study taken in California, Mr. Outerbridge said, showed no matter what kind of aftercare programs were tried on former prisoners, the same percentage kept rinsing afoul of the law and returning to prison.

Dr. George Scott, chief psychiatrist at Kingston Penitentiary, said in an interview that Mr. Outerbridge "has a point. I'm afraid."

He said prisoners convicted of armed robbery or fraud false pretences usually could be rehabilitated. But petty thieves and other "sneak-type, acquisitive offenders" had little chance for rehabilitation if they were of low intelligence.

William T. McGrath, executive secretary of the Canadian Corrections Association at Ottawa, said "there is a lot of truth" in Mr. Outerbridge's article.

He said more research and experimental programs are needed to discover the best way of handling prisoners.

Dawn Bomb Kills Israeli Near Tel Aviv

By Reuters

Israeli police today rounded up about 60 Arabs from the Tel Aviv-Jaffa area after a man was killed and another badly wounded by a dawn bomb explosion, a police spokesman said.

The explosive charge, weighing an estimated two pounds, was wrapped in a parcel and hidden in bushes a few yards from a bus stop on a busy road linking Tel Aviv with Haifa, the spokesman said.

Israeli warplanes streaked across the Suez canal and the River Jordan Tuesday to knock out Egyptian gun emplacements and strike at Arab commando bases inside Jordan.

The raid over the canal, the second since Sunday and only the second air attack on Egyptian military installations since the 1967 war, crippled a number of gun sites, an Israeli military spokesman said.

The air raid was prompted by a 48-hour barrage from Egyptian guns on Israeli positions on the west bank of the canal, the spokesman said. All the Israeli planes returned to base, he added.

In Cairo, an Egyptian spokesman said Israeli planes raided Port Said and El Tina but were driven off by groundfire.

The spokesman said the Israeli report of air attacks on gun emplacements and other military installations along the canal Tuesday were "fabrications aimed at covering up their losses and failure in Sunday's battles."

In Amman, Jordan, a spokesman said six Israeli warplanes hit the Al Shiah M'aad and Al Zamalia areas south of the Sea of Galilee. But they were driven off by ground fire without inflicting any casualties, he added.

An Israeli spokesman said all planes returned safely from the raid on Jordan which was ordered after rocket and mortar bombs were fired at Israeli positions last week.

At the United Nations in New York, Egypt filed an official complaint charging Israel with "acts of aggression" for the air strikes Sunday.

Apollo vs Lindbergh in Tickertape Showdown

NEW YORK (AP). — The tickertape parade President Nixon has set up for the Apollo 11 moonmen will inevitably be measured against the salute this city gave a flying hero of an earlier age— Charles A. Lindbergh.

New York plans to welcome the astronauts Aug. 13 after they get out of post-flight quarantine in Houston, Tex. After their New York appearance, they plan to fly to Chicago for a parade in the Loop, then to Los Angeles for dinner with President Nixon.

Lindbergh's arrival here on June 13, 1927, three weeks after his historic New York-to-Paris flight, is a tough act to follow. The New York Times estimated the crowds at 4,000,000, a figure which, if accurate, would have been equivalent to 40 per cent of the city's population at that time.

Four hundred excursion boats, jammed with 30,000 onlookers, filled New York's Lower Bay with a din of whistles as Lindbergh touched down aboard the amphibious plane San Francisco.

Thousands lined the shores. Lindbergh was shuzzled to the city's welcome boat and an hour later he stepped ashore at the Battery.

The tip of Manhattan was jammed. The brokerage firm of Hemphill and Weeks had turned down an offer of $1,000 for the use of its windows at 42 Broadway as parade vantage points. Other choice floors had rented for an average of $500.

The procession, headed by 15,000 soldiers and sailors, crawled up lower Broadway. At times the blizzard of falling ticker tape and paper was so thick it cut off the smiling Lindbergh from view and dimmed the bright afternoon sun.

All along the way the crowds grew thicker. The noise occasionally drowned out the voices of radio announcers trying to describe the scene.

Overhead, a skywriter scrawled "Hail Lindy" across the sky in smoke.

At City Hall, Mayor Jimmy Walker looped the city's Medal of Valor around Lindbergh's neck while 3,000 invited guests looked on and a crowd of 100,000 roared "Lindy!"

Tradeau to Face Angry MPs

ment, after a last-ditch meeting with opposition spokesmen to find a solution to the dispute, said he will move for closure at 2 p.m. EDT today.

The result was the ugliest parliamentary scene of the first session of the Trudeau administration.

Cat-calls, jeers and tossed papers greeted the announcement that closure was to be invoked for the first time since the 1964 debate over a new flag for Canada. Prime Minister Trudeau was booed as he left the House after the announcement.

Frank Howard, in a harshly personal speech later, said the prime minister appears to have fascist tendencies and wants to run the House like a computer. The NDP member for Skeena called Liberal MPs "lackeys, bootleggers and finks" and said Mr. Macdonald is their gauleiter—a gauleiter was a Nazi district political administrator.

As the burly MP referred to absent Ray Perrault, (L—Burnaby-Seymour) as "the honorable that empty barrel from Burnaby-Seymour," Speaker Lucien Lamoureux interrupted him.

"Even if honorable members take part in this debate with feeling and passion some respect for certain values should still be maintained," the Speaker said.

". . . If this is the kind of debate we are going to have today, tomorrow or Thursday or on other days, I wonder how long the House of Commons will survive."

Speaker Lamoureux, usually a model of understatement and tact, spoke with some strain.

Mr. Howard said he wished the Speaker had some influence in the cabinet. If the Liberals wanted to operate by the law of the jungle, the opposition would try to accommodate them.

Outside the House, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said the closure move will destroy "the atmosphere of co-operation which has existed here for almost a year." A rule to be effective had to be accepted by all MPs.

Prime Minister Trudeau, speaking to reporters, said Parliament had become in the popular view an irrelevant place where people talked and talked and did nothing. The rules change would restore Parliament's relevancy in the public eye.

WEDDING

EVANS — TURNER

MARMORA — A double - ring wedding ceremony was solemnized at St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora, recently by Rev. Douglas Miller, when Avis Marie Turner, daughter of Mrs. Frances Turner, of Belleville, was united in marriage to John David Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Evans of Yorkshire, England.

Given in marriage by her grandfather, George Davidson of Marmora, the bride chose a full length gown of de - lustered satin. The Swiss embroidered organdy roses that accented the bateau lined to form one panel to the hemline. A detachable chiffon train was caught at the shoulders and completed by a row of roses trimming. Her nylon tulle veil was held by two white roses and stephanotis. She carried a white Bible, with a floral arrangement of white roses, and rosebuds on ribbons to the hemline.

Attending was her cousin, Miss Judith Blakely, who wore a floor length gown of lemonade shantung. The sleeveless dress was complemented with a row of white lace to the hemline, and she carried shasta daisies.

William Davidson of Marmora was groomsman and Mr. Peter Maslo of Belleville was usher.

The reception was held in the church hall.

PANT SUITS FOR FALL—Pant suits are still a top item in fall fashions.

Too Widely Worn

Popular Pant-suits Soon to Be Discarded?

NEW YORK (CP) — The pant-suit is still a top item in fall fashions, but indications are that its very popularity may kill it off by next year among really fashionable women. It's an axiom that whatever becomes too widely worn is slated for discard.

But if your figure is acceptable for a pant-suit, then this is the season to buy at least one. You can wear it early in the fall as a street costume and later, in the winter, under a coat. But the design house of Kimberly advises against going overboard.

"Pants are put firmly in their place, which is in every woman's wardrobe. Not dominating, but representative."

There is great variety as to what to wear with the trousers and what fabrics to match or combine. Every designer has, of course, a preference as to the top but all agree that the trousers are fairly straight, often dropping straight from the hip.

There's no extra floppy bulk in trousers. In fact, some of them are slightly shaped. Anne Klein is even introducing tight, leg-hugging britches.

What you wear above the trousers is entirely your own choice. If it's a pant-suit for street wear, there are several jacket types, from the well-skirted hacking style to a long cardigan. David Kidd explains the new jacket look as "long and lean with the feel of being an abbreviated coat."

Underneath the jacket you may prefer a tunic, overblouse, V-neck tennis sweater or a shirt. Add the new fashion accent of a scarf or a long muffler and there's your own individual pants outfit.

First, the coats and some of the designers' preferences: Originals, always a trend setter, is introducing a swing-wide, unbelted coat and teams it with both pants and dresses. This is a silhouette to watch. The lean, narrow-lapped coat is still popular but this loose, unbelted, back-swinging coat may be the next trend. For less-formal street wear, Bill Blass likes the man's look of whipcord for a jacket combined with grey jersey pants and a black-and-white weskit.

However, besides a choice of short coats there's the maxi length, taking on a new importance now and smart with pants.

But for early fall, it's the jacket or tunic plus pants. Davidow likes to top his trousers with a riding jacket style using two different fabrics. Shrunken, more skirted, the jacket becomes the hacking style which Junior Sophist-icates advocates as the freshest trend. Joan Leslie elongates a sweater jacket that goes well with pants.

If the jacket is part of a real pant-suit, a shirt or an overblouse is likely to be the third piece, but it can also be a tunic. Since both jacket and tunic will be elongated, the tunic can also serve as a mini-dress. It's an ideal arrangement for the young travelling or commuting set. Says Francesca of the Dawnay house: "The tunic-over-pants idea continues to be important for both day and dark, from a long striped tunic over pants to a long-sleeved charmer, gold-colored on red."

But a new idea has also been introduced: a dress with pants. As Anne Fogarty says: "Many of the dresses for both day and evening have their own trousers." This adds another dimension to the pants concept. Wraggs, for example, combines a white wool dress with grey trousers in its fall preview. Dimondi showed a burgundy dress in cotton jersey over navy-and-red argyle plaid pants and matching scarf in bonded knit of cotton.

The plaids are popular this fall in pants outfits, both as pants or jackets. Originals uses the plaid in pants and white for a coat worn over pants, overblouse and kilt scarf in rust jersey. Oxford-cost believes in argyle plaids in cardigans over tailored pants.

Other new fabrics in the pant-suit group include melton cloth, used by Donald Brooks in fern green as a flow-length Regency-style coat over sonnet pants and jersey tunic. Originals paired a bel tless, salmon pink melton cloth coat with jet brown jersey pants and tunic and a white leather bolted melton coat in red with white pants.

Penitent Italian Fashion Is Cowled

ROME (Reuters) — Italian fashion, suitably robed and cowled, seems heading for the convent as if penitent for the orgy of nudity last season.

The monastic look has been building up for the last four days of the Rome fall and winter collections with dark, voluminous calf-length dresses, flat shapeless bodies, hooded sleeves and prim, high necklines.

The transparent dresses and dizzy decolletes of the spring-summer collections virtually have vanished.

Pino Lancetti put the seal on the cloistered line Monday night with long evening dresses cut exactly like nuns' habits, long loose, wide-sleeved and cinched at the waist with a cord.

With them, and almost all his evening clothes, came long fine sleeves proudly wrapped round the head and thrown behind the shoulders. They came in dark somber tones — black, purple, deep bottle green and dark brown—and the models deepened the mood by gliding silently and soberly as if in meditation.

The Fontana Sisters' version of the monastic line was a monk's cowl which covered everything from the shoulder up except for the face itself.

They appeared in a bright orange plasticized material with an orange and white waterproof pant suit, in warm wools over day clothes and in fine shimmering fabrics over evening gowns.

Lancetti kicked off with the Chicago gangster look—big broad-shouldered, double breasted great-suits worn calf-length over long fairly wide pants and trilby hats pulled down over the face.

Jackets, of varying lengths, had military style shoulder-tabs, highstanding collars and neat rows of buttons. Scarves went with almost everything.

Lancetti followed the oriental trend for some evening dresses but with a difference—he had a whole series of silk gowns in exotic derivations of Indian designs, with huge borders or Arabesques and strange oriental patterns.

Like almost all his clothes they came in combinations of purple turquoise, bottle green and pink.

The Fontanas' collection was full of belts, buttons, boots and beads. It had big brass buttons on almost every garment in sight.

Church Groups

(SECOND THURLOW)

The Neighbors' Aid held their annual Pot Luck dinner at Zwick's Island recently.

President, Mrs. Jim Dowdle called the gathering to order with all participating in various sports, from the peanut scramble to guessing the number of beans in a jar.

The peanut and candy scramble concluded the afternoon sports. Several remained until the evening, and everyone reported an enjoyable day.

MR. AND MRS. PETER WESKETT

Weskett — McClean

St. Thomas' Anglican Church was the scene of the recent wedding when Roberta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McClean of Gloucester, England was united in marriage to Peter Allen Weskett of Belleville. Performing the ceremony was Rev. Peter Teti. Appropriate wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Jean Szczerba, who sang, accompanied by Donald Davenport.

The bride, given in marriage by Mr. John Szczerba, a friend of the bridegroom's family, wore a full-length gown of white peau de soie with an overlace cape falling gracefully in a train at the back. Her veil consisted of two layers of net attached to a crown of seed pearls. She carried an open bouquet of a gardenia and sweetheart roses.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Jane Deacon was attired in a floor-length sleeveless gown of blue chiffon over pink taffeta flowered-trimmed around the neck and arm-hole. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations and sweetheart roses.

Flower girl was Miss Kim Aseltine. She wore a sleeveless floor-length gown, empire style of pale green organza over green taffeta. She carried a small nosegay of roses and daisies.

Best man for the ceremony was Larry Heald, friend of the bridegroom. Ushers were David Weskett and David Colden.

For the wedding reception held at the bridegroom's home, the mother of the bridegroom received the guests wearing a coat and dress ensemble of pale mauve chiffon completed by two shades of pink sweetheart roses. Assisting her, Mrs. Jean Szczerba wore a soft shade of green lace dress with white accessories and a corsage of yellow and white sweetheart roses.

The bride and bridegroom have taken up residence in Oshawa.

UCW Meetings

DESERONTO U.C.W.

Although regular meetings of the two units of the U.C.W. of the Deseronto United Church were not held in the summer months, both units held special events.

The afternoon unit met this week in Stower Hall for a social get-together — indoor picnic.

Mrs. Thomas Jackson was in charge of the games and contests for the occasion. The leader is Mrs. George Stuart.

Later in the week, the evening unit visited the Allan MacPherson House in Napanee, a first visit for many of them.

Formally opened a year ago, much of the renovations are still incomplete. The members were conducted on the tour of the house by one of their own members, Mrs. Fran Walker, curator of the house, who was able to give them many interesting details about each item of furniture.

Following their tour, Mrs. Walker welcomed them to her apartment, built in what used to be "the chamber" over the kitchen. Much of the furnishings were of the same period as those in the house.

There, members enjoyed refreshments and tea served by Mrs. Walker.

UCW Conference In August

Miss Marjorie Smith will be the leader for the Bay of Quinte Conference eighth annual School for United Church Women, to be held August 22, 23 and 24th at Albert College, Belleville.

Miss Smith was formerly associated with the YWCA, involved with work with teenagers. She joined the staff of the Board of Women of the United Church in 1966 as a travelling secretary and last February became associate secretary of the Board of Women, with special concern for leadership, development, citizenship and social action and supply and welfare.

The theme speaker on the topic "reconciliation — what does it mean to you?", will be Dr. Herbert L. Pottle, Ottawa.

Dr. Pottle, a native of Newfoundland, held posts there in the fields of education and public welfare. Later he accepted an appointment of Secretary of the Board of Information and Stewardship of the United Church of Canada. He also worked abroad as Social Welfare Adviser for the United Nations.

At present he is Principal Research Officer of the Department of National Health and Welfare, Ottawa. He will speak Saturday afternoon.

Registration for the school begins Friday, August 22 at 3 p.m. The opening session will be at 7 p.m.

Saturday will be visitors' day, with registration for visitors beginning at 12.45 p.m.

The school closes with communion and luncheon on Sunday following morning worship and communion.

Family Reunions

SPENCER RE-UNION

The annual re-union of the Spencer family, descendants of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Spencer, of Warkworth, was held at the Lions Club Picnic Grounds at Campbellford on the weekend.

More than 50 members of the family were present with various points in the surrounding district.

Mrs. George Spencer of Colborne, 86, and Garnet Rutherford of Havelock, 83, were the eldest members present.

The younger members of the family enjoyed water activities at the beach, while the adults spent the afternoon visiting. Later in the day, all enjoyed dinner together.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Spencer were chosen as the new president and secretary, with Granville Rutherford as vice president, while Robert Spencer and Douglas Dodder were elected to the Sports Committee.

MR. AND MRS. STANLEY AKEY

Akey — Rosebush

The wedding was solemnized at St. Thomas' Anglican Church when Nancy Ann Alice Rosebush, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Rosebush, of Belleville, became the bride of Stanley Harold Akey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Akey, of RR 1, Shannonville. Officiating at the wedding was Rev. Peter M. Teti. Rendering appropriate nuptial selections was Donald W. Davenport. Soloist was the aunt of the bride, Mrs. Gwen Rosebush.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length bridal gown of chantilly lace and net over taffeta with the bodice featuring a scalloped neckline and long lily-point chantilly lace sleeves. A five tier bouffant veil was caught to a matching headdress adorned with tiny crystals. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

Matron of honor, Mrs. March Archer, sister of the bride, wore a sleeveless floor-length lilac silk chiffon sheath gown with a matching scalloped edging chantilly lace coat effect flowing from the shoulders to the hemline. Her headpiece was of matching lilac with three tiers of silk illusion featuring a large organdy rose. She carried yellow 'mums.

Bridesmaids, Mrs. Marilyn Salisbury and Mrs. Sandra Shandra, sisters of the bride, and Miss Gail Akey, sister of the bridegroom, were attired identically to the matron of honor and carried yellow 'mums.

Flower girl was Miss Dale Shelly Arndt, niece of the bride. She was dressed almost identically to the brides-maids, but in white silk chiffon with a scalloped overcoat of lilac chantilly lace. Her headpiece was of matching lilac with two tiers of silk illusion, featuring a small organdy rose. She carried a basket of yellow 'mums.

Best man for the ceremony was Earl Akey, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Ronald Akey, Donald Dafoe and Brian Rosebush. Ringbearer was Master Eugene Rosebush, brother of the bride.

For the wedding reception held at St. Thomas' Parish Hall, the mother of the bride received the guests wearing a venetian lace and shantung ensemble of soft pink, completed by white accessories. A corsage of white 'mums tinted the same pink added the finishing touch.

Assisting her, like mother of the bridegroom chose a dress of aqua blue nylon and acetate lace over rayon taffeta, with white accessories. A corsage of white 'mums was tinted to match her ensemble.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls and points west, the bride donned a lilac crimplent coat and dress ensemble with white accessories and a corsage of white 'mums tinted lilac. Upon their return, the couple will reside in Belleville.

The Senior Citizens Club district picnic was held July 16 at Colonial Park, with other clubs present from several points in the surrounding area.

The program was planned so that each club was to contribute something to the day's events. The Belleville Club put on a "hippy" wedding.

From Belleville, those participating were Mrs F. Cook, Mrs. M. Ford, Mrs. S. Conkright, Mrs. A. Scales, Mrs. H. Brooks, Mrs. Gist, Mrs. A. Haley, Mrs. I. Arnott, Mrs. M. Doyle and Mrs. Adams.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES BRUYEA

Bruyea — Robinson

The wedding was solemnized at St. Michael the Archangel Church when Faye Irene Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merle D. Robinson of Corbyville, exchanged wedding vows with James Gregory Bruyea, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Bruyea, of Belleville. Officiating at the ecumenical ceremony was Monsignor J. P. Sullivan and Rev. J. Hobbs. Rendering appropriate nuptial selections was Miss Dorothy Grant. Soloist was Mrs. Robert Hough.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full length heavy crepe gown of 18th century design. It was trimmed with pleated lace down the front of the bodice and around the high neckline. The skirt was slightly A-lined in the front and billowed into a trained bustle back. Rows of lace extended from the waist to the train. The full sleeves were buttoned in seven-button cuffs. Her headpiece was a wedding ring of matching lace with a short bouffant veil. She carried a bow-shaped bouquet of stephanotis centred with gardenias.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Donna Gowthorpe of Belleville, sister of the bride, was attired in a gown designed in imported Swedish cotton in shades of yellow, green and melon. She wore a daisy headpiece of the same fabric. Bridesmaids, Miss Ann Emerson of Holloway and Miss Cheryl Robinson, sister of the bride, were dressed the same as the matron of honor. All attendants carried clusters of gladioli in a melon shade.

Best man for the ceremony was Paul J. Bruyea of London, Ont., brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were David Bruyea, of Ottawa, brother of the bridegroom and Gary M. Robinson, Corbyville, brother of the bride.

For the wedding reception, held at Tops Motor Hotel, the mother of the bride received the guests wearing a pale blue crepe dress featuring a rolled collar and matching cape. White accessories and a matching corsage of a single gardenias and stephanotis completed her ensemble.

Assisting her, the mother of the bridegroom chose a navy A-line dress with a dainty stand - up collar. Navy and white accessories, and a corsage of white gardenia trimmed with pink and outlined with stephanotis completed her outfit.

For the honeymoon to the Northern United States and Western Ontario, the bride donned a plum shade coat dress, slightly A-line with bell-shaped full length sleeves, a high stand - up collar. A gardenia corsage completed her ensemble. Upon their return the couple will reside in Belleville.

Organization Battles Society of 'Couples'

EDMONTON (CP) — "Society is geared toward couples," says a Monica.

"Society rejects us. We are the third wheels."

The Monicas are a group of women attempting to raise their children without a father in the home.

Society, say these single, divorced, separated and widowed women, confronts them with prejudice and discrimination in many areas of life.

"We are rejected by landlords as unsuitable tenants, rejected as insecure credit risks," said Marie MacDonald, president of the Edmonton Monica Society.

Bonnie Atkinson, a Monica member, says that at social functions many wives are suspicious of an unattached woman because they fear any threat to their marriage.

Discrimination, loneliness and the special needs of children in single-parent homes brought a small group of women together eight years ago to form the society, named after the widowed mother of St. Augustine.

As Rev. John Spicer, a priest who helped the women organize, said: "No one understands the problem like one who has been through it."

Miss Atkinson described her first experience with the Monicas a year ago. Not wanting to get involved with a women's club, she was hesitant about accepting the invitation of a friend.

"I'm glad I did for I feel like I belong; I feel very comfortable and accepted.

"It is some place to turn to, a place with people who have gone through the same kind of things."

Social activities are frequently planned for the now 350 members in the Edmonton area. Group discussions, card parties, lectures, skating parties or picnics are held at least once a month.

Jeanette Mlynchuk says she came to the first meeting "simply to get out of the house."

"I don't know what my social life would be like without the Monicas."

Mrs. MacDonald says many of the women withdrew from social contacts because of society's rejection

Many of the Monicas are on welfare, the only amount of money for entertainment is limited.

Lectures by professionals explore the particular problems a Monica faces. Social workers, psychiatrists and lawyers help to deal with the needs of a child growing up without a father.

One woman said: "It's the only real need I have found— to supplant the male figure, especially for the sake of a son."

Family Services of Edmonton attempts to help provide this need; at the same time, the Monicas assist them to develop the program.

Uncles At Large is an organization of men who are willing to establish friendly relationships with boys.

W. A. Fletcher, Family Services counsellor, said the Monicas assist "by giving eloquent testimony to the men of the needs of the boys."

"They give a more realistic picture of what the men are getting into by talking one hour than I could give talking all day."

Unfortunately, there are not enough men in the program for all the children of single parents. There are at least 200 boys on the waiting list, Mr. Fletcher said.

In addition to the Uncles program, the Monica Society assists Family Services to deal with women who are going through a separation or divorce.

"I personally refer a great number of women to the Monicas—women who need a sensitive personal appreciation of the problems they are going through," said Mr. Fletcher.

In order for the Monicas to help each other adjust, society must change its attitudes toward their situation, they say.

The Monicas can help one another adjust to the change in status, the often reduced standard of living, the new responsibilities and the loneliness

But discrimination and prejudice at social functions, at places of employment, in housing and in finance must be changed by a greater awareness on the part of people and the government.

That is why the group has decided to become involved in social action.

"We endeavor to promote civic action by trying to enact changes in political and social structure of our society for the benefit of the women," said Mrs. MacDonald.

"We need to give more help to more people."

More Rules Every Year Says Lamenting Lifeguard

VICTORIA (CP) — There are always too many rules—even if you're paid to sit on the beach under the sun.

Judy Soper, 19, a lifeguard for the last two summers in nearby Saanich, says "more rules seem to be added every year which makes it difficult for us."

"Sometimes there seem to be too many rules."

The rules Judy enforces are based on Canadian Lifeguard Regulations.

These include bans on glass, to save cut feet, prohibitions against floating aids, to save persons from getting out of their depth, and restrictions on animals in the water.

The last has nothing to do with Judy's frequent order to youths to "stop horsing around on that raft."

"We're not here to spoil people's fun," says Judy. "We're here primarily to see that no one gets into serious trouble."

"I think public is actually responsive to the rules," she adds.

Colorful Jellied Salad Moulds

By MARY MOORE

Because you can make these in advance of a summer party and because they are so colorful and popular I am giving these moulded salads today. They are basically orange and green and filled with luscious goodies. Shirley did the testing and filled two four cup moulds.

JELLIED SALAD MOULDS
(Serves at least 16)

One 6-oz. pkge. orange jelly powder
2 cups boiling water (1st. amount)
1 tsp. salt
1 1-3 cups drained canned mandarin orange segments
2-3 cups pineapple juice (drained from chunks)
2 tbsps. lemon juice
½ cup sliced stuffed olives
One 6-oz. pkge. lime jelly powder
2 cups boiling water (2 nd amount)
1 cup cold water
2 cups shredded carrot
2-3 cup finely chopped inner celery
2-3 cup chopped walnuts

Dissolve orange jelly powder and salt in boiling water (1st amount). Add pineapple juice and lemon juice. Pour a little into the bottom of 1 or 2 fancy four-cup moulds and arrange in each the sliced olives in a ring. Let set. Add pine apple chunks to remaining partially set jelly but hold at room temperature. As soon as olives are set in bottom layers pour remaining jelly (containing pineapple) over and let set until firm.

Dissolve lime jelly powder in 2 cups boiling water (2nd amount). As soon as dissolved add the 1 cup cold water. Chill until partially set. Add carrots, celery and walnuts and pour over set orange layers in both moulds. Chill until firm. To unmould dip moulds into hot water and count carefully to eight. Loosen edges with tip of paring knife and tip moulds all round to be sure molds are loose. Invert on fancy salad plates.

If desired garnish with stuffed olives, radish roes and deviled eggs and pass mayonnaise.

Ann Landers

Unhappy Wife Battles Guilty Conscience

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 44, happily married (for nearly 19 years) and have a great husband and three beautiful children. I made a serious mistake several years ago and now the "mistake" is in his early teens and looks exactly like the other man.

I became aware of the resemblance several years ago but I kept telling myself it was my guilt plus an overactive imagination. Now I can no longer take the situation casually because too many people are beginning to make comments. Just last night a close friend asked me — blindingly, of course — if I got drunk one night about 15 years ago (if she only knew how close she came to the truth!)

My conscience is killing me and I find myself brooding by the hour. What shall I do? Please don't suggest prayer. I've tried it and it does nothing for me. If I confess to my husband I'm afraid he might turn against the boy. Help me, please. — HEAVY FENALTY.

DEAR H.P.: Since you were married at the time you made the "serious mistake", there's an outside chance that your husband is the father of the child. Cling to this possibility. Slim though it may be- it's a real one.

If you feel you must tell someone, select a therapist who is trained and paid to listen. A confession of this kind is not for the ears of a friend or relative.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for "Alive and Well and Rving in Decatur," the man whose wife went to bed in underwear and ankle socks for 17 years. I think I married that loon's twin brother.

I'm 42 years of age, attractive and neat. I don't sleep in ankle sox — or face cream or hair curlers either We've been married eighteen years and for the past five, he has looked my way one every two months (when I'm lucky). In between times he pats my cheek or fakes a heat wave ten minutes before we are expecting ten dinner guests.

What baffles me is that this man is interested in sex — but only on the printed page. You should see the garbage he brings into our home! I'm one of those abnormal cats who gets no kicks from looking at dirty pictures. Please tell me what is wrong and what I can do about it. In the meantime I hope nobody comes along because I'm ripe and ready for a lover. Sign me — Half Alive in Quebec.

DEAR Q.: Grown men who would rather look at pictures than enjoy the real thing are adolescent. Pictures make no demands. They offer no challenge. Anybody can look. Paste this column on the TV screen so your husband will be sure to see it. If that lover comes along he won't be able to say you didn't warn him.

* * *

DEAR ANN: The letter from the girl who is miserable because she has a low forehead really got to me. My problem is just the opposite — a high forehead. All through grade school the kids called me 'Baldy', I felt like a freak. I decided bangs were the best solution and I have been wearing them ever since.

The real solution is to accept yourself as God made you, do what you can to look your best and then forget about it. The people who really count don't go around measuring foreheads. —DAISY.

DEAR FRIEND: They say Daisies don't tell but you did and I'm glad. Thanks for writing.

Successful Living

Hostels Highly Recommended

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Suddenly I have the money from an uncle to spend on a trip to Rome before I go back to college in the fall. I'm thrilled.

My mother said I should find out if there are Youth Hostels there. Are there any, and if so, would you recommend them? I can't pay hotel prices. — Travel Bug

Dear Travel Bug: The Rome Youth Hostel is the very place to go. It was built as a dormitory for Olympic competitors. It is near the swimming pool and tenn's courts and not far from the International Students' houses, in a good quarter of the city, across the road from the Tiber.

Report from three Canadian college students: "Well run, very clean; we like the rule of locking the doors at 11 p.m., felt very safe. Cafeteria food was good, and cheap too. No cooking facilities, but with 600 guests this would be impossible.

"You can talk if you want to, read, write or watch television. You meet all kinds of people your own age. Charge per night was 500 lire (85c) plus an equal amount for breakfast. Carry in your pocket an Italian Berlitz (the little phrase book) and take a plunge into the language. Buona Fortuna!

Dear Doris: My sister-in-law has interfered with my son and wife who have become quite beside with my husband and myself. She is a neighbor of ours and it is her aim to get everyone enemyfied amongst themselves, not matter who they are.

She is a person who butts in on everyone's business and it has given us much sorrow and worry. — Peace-Loving

Dear Peace-Loving: There is a quirk of human nature which delights in the power to make mischief. The idle gossip who passes on what she hears, declaring "I feel it my duty to tell you —" often indulges one of these. She builds on a detail making a monstrous story out of some slight word which should have been ignored. Then she sits back to watch the fireworks.

The remedy, usually, is an air-cleaning session with the injured or indignant victims. Make a pact to keep things straight, and to discuss nothing more serious than the weather with the culprit, from here on in.

Dear Doris: Your column is "tops". I sincerely wish that every young teen-ager would read it and be guided by what you are saying.

My problem is — a golden wedding is coming up and two of us have been asked to arrange the presentation container for a gift of money.

We have thought of a little basket painted gold or a small box, representing a gold brick. Have you any ideas to pass on, not too elaborate? — M. M.

Dear M.M.: How about a purse or wallet, wrapped in gold paper? Or a golden net money bag — as carried by Shakespearian characters — filled with dollars either in paper or gold pieces? Or a cheque in an envelope, with a gold bow on it?

P.S.: Many teens do take my advice. One honest 15-year-old wrote this: "I wrote to you before and if I hadn't been too snooty to take your advice in the first place, I would not have made such a mess of things."

Don't just muddle along. Doris knows human behavior and can help. Write to her and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Tommy had his first visit to the dentist today and he acted like a baby. I was ashamed of him."

Tommy: "He hurt me with that drill. He's a mean man. I don't like him."

If the introduction of new situations is fairly pleasant, a child is likely to take later pain or discomfort in a better spirit. Start a child visiting the dentist when he is 2 or 3 years old when he probably will need only examinations and cleaning. He will look on the dentist as his kind friend, rather than someone who may frighten or hurt him.

If the introduction of new situations is fairly pleasant, a child is likely to take later pain or discomfort in a better spirit.

Castonguay Suggests Ways to Control Election Expenditure

TORONTO (CP) — Nelson Castonguay, Canada's chief representation officer, said Tuesday election spending by candidates might be controlled by limiting advertising to a 30-day period prior to the vote and by requiring candidates to submit an accountant's report of expenses.

He told the Ontario select committee on election law that the accountants fees could be paid by the government and their reports would be filed at the central registry office. A successful challenge of any report would lead to a new election.

Mr. Castonguay disagreed with a special committee report on election expenses, submitted to the federal government in 1966 by Chairman Alphonse Barbeau, which recommended Canada appoint a registrar of election expenses to do a complete audit of all candidate spending.

"You'd have to have a huge staff to do an audit of the spending of all of the 1,000 candidates within a short time," he said. "Then you'd have a whole army of the civil service sitting around between elections doing nothing."

Mr. Castonguay, former chief electoral officer for Canada who now is responsible for bringing up to date redistribution of federal ridings, told the committee he thinks Canada should avoid the expense and trouble of keeping a permanent electoral list and continue to be the only country doing a new enumeration for each election.

He also disagreed with suggestions that Canada and the provinces should permit absentee or postal voting, methods of allowing persons to vote outside their polls which he said delay election results.

However, he recommended Ontario follow the federal example by allowing competent inmates of mental institutions to have a vote. This privilege has been made available during recent federal elections by officials of Ontario hospitals in the Toronto area and at Brockville.

Earlier this year the Ontario committee submitted a report to Premier John Robarts recommending that the province continue its policy of disqualifying inmates of prisons, reform institutions and mental hospitals from voting.

But Chairman Edward Dunlop said Tuesday that the committee may reconsider its recommendation to bring it in line with federal policy of allowing mental patients, who have not been denied their right to come and go from the institution or manage property, to vote.

Roderick Lewis, chief election officer of Ontario, told the committee that Mr. Robarts' government hopes to introduce legislation this fall based on the committee report.

The report made a series of technical recommendations including appointment of permanent returning officers, extension of proxy voting in some cases and adoption of a new ballot aimed at reducing the number of improperly marked ballots.

The committee will make a second report in 1970 dealing with matters such as the voting age and election finances

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"It's fascinating that you're in selling . . . . . I'm in BUYING!"

Sopha Says MPPs Do More Than MPs For Constituents

TORONTO (CP) — Elmer Sopha, Liberal member of the Ontario legislature for Sudbury, says provincial members do more work for their constituents on bread-and-butter issues than their federal counterparts in the House of Commons.

In an interview Tuesday, Mr. Sopha said he visited the Commons last week and found only 22 of 264 members in their seats for a debate on parliamentary rules.

"I couldn't understand where all the members were," he said. "They have created a mythology that they are in their offices working on constituents' matters.

"I think that is a lame excuse. We have more excuse to be out of the house than they do because we handle more work in bread-and-butter issues—those political matters that concern constituents as people. The people in Ottawa deal with the broad sweep of national policy."

The Liberal member said the Ontario legislature is better attended than the federal House when key issues are being debated and added that work in the provincial house is just as important to the average constituent as work in Ottawa.

Mr. Sopha denied published reports quoting him as saying federal members are not worth their $18,000 yearly salaries.

THE BEARS AND I — by Robert Franklin Leslie

This is an absorbing animal story — and full of a sort of incidental magic — about the smells and sights and sounds of the forest. There is an easy humor in the story of the three bears, no sentimentality, and an astonishing amount of wood land lore.

MY LIVELY LADY by Alec Rose

All his life Alec Rose dreamed of sailing around the world. Finally his dream came true. One day he left his fruit business and unsponsored, alone and unheralded he began his journey. Ten months and 30,500 miles later he returned to Portsmouth harbor to receive a hero's welcome and a knighthood. His book, written in a direct, unassuming style, tells the story of his adventure and the many dangers he encountered.

It ranges enthusiastically through the resort areas, the theatres and galleries, the universities and the social activities of the province, providing a wealth of information salted by the author's good - humored, rathey wry commentary.

PEARL S. BUCK by Theodore F. Harris

The man "who knows me better than anyone else does" tells Pearl Buck's story from earliest childhood in China to the present — a life crowded with personal drama, with great achievements, and with sorrows and losses. Her varied interests, her accomplishments and her experiences has given Pearl S. Buck as full a life as any woman of this century.

AN UNFINISHED WOMAN by Lillian Hellman

Lillian Hellman is one of our greatest playwrights, her most famous being The Little Foxes, Watch on the Rhine and Autumn Garden. In this memoir she begins with her childhood in New Orleans. She has always hated hypocrisy and has refused to settle for soft answers. In this sense she is an unsparing writer — not least to herself — but is also dramatic, comic and moving, whether writing of New York in the twenties, Hollywood in the thirties, Russia in 1944 and again in 1966, or of the extraordinary people to whom she has been close in her life.

Interest Rates Briefs Minimal

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons finance committee's deadline for receiving submissions by people and organizations wanting to submit briefs in its inquiry into interest rates passed Tuesday.

Gaston Clermont (L—Gatineau), committee chairman, said the number of witnesses wanting to appear at public sessions later this summer or fall is "not heavy." He would wait however, for today's mail before drafting a program.

Travel Questions, Answers

BY THE ONTARIO MOTOR LEAGUE

QUESTION: We are motoring to Vancouver in August and would like the best route out and the outstanding attractions through the Rockies and the Vancouver area.

ANSWER: The Canadian Rockies are overpowering in sheer size and breath-taking beauty, where you will get on a first-name basis with nature. Here are vast preserves where bear, moose, deer and elk roam freely, and where mirror-smooth lakes sparkle in the woods.

First on your list is of course the world-renowned Banff and Jasper National Parks. Banff is on the Trans-Canada Highway, 85 miles from Calgary, and is the oldest of Canada's national parks. Here you can ride the chair-lift up Mount Norquay, rising 1,300 feet vertically to the 7,000 foot level, and also the gondola lift up Sulphur Mountain from where you get a breathtaking view of Banff and the surrounding panorama.

When you leave Lake Louise Moraine Lake and the Vermilion Lakes you travel up the Banff-Jasper Highway for 142 miles of beautiful scenery, including the Columbia ice-field and then to the Miette Hot Springs where the waters reach 129 degrees. One popular tour is to Mount Edith Cavell — 18 miles from Jasper, and then another exciting ride up in the Jasper Sky Tram (35 passengers) on Whistlers Mountain which carries you up to 7,350 feet above sea level to a tea-house in the clouds.

A very worthwhile side trip from Calgary is to Waterton Lakes National Park, just 165 miles south. Covering 204 miles, Waterton Lakes Park adjoins Glacier National Park, Montana. Together they form the Waterton-Glacier International Peace Park, the first of its kind in the world, and inspired by Rotary Clubs of Alberta and Montana. Just a few miles across the border into Glacier National Park you will travel the spectacular Going-to-the-Sun highway, crossing the Continental Divide at Logan Pass (elevation 6,664 ft.)

On to Vancouver and the Trans-Canada will take you through the rugged beauty of the Fraser Canyon and also for the children, a visit to the British Columbia Wildlife Park, 10 miles east of Kamloops, which offers a children's zoo. If this is your first trip to Vancouver, be sure to take yet another gondola lift up Grouse Mountain. The city spreads below, with all of its bays and inlets and mountain back-ground. Don't miss the Capilano Bridge, a wooden suspension affair across the Capilano Cayuon, that actually swings as you walk across.

Stanley Park is a vast garden where peacocks walk at large and swans and ducks glide across numerous pools. Totem poles, an aquarium, soaring red cedars and many nature walks make this a "must" for a few relaxing hours.

Across to Vancouver Island on one of the many ferries that take you across to various points on the Island — a lovely scenic relaxing trip in itself and prices are most reasonable, and, of course, your car goes too.

In Victoria — the capital of British Columbia, the climate is wonderful, and you will enjoy the beauty of the gardens there — both public and private. Take a scenic drive through Beacon Hill Park, and along the Marine Drive which follows the city's shoreline.

Red double-decker buses or horse-drawn lalliho carriages are popular and enhance the British atmosphere.

The Butchart Gardens are a "must." They are 12 miles north of the city and comprise a 30-acre area. Open daily, the gardens are illuminated during the summer evenings.

Return to Vancouver, and take a trip to Chinatown — the second largest on the continent. There you will find shops for the purchase of Asian merchandise and jewellery, good restaurants and a mixed population.

The best route for your holiday to the West Coast is by the Trans-Canada. Take 401 to Whitby, numbers 12, 103 and 69 to Sudbury, No. 17 to Kenora and No. 1 to Vancouver, B.C. It is 2,980 miles from Belleville, so have a wonderful holiday, and don't forget your camera.

Gas Warfare Policy Review May Lead to Some Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence officials are predicting a top-level government review of U.S. gas warfare projects will lead to some policy changes and tighter supervision of the controversial program.

The military evaluation of the National Security Council study came after the defence department announced Tuesday that what it said was a previously planned removal of lethal chemical agents from Okinawa would be speeded up.

The Tuesday statement was the first time the government acknowledged placing gas weapons outside the United States. And the announcement came only after news disclosures that 23 U.S. soldiers and a civilian worker had been afflicted when a gas container spread a leak July 8 at a U.S. base on Okinawa.

Defence officials avoided giving any indication whether the removal of some nerve gases and other chemical weapons from Okinawa will result in pullbacks of such materials from other overseas bases.

The July 8 incident has sparked a speedup of the overall chemical warfare review ordered previously by President Nixon.

One of the reasons Defence Secretary Melvin Laird recommended such a review, it was understood, was his discovery upon taking office six months ago that supervision over the chemical - biological-radiological warfare program was relatively loose.

Laird said Tuesday no war gases had been sent overseas since he became defence secretary

Escaped Airmen Revisit Helpers

LONDON (CP) — A group of caped after being shot down caped after being show down over Nazi-occupied Europe told the Queen Tuesday of the emotional meetings they have had in the last three weeks with Europeans who helped them escape.

Accompanied by wives and children, the 33 Canadians and 17 American airmen who had similar escapes were given an iced-coffee-and-cakes reception by the Queen in Buckingham Palace.

The Canadian and American airmen are wending up a tour of The Netherlands, Belgium and France in which they have been welcomed by royalty and high government ministers and treated as honored guests by the very people they had come to thank—the Helpers.

"We've come away more indebted than when we got here," said Harry Firestone of Montreal, vice-chairman of the Canadian branch of the Royal Air Forces Escaping Society and a key organizer of the visit. "The hospitality was tremendous."

The society, with 160 members in Canada is comprised of those who escaped from German hands or evaded capture and returned to base during the Second World War.

Kennedys at Funeral

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy follows his wife, Joan (foreground) and Mrs. Ethel Kennedy, widow of slain Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, from rectory into St. Vincent's Church in Plymouth, Pa., to attend funeral service for drowning victim Mary Jo Kopechine. Miss Kopechine, 29, died in an auto mishap from which Sen. Kennedy escaped last Saturday. (AP Photo)

Prosecutor Says Additional Charges Possible

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (AP) — A special Dukes County prosecutor says he is considering whether charges of driving to endanger and driving under the influence of alcohol might be placed against Senator Edward M. Kennedy.

Walter Steele told a news conference Tuesday the additional charges were under consideration as an investigation continued into the accident early Saturday in which a young secretary riding in Kennedy's car was drowned.

Kennedy already is charged with leaving the scene of the accident.

"Those have all been considered and have not been ruled out," Steele said of the possible additional charges.

He said there is no material evidence to indicate that the car in which Mary Jo Kopechne died was operated in a manner to endanger.

Steele said he hopes to determine whether there had been drinking—or heavy drinking—at the party attended by Miss Kopechne the night she died.

"I can't say specifically that we are making an investigation into heavy drinking," Steele said "The investigation is continuing to determine whether other complaints should be sought and the consumption of alcohol will be investigated."

A medical examiner reported Tuesday that a sample of Miss Kopechne's blood showed a small amount of alcohol. Dr. Donald R. Mills said it was insignificant, "such as might show in a person who has had a few cocktails."

The state also hopes to learn who attended the party Friday night at the rented cottage at Chappaquiddick Island, Steele said.

Miss Kopechne, 28, of Washington, D.C., was drowned when a car Kennedy was driving went off a bridge and landed bottom up in a pond.

The Massachusetts Democrat, 37, escaped with a mild concussion and strained neck muscles.

He did not report the accident until several hours after it happened.

He was charged with leaving the scene of an accident in which personal injury resulted. Kennedy said he was in shock after the accident.

Edgartown Police Chief Dominic Arena said: "I am concerned only with the charge of leaving the scene of an accident. I know nothing of any party. It is only a rumor. All I know about that is what I read in the papers. I know nothing of who was there, only that Mr (Joseph) Gargan rented the house."

"I've got to repeat again," Arena told the news conference, "and say emphatically that there is no negligence involved in this accident."

When a reporter asked if the police considered the possibility that there was heavy drinking at the party, Arena answered:

"The police investigation is continuing into whether there was heavy drinking or not, or whether there was any drinking or no drinking."

Arena said earlier that his investigation into the accident had been completed, but he told the news conference that he would continue to "probe into my own charge." Arena brought the complaint of leaving the scene of an accident.

Asked by a reporter if he believed Kennedy had been in shock after the accident as he said, Arena replied: "Yes, but for how long?"

Arena told reporters he had been receiving telephone calls and telegrams from all parts of the country. He said many praised the Edgartown police for deciding to take court action in the case but others were abusive. He said he had to take his home telephone off the hook Monday night because of crank calls.

Kennedy, looking drawn and haggard and wearing a neck brace, made his first public appearance since the wreck Tuesday when he attended Miss Kopechne's funeral in the coal mining town of Plymouth, Pa.

He returned to Cape Cod almost immediately and was met at the airport in neighboring Hyannis by a crowd of reporters. He brushed aside their questions at first but, finally, when asked by one persistent newspaper woman whether he intended to make a statement, said:

This isn't the . . ."

His voice trailed off, then he continued: "This is the day of the funeral This isn't the appropriate time, but I will at the appropriate time."

Accompanied by his wife Joan and two staff men, the senator quickened his stride and walked on toward his waiting car, pressing past the now-shouting reporters.

He stopped once more and said sharply: "I've just come from the funeral of a very lovely girl and this is not an appropriate time to comment."

They finally reached the car and, leaving the commotion behind, were driven away.

Despite his comments at the airport, sources close to Kennedy insisted Tuesday night that the senator still had no immediate plans for a statement. One said Kennedy's remarks were intended only to pacify the reporters.

Some of these same sources said earlier Tuesday that Kennedy, after conferring with at least a half-dozen friends and political associates late Saturday and early Sunday, decided against making a statement in the foreseeable future and might never make one.

Kennedy, in reporting the accident to police at 10 a.m. Saturday, gave this account:

The accident occurred, he said, as he was driving Miss Kopechne to catch a midnight ferry from Chappaquiddick to Martha's Vineyard.

Kennedy said he became confused and took a wrong turn. The car plunged off a bridge.

Columbia and Eagle Gyrated on Joining

HOUSTON (AP)—Apollo 11's command ship Columbia, and lunar lander, gyrated for six to eight seconds at the moment they joined together in moon orbit, astronaut Michael Collins said Tuesday.

"I thought we were not going to get a successful hard dock," Collins told mission control.

Collins, the command ship pilot, said he did not know what caused the wobbling during the link-up Monday. He and Neil A. Armstrong, piloting the lander, said they overcame the problem by taking manual control of the ships.

Space agency officials said they considered the problem minor, although it caused momentary concern.

The explanation from Collins and Armstrong came after flight controllers were unable to explain what happened during the linkup.

At the time of docking, Collins told Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. in the landing craft called Eagle: "That was a fungy one. I did feel it (Eagle) strike and then I thought things were pretty steady. I went to retract a device that locks the two craft together and that's when all hell broke loose."

At the time he was activating the probe to pull the craft together, "a gyration began between the two vehicles, due I'm not sure to what."

Collins said his spacecraft wobbled about 15 degrees, "and I thought we were not going to get a successful retraction of the probe and hard dock."

"However, in about six or eight seconds, I could see the situation damping out and then we heard the noise indicating the docking latches had fired."

Space agency officials said they did not know exactly what caused the gyrations.

Spaceland Prepares Welcome

HOUSTON (AP) — Children parade through the streets, waving flags and Apollo banners.

"We love you, Apollo 11," proclaims a hotel marquee. "Good luck, Apollo 11," the signs say. Lively splashdown celebrations are in the works.

Flags flutter from countless homes built on soil that once was Silver Dollar Jim West's cattle ranch.

This is Spaceland, USA, home of the astronauts, a community hitched to NASA's star. Not a town, residents say, but "a state of mind . . . an ideal."

It is the site of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Manned Spacecraft Centre, heart of the U.S. space program, a community born with the space age, soaring to 80,000 population from 7,500 in 10 years, where bar chatter is of orbits and overburns, blackouts and boosters.

Once grazie land for Texas longhorn cattle, it was transformed with the space program into a community of winding roads, fashionable homes, manicured lawns.

The sleepy, scattered seaport villages awoke amid the overnight rise of luxury apartments and hotels, ultra-modern office buildings and buzzing industrial centres.

In eight years, a school system serving 2,000 children swelled to an enrolment of 10,000 and planners turned to the drawing boards for a new high school, a new educational concept and a new space age curriculum.

As government and aerospace workers poured in by the thousands, there were new demands, too, for restaurants, bars, banks and stores.

The space centre, it is reported, brought a $50,000,000 payroll to the area, with the aerospace industry pumping in an additional $50,000,000 annually.

Contributing to the rosy economic picture and real estate boom is an ambitious residential-industrial centre, conceived before the discovery of NASA gold.

This elaborate development, the sleek new residential subdivisions and the proximity of Houston give the community the chance to survive if NASA, its moon program once ended, dwindles in size and money.

"In the first place, we don't look for a total collapse of NASA," says John Turner, president of one of the major development enterprises.

Planets Next, Galaxies Later

Power to Probe Stars Will Come from Atom

HOUSTON (AP) — The moon now. The planets next. But where will man, the intrepid adventurer, find the power to carry spaceships to the stars so he may probe the galaxies?

The energy, a National Aeronautics and Space Administration official says, will come from the mysterious nucleus of the atom.

"We at least know in principle what the source of energy could be, and it requires only an invention to make it available," said Dr. George Mueller, NASA's associate administrator for manned space flight.

"That source of energy, of course, that I'm referring to is the same one that fuels the sun —fusion of hydrogen to make helium."

Mueller referred to nuclear fusion—bringing together at high temperature and pressure the nuclei of two atoms until they fuse and release vast amounts of energy.

Uncontrolled nuclear fusion already has been achieved. It is the source of energy for the hydrogen bomb.

Controlled fusion, in theory at least, would make the same amount of energy available, but in small quantities as needed. A rocket fuelled with just a few ounces of deuterium or tritium, heavy atoms of hydrogen, could travel for years.

Released as heat, fusion energy could be converted to propel a spacecraft, generate electricity or even manufacture life-giving oxygen through some yet undefined chemical process.

Under development but not yet flown in space is a rocket engine using another nuclear reaction, called fission.

Mueller said present technology, including this engine, will allow exploration of earth's solar system.

But even if science perfects a fusion engine and life support systems for manned flight to the stars, the enormity of the distances poses virtually insurmountable problems.

The nearest stars are several light years away. A light year is the distance light travels in a year, or 1,000,000,000,000 miles. If a spacecraft were built that could fly at close to the speed of light, constellations outside the solar system might be in reach.

But Albert Einstein's theory of relativity says that the speed of light cannot be exceeded, and experiments with atomic particles have confirmed the theory.

Even at light's speed, the outer limits of the universe could take hundreds of years to reach. Space voyagers returned to earth might find their planet completely changed and all knowledge of their mission forgotten.

Educational TV in Sky Is Provided by Apollo

HOUSTON (AP) — No, children. Drinking milk from a spoon is a no-no, even if astronaut Michael Collins does it. And that big yellow circle in the sky is the moon—even if mission control thinks it's earth.

And if you pick up a hundred or so pounds of rocks and put them in your closet like Neil Armstrong, mommy will spank. And if you try to float a slice of bread like Edwin Aldrin did it with fall smack-dab on its ham spread.

In other words, Tuesday night's exercise in educational television from that big Apollo studio in the sky, has to be put in proper context.

Opening shot—a pale moon 61,000 miles back.

"We see earth in the centre of the screen," said Charles Duke on the ground, talking to the spacecraft. "It's very hazy at this time."

There was silence from the spacecraft, an unspoken ahem.

"Believe that's where we just came from," said Aldrin finally. Embarrassed silence from the ground

"It is, huh!" said Duke. "Well, I'm really looking at a bad, at a bad screen here. Stand by one minute." Then: "Hey, you're right."

Said Aldrin: "It's not bad enough not finding the right landing spot—you haven't even got the right planet."

And Duke: "I'll never live that one down."

Then came the episode of the spoon and water.

"I was gonna show you how you drink water out of a spoon," said Collins. "I'm afraid I've filled the spoon too full and if I'm not careful I'm gonna spill water right over the sides."

"I'll tell you what. I'll just turn this one over and get rid of the water and start all over again, okay?"

The water just stayed. Collins pushed it off with an index finger. Still the water stayed, a big blob. Collins blew at it. It floated off in big droplets and Collins fielded them with his mouth

Aldrin spun a piece of bread coated with ham spread while he did another demonstration of weightlessness with the can that the spread came out of. The bread kept spinning and the can stayed up.

Dear Hilda

I received a phone call yesterday that really touched me and I'd like to share it with you.

One of our senior lady customers lost her purse at Loblaws—not once, but twice in recent weeks—and also left her walking stick behind—just once so far.

Each time the store manager located her lost items and returned them to her safely (including the contents of the purse). She has renewed faith in the honesty and integrity of people and is going to try to take better care of her belongings in future.

This might be a good opportunity to remind everyone that although people are basically honest, it is not a good idea to leave purses and other valuable articles unattended in shopping carts even for a moment. We all can't be as lucky as the lady who called me this week.

Municipal Reform Necessary

Robarts Tell Municipalities 'We Want to Communicate'

The municipal assessment function, scheduled for takeover by the province on Jan. 1, will be handled back to local governments once assessments across Ontario have been equalized on a current-value basis.

This could also be the last year for the Ontario basic-shelter grant which last year saw the municipal taxes of Ontario home owners and tenants reduced by about $125,000,000.

These were two key statements produced at yesterday's conference at Centennial Secondary School called by Ontario Premier John Robarts.

The conference is one of several across the province. The discussions allow local municipal representatives to debate the new assessment act and other aspects of municipal reform proposed by the government.

Approximately 250 municipal representative from Trenton to Kingston, from Lake Ontario to North Hastings, attended the Belleville session.

Premier Robarts told municipal representatives the reason for the conference was that government officials "wanted to communicate with you."

He said the government was finding it increasingly necessary to change its approach with the municipalities.

Now (government) techniques are needed," he said. "We are trying to bring out what is best."

Mr. Robarts said government sessions were growing longer each year and the need for more government becoming greater.

As a result, local members spending so much time in parliament that they have less time in their own ridings.

The provincial premier said it was recognized that municipal reform was necessary and that problems must be dealt with "whether we want to or not."

The new techniques would be developed by trial and error.

"This is to be expected," he said.

Cabinet ministers attending yesterday's conference included Charles McNaughton, provincial treasurer; Darcy McKeough, Minister of Municipal Affairs and J. Simonett, Minister of Public Works, Mr. Simonett acted as chairman for the discussion.

Mr. Robarts said that tax reforms were always unpopular.

"We are here today to get some of your thoughts. I ask your co-operation and assistance on the new approaches."

Mr. MacNaughton said a main idea of the government in tax reform proposals was reduction of the property tax burden and offsetting it by other forms of tax credits.

'May I Say . . .'

Deseronto councillor Dorothy McCullough poses question during discussion between cabinet, local government spokesmen at Centennial Secondary School.

He said there were four main thrusts in the province's plan for reform.

These were:

1) Reassessing all real property at current value,

2) Broadening of the local tax base by removing exemptions.

3) Achieving a more neutral business assessment rate,

4) Determining an appropriate distribution of tax burdens among classes of real property.

"We are here to hear your views — not just to answer questions," Municipal Affairs Minister McKeough told municipal representatives.

Hastings county launched the round of questions which continued until well after 5 p.m.

The question was asked why the wages of a low-income family man could not be supplemented so he would not be tempted to quit his job and go on relief.

Mr. Roberts said this would be a form of negative income tax and indicated that before a plan could be instituted there would have to be assurance that it would save money in relief costs.

"If it was to function successfully it would have to replace some of our present relief plans," he said.

Reeve Barbara Allen of Tweed noted farm assessments and asked whether there would be a capital gains tax when farms were sold.

Mr. MacNaughton replied that as long as farms were being used as farms the government plan was to tax them at a farm lands.

"But if they are being held for speculation that is a different kettle of fish," he said.

He felt that for people in speculative fields a capital gains tax might be the only way.

Kingston Mayor Val Swain wanted to know what would happen to taxes on telegraph and telephone companies.

The reply was that a special committee was being set up to study taxes to be paid by companies in telegraph, telephone, railway, pipeline and cable TV ventures.

Mr. Swain also wanted to know whether assessment boundaries under the provincial system would conform with regional government boundaries.

Mr. Robart said that as far as was practical these would be the same. But he admitted there would be difficulties and problems.

Belleville Alderman Enos David questioned assessment appeals under the new provincial system.

Mr. McKeough replied that the whole assessment appeal procedure would be strengthened. Provision would be made for correction of obvious errors without the necessity of going before court of revision — as is now the case.

Belleville businessman Jack Allen, a former city councillor, asked whether it was the government's intention to reorganize the municipal affairs department so that requests for zoning changes might be decided more promptly.

Mr. McKeough said subdivision plans were circulated among 15 or more government departments. Despite this 50 per cent of all requests were settled affirmatively within 60 days.

Another question — this one from a Prince Edward county man — queried possible changes in the business tax rate.

He was told that consideration was being given to setting one common business tax rate.

"We have made a start, but are proceeding slowly," said Mr. MacNaughton. He said the number of business tax categories had been reduced to six ranging from 25 per cent to 150 per cent.

The provincial treasurer said it had been suggested that one common rate of 50 per cent be established.

Another question from Hastings county asked for details regarding a proposed broader base for taxation.

Mr. Roberts replied that, in this respect, sources of revenue were not as important as the idea. He said it might be better to give municipalities a broader base for taxation than for the government to "write cheques."

He said that monies received by municipalities through grants were not treated as carefully as money raised by local taxation.

A South Marysburg councillor queried the current grant equalization structure.

He was told that this was one of the reasons the government plans to take over the assessment function.

Present grant factors were arrived at through spot assessments with 50 assessors working continuously at the job.

But this was said to be a "crude" way of doing things, particularly when some municipalities assess as low as 10 per cent of current value.

A better job under the present system would require another 200 assessors engaged in spot checking, it was stated.

A question of how farm assessments were to be handled when sold at summer residences boosted values was asked by a North Marysburg woman.

Mr. McKeough admitted this was a difficult problem but suggested that a lower rate of tax would be arrived at for "saving" farm land.

"Let's not penalize 96 per cent in order to catch the other four per cent," he said.

Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen referred to regional development corporations and they were not the "grass roots" organizations which they were supposed to be. Further, she felt, directors were rubber stamps.

"That's not the way it is supposed to be done," replied Mr. MacNaughton. "I think you brought this to our attention."

Jack Ireland of Belleville, however, interjected to say that there were three zones in the LENRDC. Two out of three zones were active but membership in the third zone was lagging, he admitted.

A Lennox and Addington councillor turned the discussion to regional governments. He asked if municipalities in which this had been established were happy or if there were any complaints.

Mr. McKeough said it was too early to say whether municipalities were happy. There were only one or two regional governments now set up and he felt it would take from five to seven years to make a proper assessment.

But metropolitan Toronto was cited as a good example of the success of regional government.

"Something is making this a fantastic place in which to live," he said.

Answering a third question from the Lennox and Addington spokesman, Mr. McKeough said regional government would be established in that area "when you want it and when you are ready."

Reason for the apparent lack of co-ordination between government departments was asked by a Hastings county councillor.

Mr. Roberts said government leaders realized this, but the reason was that government was big and the people were asking for more and more services.

Another questioner wanted to know why clerk department in many instances were being ignored in communications from government departments.

The reason for this was said to be that often local government departments requested that correspondence be addressed directly to them.

"I sometimes wonder if their is complete co - ordination in the counties," said Mr. McKeough.

Speaking briefly on the government's current budget and the decision to trim expenditures Mr. McNaughton said there was no magic involved in arriving at a balanced budget.

"You do it by controlling expenditures, through tax levies or by borrowing or by a combination of all three," he said.

He said there would be a restraint on expenditures for at least another year.

"If I can read the mind of the people they would be more willing to accept expenditure restraint than to pay more taxes," he said.

He said there was no use minimizing the problem of "galloping inflation" and asked for the continued co-operation from municipalities.

Sidney Reeve Jack M. Bush wanted to know when there could not be more co-operation among the municipalities through some sort of a metro council to decide on servicing problems rather than have rural municipalities continually under the threat of annexation.

"Why can't these problems be worked out and carry on under the existing form of government?" he asked.

Mrs. Dorothy McCullough of Deseronto referred to increased welfare and school costs under county set-ups and queried if the department of authority being placed in the hands of a few people.

She also asked why there had been such a delay in her town getting sewers which it had asked for several years ago.

To the first question Mr. McKeough said it must be realized that where costs go up with larger units of administration there is no be cause they should go up.

"Being bigger doesn't always mean higher costs," he said.

He compared the smaller units of government with many small businesses which had been forced out of operation because their costs were too high.

"We have encouraged county welfare units — they can hire the trained personnel to work with rehabilitation problems. The cost may be more initially but in the long run they will save money."

Mr. Simonett said the delay in Deseronto getting sewers had been the result of financial difficulties with town land owners being unable to afford the cost.

With the present policy of the Ontario Water Resources Commission to build sewers and charge sewer rates be expected progress would be made.

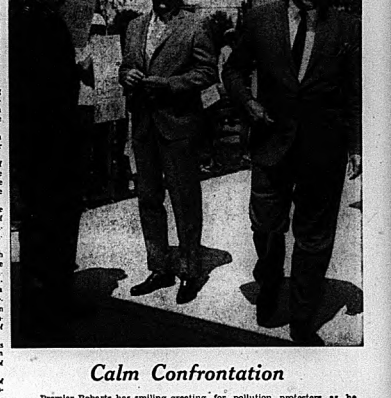
In answer to still another question on assessment Mr. Robarts said the government had been striving for 10 years to get an equitable and fair assessment across the province.

"That must be the basis of any tax reform," he said.

The premier said the province didn't decide to take over the assessment function merely through a desire to take away local jurisdiction.

When an equitable base for taxation is achieved, Mr. Robarts said the assessment function would be turned back to the local or regional governments.

However, he said that the provincial take-over of assessment was the only practical way of achieving a fair tax base.



Belleville Aldermen Douglas Boyle referred to housing development in Sidney township claiming that the government had been inconsistent in lifting a restraining order thus allowing development of 300 lots.

This would allow drainage into the Bay of Quinte at a time when the city of Belleville was spending one and a half million dollars for a water purification plant extension.

The basic shelter exemption grant was raised by a Lennox and Addington man who wanted to know how long it would be continued.

Mr. McNaughton said the shelter exemption had done much good in easing the property tax burden for smaller householders.

But with the new provincial assessment system providing a broader and more equal tax base, he said the basic shelter exemption might be discontinued after this year.

Calm Confrontation

Premier Robarts has smiling greeting for pollution protesters as he arrives at Centennial Secondary School. Confrontation was calm one — the Premier's reaction also is reflected in smiles of Police Chief Douglas Crosbie and Dr. R. T. Potter, MPP Quinte.

Organizer Tells Province Let MPPs Run Province

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A man who described himself as "one . . . of the best Conservatives" in Ontario yesterday drew applause when he asked Premier Robarts whether elected representatives or civil servants were running the government.

The query, from Bancroft deputy reeve Earl Hawley, was among the last posed in the afternoon dialogue session between municipal representatives and the cabinet panel headed by the premier at Centennial Secondary School.

It was also the first question that sparked applause from the audience during the two-hour quiz. It brought from Mr. Robarts the assurance that government had "no intention of permitting employees" to replace the Conservative party's MPPs as policymakers.

And the premier said he recognized "a sort of resentment" was developing in the province to the "supposed position" of civil servants.

Deputy Reeve Hawley later said he was an executive member of the Bancroft Conservative Association — and had been in the organization 35 years.

The issue he put Premier Robarts, he said, was one concerning not only the Bancroft party organization but the executives in a lot of localities."

There were only a few minutes left in the discussion when Deputy Reeve Hawley queried the cabinet spokesmen.

He said he'd "got the impression from the majority of people in this room that they are satisfied with the government."

"Now on many occasions I have had discussions with people I can see throughout this room," he added. "I wouldn't want you fellows to go away with a false impression, at all — because we're not satisfied with the attitude of the government to go back in again. I'm beginning to doubt, but we will want it to and we will work towards putting it back in."

Premier Robarts explained legislation is usually developed by government departments in government and the way they have been doing things."

Added the veteran Conservative: "We'll be expected to work when the next election rolls around. We'll want our but is thoroughly examined in party caucus by elected legislators.

"I recognize, of course, full well, that there is a sort of resentment . . . developing throughout the province at the supposed position of the civil servants," he added. "There's some feeling that the government is being run by civil servants . . . We are doing everything in our power to see the elected representative holds the position in which he is entitled and which his responsibility demands that he have."

tion of government in the lives of the people."

Social changes have stepped up pressure on government services and increasingly absorb the time of elected representatives in debate.

"Now I would say to you, these services are not dreamed up and imposed upon people by the whim of the government. They have to be developed to keep up with our society as it develops.

In other words, "society creates the government. The government does not create the society."

Mr. Roberts said the government had "taken many steps" to ensure the legislature's private members have a full voice in decisions.

A party caucus planned for September will discuss "fully and frankly" party policies. In legislature history there has never been "more complete, full debate . . . of all issues" as at present.

Instant communications have stepped up public interest in government and it is incumbent on government that new communications techniques be developed to meet the electorate's interest.

Among these is the current series of discussions between cabinet members and local representatives.

"I can assure you that we have no intention of permitting employees to take the place of elected representatives," summed up Premier Robarts.

"We are aware of the problem that you state," he told Deputy Reeve Hawley. "We have discussed it on many, many occasions among ourselves . . . We are doing everything in our power to see the elected representative holds the position in which he is entitled and which his responsibility demands that he have."

Separatism?

No separatism here — at least not between English and French cultures. Marjorie Fields, Belleville and Helene Simard, Hauterive, are two of 18 students participating in the 15th annual English-French student exchange sponsored by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews. In Belleville for two weeks, the students are touring the city under sponsorship of the Jaycees.

Threesome Give Open Preview Today

MONTREAL (CP) —The pre-tournament gallery birds may be in for a preview today as three of the top players in this year's Canadian Open compete in the final practice round.

The $125,000 tournament over 72 holes starts Thursday on Pinegrove Country Club at nearby St. Luc with first-place prize money of $25,000.

The top three finishers in this year's British Open—England's Tony Jacklin, New Zealand's Bob Charles and Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina—agreed to instill some fireworks into today's final practice round by forming a threesome.

All are rated as pre-tournament favorites along with former Canadian Open champion Bill Casper.

One member of the Commonwealth delegation who will be absent is Australia's Bruce Devlin.

Devlin notified tournament organizers Tuesday he was being admitted to hospital in Miami for hemorrhoid surgery and will remain four or five days.

Dai Rees of Wales, a veteran member of Britain's Ryder Cup team over the years, is on hand for the event.

Charles, a lefty, is the defending champion, while Casper won the title in 1967.

Charles said he carded a four-under-par 68 in a practice round Tuesday with a string of six birdies and only one bad hole—4-h e 190-yard par-three sixth where he went one-over.

"I blew that one and three-putted it," the quiet New Zealander said, predicting a 12-under-par 276 total will win the tournament.

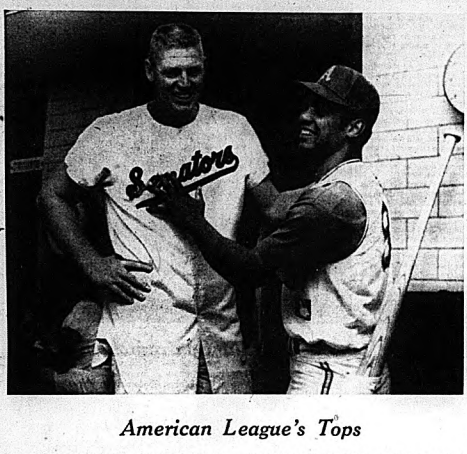
Rees, who played De Vicenzo, called the Argentinian to win. However, Senor Roberto didn't agree, even though Casper's assessment was the same as the Welshman's.

"That Billy, he says that in every tournament and then he beats me every time," De Vicenzo said with a grin.

He said he is recovering from a stomach ailment.

De Vicenzo also called 276 as a winning score, while Rees was more conservative with a -280 estimate.

All of the tourney pros questioned agreed on one thing—the ninth hole must be shortened. Apparently, the complaints reached the ears of tournament chairman Dave Shea who said the hole will be moved from the back of the front tee. That means that the distance now will measure 600 yards instead of 465.



Toronto's George Knudson and Al Balding, ranked Canada's top hopes, both made brief appearances Tuesday.

Thursday's starting field of 152 will be cut to the 70 lows and ties after Friday's second round.

All-Star Game Today - - Weather Permitting

McLain Will Be Back but Not Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Denny McLain is flying back from Detroit to throw the first pitch in today's rescheduled all-star game.

But President Nixon won't be on hand.

That set of circumstances came about Tuesday night when a storm forced postponement of the all-star game until 1:45 p.m. EDT, today, weather permitting.

McLain expects to be on hand when it's time to throw the first pitch before an expected 45,000. He flew to Detroit to keep an 8 a.m. dental appointment to have his teeth capped.

Nixon left for Thursday's splashdown of Apollo 11 in the Pacific and was replaced by Vice President Spiro Agnew.

The postponement p l e a s e d Ernie Banks of the National League team and Chicago Cub veteran.

"I want to play in the daytime anyway," Banks said.

"Here we are two guys 39 years old and we'll be able to play in the daytime," Banks said to Willie Mays of San Francisco Giants. "You know—we'll be able to see the ball better in the daytime."

A daytime game was no certainty. The weather forecast for today called for showers later in the afternoon. An early rain could delay the start.

No plans have been made beyond today. If the game cannot be played, baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn said the decision over whether to postpone the game to another date or cancel it would be made at that time.

The postponement Tuesday night was the first in all-star history.

Two previous games were halted by rain. The 1952 game in Philadelphia was shortened to five innings and the 1961 game in Boston was washed out after nine innings of a 1-1 tie.

McLain was scheduled to be opposed by Steve Carlton as the American League sought to end a six game losing streak.

They were counting heavily on a homer-hitting lineup that i n c l u d e d Oakland Athletics' Reggie Jackson and Washington Senators' Frank Howard.

Jackson is the major league home-run leader with 37 while Howard has 34. The eight AL starters had a total of 179 homers to 105 for the eight NL starters.

NL manager Red Schoendienst was expected to follow Carlton on the mound with either San Francisco's Juan Marichal or Bill Singer of Los Angeles Dodgers.

AL manager Mayo Smith said his second pitcher would be Mel Stottlemyre of New York Yankees, Sam McDowell of Cleveland Indians, or John (Blue Moon) Odom of Oakland.

Downpour Dampens Spirits At Baseball's Birthday Party

WASHINGTON (AP) — Baseball's finest hour turned out to be one of its darkest and dampest.

A jazz band with a red-h a i r e d long-legged female trumpet player struck up Dixie tunes. Congressmen, ambassadors and other assorted VIPs belted cocktails and gorged themselves in barbecue and hamburger while young waiters and waitresses in the garb of the 1890 passed among them with a seemingly endless supply.

It was b a s e b a l l 's 100th birthday party, and it was a dilly.

President Nixon had given a reception at the White House a few hours earlier and had told his cheering guests he planned to come out to the ball park and stay for the entire game.

Fmgn the White House, baseball moved to a huge, circus-like tent near Robert F. Kennedy Stadium for a pre-game blast.

Then the rains came.

It started out as a shower, then grew into a downpour and finally into a thunder- and lightning cloudburst that turned happy celebrants into a soaked, dishevelled, frustrated lot.

Few made it to the ball park where 45,000 were expected.

The pre-game party had been arranged for about 2,000 selected guests—congressmen, government officials, baseball brass, the press and friends. The crowd grew to a packed 3,000.

Food and drink were plentiful. Spirits were gay. Waiters were straw skimmers and had badges which said, Happy Birthday, Baseball.

The rain started pouring in buckets. Rivulets ran through the tent. Everybody got wet—and, at one stage, frightened.

"Everyone is asked to leave the tents immediately and go into the armory," one of the authorities announced. "We are afraid the tent may collapse."

Bowie Kuhn, baseball commissioner, announced t h e game was off until Wednesday.

"It can't be the same," said one disappointed fan, expressing the sentiments of all.

How's the Banking Business Casey?

WASHINGTON (AP) — "How's the b a n k i n g business?", President Richard Nixon asked Casey Stengel.

"Fine," replied Stengel.

"Even with those high interest rates?" the United States president prodded.

"If a banker can't make money in these times, he oughtn't be in the profession," said the former manager of New York Yankees and Mets, voted Monday b a s e b a l l 's greatest living manager.

A Detroit sports editor handed the president a baseball, already nearly covered with autographs, and requested:

"Would you sign this for me, please, mister president? R i g h t here, under Denny McLain."

Nobody should be above Denny McLain," the president said, signing.

Warren Giles, president of the National League, presented President Nixon with a gold life-time pass to major league baseball games and Bowie Kuhn, the commissioner, gave him a lavish gold trophy about 12 inches high.

"This is the same trophy we gave the men selected as the greatest players of all time," the commissioner said. "We give it to you as baseball's No. 1 fan."

President Nixon was like a small boy with a new batch of bubblegum baseball cards as he greeted the game's great players and great, ft officials, writers and broadcasters at a White House reception Tuesday.

Nixon acknowledged that he once wanted to be a sports writer. He was a reserve on the football team at Whittier College in California and he told his guests:

"As in the case of all of those who never made the team, I am awed to be in the presence of those who made the team."

Hall of Famers Clash

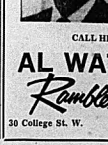
WASHINGTON (AP) — Hall of Famers Jackie Robinson and Bob Feller clashed Tuesday over Robinson's charge that baseball ignores the black athlete when his playing days are over.

Robinson, appearing at a news conference with Feller and other former greats honored the previous night, said baseball "has made great strides over the years, but baseball ownership has not moved ahead with it."

The statement was an obvious reference to the fact that there are no Negro managers or high-ranking club officials in the major leagues.

"I think it's a tragedy in view of the contributions black athletes have made to baseball," said Robinson, former Brooklyn Dodgers star and the first Negro to play in the big leagues.

"I can u n d e r s tand what Jackie Robinson is saying but I think he's wrong," countered Feller, who was honored Monday night as the game's greatest living right-handed pitcher. "I don't think anyone owes anyone anything.'



"Professional baseball has done as much for the colored players as they have done for baseball.

"I think baseball has done more for underprivileged people, for minority groups, than anything else. And I think the club owners deserve a great deal of credit.

"Ability alone is what should count in the front office, too. I think there will be a Negro with that ability.'

"I can see that Bob Feller hasn't grown any from 1947 to today," Robinson shot back. "He still has his head in the sand when it comes to race relations. But I don't want to get in a hassle with him today."

At the awards dinner, Robinson said he was disappointed that the late Branch Rickey, who broke baseball's color line by bringing Robinson up to the Dodgers in 1947, did not receive recognition during the ceremonies.

Pilot Project at Moira, BCI

School Facilities Utilized in Summer

By TOM DONOGHUE
Staff Reporter

A long sought after goal has finally been achieved. An athletic program in two of the area's high schools has been set up keeping the school facilities open 12 months of the year.

At Moira Secondary School a program, sponsored by the Board of Education, has been under way since early July. The Board works in close contact with the head of the physical education department, Gord Smith, in operating the program.

The purpose of the program, according to Mr. Smith, is that it makes the school facilities available to the public all year round and does not see them locked up for two months of the year. Also it offers a place for the students of the area to come and enjoy the variety of sports available to them.

The operation itself is supervised by three students, Lorne Blatchford, Peter Mills, and Carol Aitchison, who offer instruction in such sports as, basketball, archery, lacrosse, tennis, baseball, and a large number of grade school children in the afternoon and the high school students in the evenings.

Lorne estimates that approximately 100 to 150 students are using the facilities each day. "But I don't feel enough people are aware that this service is in existence," he added. "If more people knew we were here attendance would rise and more people would benefit."

Mr. Smith said the entire effort is a pilot project and it has increased the availability of recreational facilities that are needed to accomodate the growing student population.

Mr. Smith also expressed the hope that consideration be given to continue the project next year as the need for such facilities grows each year. "After all the public is payfor for our schools, thus why not use them all year round?" Mr. Smith asked.

"We have had no trouble with the young people who come here," Lorne commented. "There has been one broken window the entire time we have been in operation, which is not bad."

Weekends are the biggest time for the project. People come back from their cottages and merely because it is a weekend they are looking for things to do, Mr. Smith added.

The program will run until the end of August when the school will prepare to return to its age - old business of teaching the young.

The Boys Athletic Society at Belleville Collegiate is running a similar program at that school. At BCI the instructors work on a volunteer basis and the range of sports offered is somewhat narrower than that at Moira Secondary School.

Ottawa Wins Battle Of Rough Riders by Whopping Margin

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders dumped Saskatchewan Rough Riders 39-8 Tuesday night ina passers' game in Canadian Football League exhibition action.

Don Sutherin's kicking provided 13 Ottawa points off three field goals, three converts and a single, including two first-quarter field goals that sent Rough Riders to a 6-0 lead.

Ottawa got touchdowns from halfback Vic Washington and flanker Whit Tucker in the second quarter, rookie fullback Darwin Gonnerman in the third quarter and Wayne Smith with a recovered fumble in the fourth quarter. The Rough Riders also got a safety touch in the fourth quarter.

Saskatchewan end Ron Francis scored a fourth-quarter touchdown on a 28-yard pass from backup quarterback Rick Cassata. Jack Abendschan with a single on a missed second-quarter field goal and a convert rounded out scoring.

Ottawa was up 6-0 after the first quarter, 22-1 at half time and 30-1 after three quarters.

Washington's touchdown on a 74-yard pass from quarterback Russ Jackson came four plays after Ottawa defensive back Barry Ardern grabbed a fumble by rookie quarterback Bubba Wyche on the Saskatchewan 45-yard line.

Gonnerman got his touchdown with a seven-yard screen pass from Jackson.

Neither club offered a strong ground game. Washington with nine carries for 110 yards led Ottawa while Francis with 100 yards off three plays topped Saskatchewan.

Saskatchewan's regular quarterback, Ron Lancaster, was used sparingly throughout the contest, as coach Eagle Keys looked over some of the new prospects he has in camp. Lancaster played through the first quarter, but made infrequent appearances after that.

O.J. Offered $240,000

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — San Antonio Toros have offered Heismann Trophy winner O. J. Simpson a contract that could amount to nearly $250,000 if he will play for the Texas Football League club this season.

Henry Hight, one of the Toro owners, sent Simpson a telegram Monday offering him 80 per cent of the net gate for the eight Toro home games if he will play in all 16 games on the schedule, or—the telegram said —the Toros are willing to negotiate agreeable terms for a flat $15,000 a game for all 16 games.

Should Simpson choose the latter offer, it would mean $240,000 for the season.

Nur Gurak Upsets American

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Unseeded Nur Gurak of Waterloo and three Toronto players advanced Tuesday into the fifth round of the men's singles in the Ontario open tennis tournament.

Peter Burwash of Toronto defeated Mike Belion of Vancouver 6-2, 6-3, Chris Burr of Toronto downed Mike Albano of Buffalo 3-6, 6-2, 7-5 and David Brown of Toronto beat Dawood Khan of Toronto 3-6, 6-4 and 6-0.

But Gurak, a native of Turkey, scored the day's major upset by downing Steve Cornell of Oakland, Calif., 6-2, 12-10. Cornell was regarded one of the tournament's top foreign entries.

The tournament ends Saturday.

At Canada Games

Administration Byproduct of Competition

OTTAWA (CP) — Armies try to whittle down the size of the big administrative supply "tail" needed to keep a soldier in the front line.

But for the Canada Summer Games in Nova Scotia Aug. 16-25, the federal government is happy to see an administrative organization that adds up to one administrator for every four athletes on the starting lines.

The heavy administrative participation in the Games, in Halifax and Dartmouth, was pinpointed Tuesday by health minister John Munro as an important byproduct of the actual competition.

He told a news conference it was the fulfil one of the recommendations of the federally-appointed study group on improving the calibre of Canadian sports.

About 2,700 athletes will compete in 16 sports ranging from track and field to lawn bowling before 700 administrators who will be gaining experience that could help Canada develop better national sports programs and produce more top-calibre athletes.

Better administrators running better programs was a recommendation of the sports "task force," Mr. Munro noted.

The prime minister Trudeay will light a torch on parliament hill today which will be carried by 850 runners over a 1,000-mile route to Halifax for the opening of the Games, expected to become a regular event in 1971 with a winter version every second year.

The minister said this regularity will help medium-sized cities around Canada to develop their sports facilities.

The $1,000,000 capital cost of facilities in Halifax and Dartmouth is being divided equally among the federal government, the province of Nova Scotia and the two cities. The federal government is paying the whole cost for the expected operating budget of $678,000.

Mr. Munro also called the Games a boost to national unity. All provinces are competing, with slots left per cent of competitive positions filled. Quebec, Ontario, Nova Scotia, Alberta and British Columbia will send full complements.

Joyces Meet Kingston In Battle for Top Spot

It's no longer a case of the Belleville Joyces looking back and watching their opposition gaining on them.

All the Joyces have to do now is glance sideways to see that the Kingston Lakeview Centennials have joined them on the top rung of the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association standings.

The first place deadlock was created Sunday when the Centennials edged Joyces 14-13 in Kingston, but it won't last long.

That's because the Joyces and Centennials book up tonight in an 8 p.m. contest at the Belleville Fairgrounds.

More than first place will be at stake for the Joyces. They'll be trying to snap a two game losing streak. Both of those losses came at the hands of the surging Centennials who have won five of their last six games and, like the Joyces, sport a record of seven wins and five losses.

Belleville outscored the Centennials 42-18 while sweeping the first three games between the arch-rivals this year, but in their last two games the Centennials have outscored the Joyces 32-20 en route to a pair of wins.

Belleville fans will get their first chance to see the Joyces' new shortstop in action tonight. He's Jackie Elliott who played with the Kenmore Juniors in his younger days.

Sunday he played his first baseball game in nearly seven years and if everyone had performed as well as he did the game would have been no contest, despite Kingston's 14 runs.

Elliott rapped out three singles and a double in five at-bats, drove in a pair of runs and scored four. He said he was so tired he could hardly walk after the game, but he'll be back in the lineup tonight when the game gets underway at 8 p.m.

Colts Endure Humidity

LUTON, England (CP) — The touring Canadian Colts met Bedfordshire Colts Tuesday in the first day of a two-day cricket match played in oppressive heat and humidity.

The Canadians lost the toss and batted first, made 171 for seven, declaring at 4 p.m. Peter Clark of Vancouver bowled 24 overs and took three wickets for 68 runs, Hal Gould of St. Catharines had four for 66 in 29 overs and ePter Burn of St. Catharines one for 34 in 13 overs.

In 32 overs before stumps at the end of the first day, the Canadians made 100 for six. They were 66 for six until Burn and John Harvey of Toronto came in. Harvey was 47 not out and Burn seven not out. Bob Hanson of Vancouver got 15.

Interest, Not Ability, Counts at Hoop School

WINNIPEG (CP) — Ability plays second fiddle to interest among students attending a 10-day summer basketball school which the University of Winnipeg believes was the first of its kind in Canada.

"The approach we take is different from that taken in many other sports," says director Vic Pruden. "We offer the course on a first-come, first-served basis with the knowledge that the cream will eventually rise to the top anyway."

So far, it appears that the approach works. It started three years ago with less than 50 participating students "and we've had to turn down applications ever since because of a space shortage," says Pruden.

"This year we obtained space in a vocational-technical school for the girls, but we still had to turn some away."

All told, 175 students are enrolled for the program that runs Aug. 11-22.

Enrolled are 50 girls and 125 boys, all students who will be in junior or senior high school this fall and all interested in playing better basketball.

"That's what it is all about —improving basketball skill," says Pruden, who is assistant physical education director at the university. "There are no films, no strategy-type sessions: it's all geared to player development."

This year participants are coming from as far as Thompson, 40 miles north of Winnipeg. Pruden says there was one student from the northern mining town a year ago and four were enrolled for this summer's program.

Coaches are drawn primarily from the physical education staffs of secondary schools, although a handful come from community organizations.

"They go through an in-service training session before the courses start and most have taken the coaches' course that we also offer," says Pruden.

During the coaches' course, the emphasis is also placed on basketball fundamentals rather than techniques. They spend four hours a day learning to "teach the basic skills as we think they should be taught."

In addition, coaches get training on corective measures.

"We have them look at a player, diagnose his troubles and solve them. It is all very basic but it gets them started on the way to becoming good coaches."

The nominal enrolment fee for both student and coaches' courses "is no way covers the cost of the program, but the university is prepared to pick up part of the tab as a community service," says Pruden, adding that the university hires the instructors and uses its own students as assistants.

"The whole thing is a service to the community and everyone benefits from it. There is a need for pure recreational programs of this type and we hope that other universities will follow our lead."

He says the University of Winnipeg was the first in Canada to begin the program, but at least one other post-secondary institution has picked up the idea since. He says he expects the trend to continue, and it could become part of the physical education programs across the country in the future.

Juniors, City Tied for First

Juniors Win Game But Lose Coach

Richard Ellis Juniors won a ball game last night, but lost their coach in the process.

Ellis Juniors coach Harold Reid was injected in the bottom of the second inning of the Juniors 6-0 whitewashing of Belleview Hotel for hitting umpire Bill Hurst.

League President Bill Valance said this morning that an infraction of this nature results in an automatic suspension until the case can be discussed by the Commercial League executive.

Meanwhile City Hotel trounced Corby's Distillery 9-4 in the first game of the Commercial League doubleheader at Alemite ball park.

The wins by Ellis Juniors and City Hotel snapped their three-way tie for first place with Stinson's Construction and left the Juniors and City deadlocked for the league lead with 24 points each.

"Scotty" Reid, coach Harold Reid's son and at 17 the youngest player in the Commercial League, blanked Belvedere with a two-hit, nine strikeout performance.

Reid issued two free passes and permitted only five men to reach base. Only one Hotelman, Doug Rose in the top of the sixth, was able to advance as far as third base.

Ellis' collected only seven hits off losing pitcher Wayne McConnell, but bunched together singles by Dale Duval and Steve Ling, three City errors, a walk and a passed ball, to break the game open with a four-run fifth inning. McConnell fanned five and walked three.

Shortstop Dale Duvall led the Juniors with three singles, while centerfielder Terry Wellesley rappld a double and single. Wes May and Steve Ling with singles collected the Juniors other hits.

Singles by Jerry St. Denis and Lyle Wannamaker accounted for the Hotelmen's two hits off Reid.

CITY HOTEL 9
CORBY'S 4

City Hotel kept in the thick of the battle for first place on the strength of a nine-hit attack and Bob Ethier's six-hit pitching. In fact, City was alone in first two points ahead of the Juniors and Stinson's Construction until Ellis' second game win over Belvedere Hotel.

Ron Urch started Corby's off on the right foot with a lead off homer in the top of the first inning and Corby's used a pair of walks and second baseman Steve White's error to tally a second run in the same frame, but after that Ethier limited them to single runs in the fourth inning, on consecutive doubles by Urch and Chuck Rowbotham, and in the sixth, on Carl Boomhower's solo round tripper.

Ethier gave up six hits, walked four and threw third strikes past seven men in his seven inning stint. Starter Grant Collet and reliever Sonny Grey shared the mound duties for Corby's. They allowed nine hits and two walks while fanning five.

Three errors by Corby's, a double by Ethier and singles by Harry Green, Doug Murray and Rod Ridley highlighted City's game-winning four-run fourth inning rally. Carm Milligan's three-run sixth inning homer was just icing on the cake for the Hotelmen.

Rod Ridley and Doug Murray each with a brace of singles, Milligan with his homer and Ethier with a double paced the winners at the plate. Bob Growden, Steve White and Harry Green also hit safely for City.

Ron Urch with a homer and double, Chuck Rowbotham with a double and single, Carl Boomhower with a home run and Wayne Bunnett with a single hit safely for Corby's.

Minor Sports Walkathon Moved to September 20th

Long distance walkers take note — you'll have to get your legs and wind in shape a week sooner than previously planned if you want to enter the Belleville Minor Sports Association's September walkathon.

Saturday, September 20th, is the new date for the walkathon from which all proceeds will go to the planned Quinte Recreation Centre.

The 30-mile walkathon was moved ahead a week from its previous September 27th date to avoid interference with the city-wide 1969 United Appeal campaign.

All proceeds from the Minor Sports walkathon will be put into a trust fund towards the estimated $100,000 cost of the Quinte Recreation Centre which will be located on city-owned property at the Coleman Flats adjacent to the Public Works building.

"Contributions to the fund are tax deductible and pledge cards for the September 20th walkathon will be available at city businesses August 1st," walkathon publicity chairman Dick Hurst said.

"In addition the names of all walkers will be inscribed on a scroll which will be in full view at the new recreation centre," chairman Hurst added.

The walkathon will start at 7.30 a.m. at the Belleville Arena, proceed west on highway No. 2 to Trenton, then on to Carrying Place and back to Belleville via the Redneresville Road.

Battle Shaping Up For Union Presidency

TORONTO (CP) — A battle for the presidency of the 125,000-member Canadian Union of Public Employees is shaping up between incumbent Stanley Little and challenger Wallace E. Higgins.

Mr. Higgins, president of CUPE Local 79 here, has announced he will try to unseat Mr. Little during an election at the union's convention Sept. 8-11 in Toronto.

"He's been president six years," said Mr. Higgins. "And it's time for new blood and a new concept of leadership."

Mr. Little became president in 1963 when CUPE was formed by the merger of the National Union of Public Employees and the National Union of Public Service Employees. He had been president of NUPSE.

In an election two years ago, Mr. Little edged William Black by 10 votes of the 650 cast to retain his presidency. Mr. Black then was business manager of CUPE Local 180, a province-wide hospital workers' union in British Columbia.

Most important issue in this year's campaign, Mr. Higgins said in an interview, is the condition of the national office's treasury. The convention will open with CUPE about $400,000 in debt.

About 75 per cent of the deficit is "attributable to mismanagement," said Mr. Higgins. The other 25 per cent is due to inflation.

The other major issues are internal tension in the union's Ottawa headquarters and Mr. Little's Action Program which outlines his goals for the union.

Legislature Seeks Greater Freedom in Debate

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature's select committee on procedures reached preliminary agreement Tuesday on new proposals which would permit more work to be done while the house sits.

The 13-member, all-party committee will publish its final report later in the summer.

Committee members said the suggested reforms should produce a parliamentary system based on the Canadian House of Commons instead of the British Parliament.

The committee visited Ottawa last week to study aspects of procedures in the federal Parliament, including some which were adopted last year.

The committee seemed in general agreement that the legislature should permit greater freedom during the daily question period to allow fuller discussion of ideas.

At present, members must submit questions to the Speaker in writing and in advance of a sitting and only the members who had raised an issue may pursue it later with oral questions.

Committee members also were in favor of permitting opposition spokesmen to reply to statements of government policy at the start of a sitting, as is the custom at Ottawa.

The commitee also toyed with the idea of eliminating prayers which start each sitting, but John Smith (PC—Hamilton Mountain) proposed that a 97-word version of a prayer which was adopted in May be retained.

Other points on which tentative agreement was reached include:

—Friday should be transformed into a full legislative day with sittings from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

—Hours of sittings on other days should be on a regular basis from 2 p.m. to 11 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday and from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. on Wednesday.

Closure Used Eight Times

OTTAWA (CP) — Closure, a debate-choking rule first used in Canada in 1913 and last invoked in 1964 to adopt the red-and-white national flag, is being moved in the Commons today to end a protracted rules debate.

Donald S. Macdonald, president of the Privy Council and government House leader, will move for closure when the Commons moves into its 10th day of debating concurrence in a committee recommendation for new rules.

His motion must be voted on without debate or amendment. Since the Liberals have 154 members in the 264-seat Commons and few, if any, will bolt party ranks, Mr. Macdonald's motion is certain to be passed.

The opposition, fighting the proposed time allocation rules, is composed of 72 Progressive Conservative, 22 NDP, and 14 Creditiste members. There is one vacancy. Speaker Lucien Lamoureux sits as an independent.

Once Mr Macdonald's motion is passed, the rules debate must end at 1 a.m. EDT Thursday. Again, with the government's majority, the House will vote to concur in recommendations that the Commons rules include three new debate-limiting clauses.

The new clauses won't be written into the rule book until the government proposes another motion at Parliament's fall session. The government can adhere to the committee recommendations or make its own draft of the new rules. Whichever it does, another rules debate is certain in the fall.

Closure is a throttling of debate which has roused opposition indignation and some public outcry ever since its inception. And though opposition leaders have promised to abolish it once they have become prime minister—as John Diefenbaker promised—the rule remains essentially unchanged.

The late Conservative prime minister Arthur Meighen devised a Canadian closure rule in 1913 to end the bitter navy bill filibuster, and it was used seven times after that, before 1956. The late Liberal trade minister C. D. Howe employed it four times that year to end the opposition to his bill to provide financing for the first natural gas pipeline from Alberta to Eastern Canada.

The famous pipeline debate, which ran 16 days and involved 70 votes, ended an era of gentlemanliness in Commons debate that has not yet been restored. It brought the collapse of the promising career of Speaker René Beaudoin, branded Mr. Howe as a power-hungry dictator and took the spark out of former prime minister Louis St. Laurent's leadership.

It brought Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) forward as the Commons' foremost rules expert—an honor he still enjoys.

John Diefenbaker came to power in the subsequent general election of 1957 on a campaign to restore the rights of Parliament. Though he promised to abolish closure and did not use it during his term in office, it remains as Standing Order 33 of the Commons.

It was last used by former prime minister Lester B. Pearson in December, 1964, cutting off 33 days of emotional debate on the flag. He was invited to do so by Leon Balcer, then the Conservatives' Quebec leader and MP for Trois-Rivieres, who later left the party to sit as an independent.

While many political analysts attributed Mr. Howe's use of closure as a factor in the defeat of the Liberals after 22 years in power, Mr. Pearson's use of it in 1964 had no such dramatic consequences.

Student Aid Plan Working

OTTAWA (CP) — Manpower Minister Allan MacEachen said Tuesday he believes the government's special programs for getting summer jobs for students is paying off.

He said in a Commons statement that about 155,000 persons had been added to the labor force between May and June and that it "can safely be assumed that the vast majority are students."

Mr. MacEachen said that about 90,000 post-secondary students had registered at federal manpower centres by the end of May and a survey by Ottawa's student employment centre showed 86 per cent had obtained jobs by mid-June.

Wheat Sale To China Investigated

OTTAWA (CP) — Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin said Tuesday he will look into possible Canadian wheat sales to Nationalist China.

He was replying in the Commons to Paul Hellyer (PC—Athabasca), who said the Nationalist Chinese economic affairs minister had been quoted as saying his country wants to buy wheat from Canada.

Robert Thompson (PC—Red Deer, noted critically that whereas the United States has a permanent wheat sales office in Taipei, capitol of the Nationalist island of Taiwan, Canada has no direct sales representation here. Yet there were potential wheat sales in Taiwan.

Indians Ask For Direct Aid

OTTAWA (CP) Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien said Tuesday he will meet the president of the National Indian Brotherhood Thursday to discuss its financing situation.

The brotherhood has asked for direct aid from the department rather than from an Indian commissioner who is yet to be appointed.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield suggested during the Commons question period that Mr. Chretien meet the request. Mr. Stanfield said it is important to get off to a good start in new policy discussions.

THE PICK OF Punch

"All right, deep down it's a cry for psychiatric help — but at one level it's a stick-up."

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials fell to their lowest level since last September in mid-morning trading today as the June-July slump continued on the Toronto stock market.

The industrial index lost .77 to 170.17.

The market fell sharply Tuesday when an expected Apollo 11 rally failed to materialize.

The sadness oh index, which fell 11.8 Tuesday, was down 4.30 to 234.79.

Asamera lost 2% to 24, Dome Peta 1% to 16¼, Hudson Bay 1½ to 21 and Hudson's Bay Oil 1 to 38½.

A lack of news about drilling in Alaska and the Canadian Arctic appears to be depressing oil issues.

Real estate issues were weak in industrial components.

Peel-Elder fell 3½ to 27½, Revenue 30 cents to $3.85 and Bramalea ¼ to 7¾.

Steels also were lower. Stelco was down ¼ to 21¼ and Algoma ¼ to 18½. Both companies face possible strikes at the end of July when steelworkers' contracts expire.

On index, golds gained .11 to 220.22 and base metals slipped .56 to 102.82.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 528,000 shares compared with 529,000 at the same time Tuesday.

The Toronto market plunged Tuesday to its lowest level since last September as an expected Apollo 11 rally failed to materialize.

With American markets closed Monday, Toronto advanced cautiously in anticipation of a rally in New York Tuesday.

But New York succumbed Tuesday, dragging Toronto with it.

The industrial index fell 2.19 to 170.94, its lowest level since Sept. 4, 1968.

Volume was a light 2,155,000 shares but ahead of Monday's 1,381,000.

Predictions by many analysts that markets could fall even further have not helped investor confidence which has been wearing away since the beginning of June.

The light volume in recent weeks indicates investors prefer to sit on the sidelines until the June-July slump appears to be over.

Western oils were the hardest hit Tuesday.

Dome Pete fell 4¼ to 88¼, Asamera 2¼ to 25¾, Canadian Superior Oil 2¼ to 36, Pacific Pete 2½ to 32½, Scurry 1¼ to 25¾ and Hudson's Bay Oil ¼ to 39½.

Home A lost 3 to 67½ and Home B gained ¼ to 63.

Home stocks posted solid gains Monday after Atlantic Richfield of the United States raised its dividend. They fell Monday when Atlantic Richfield said its latest exploratory well off Indonesia's shores was not commercially productive. Home has a share interest in Atlantic Richfield.

Small Loans Still Urged By Banks

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson told the Commons Tuesday he is confident the chartered banks are adhering to government anti-inflation policies while still trying to help finance small business ventures.

Mr. Benson said he will not know until the end of the week, when fresh banking statistics are available, how well the banks are curtailing an outflow of funds from Canada to the so-called "swapped deposits."

Mrs. Ken R. Beach of Tweed, visited recently with her mother, and sisters in Saskatoon and North Vancouver, for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Doug Spencer and three of their children have just returned from a week's holidays in numerous parts of the United States.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"
By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.

So many patients ask, and ed, "What I would you say is the one most important tip to help me live a longer, healthy?". Invariably, my reply. Knowing you're sick. That requires a bit of explaining.

What, I imply is that many apparently healthy people are sick and don't suspect it. In other words, to feel well is no guarantee of being well.

For example, here is a young man, big, strong, who is far from a bleeding problem. He has a tremendous appetite, and his wife — anxious to please — bakes all his favorites and cakes and other fattening foods.

He says "I eat like a horse and feel as strong as a horse."

I have seen many like him. They are completely "floored" when a routine examination shows they have severe diabetes.

Here is another young woman, apparently suffering from tension headaches. They may be due to tension, all right, but a blood pressure examination also reveals unsuspected high blood pressure.

Another example: a young husband just dotes on cheese, whole milk, butter, eggs (he has three for breakfast every morning) and nice juicy, fat steaks. He's another apparently healthy specimen.

One day he (fortunately) breaks his leg in a skiing accident. While in the hospital he has a routine ECG and cholesterol test.

Although only 30, there is already evidence of too much cholesterol, and changes in his electrocardiogram suggesting coronary artery involvement. He is put on medications and a special diet which will prolong his life.

I hope I've made my point. In these cases, the best tip for staying healthy and alive was the unexpected resultant that they were already sick. "Knowing you're sick" can be a life saver.

For Mrs. U.: I am glad that you discovered poor eyesight in your youngster so early. Otherwise it would have undoubtedly interfered with his school work. Bad report cards are not invariably due to stupidity. Bad eyes are often the unsuspected culprit.

Here are some suggestions for parents of young children: Become suspicious that their eyesight may not be up to par if they get into the habit of squinting; or, rubbing their eyes constantly; or, looking at an object with one eye closed and head held to one side; or, if they sit close to a TV set and habitually hold a book close to the face.

Don't depend alone on school eye-tests (although they are of use in screening out thousands of youngsters). Take your child to an eye specialist for a complete examination.

One estimate is that about 12 million school children require eye care. Don't just guess that your youngster is not one of these.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I'd like you to pass on this bit of excellent philosophy to your readers. I have a friend who said to me the othe rday, "I live as well, or better, than most people who make ten times as much as I do. I simply cut out everything which costs money that I can get along without." —Mr. L.

• • •

For M. H.: I agree that postnasal drip can be stub born and bothersome. But just experimenting with nose drops without medical consultation is surely no way to overcome the problem.

In many cases, treating chronic sinusitis, or straightening out a nasal septum, or removing large turbinates in the nose will bring relief.

In some cases, there is no complete cure, but most can be helped. Incidentally, smoking (if you do) will aggravate postnasal drip.

Persistent Rains Harm Ontario Winter Wheat

TORONTO (CP) — Spokes- ed a harvest of 4,000,000 bushman for the Ontario Wheat Producers Marketing Board said Tuesday persistent heavy rains week of dry weather will be and high humidity are responsible for the soft winter wheat crop in southwestern Ontario.

The board buys all wheat the farmers cannot sell to domestic millers. Officials say the bad weather is affecting the crop in the area from Chatham to Windsor.

Hardest hit areas are the counties of Essex and Kent, where farmers originally expected bushels for export.

els. Indications now are that this may be cut by half, and a needed before farmers can start harvesting.

The spokesman said original expectations were for a crop of about 15,000,000 bushels in southern Ontario with about 5,500,000 fed to livestock on the farms where it grew. About 9,000,000 bushels would go to millers and the marketing board expected to handle about 3,500,000

Czech-born Canadian Jailed in Prague

PRAGUE (Reuters) — A 47-year-old Czechoslovak-born Canadian has been sentenced to five years in jail—which he is likely to serve—for spying for Britain 20 years ago.

At his two-day trial which ended Tuesday at nearby Ustin Nad Labem, Canadian civil servant Rudolph Paul Holata was said to have been recruited by the British Army in West Berlin and sent back to Czechoslovakia to spy after fleeing the country early in 1951.

Holata, a federal transport department employee from North Vancouver, was arrested in January when he visited relatives.

Under Czechoslovak law, Holata automatically has his sentence reduced by one-third and has the benefit of a recent general three-year amnesty on prison sentences.

Because he was in jail six months before his trial, he probably will be freed in about two weeks. He must wait two or three days until the judgment has been put in writing, then has a further eight-day statutory appeal period.

The prosecution could lodge an appeal against the sentence, but Canadian embassy sources said they feel this is unlikely.

Holata told the court that while he was in West Berlin in 1951 he was approached by Czechoslovak citizens who professed to get his wife out of Czechoslovakia if he went back inside the country and gave them information.

Holata said he thought they belonged to the Czechoslovak Army, whereas, in fact, they were Czechoslovak nationals working for the British Army.

He said he went back to Czechoslovakia and came out after 2½ weeks with his wife, and told the British he no longer wanted to work for them. He then emigrated to Canada.

Tiny George Dixon Was A Big Man in the Fight World

Jimmy Meilleur, now with The Canadian Press in New York, has boxed professionally in both Canada and the United States.

By JIMMY MEILLEUR

NEW YORK (CP) — Halifax-born George Dixon stood only five foot 3½ inches but he became a big, big man in the fight world of 80 years ago.

By the time he was 21 he was world champion in three different boxing divisions—the first and youngest fighter ever to accomplish the feat.

Dixon, known as Little Chocolate, was born July 29, 1870, in the Canadian Atlantic seaport. He was the first Negro to become a world boxing champion under modern rules.

Little Chocolate, who started boxing at 87 pounds and never weighed more than 122, was called the greatest fighter, pound for pound, of his era. His popularity was second only to that of his friend John L. Sullivan, the Boston Strongboy who was then heavyweight champion of the world.

For 15 years Dixon fought the best available opponents, sidestepping none. The records show he was in 158 bouts. He lost only 23, mostly in the twilight of his career.

In addition to the listed fights, he fought several hundred contests while working on vaudeville bars, sometimes meeting as many as 15 men in one evening, agreeing to forfeit a substantial sum if he was unable to knock out his opponent within four rounds. Dixon's pocketbook stayed intact in this venture.

Dixon caught the boxing bug while working as a photographer's apprentice in Boston, Mass., where he came in contact with the leading fighters of the day. He signed up with Tom O'Rourke of New York, one of the wisest mentors of the time.

Dixon got his first taste of battle in Halifax in 1886 at the age of 15, when he knocked out Young Johnson in three rounds.

After scoring nine straight knockouts, Dixon had trouble finding competition. Then on May 10, 1888, Little Chocolate got his big chance. He was equal to the occasion.

Tommy Kelly, the Harlem Spider, figuring Dixon as another run-of-the-mill fighter, put his paperweight title on the line. (That division became he flyweight division in 1910.)

The fight was declared a draw after nine rounds under old-time rules when Kelly was unable to answer the bell. The 10th. Kelly had taken such a fearful beating that he retired and Little Chocolate was declared champion of the world.

Dixon, after shellacking Kelly, considered himself too good by fighters in his own division and this led to one of the most exciting series of battles in boxing history.

Hank Brennan, a bantamweight who feared no one and was looking for anyone, readily agreed to meet the Canadian.

Between June 21, 1888, and Oct. 14, 1889, they fought four blistering battles—a total of 64 rounds — with neither winning a decision. The four draws were said to have been fought toe - to - toe with no clinching or wrestling—just clean fighting.

Still lacking action in his own division, Dixon challenged Cal McCarthy, then recognized as bantamweight king in some parts of the U.S.

They fought on Feb. 7, 1890, in New York City. At the end of 20 gruelling rounds, with both fighters exhausted, referee Al Smith intervened and called the bout a deadlock.

Then followed six knockout victories for Dixon in the New York area before O'Rourke took his charge to England. There, on June 27, 1890, Dixon met Nune Wallace who was recognized by most as bantamweight champion of the world.

Using four - ounce gloves and fighting in London's Pelican Club, Little Chocolate cut Wallace to ribbons, knocking him out in the 11th round. Dixon now was recognized as world bantamweight champion.

After a short exhibition tour of Britain, Dixon returned to the U.S. and was challenged by Johnny Murphy, a popular fighter from Boston.

They fought with two-ounce gloves on Oct. 23 of the same busy-year in Providence, R.I. Dixon knocked out his man in 40 rounds.

Dixon then finished the year with five knockouts over whatever competition O'Rourke could dig up.

On March 31, 1891, Dixon defended his bantam title. He knocked out McCarthy in the 22nd round, satisfying any doubts as to who was the better man.

Little Chocolate was forced then to move up another notch to find good opponents.

On July 31, 1891, one day before his 21st birthday—Dixon faced Australian Abe Willis at the California Athletic Club in San Francisco, and knocked him out in the fifth round. Little Chocolate now was boxing's first world champion in three weight categories.

After disposing of every challenge in sight, Dixon joined the troupe of John L. Sullivan, then travelling around the country.

When Sullivan signed to defend his title against James J. Corbett in New Orleans, he insisted that Little Chocolate accompany him.

The color line was closely observed in the Deep South at the time, and there was fear that the appearance of Dixon in the Sullivan entourage would cause repercussions.

But John L. would not be denied. Dixon not only lived in the same hotel with Sullivan, ate at the same table and toured the city with him, but also successfully defended his featherweight title in a preliminary by knocking out Jack Skelly in the eighth round.

Sullivan lost his heavyweight title that night of Sept. 6, 1892, but his little Canadian friend made history by engaging in the first official black-white boxing bout ever held in the southern states.

Dixon continued his fantastic career in the next five years, beating anybody that would face up to him. But on Oct. 4, 1897, Little Chocolate lost his featherweight title on a 20-round decision to Solly Smith in San Francisco.

However, Little Chocolate was not through. Dave Sullivan won the title from Smith and on Nov. 11, 1898, Dixon got his title back beating Sullivan on a 10th-round foul.

He successfully defended the title seven times in 1899.

Dixon finally ran out of gas on Jan. 9, 1900. Terrible Terry McGovern was the new featherweight champion of the world after an eight-round knockout in New York City.

Dixon's loss to McGovern came in his 34th world title fight—a record that stands to this day.

Little Chocolate continued in the only work he knew during the next six years, and suffered 19 of his 23 losses during this period.

On Dec. 10, 1906, his legs gone and a mere shell of his former days, Dixon retired after struggling through a 15-round loss to Monk Newsboy in Providence, R.I.

On Jan. 6, 1909, at the age of 38, Dixon died in New York City.

He was voted into boxing's Hall of Fame in 1958.

Trade Rumors Flow From Winnipeg's Training Camp

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Dave Raimey affair still is unresolved in the camp of Winnipeg Blue Bombers and coach Joe Zaleski has dropped the first hint that confidence in his young quarterback John Schneider, may be waning.

"We're not at all happy with John's performance thus far," said Zaleski at a workout Tuesday night. "We expected a great deal more after last season."

Trade talk is rumored with the name of Tom Wilkinson, an understudy to Toronto's Wally Gabler, entering most of the discussions.

Bombers admit there is at least one deal in the wind and some talk was suppose to have taken place between Winnipeg and Toronto during the Bombers' recent exhibition swing.

Zaleski stuck with Schneider in his rookie season last year confident that he would develop into an efficient quarterback.

Asked whether Schneider would start in the Western Football Conference opener against Edmonton next Tuesday, Zaleski replied:

"I can't make that statement, but that doesn't mean he won't."

Whether or not Raimey is on the block following his recent spat with Zaleski, is not clear.

Raimey, the volatile halfback in his fifth season with the Bombers, was sent home Sunday from Hamilton following a verbal clash with Schneider. He wasn't at Tuesday's workout either.

"He hasn't been suspended, and he hasn't been fined," said Bomber general manager Earl Lunsford.

"Coach Zaleski believed it would be better for all concerned if Dave didn't work out with the team until he (Zaleski) had made a decision."

About his action in sending Raimey home Sunday, Zaleski said:

"It wasn't anything to do with Schneider, although the two did have words. Last week it was a halfback; the week before that a lineman. I guess it just beat me too far and I lost my temper."

Turbos Move Closer To League Pennant

Tuesday night's Departmental Softball League contest between the Turbos and International Hardware was expected to the Turbos when International Hardware failed to field a team.

The defaulted game gave the Turbos two points and allowed them to move closer to clinching the Departmental League's regular season pennant.

The Turbos now have 26 points and a nine point lead over the second place Combines. The Combines have six games left, the Turbos four.

However, both Union Carbide and the Post Office — who are tied for third place — can tie for the league crown if they win their remaining six games and the Turbos lose their last four games as long as the Combines win no more than four games. Union Carbide and the Posties have each played 14 games and have averaged a point a game.

Publicity Drive Considered To Prepare for Breath Tests

OTTAWA (CP) — An advertising campaign is being considered to prepare the public for the compulsory breath test law, it was learned Tuesday.

The law was passed by Parliament last month but may not become operative before mid-fall, in time for the Christmas season.

The delay will give police a chance to arm and acquaint themselves with the new equipment.

Meanwhile, the justice department may advertise to make the public aware of its rights and responsibilities.

The feeling is that the law is too tough to spring on an uninformed public.

It compels a driver to give police a sample of his breath if asked to, refusal to be liable to the same penalties as those for impairment.

If the test reveals a blood alcohol reading of eight-tenths of one per cent or more, this will be considered automatic proof of impairment, opening the driver to a $500 fine and three months in jail.

The penalties are higher for succeeding offences.

One point that is not clear in most people's minds is how much alcohol it takes to produce a criminal reading. The amount varies with the size of the drinker.

In many communities in Canada, the breath test may not be a problem at all, simply because the police force will not have the equipment.

The hand-made Borkenstein breath tester to be used in Canada costs about $1,000 and is hard to get. It is made in the United States and reliable sources here say there is a high demand for a limited quantity.

East of Ontario, the breath test has had little use. Quebec alone is expected to need 40 but none has been delivered.

Ontario and the West are said to be better equipped.

Meanwhile, the RCMP is giving courses to municipal police in the use of the equipment.

Australia, New Zealand Selling Beef to Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — As Canadian beef producers concentrate on providing high-priced steaks and roasts, Australian and New Zealand imports are rapidly moving into the market for the lower-grade cuts.

Imports of New Zealand fresh or frozen boneless beef increased from 427,000 worth in January to $1,272,000 in May, say Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures.

In the same period, imports from Australia increased from $58,000 worth to $823,000, with a peak of $942,000 in April.

New Zealand shipped 79,400 pounds in January and 3,070,800 pounds in May.

However, it is believed unlikely these increased imports will reduce Canadian beef prices or adversely affect Canadian producers.

Spokesmen for the Australian and New Zealand High Commissions say most of it is frozen boneless beef, or manufactured meat that is canned or used in sausages and hamburger.

They say Canadian producers have, on the whole, neglected the growing market for these cheap types of meats, concentrating instead on fresh high-quality beef.

Wilson Freeman, economist for the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, said Tuesday Canadian producers have not been supplying the requirements of the market, either in fresh or manufactured beef.

"Agriculture resources "seem to have gone into the wrong channels," he said, creating a scarcity of beef and surpluses in wheat and dairy products.

Mr. Freeman estimates beef imports from Australia and New Zealand, the two leading foreign sources of beef for Canada, will be no more than seven per cent of beef sold in Canada this year.

If high beef prices continue, however, these countries might begin to export fresh cuts to Canada.

The Australian and New Zealand imports have only made a limited appearance in Ottawa grocery stores so far. One chain store, experimenting with small amounts of New Zealand beef, reports satisfactory sales.

It is selling imported frozen boneless sirloin butts at 50 cents a pound less than Canadian fresh cuts and reports that a fair number of customers prefer economy to the loss in quality of frozen meats.

The tariff rate on beef imports is three cents a pound for all countries.

Toronto Group Opposes Sunday Food Retailing

TORONTO (CP) — A group of churchmen, retailers and labor leaders has formed an organization to try to prevent a large-scale outbreak of food retailing on Sundays in Ontario.

Called the Lord's Day Alliance of Canada, the group drew up plans Tuesday to petition Attorney-General Arthur Wishart to enforce enforcement of the federal Lord's Day Act.

A first draft of the petition requests amendments "to remove the violators recourse to public opinion or community service" as a defence against conviction.

Canon Maurice Wilkinson, associate secretary of the Canadian Council of Churches and a member of the group, said large food operators may be forced into Sunday business this fall unless the government cracks down on small-time grocery stores open seven days a week.

Last May, Mr. Wishart said enforcement of the act depends partly on whether there is public feeling in the locality about Sunday sales.

Thomas Ross, executive director of the Canadian Retail Hardware Association, favored prohibition of Sunday sales on everything but absolute necessities, but Hugh Buchanan of the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union, said such a position "would be editorialized out of existence."

In its petition, the group reasoned that large food stores open on Sunday hold an economic advantage over those that aren't, and if Sunday sales become a general practice, the price of food will increase.

Sarnia Seeks Regional Setup

SARNIA (CP) — City officials disclosed Tuesday they have asked the province to set up a form of regional government with Sarnia at its centre.

A report on urban problems made public Tuesday and submitted by the city to Darcy McKeough, municipal affairs minister, asked him to take "whatever steps are necessary to bring about a consolidation of municipal boundaries in our area."

It requested that Sarnia absorb the township of Sarnia and Moore and the villages of Point Edward and Courtwright, which would enlarge the city to 120,903 acres from 113,306 and increase its population to 76,648 from 56,603.

"We are motivated exclusively by the desire to bring more meaningful and effective local government to the community," said the report.

Laws Mold Criminal's Type

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

When ordinary citizens think of "crime," they think of it as being committed by a separate class called "criminals." But what we designate as "crime" is simply an infraction of the law as decided by the community.

If the community at large is contemptuous of the so-called "civil" laws, then the criminals will exhibit a similar contempt for "criminal" laws. And law enforcement can never keep up with this attitude.

In New York this spring, for instance, it was decided to cut back the auto "towaway" program, because of a lack of policemen to cope with violaters "and a growing disregard of the no-parking law."

At first the towaway program was quite effective, but gradually motorists began to ignore it, and finally some drivers would follow the tow-trucks, waiting for an illegally parked car to be taken away so that they could occupy the space — knowing that the tow-truck would not be back for some time.

Over a year, the New York Transportation Administrator admitted, "the impact" of the program has lessened, and the congestion is worse." Contrary to what hard-line "law and order" people believe, harsher measures and higher fines have not reduced illegal parking in Manhattan. The ordinary citizen just takes more chances, as the criminal does.

The noted fact that the national crime rate is lower in Great Britain has nothing to do with "criminals" there, but everything to do with the attitude of the civilian population.

"Every country gets the kind of criminals it deserves and asks for," is an old axiom in sociology. The English people themselves are remarkably law-abiding, with a deep sense of fair play; they hold their freedom so precious that they will not abuse it by pushing ahead in line or taking advantage of others by parking in prohibited zones. It is simply "not done."

The general level of public morality — morality in the sense of maintaining a "right relation" toward other people — determines the degree of law breaking in any society. Motorists who flagrantly park in "towaway" zones and then complain bitterly that their cars have been broken into are a peculiarly American example of the left hand pointing with pride at our slyness, while the right hand denounces our "shocking" crime rate.

Criminals take their cue from the implicit attitudes of the non-criminals. Guns are not used either by the population or the police in England, so the criminals find no need to arm themselves. Like children to parents, they learn what the limits are, and push to the farthest. Crooks are the barometers of a nation's moral climate.

Apollo Crew Down Safely in Pacific

Next Visit To Be Longer

"I still say you should have brought back a smaller rock!"

HOUSTON (AP) — Astronauts aboard the next U.S. moon-landing adventure, Apollo 12, plan to walk on the lunar surface twice as long as the Apollo 11 explorers. But they won't leave earth before Nov. 10 and may not go until January.

Later flights, probably beginning with Apollo 13, will take astronauts to rougher mountain regions as part of a four-year program of exploring the moon.

While a final decision has not been made, Lt. Gen. Samuel Phillips, Apollo project director, said Apollo 12 probably will try to land on a relatively flat plain in the western half of the moon near the lunar equator.

Apollo 11's landing site in the Sea of Tranquility also was on the moon's equator, but in the east central section of the moon's visible face.

Apollo 12 astronauts Charles Conrad, 38; Richard Gordon, 39; and Alan Bean, 37, are tentatively scheduled to blast off sometime between Nov. 10 and Nov. 17.

But last April, Dr. Wilmot Hess, chief scientist at the Manned Spacecraft Center, recommended that six months elapse between Apollo flights after the first lunar landing to give scientists more time to analyse rocks and photographs returned from a previous mission.

They could then apply this knowledge to the next flight, Hess said, giving scientists a better idea of what astronauts should look for to get the most out of the mission.

While Gordon remains in lunar orbit taking care of the command ship, Conrad and Bean are to take two excursions outside the lunar module for a total of more than five hours. Neil Armstrong walked on the moon two hours 14 minutes, while Edwin Aldrin spent one hour 44 minutes outside.

Because of the ease with which the Apollo 11 explorers moved around the lunar surface, however, Conrad and Bean may be allowed to stay out longer and range further from the lunar module than planners previously believed could be done safely.

Weather Is Rough In Landing Area

ABOARD HORNET (AP) — Apollo 11 splashed down in the Pacific Ocean today, ending its historic voyage to the moon. President Nixon waited aboard the ship to welcome the heroes.

"The spacecraft is stable two," the recovery forces said. That meant it had landed upside down.

It had happened before — on Apollo 7 and 8 — with no danger to the crew.

Before splashdown, the Hornet said the spacecraft was right on target.

Apollo 11 had been spotted even before its parachutes deployed by aircraft in the area and from the ship.

Nixon was watching the descent through binoculars.

Smiling broadly, the president watched the descent with NASA administrator Thomas O. Paine. Nixon had flown to the ship with State Secretary William P. Rogers and Frank Borman, command pilot of Apollo 8.

Special flotation bags were to inflate automatically to right the capsule.

Eleven minutes after splashdown the Apollo's commander, Neil Armstrong, called out "Stable One".

The Apollo was right side up, in three to six foot waves.

Safe inside with Armstrong were his companions, Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Michael Collins.

HOUSTON (CP) — Weather was deteriorating in the new target area for the Apollo 11 splashdown today, but mission control said it was still good enough for recovery of the moon explorers as they raced through the final hours of their historic eight-day voyage.

The landing spot was shifted 250 miles to the east Wednesday night when weathermen forecast thunderstorms for the original touchdown point. The astronauts will steer to the new site by changing the angle of the spaceship as they dip into the atmosphere.

As the crew slept, mission control cancelled a final rocket burn listed as midcourse correction No. 7 and decided to let the astronauts sleep an extra hour until 7:30 a.m. EDT.

The landing in warm Polynesian waters will climax a magnificent odyssey in which two Americans walked on the moon and opened the boundless frontier of space.

But on their return, they'll be treated more like lepers than conquerors of the moon.

Story of Honduran Raid On San Salvador False

SAN SALVADOR (AP) — Both the Organization of American States and the Salvadorean military command agreed today that Honduran Air Force planes did not attack San Salvador's international airport Wednesday.

A spokesman for the OAS peace commission told a news conference in Tegucigalpa, the Honduras capital, that Honduran planes have not left their bases since the ceasefire went into effect Friday night. Although El Salvador refused to withdraw its troops from Honduras by Tuesday night, the deadline set in the ceasefire, a resumption of fighting has not been reported.

Persons near the airport Wednesday reported that two planes with Honduran markings dropped small bombs or mortar shells near the airport without causing serious damage.

El Salvador's military command then announced that the airport had been bombed and a border village strafed. But the command issued a communique several hours later denying this.

The communique said Salvadorean planes had flown reconnaissance missions Wednesday, indicating that they could have been mistaken for Honduran aircraft.

The Honduran government, meanwhile, announced the makeup of the delegation that will attend the OAS foreign ministers meeting in Washington Saturday on the border crisis. It will be headed by Foreign Minister Tiburcio Carlas Castillo.

The foreign ministers' meeting, first since 1964, was called when El Salvador refused to comply with the OAS order to pull its troops back from Honduras. The Salvadoreans occupied more than 1,000 square miles of Honduran territory during the fighting last week.

El Salvador said it will not pull back its troops until it has satisfactory guarantees for the lives and property of about 300,000 Salvadoreans who migrated to Honduras, restoration of land seized from some of them under a recent Honduran land redistribution law, and punishment of persons alleged to have persecuted the immigrants.

Italy Issues Warrant For Bishop of Munich

L'AQUILA, Italy (AP) — The carabinieri issued a warrant today for the arrest of a Roman Catholic bishop who, as a captain in the German Army during the Second World War relayed an order for the execution of 17 Italians in the nearby village of Filetto.

The warrant calls for the arrest of the Rt. Rev. Matthias Defregger, auxiliary bishop of Munich, if he ever "sets foot in the territory of the Italian Republic." It said the carabinieri, or national police, of L'Aquila want to question him about "the episode of Filetto."

The warrant was issued after a Communist member of Parliament petitioned the general prosecutor of L'Aquila's court of appeals to try Bishop Defregger as the person chiefly responsible for the executions.

After details of the case were disclosed by the West German magazine Der Spiegel and confirmed by a Frankfurt prosecutor, Julius Cardinal Doepfner, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Munich, pleaded for understanding of the actions of his auxiliary bishop.

The cardinal said that he stood behind Bishop Defregger because the bishop did all he could to halt the shootings. He said Capt. Defregger relayed the order "only when he saw no possibility of hindering its execution."

Cardinal Doepfner said he personally investigated the case when Bishop Defregger was named his auxiliary last September.

Student Slain

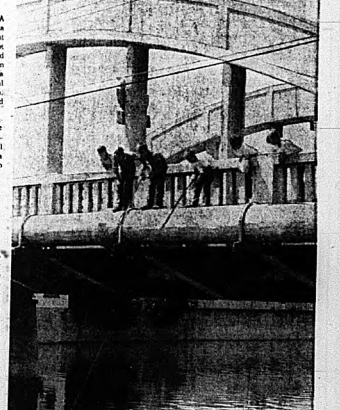
MEXICO CITY (AP) — A year ago police intervened in a fight between two student groups and one student was shot and killed. The incident touched off four months of rioting. On Wednesday students fearing a lockout stormed a vocational school, police were called in, and one student was shot and killed.

With the approach of demonstrations Saturday to mark the anniversary of the Cuban revolution, authorities are fearful the students again will raise a cry of "police brutality" to drum up support.

Russian Hints At Joint Space Explorations

MOSCOW (Reuters) — A leading Soviet space scientist indicated the Soviet Union might be willing to think again about the late United States President Kennedy's suggestion that the two countries "explore the stars together."

Leonid Sedov, a member of the Soviet Academy of Science, says in an article in the Communist party newspaper Pravda that "not one individual country can afford the practical implementation of all the scientifically feasible and worthwhile projects."



In an apparent effort to explain to Soviet readers why the U.S. was first to land a man on the moon, Sedov says the lunar landing was the task decided on 10 years ago "by American government leaders, scientists and engineers. . . ."

British Textile Tariff To Hit Canadian Firms

MONTREAL (CP) — Textile industry spokesmen say the new British tariff on textile imports from Commonwealth countries likely will have a major effect on Canada's cotton export business, which is aimed mainly at the British market.

The tariff, announced by the British government Tuesday, is intended to put the shrinking British textile industry on a more competitive basis internationally.

Affecting mainly India and Canada, the tariff replaces the Commonwealth preference quota system starting in January, 1972. The tariff on cotton cloth, the main item, is 16 per cent.

PE County Woman Protects 'Motel' Against Marauders with .22 Rifle

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
(Staff Reporter)

PICTON — "Martins' Motel", established in Prince Edward County 25 years ago by Mrs. Amos Baker is very strict about reservations.

If a would-be-guest has a name like "Starling" he sadly dends finds himself staring down the barrel of a .22 rifle.

Mrs. Baker is a prejudiced woman when it comes to birds.

She welcomes only Martins in the six-unit "bird motel" she built in her backyard a quarter of a century ago.

Mrs. Baker placed her bird houses atop high poles in a cedar grove at her East Lake home. Strips of metal banded each pole to keep famished felines from molesting the Martins.

Birds flocked to these onsite cottages for what Mrs. Baker called "overnight stays." Martins are sight-seers by nature and spend the entire day flying, coming back to the bird houses only at night. Mrs. Baker greatly enjoyed watching her summer guests come and go.

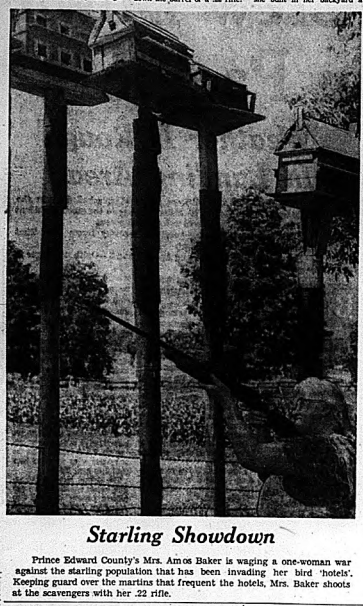
When Starlings arrived in force the Martins became frightened and voted to pack their bags and migrate. But that was before their benefactress loaded her .22 rifle. Mrs. Baker confessed that she had never fired a gun in her life until the Starlings invaded her bird houses. Her first attempts at loading and firing the .22 were complete failures.

"I aimed, and then I shot but I never hit a Starling," she says. Eventually Mrs. Baker's son solved her problem. It seems that she had overlooked the necessity of lining up both rifle sights on the bird.

"My son set the sights for me and I hit those Starlings every time now," declared the silver-haired Annie Oakley.

Mrs. Baker estimates that she has shot over 300 of the scavenger birds since the beginning of her war against intruders in the "Martins' Motel." This spring she dropped 75 Starlings who were trying to drive out her feathered guests. Mrs. Baker described the Starlings as "pretty cunning." After the first round of shots the birds learned to fly out of range the moment she appeared, rifle in hand. An ingenious woman, Mrs. Baker found a method of foiling their self-defence.

Now she ambushes the intruders from a tiny upstairs window.



Hiding until her victims appear, Mrs. Baker suddenly raises the glass and "socks it to them."

It's relatively peaceful at East Lake these days. The Starlings, at least the few who have survived the private war of Mrs. Baker, no longer annoy the Martins. The Martins, banking on their safety, are about to push the last of their fledglings from the bird houses.

Mrs. Baker feels that she can hang up her gun for the season and get on with her regular work — chicken canning.

No, she doesn't shoot the chickens, they take their earthly departure in the conventional way of domestic fowls.

Mrs. Baker limits "foul play" to the Starlings.

Starling Showdown

Prince Edward County's Mrs. Amos Baker is waging a one-woman war against the starling population that has been invading her bird 'hotels'. Keeping guard over the martins that frequent the hotels, Mrs. Baker shoots at the scavengers with her .22 rifle.

Easier Market Parking

The parking authority will lose out in a bit of meter money, but motorists using the city market square for parking are to have room for their vehicles.

Metered parking spaces on the market have been widened to make for easier egress and entrance to autos. The result has been a few less meters on the market square.

Parking Authority chairman Glenn Thompson said complaints had been received that the diagonal parking space were too close together.

This week the new parking space lines were painted and the meter standards moved to correspond.

Portages Over

This Friday will see the end of a current series of YMCA co - educational canoe trips for young adults.

Tomorrow night's trip is the second for young adults and several teenagers who participated in the first trip are returning for the second venture.

Registration has been limited, but there are still positions open.

Used by the Eagle moonship to rendezvous with its Command Module, the Columbia, these sensitive antennas are covered with multiple layers of 3 different metals and plastic, formed and "sewn-welded" by a new process developed by the Mayfield Division of Piasecki Aircraft Corporation.

Piasecki Shielding Protected Eagle

Parent of the Quinte district's biggest upcoming industry was right up front in this week's historic Apollo 11 moon mission.

Piasecki Aircraft Corporation — now organizing its latest production offspring at Picton — developed the shielding protecting antenna in the nose of the Eagle moonship.

Five skin-thin metal jackets were developed by Piasecki to insulate Eagle's rendezvous antenna from extreme space temperatures.

In a new manufacturing technique, multiple layers of micro-thin stainless steel, nickel, mylar and spun glass filler were used to produce a tough but ultra-light weight shield.

In all five separate jackets were used to protect Eagle's antenna — crucial to its rendezvous with the Columbia entrenched moon.

The development was achieved at Piasecki's Mayfield electronics division.

recovery ship, the aircraft carrier Hornet. But he won't shake their hands. A strangely-garbed frogman will greet them, not with a cheery "well done," but with a set of three biological suits and a can of disinfectant, with which he'll spray them.

On the carrier they'll be slapped into an air-tight trailer which will be their home for a 2½-day sea-air trip to Houston, Tex., where they'll be isolated another 16 days.

These precautions are insurance against the remote chance rocks they brought back harbor lunar bacteria that might harm life on earth.

President Nixon will observe the recovery operation from the bridge of the Hornet. Once the astronauts are in the trailer he'll view them through a window and speak with them over a plugged-in telephone.

At the Manned Spacecraft Centre, scientists began interpreting data from a seismic device Armstrong and Aldrin left on the moon. And, as in the manner of scientists, there was disagreement.

One geologist bet a case of champagne with another that the instrument recorded a moonquake Tuesday.

If he's right, it could mean the moon is "alive" like the earth, that it has a molten core, has layers of different materials rather than being of uniform composition and probably was born in the same way as earth.

IN MEMORIAM

REID — In loving memory of our dear brother, William Lorne (Bill) Aykon Reid, who died July 24, 1965.
Along the road in yesterday,
Are days of joy and pain,
And each one left a milestone,
That leads us back again.
And always in our thinking,
We seem to have a way,
Of bringing back the sweet him,
The truest brother any family; Fin, Muriel and family.

REID — In loving memory of a husband only son, William Lorne (Bill) Reid, who died July 24, 1965.
As quickly passing seasons bring,
The hour of death to those we love,
Earth pays that leaves the broken heart,
Is set to Heaven's crown above,
As summer grows the starship chain,
The circle widens in the sky,
Dear are the loved ones who remain,
Loved still remembered those as they,
Sadly missed by Mother and Dad.

Cordova Road Gets Go-Ahead From Province

The second-stage construction of County Road No. 3 (Cordova Road) north of Marmora will go ahead this year as a provincial development road project.

Clarke T. Rollins, MPP for Hastings has announced that the Ontario Department of Highways has approved the awarding of a contract by the Hastings county road committee for grading, drainage and granular base on 4.2 miles of the Cordova Road.

The successful bidders were Menard Construction Ltd. of Crown Valley, Ont., their tender for $399,987.55 being the lowest of seven bids received.

The province contributes 100 per cent of construction costs.

MORE MORE

A further tender call is scheduled for this fall to complete the roadway section in the village of Marmora. When this is finished, a total of 8.5 miles from Highway 7 to the Peterborough county boundary at Cordova Mines, will have been rebuilt.

The total distribution by the province toward the reconstruction of the Cordova Road to date, including the Menard contract is $850,860. In addition to this the province contributes 50 per cent of the cost of right-of-way acquisition and fencing totalling $79,925.

At the Spring session of county council there was some doubt that the second stage reconstruction of the Cordova Road would go ahead this year.

At that time the municipal engineer told council it was still not certain the department of highways would be able to finance the project in this fiscal year due to expenditure restraints imposed by the government.

However, the work now is expected to commence in two or three weeks with the engineering firm of Totten, Sims, Hubicke and Associates Ltd. supervising the project for the county.

Mr. Rollins has also advised that tenders will be called for the reconstruction of the county road from Marlbank to Highway 41. This is a joint development road project with a portion of the road lying in Lennox and Addington county.

Highway Ratepayers Complain of Low Offers

PICTON (Staff) — Controversy over widening of the portion of Highway 33 running from Picton to Bloomfield led to a special ratepayers' meeting yesterday afternoon.

About eight residents along the highway now being reconstructed to accommodate increasing traffic met at the home of Mr. David Taylor.

A letter had been sent by this group to Minister of Highways George Gomme, who delegated two D.H.O. representatives to the meeting. Also present was the purchasing agent.

Purpose of the meeting according to one spokesman was "to clear the air" and "to define where we stand with our property".

Several complaints were brought out at this discussion, one of them being the low prices offered to two of the ratepayers for portions of their property. One farmer reported that he had been offered only $75 for one third of his barnyard.

Operators of a shrub nursery on highway 33 received an offer of $110 for 264 feet of frontage property on the nursery grounds.

The spokesman felt these sums seemed little in comparison with the $13,500 supposedly paid by the government for property on Picton Golf Course purchased in order to widen and improve Highway 49.

Residents along highway 33 are currently skeptical about the possibility of an increased speed limit when improvements to the road are complete. Many of the farmers have fields on both sides of the road and, therefore, must cross with their cattle.

"These farmers don't want to build an underpass," commented one ratepayer who attended the meeting.

A number of property owners have tiled in front of their homes. The D.H.O. wants to leave a six-foot open ditch in place of the tiling. This suggestion is not gaining general approval among those concerned.

The highway, now 86 feet wide, will be widened to 122 feet by the D.H.O.

Complaints came from several ratepayers about the purchasing agent representing the D.H.O. He was described, according to one ratepayer who joined the meeting, as "arrogant" in his dealings with residents whose property will be affected by the new highway.

The ratepayers asked that he be replaced.

All grievances voiced by those at the meeting were recorded by the representatives from the D.H.O. These complaints will, it seems, be assessed and action taken where deemed necessary by the Department.

Reeve Says Nitwits Not Alone on Road

PICTON (Staff) — Bloomfield Reeve Allan Anderson said last night that he did not agree with county engineer Donald Clark's view on "nitwits at the wheel".

Mr. Clark expressed the view at county council that a second stop sign at Wooler's Corners would probably do little to prevent accidents there.

"I can do nothing about the nitwits at the wheels of the automobiles," he said.

Reeve Anderson last night remarked that "not all drivers are nitwits. Many people travelling the East Lake Road are tourists unfamiliar with the stop at Woodrow's Corners."

Council agreed that a second stop sign 750 feet from the intersection would be advisable.

Added Reeve Anderson: "With this sign up if an accident does occur county council can feel that it has done its part to ensure safe driving."

Holiday Nearly Became Nightmare

TRENTON — A visiting American father averted a near-tragedy Wednesday evening.

Mr. Edwin Albert of Carpentersville, Illinois and his family were sitting by the pool at the Mermaid Motel, RR4, Trenton, while three of his four children were making use of the water. The father had just asked his seven-year-old son Gerald, not to play on a rope dividing the deep and shallow pool ends, when he took a second look at the water and failed to see the boy.

Spotting his son on the bottom of the pool Mr. Albert dove in and recovered him.

He applied mouth to mouth resuscitation until his son resumed breathing.

The Trenton Fire Department arrived on the scene, along with an ambulance which took the youngster to Trenton Memorial Hospital, where he was admitted for observation by Dr. D. Lintern.

Gerald — a non-swimmer — was reported in good condition this morning and should be released to continue his holiday.

New Brighton Inspector

BRIGHTON — Village council has appointed Roland Hill as building inspector. The announcement came after nine applications for the position had been read.

Hill will replace former inspector Stanley Shaw.

The council also authorized a loan of $3,000 to the Public Utilities Commission for the purchase of a backhoe.

More Than One Way To Snap A Moose

You don't have to travel to Northern Ontario to sight a moose.

Just this was learned by a number of residents in the Rawdon and Oak Lake areas last week—and particularly by Mrs. Alton Hadley who recently missed out on her wish to get moving pictures of a moose on a trip to Northern Ontario.

Early last Wednesday Earl Ketchen, R.R. 1 Harold, was surprised when he saw a cow moose loping along the 8th concession in front of his car.

The moose jumped a rail fence and stood quietly grazing in a field owned by Mr. Ketchen went home and picked up his wife so she could see the moose before they watched the animal other area residents arrived to join the sight.

The moose eventually hopped the fence and sauntered off in the direction of the Turpin barn.

Then about 6 a.m. Saturday the cow moose was spotted on the north side of Oak Lake by Alton Hadley.

When he heard a noise near his cottage he went to investigate. He and his son-in-law Frank Bailey followed the moose as it swam across Oak Lake coming out at Irish's camping grounds.

During the exciteiment Mrs. Hadley was able to film the moose on her movie camera.

During her recent holiday in Northern Ontario she had photographed a "moose crossing" sign but saw no moose.

"Now," she says, "I have my picture of a moose—but I had to come home to take it."

Car Still Missing

PICTON (Staff) — The Ontario Provincial Police are continuing their search for a car stolen from the parking lot at Outlet Beach Provincial Park Tuesday afternoon.

The vehicle, owned by David Lockwood, RR2, Picton, was a 1961 grey Chrysler two-door hardtop with maroon interior. The keys were not in the ignition at the time of the theft.

Hannah Park Wins Trenton Playground Title

TRENTON — A come-from-behind victory saw last year's local playground champions dethroned by the team from Hannah playground, V. F. Carswell's team was leading Hannah by five points as the Junior Olympics entered the afternoon events.

But Hannah's team put a determined effort into the afternoon events and ended the day with a total of 116 points, eleven ahead of V. F. Carswell. Third - place winners were the members of Allison's playground.

The sixth edition of the Trenton Playground's Junior Olympics commenced early Wednesday morning with a parade of athletes, the presentation of flags and the lighting of the Olympic flame. The flame was lit by a member of last year's winning team, Paul Gowan.

Over 400 children were competing for the Trenton Trophy which was presented to the winners by recreation director Bill Workman. Karla Kuklis received the trophy on behalf of her staff and children. Other helpers of the winning team were Chris Long, Sue Patrick, Nancy Patrick, Don Reed and Gwen Gohseen.

The day's events were under the supervision of playground supervisors Pat Larry, Bob Pickell, Duncan Rogerson and Chris Long.

Wellington Rates Up Seven-Nine Mills

PICTON (Staff) — The village of Wellington set its mill rate at a special meeting of council Monday night. The residential rate has been set at 61.66 mills. Last year's residential rate was 53.78 mills.

This year's commercial rate is 70.21 mills compared to last year's 61.04 mills. Increase in the residential rate totals 14.7 mills while the increase of commercial increase stands at 9¼ mills.

Wellington Reeve Robert Boyce remarked "We have had go out and slash phases of our program here but we have completed our town hall and hired a fulltime maintenance man."

Commenting on the newly set mill rates Reeve Boyce said, "I am happy with them.

"If we hadn't gone to work on the school tax and the village rates we would have had a 32 to 34-mill increase with the original figures," noted Mr. Boyce.

One of four delegates from Prince Edward County to visit Queen's Park protesting the education tax levy this year, Reeve Boyce was successful in securing a supplementary grant of $8,300. This amount equalled 6½ mills on the tax rate.

Reeve Boyce added that Wellington will pay its requisitioned money to the Prince Edward County Board of Education only when the final instalment is due.

Tax bills will go out to Wellington residents soon and taxes are collectable Oct. 15.

Municipal Co-operation

The relationship between a municipality like Belleville and neighboring townships is a delicate one.

As in any such relationship Belleville is cast rather in the role of "Big Brother," and a not particularly friendly one at that as witness the recent precipitate and exorbitant increase in fees for fire protection — a move that has led to the townships establishing their own service.

Then again Mayor J. Russell Scott is on record as saying he is opposed to extending city services to its neighbors. He said a previous offer to extend services when available was with the understanding that suitable agreements would be signed by the townships.

That sounds reasonable. There must be agreement, but at the moment neither the city nor the townships seem to be in any hurry to co-operate more closely let alone amalgamate.

Which brings us to Belleville's decision Monday to invite representatives of Sidney, Ameliasburg, Thurlow and Trenton to a meeting to discuss amalgamation.

The feeling is that amalgamation in some form has to come eventually but meantime it is a case of making haste slowly. As one councillor suggested, talks should be held initially with a view to getting co-operation.

The talks should be on the basis of equals, looking toward the day when population and industry will have expanded far beyond today's boundaries.

From the point of view of people, however, amalgamation could be a mixed blessing. Those who live in the country do so not just because they farm or the air is cleaner and the atmosphere more peaceful but because taxes are low. Amalgamation would change all that, sooner or later.

For the present then a meeting of minds on the subject will be useful. There is much of mutual concern to Belleville and the townships. If nothing else it could lead to better understanding between the municipalities. Nevertheless the concept of amalgamation as an ultimate fact is a realistic one. As growth proceeds, both urban and industrial, the townships can not expect to stand on their own forever.

Man's Origins

Man has landed on the moon but there remains the mystery of homo sapiens' own precise beginnings.

Anthropologists have shown from their studies of skeletal remains and artifacts in various parts of the world that man has been in existence for at least one million years. Stone implements have been recovered from earth deposits going back to that remote time.

Our own links with prehistoric times on this continent by comparison are less blue-blooded as it were. A mere 10,000 years or so separate us from the early inhabitants of this country. It could be further back in time, but the Encyclopedia Britannica says man has been here at least that long. The Indians of course were here first and their origins are also obscure. We do know they came from Asia, presumably across the Bering Strait, and here they have remained ever since, a proud if badly-used race of people who are now showing resolute signs of coming back into their own.

Mars is the next planet scheduled for a visitation by man and it is just possible there may be some forms of life there. It is a sobering thought that we on earth are only one small part of the cosmos, just another planet, albeit inhabited by homo sapiens. We are only a part of a universe with secrets still far beyond our knowledge.

Kennedy Jinx

Once again tragedy has struck the Kennedy family, this time in an accident in which a young woman Senator Kennedy was driving to a ferry late at night lost her life when the senator's car slid off a narrow bridge.

The senator was in a state of shock after several attempts to rescue his companion and walked dazedly back to the home of friends. Now he faces court charges for leaving the scene of an accident. It is an agonizing situation for the senator, his family and that of the young woman who drowned. There must be widespread sympathy for both.

Ottawa Offbeat

New Brunswick PC Tom Bell Dedicated to His Party

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — You have to hand it to Conservative Whip Thomas Miller Bell for sheer dogged, never-say-die determination to look, no matter what, for the silver lining in the darkest of clouds.

Tom has to be Parliament's most positive thinker.

The optimists' optimist.

Could be, that in his secret heart, he has no choice.

For to doubt privately, much less concede publicly, that all is not in the best possible political shape in this best of all possible parties might be to question the wisdom of devoting all those selfless years to its causes.

He has spent 16 years in parliamentary service for the Conservatives, entering the Commons at 30 as a leader of the party's youth wing.

That he did not make the cabinet in the six years the Conservatives held power had to be an accident of political geography caused, perhaps, by a "blind spot" in the then Prime Minister Diefenbaker's eye.

As it happens in cabinets, both Liberal and Conservative, each of the Atlantic provinces gets but one ministerial representative.

And Tom Bell is from New Brunswick.

The story, very probably quite true, is that Dief, when he was Chief, thought Tom Bell was young enough to wait in line to enter the cabinet while its door was opened to others who did not have youth going for them so strongly.

Which, in a way, is too bad. For Tom Bell was, still is, and likely will remain one of the real pros of Parliament.

He remains, too, what he always has been, a working — really honest-to-goodness working — Conservative, with an outwardly unshakable faith in the conviction that the party's return to power and glory is just around the corner.

So built-in is this belief that he lives and works with Tory stars in his eyes.

This star-gazing has brought him to the point that he sees — or professes to see — unity in disunity.

When the alien factions of the party fly apart — one wing picking up its marbles and going home while the other keeps its nose to the Commons grindstone — super-optimist Tom Bell sees this publicly apparent division as evidence of political togetherness.

"Why don't you," he asked wistfully after the Languages Bill passed with Conservative voice raised against it, "write something about how united we all are now?"

The reason why not a single Tory "nay" was sounded as the bill slipped quietly through into law was that the prairie Conservatives who opposed it had opposed it had all gone home.

"Let Stanfield fight his rules battle alone," one of them cracked bitterly as he polled out.

But this to Tom Bell was "union."

"The split did not show," he reasoned, "because the guys who voted against the boss and the bill before got the hell out this time."

This is "union"?

What sent the western Tories home in such obvious alienation could have been State Secretary Gerard Pelletier's open public praise of Stanfield as a "reasonable and understanding man."

In "rebel" Conservative eyes, Gerard Pelletier, wildly lotsa-rand of any accusation of "the French Fact," as Quebec nationalists interpret it, is equated with General de Gaulle.

All the "rebels" at least on the language and other Quebec questions, do not come from the West. There are Maritimers and Ontario Conservatives among the Tory "rebels" but they remain, for the most part, silent. Or they simply stay out of the House when the votes are counted.

And until the party does something about that "Dear Nellens" albatross it hung around its political neck when it was taken into camp by the "thinkers" — some of them socialists and card-carrying members of New Left; at that fateful Winnipeg Conference — that is the way Tom Bell's "union" must remain.

Meanwhile, give him "A" for absolute dedication.

"NATURALLY, YOU GET A PIECE OF THE ACTION, TOO."

Motorized Stretcher

BBC London Letter

Now for a stretcher that will climb most mountains! Mountain rescue is one of the hardest tasks any medical team can attempt. Not only do they need medical skill, but also above-average climbing ability to get an injured person out of a place that has tried him to the limit. A brute strength to carry the load of a body on a stretcher. But as Richard Dilnot reported in a BBC broadcast, the strength aspect is now a bit easier — the warden of a mountain Italian school at Ullswater has developed a motorized stretcher which, he says, can climb virtually any mountain.

He should know, for although Britain does not boast any exceptionally high mountains many of them are among the most difficult and dangerous. The Ullswater Feilbounder, as the motorized stretcher is called, has a two-stroke petrol engine underneath, driving a tail wheel from an aircraft. It still needs two stretcher-bearers at least, but where they can get the single wheel against a face — be it vertical or horizontal — the stretcher and bearers are spared most of the effort of carrying. And it also means fewer jolts and bumps for the injured person.

P.M. and the Wheat Farmers

The Globe and Mail

The reception given to Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau by Saskatchewan wheat farmers in Regina was boorish and insulting. It was not the sort of reception that should ever be accorded a Prime Minister, and Mr. Trudeau's angry response when he moved on to what at first threatened to be a similar confrontation in Saskatoon was — if professorish — justified.

Yet it must be admitted that the farmers probably took the swiftest and most drastic means of informing Mr. Trudeau of a state of affairs that should have concerned him earlier: the deep anger of the Prairies at what, with reason, they view as Ottawa's neglect; the division that yawns between West and East; and the truly desperate situation of the wheat farmer.

This is not an area in which this federal Government, or, for that matter, any federal Government — is guiltless. The farmers have been encouraged to grow wheat, in preference to coarse grains.

In 1967 they were assured by the annual meeting of federal and provincial agriculture ministers and their officials that Canadian wheat exports would stay at a high level until at least 1970 — levels, that is to say, running between 475 and 550 million bushels a year. These were assurances that were being reiterated — while they were also, in some quarters, being contradicted — as late as last year.

The farmers themselves, of course, must share the blame, in that they have consistently relied upon dropping policies more designed to fill their pockets than to put the wheat industry on a secure basis; but it was an exaggerated regard for the rural vote which made government weak enough to yield.

Mr. Trudeau agreed that the immediate situation merited some form of injection into the farm economy. He was right in rejecting one panacea — that wheat be sold at a higher price to the domestic market than abroad. But he was perhaps precipitate in rejecting another proposal, for subsidies of $2 an acre on a maximum of $2,000 a farmer (although such a maximum seems unsupportable).

Something of this nature seems essential, on a strictly temporary basis. Farmers who have been encouraged by government and its creatures to grow wheat are now being asked to make drastic changes in production — the Task Force suggested cutting wheat acreage by a third by 1980. Changes of this magnitude cannot be made by any business in a moment; and history is generally cushioned through such changes by government. Wheat farmers, even rich wheat farmers, are entitled to equal consideration.

Acreage payments were three times used by the Diefenbaker Government to cushion farmers over bad years, though the payments then were $1 an acre with a maximum of $200 per farmer. It is the quickest way of getting cash — which is the immediate need — into farmers' hands. While Mr. Trudeau gets his long-term program under way, he might be well advised to accept some adaptation of the acreage proposal made by the farmers.

The Beginning of Rocketry

Montreal Gazette

It was the Chinese, five centuries ago, who invented rockets, following their discovery of gunpowder. That Italian genius, Leonardo da Vinci, found new uses for them. And another Italian, Galileo, began to explore the heavens with his telescope. Two more hundred years ago the English ballistics expert Congreve, made the rocket a potent weapon of war.

The modern history of rocketry honors three great pioneers, a Russian, an American, and a German. In the 1890's Konstantin Tsiolkovsky, a mathematics teacher, said space travel would be possible using reaction engines, powered by liquid fuels such as today's liquid oxygen and hydrogen. During the First World War, Dr. R. H. Goddard began testing small liquid-fuel rockets. During the Twenties, Dr. Hermann Oberth presented the first detailed plans for space travel and became the centre of the German Rocket Society. Some of them said they were inspired by the moon-travel novels of the Frenchman, Jules Verne.

During the Forties, the Germans led the way, with their development of the armament V-2's. In the Fifties and Sixties, the Americans and the Russians took over, with the assistance of such German experts as Dr. Von Braun.

Your Money or Your Wife

Winnipeg Free Press

The report of an Afghanistan creditor who foreclosed on his debtor's wife deserves serious study in our debt-ridden society. The professional moneylender allegedly took and hid a 30-year-old woman because her husband had not repaid a loan. The loan was for $13 at 10 per cent interest a month. When the debt reached $79, the moneylender allegedly raided the debtor's house and carried off his wife.

Indeed, if Mrs. Florence Bird has not yet completed her study of the status of women in Canada, she should journey to Afghanistan forthwith and inquire into this original method of dealing with outstanding accounts.

There could be some advantages in applying it here. For instance, one merely has to watch a department store on a sales day to realize that much of the debt incurred in our consumer society derives from women's spending. If the women were thus sequestered for the non-debtor husbands to liquidate their debts, credit buying would drop substantially and those orthodox economists who warn of a debt-old days would have it all their own way.

Would they? The prospect of solving domestic difficulties without the good offices of the family court could end in a avalanche of demands upon the coffers of finance companies. Indeed, installment debt — and bad debt at that — would rise alarmingly.

Then there would be the problem of maintaining the seized chattel in good condition. The bailiffs would be expected to house it, feed it and possibly clothe it. It would not be surprising if there were suddenly a distastrous flight from the cailing with harassed bailiffs rushing to the under-populated North to escape their charges.

The possibilities are as varied as they are fascinating. Is there a professor in the house willing to accept a Canada Council grant to study the subject?

This 'Natural Environment' Better Known as 'Presqu'ile'

By DON WILCOX
Staff Reporter

PRESQU'ILE PARK — A peninsula over four miles long and one-half mile wide, covering an area of over 2,000 acres, divided into almost equal portions of marsh, sand, fields, woods meadows, and a large beach is known as a Natural Environment Park.

But thousands know this one as 'Presqu'ile.

What is a natural environment area? Presqu'ile Provincial Park naturalist, Ian Seddon, defines the term thusly: "We promote appreciation of the natural and historical significance of the area through our museum, nature talks, films, and most important, our hikes. We are trying to prevent anything that will alter the natural features of Presqu'ile."

There are two nature trails in the park. Jobe's Lane winds through a section of the park's forested interior. The walker sees close at hand the results of winter browsing by the sixteen deer or so that inhabit the park. The workings of the Pileated woodpecker may be spotted by even the youngest of hikers.

Indian Point trail leads the nature explorer around a marsh and down an unique geological formation called a finger.

"The hikes and walks are taken daily, except Friday, by naturalists and the just plain interested.

"The main reason we have these walks is to combine an enjoyment of being outdoors with the interest of discovering more about the history, in the natural area, of Presqu'ile," said Seddon.

In his advice on how to enjoy the park Seddon suggests the following format. Take one day and just walk around the area and make a list of the questions that enter your mind. On the second day the naturalist-advised visiting the museum. As this is also the headquarters of the park naturalist you are advised to bring along any questions that you have. The museum is open each day at 10 a.m. After a visit to the museum a walk on one of the trails should answer any other question that remains with you.

There is a long list of animals and mammals that you might run sight of when in the park. Some insect eaters that you might spot are baptised with the very complex names such as Condylura cristati. Others are simply named as is the Common Shrew.

The list of animals continues adding bats, rabbits, squirrels, beaver, coyote, fox, deer, and the ever popular skunk.

Over a hundred and ten birds have been logged as visitors to the park. The names of these range from a Common Loon to a Yellow-billed Cuckoo. Ian suggests the early morning or late afternoon for bird-watching.

A second park naturalist, Donald Lafountain, is willing to spend his time advising the hiker on the moths and butterflies that may be spotted in the park. Lafountain is an expert in this field and enjoys talking about it.

"We do have some things in the park that people complain about," added Seddon, "That being our poison ivy and our mosquitoes, but then this is their natural environment, too."

Included in the show were Hart-Par and Rumley gasoline-powered tractors and Robert Bell steam engines.

Most of the equipment was in operating condition and some of the engines were used to power old threshing machines.

A full size saw mill and shingle mill were in operation, giving visitors the opportunity to see how cedar shingles are made.

A display of miniature working models was shown in the community centre.

There was a small charge in order to cover the cost of transportation of the engines.

President of the association is Robert Michel.

Voting Machine Fails to Impress MPPs

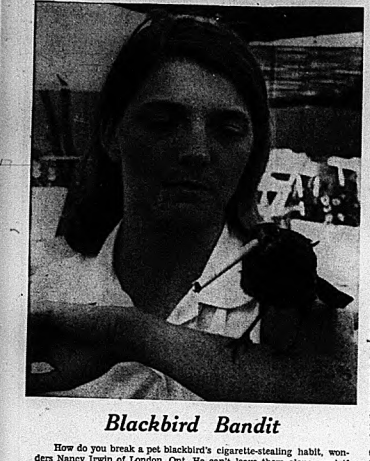
TORONTO (CP) — The 11 members of Ontario's select committee on election law gave a cool reception Wednesday to a bright, blue 80-pound voting machine developed by an American firm for use in Canada.

M. O. Buchtle Jr., an official of Automatic Voting Machines of Jamestown, N.Y., assured the committee he was not there to sell his proposed product to the Ontario government but wanted a change in the law that would make it easier for municipalities to use voting machines if they wish.

—[illegible] (PC—Downsview) shook his head over the idea as he calculated it would cost Ontario $20,000,000 to buy the two-foot-high machines for the province's 20,000 polling stations.

D. J. McNab, a Canadian agent of AVM, said the New York firm spent four years researching among Canadian civil officials and decided a smaller, less costly machine was needed in Canada rather than the large models used for complicated U.S. votes.

The little blue model, on which voters press buttons to indicate their choice, was specially designed to fit Canadian needs. Mr. McNab promised it would eliminate spoiled or badly-marked ballots, reduce election costs and personnel and provide an immediate, accurate count of votes when polls close.



Mr. Doolittle said present Ontario legislation permits use of voting machines in municipalities but the legislation is so inadequate that it has proved impossible to implement.

Earlier, Prof. Ronald Atkey, a member of the Ontario Young Progressive Conservatives' policy research council, and Sean O'Sullivan, vice-president of the youth group, told the committee the voting age in Ontario should be lowered to 18 and political affiliations should be shown on ballots.

Both men, along with W. S. Thomson, vice-president of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Association, got into hot water with Mr. Singer for saying they did not think there should be any limit on election expenses beyond the requirement that expenses be disclosed.

"Does the principle of equalizing the opportunity of candidates by giving each a set amount out of the public purse, as is done in Britain, not appeal to you at all?" Mr. Singer asked.

"Can't you see that there is no value in requiring a disclosure of election expenses unless some limit is also set beyond which spending cannot go?"

Lewis Wants MPPs Given Time To Explain Pleas for Debate

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario legislature members requesting debate on matters of urgent public importance should be allowed time in the house to explain why they feel such debate is necessary, Stephen Lewis (NDP—Scarborough West) said Wednesday.

Mr. Lewis told a select committee examining rules and procedures in the Ontario legislature that it is the custom of the current house "never to accept a matter of urgent public importance" as a reason for debate.

Under existing procedure, a member presents his request for debate to the Speaker outside the house. If the Speaker decides the matter does not justify adjourning current debate on discussion it in the house, the request is deferred.

Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury), another committee member, said it followed that if one member was permitted to give his reasons then everybody else in the house must have the right to discuss it.

He said it would be better for 10 people to get up and give their reasons rather than having members rushing to television cameras to state their opinions.

Glen Hodgson (PC—Victoria Hallburton), chairman of the 13-man committee, suggested that discussion be limited to one member from each party.

The committee also discussed the position for party whips.

Mr. Hodgson said that in the federal system and in the Quebec legislature party whips are formally recognized as part of the operational machinery of the government and receive additional remuneration.

Members favored a system whereby votes could be deferred or "stacked" until the end of a stage in consideration of a bill.

The committee felt it would be better to ring the division bells once at the end of the clause-by-clause stage and vote on all amendments at that time. But, if five members insisted, amendments would be put to a vote as they arose.

Midnight Marauders Get Message

TORONTO (CP) — There are Conservatives, Liberals, NDPs and occasionally-Midnight Marauders sitting in the Ontario legislature.

Midnight Marauders?

That was the name conferred Wednesday by Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury) on members who spend their time in a cocktail bar at a downtown hotel on certain long nights when the house is sitting.

He described the nocturnal adventures of the group to the legislature's committee on procedures which Wednesday discussed a new voting rules—something of vital interest to the Marauders.

If the new rules were approved, Mr. Sopha said it would have a salutory effect on the MPPs' social lives.

Stephen Lewis (NDP—Scarborough West) agreed with Mr. Sopha and told the committee of a strange signal which runs through the bars when division bells are rung in the house to call members for a vote.

Mr. Lewis said the bells cannot be heard in the bar, but the members inevitably get a message, hurry out of the hotel and into the legislature.

Regardless of the Marauders, the committee reached general agreement on new voting proposals.

'Spy Exchange' Seen as Russians Release Briton Held 4 Years

MOSCOW (CP) — The Soviet government today released a young Briton it had been holding for four years. Britain in exchange was expected to release Morris and Lola Cohen, an American couple imprisoned since 1961 as Soviet spies.

Gerald Brooke, a 30-year-old teacher, was put on a special plane for London. He had served four years of a five-year sentence for distributing anti-Soviet propaganda.

A well-informed source in London said earlier that the Russians would trade Brooke and at least two other persons for the Cohens. The source, alias Pete and Helen Kroger, have served eight years of a 20-year sentence. The source said they would be released in the fall.

The only other Britons known to be imprisoned in the Soviet Union are Michael Scott Moncrieff and Anthony Peter Derek Lorrimer, 29, who were convicted of trying to smuggle marijuana from Afghanistan.

The British embassy said that Brooke was notified at 10 a.m. Wednesday of his impending release. That was the fourth anniversary of his conviction and sentencing in a Moscow court.

He was handed over to British diplomats at Moscow's Sheremetyevo Airport one hour before the departure of his flight for England. He rolled out on an Aeroflot Soviet airliner accompanied by British Vice-Consul Brian Barder.

Brooke looked somewhat drawn and tired. He had been imprisoned at a labor camp some 300 miles from Moscow. Other Westerners who served sentences at the camp described conditions there as bad, citing limited and monotonous food and lack of heating in winter.

The Englishman carved cheesemen to fulfil his work quota.

He complained of stomach trouble resulting from the food but the British government was unable to get much relief for him.

The Kremlin insisted that Brooke was in the same professional spy category as the Cohens and refused clemency.

Prime Minister Wilson of Britain for several years refused to trade the Cohens for Brooke, contending they were professional spies while Brooke was a misguided idealist.

Authoritative London sources said Wilson yielded when the Russians threatened to bring the Briton to trial again.

The Cohens were arrested when British courier-espionage agents smashed a spy ring operation involving the top-secret navy underwater research centre at Portland in southwest England. Two British employees at the base also were arrested with the Cohens.

The sources said the Kremlin agreed as its part of the deal also to release Parsons and Lorraine this fall. They are serving three and four years, respectively.

The Cohens, a New York couple both 60, were sentenced in 1961 to 20 years each for transmitting Allied naval secrets to the Russians. They were aides of Gordon Lonsdale, the Soviet masterspy handed back to the Russians in another exchange deal. Lonsdale claimed he was born in Cobalt, Ont.

Stalinists' Victim Stripped of Party Membership

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Eugen Loebl, one of the chief victims of the Stalinist Slansky trial in 1952 and the author of a best-selling book about it, has been stripped of his Czechoslovak Communist party membership, it was announced Wednesday.

The official CTK news agency reported that Loebl, until last year director of the state bank in Bratislava, had his party membership suspended last year for his political activities abroad. He has been out of the country since last summer.

The regional party committee in West Slovakia decided to banish him from the party completely July 10 after an investigation concluded that while abroad he had engaged in activities contrary to the party line and Marxist-Leninist principles.

Loebl was sentenced to life imprisonment in 1952, along with three others, in the trial which ended in former Communist party chief Rudolf Slansky and 10 others being shot for treason and espionage.

Loebl, then deputy foreign trade minister, was rehabilitated in 1963, as were Slansky and some of the others.

He last year wrote an account of the trial, called The Revolution Rehabilitates Its Children, which was published in Vienna. Efforts were made to publish it in Czechoslovakia as well, but later shelved.

Baez Will Play at Mariposa Festival

TORONTO (CP) — Folk-music buffs attending the ninth annual Mariposa Folk Festival this weekend will have a rare opportunity to see one of the biggest names in folk music—Joan Baez.

They also will have the chance to compare her style with that of two Canadian who have achieved international popularity in the last year—Joni Mitchell of Fort Macleod, Alta., and Gilles Vigneault of Natashquan, Que.

The decision by Miss Baez, the 28-year-old American singer and war protester, to appear represents something of a coup for festival organizers. Miss Baez has curtailed concert appearances in the last few years in favor of speaking engagements protesting the military draft and U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war. Her husband, David Harris, is serving a three-year sentence for refusing induction into the army.

Composer-singer Joni Mitchell will be making her fifth visit to the festival. Since her first appearance as a guitar-strumming spectator in 1965, she has grown to achieve popularity in the United States, particularly through her composition From Both Sides Now, recorded by Frank Sinatra and Judy Collins.

Often compared to Joan Baez for her clarity of voice and individual style, Miss Mitchell, 26, does not include protest songs in repertoire. Rather, she says, protest is something she feels, particularly when she has heard racial remarks while touring the U.S. South.

She now lives in Laurel Canyon, a suburb of Los Angeles.

Gilles Vigneault is probably the most versatile of the Mariposa performers this year. The 40-ye a r-old chansonnier has written more than 200 songs, is a published poet, and in 1966 received the $2,500 Governor-General's Literary Award for his book of poetry, Quand les Bateaux s'en Vont.

Vigneault sings in French such songs as Mon Pays, C'est l'Hiver and musically describes such Quebec characters as Alphonse Desjardins and Tit-Paul the lumberjack.

CBC-TV has announced it will film the festival, to take place on Centre Island in Toronto harbor. The film will be televised Sept. 28 on the one-hour Sunday-at-Nine network series.

Working in Russia Pleasant But Sophia Misses Her Son

KHLEBNIKOVO (AP) — Sophia Loren likes movie-making in Russia, but she misses her seven-months-old son.

"Now is the time they do so many things—they things—and I won't be able to see all that," the Italian actress said in an interview in this town just outside Moscow.

She left little Carlo Ponti Jr., in Rome two weeks ago and came here to shoot scenes for the movie Sunflower, in which she is starring with Marcelo Mastroianni.

Resting in her trailer between scenes beside a lake, Miss Loren said Carlo Jr. will make his film debut in the movie later in Italy.

"It's a very small scene," she said, smiling proudly.

Sunflower, to be released next year, tells of an Italian woman's post-war trip to Russia to find her soldier husband.

Miss Loren's son will "play" the part of a baby she has by a new husband in Italy after finding that her soldier husband has married a Russian girl.

Dressed in a plain brown dress, her hair greyed for the part, Miss Loren praised the friendliness of the few Russians she has met while filming here and in Moscow's Red Square.

"They are so sweet because they come with flowers, apples, pears . . . They want to make you understand."

Although a movie of hers has not been shown here since Marriage Italian Style four years ago, she said Russians on the street recognize her.

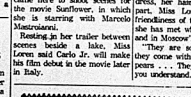
EARLY EDUCATION

VANCOUVER (CP) — Consumer education should begin at the elementary school level and not at an age when they are receiving allowances so they would be taught "how to spend their money and what to look for in purchases."

Films Make Singer Nervous

TORONTO (CP) — Film screenings make folk singer Bruce Mackay nervous, and a recent one at the National Film Board was no exception.

"I never know what to do at these things," said the 24-year-old resident of St. Andrews East, Que. "You show the film and it's over, the lights go on and then there's this silence."



The film being previewed was Mackay's first, a seven-minute short called The Half-Masted Schooner.

It is a one-man effort, combining his abilities as a poet, musician and film-maker. The song, which gives its title to the film, was on his last album.

A new technique used by Mackay in the film is photographing slides covered with transparent adhesive tape through a filter which producers strange flickering colors.

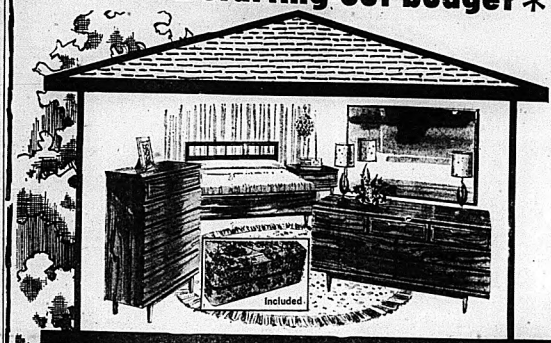
Policemen Want A Union Divorced from Organized Labor

WASHINGTON (CP) — Constable Sid Brown of Toronto, newly-elected president of the International Conference of Police Associations, says the organization hopes to force a North American policeman's union without affiliation with organized labor.

"But if we are denied the privilege of forming our own union as we wish and gaining bargaining rights," he said, "we will have to consider affiliation."

A representative of the AFL-CIO, participating in an earlier panel discussion at the association's week-long annual meeting which concluded Wednesday, had advocated affiliation with the international group. But Brown said members decided against such affiliation now.

Brown is a member of the Metropolitan Toronto police force but is exempt from police duties by virtue of his position as president of the Metropolitan Toronto Police Association. He also is president of the Police Association of Ontario and of the Canadian Police Association.



He was elected head of the international group Tuesday, after having served as vice-president for several years and as president in 1967.

The international organization, meeting in nearby Arlington, Va., represents 116 police associations with total membership of some 22,000 law enforcement officers in Canada, the U.S., Mexico and the United States Canal Zone.

Ann Landers

Bridegroom Faces Difficult Decision

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was recently discharged from the Army after having done a tour of duty in Vietnam. I contracted a venereal disease while in the service and although I have received heavy doses of penicillin I am still not cured. The Army doctor told me I have one of those unusual strains of infection that does not respond to ordinary medication. He assures me I'll get over this in time but I must continue to get treatment, which of course I shall do.

ANN LANDERS

I feel O.K. and am able to do a good day's work. But I need your advice on what to do about my girl. She is a virgin and she waited for me to come back and marry her. The wedding date is set but I don't know if I should marry her and keep my mouth shut or ask her to postpone the wedding.

Believe me I am paying a big price for a little fun which was not anywhere near as good as I thought it would be. Please help me. — REGRETS.

DEAR REGRETS: Level with your girl and ask her to postpone the wedding until you are completely well. She need not be specific as to the nature of your infection when she passes on the news of the postponement to her parents. After you are cured, ask the doctor to test you for fertility. If the disease has rendered you sterile your fiancee should be told.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm an 11-year-old boy whose parents have been divorced for a long time. My father lives in this city but he has not seen me since I was six months old.

Dad sends the support cheques in the mail. They are never late. But is that enough? I am sure he thinks he is hurting my mother by ignoring me but the truth is he is hurting me, not her. Mother is overjoyed that he stays out of her sight.

How can a father turn his back on his only son? How can a father not care if his son is sick or well, happy or unhappy? I have never received a birthday or Christmas card from him. Doesn't he know a boy needs a father? Pretending I don't exist will not make me disappear.

Please print this letter. Maybe my dad will see it and come to his senses. — ELEVEN-YEAR-OLD-SON.

DEAR MOTHER: Thank you for your letter, and I do mean YOUR letter. It is obvious that it was not written by an eleven-year-old. Why the subterfuge?

Of course your husband is being cruel to the lad and one day he may regret it. But be realistic for heaven's sake! A father who has ignored his son since infancy is not going to "come to his senses" because he reads a letter in Ann Landers' column.

If you really want to do right by the boy try to reduce his hostility instead of intensifying it. Pointing out what a rat his father it, (and he is a rat), can only make matters worse. The boy is going to have enough trouble without the added burden of despising a parent.

Reading Enriches Mind and Imagination

By DORIS CLARK

A visitor was asked what books she had been reading lately.

"Oh I have no time in my busy life for books," was her answer. Too busy in reality! One of the busiest women I know makes time for reading every day.

Not just the newspaper or a magazine but something to feed her mind and stretch her imagination. She has five children and she reads to them, too.

I know another woman who turns to her bookshelf or the local library for help with almost everything she does. When one of her youngsters started taking piano lessons, she consulted her librarian for reading material on how she could be helpful. She wanted to refinish an old chair — so she was off to the library to find directions in a how-to book.

She also reads novels, poetry, cook books. I might add she is never lonely, never at a loss for conversation.

Dear Doris: I am doing as you say about my girl friend. I have suggested, but not pushing her, to see a psychiatrist. Meanwhile I am trusting her kindly.

For the season I am working on a ship as a wheelsman. My thoughts are always about my girl friend. During my time off I try to distract myself by reading or writing letters. When I lie down, before I fall asleep, my thoughts are with her. When I wake up it is the same. Without my will, thoughts of her just appear.

On watch it is the same, always the thoughts of her! It occurred twice while I was steering and I went off course!

What can I do to get hold of these thoughts? — Grateful

Dear Grateful: Part of what is wrong is your feeling of helplessness. You are a long way from your girl, and she is not too well. Yet your letters may well be the powerful help she needs.

And we can get control of our thoughts. Deliberately tell yourself your letters are comforting your beloved, in a way that will help her thinking. Then, also very deliberately, study what it means to be a wheelsman.

Think about the lives and cargo your ship carries; let your imagination impress you with the part you play in their welfare. Watch every detail of your maps and charts and resolve that summer to improve your skill as a wheelsman.

Then write to me again.

Confidential to Cheer Up: Sorry about that. I agree that many an older woman more than holds her own, even after a period away from office work. There is something to be said for the steadiness that comes with maturity.

When writing in, allow Doris four weeks for private reply, which will be sent if a six-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed.

Delicious Chocolate Squares

By MARY MOORE

When I make a pan of squares I am confident that I will have to mimeograph hundreds of surplus copies for the requests that roll in from those who missed it or want another copy for a friend. When they are chocolate-flavored the requests are doubled.

So it was with great pleasure that I made Helen Caesar's Cookie Sheet Chocolate Squares which I tasted at her shower.

COOKIE SHEET CHOCOLATE SQUARES
(Fudge Icing; no nuts)

Batter:
1 cup milk
¼ cup cocoa
½ cup shortening
1 egg
1 cup light brown sugar (packed)
1 tsp. vanilla
½ tsp. salt
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
½ tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. baking soda

Fudge Icing:
2 2-3 cups granulated sugar
⅓ cup cocoa
⅛ cup milk (1=cup less 2 tbsps)
¼ tsp. salt
2 tbsps. butter
1 tsp. vanilla

Measure into small saucepan the 1 cup milk and ¼ cup cocoa and mix and cook stirring over low heat for 5 min. This thickens a little. Do not let it boil over. Cool in pan of cold water.

Into beater bowl measure the shortening, egg, brown sugar, vanilla and salt and beat until blended. Sift together flour, baking powder and soda and add and beat until blended. Add cooled chocolate mixture. This batter is thin. Spread on well-buttered 10 x 15" cookie sheet, preferably Teflon. Bake at 350 deg. F.from 20 to 22 min. on centre rack of oven. Cool.

To make Fudge Icing you need a thermometer. Combine all icing ingredients except butter and vanilla in large saucepan and boil to exactly 234 deg. Fahr. This took over a half hour when I made it. Remove from heat and add butter and vanilla. Stand pan in larger pan of cold water to cool down until you can comfortably hold your hand on outside of saucepan. Beat until spoon smokes begin to hold their shape. At once pour and spread over cooled pan of chocolate — working quickly, making long sweeping strokes to edges. Cool. Mark into squares or oblongs. This is a very large pan of chocolate squares with rich icing.

Points for Parents

You may not be able to see a small child in your rearview mirror. Be aware of this potential hazard every time you get into your car.

Church Spokesman Says Leading Laymen Indifferent to Union

TORONTO (CP) — An official of the United Church of Canada says leading laymen of the United Church and the Anglican Church of Canada are indifferent towards proposed union.

Rev. R. B. Craig, the United Church's permanent secretary of the general commission on church union, said:

"Generally speaking, laymen are apathetic and their apathy is brought about by lack of information or lack of interest on the part of their clergymen.

"Most of the opposition is based on myth-information that they won't be able to worship as they have been or they won't have the minister they know."

The Globe and Mail, in one of a series of interviews with officials of both churches, also quotes Dr. Craig as saying:

"They (the laymen) always want to know if their worship service will change. If their church is small they express a great fear of being swallowed up. And then they want to know when union will happen."

Dr. Craig says the plan containing the terms of union will not be ready until 1972 and that because each church will have to consider it, organic union is not possible before 1974 or 1975. He says no new form or worship will be forced upon anyone.

Dr. Craig and his Anglican counterpart, Canon Ralph R. Latimer, have been touring Canada discussing the proposed union with laymen and clergy.

Hugh McCulloch, editor of the Canadian Churchman, the Anglican monthly newspaper, said laymen have few theological objections to union.

"It seems to me many laymen just don't see the point of union. Most of them don't have very sound theological opposition. They're really afraid of what's going to happen to the little things—what's going to happen to Aunt Alice's memorial plaque."

Rev. John Webster Grant, a United Church member of the general commission, says many of the laymen's objections are based on little or no information.

"There are Anglicans who think the United Church people don't believe anything and United Church people who think that if the bishops give an order everyone in the Anglican Church automatically obeys it.

"People are afraid that if they don't use a prayer book they'll have to and if they do use it they're afraid they won't be able to."

James Taylor, who has conducted a survey for the United Church Observer, agrees that the dominant mood is apathy, but he also senses "a growing conservative backlash."

"It's a defensive reaction, I suppose, where people feel that this is their church and they don't want it adulterated by an outside body."

Eases Own Burden

Bertrand Gives More Work to Cabinet

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand distributed additional portfolios to four of his Union Nationale cabinet ministers Wednesday, easing his own workload.

The 53-year-old premier, who suffered a heart attack last year, turned over his justice portfolio to Provincial Secretary Remi Paul, 48, and relinquished his intergovernmental affairs portfolio to Marcel Masse, 33, minister without portfolio in charge of the civil service.

The finance post, vacant because of the resignation last week for health reasons of Paul Dozois, went to Immigration Minister Mario Beaulieu, 39, while Solicitor-General Armand Maltais, 55, took over as minister of financial institutions, companies and co-operatives, a position filled by Yves Gabias until his retirement.

Mr. Dozois represented Montreal St. Jacques in the national assembly and Mr. Gabias Trois-Rivieres.

The shuffle was seen as a move to give Mr. Bertrand and his main supporters in the cabinet time to put their own stamp on the government and put forward their own policies following the party's leadership convention last month.

Mr. Beaulieu, member of the national assembly for Montreal Dorion, was elected in a byelection last autumn and was immediately appointed immigration minister.

He was the party's director-general and served as personal secretary to the late premier Daniel Johnson.

Mr. Paul, who entered the House of Commons in the 1957 Diefenbaker tween, was elected to the Quebec house of 1966, served as Speaker for two sessions and was then named provincial secretary.

He is member of the national assembly for Maskinonge.

Mr. Masse, member for Montcalm, was elected in 1966 after leaving a teaching career and was given responsibility for the government's negotiations with public employees.

Mr. Maltais, member for Limoilou, was a Quebec City lawyer before being elected near the end of the Duplessis era.

Agricultural Delegates Seek Global Solutions

FREDERICTON (CP) — Problems of making food surpluses available to the hungry people of the world were given major consideration here Wednesday during closing sessions of the 20th annual conference of agricultural ministers and their deputies from across Canada.

A statement issued from the closed conference said ministers "expressed concern at the inadequacy" of existing policies to cope with the problem on a global basis.

The conference noted that despite well-intentioned, humanitarian arguments that would favor increased food production to feed the world's hungry people, it had to conclude "for all practical purposes, these humanitarian goals are not reflected in real markets available to Canada's exports."

Film Civil War Movie

Children who recently graduated from a St. Thomas, Ont., separate school have taken over a history project they did not have time to complete in June — making their own film about the American Civil War. The children are shown on location at New Sarum, about four miles east of St. Thomas. Officer directing the fire is Ted Lyons and riflemen are, from left, Thomas Skirtschak, Patricia Gleeson, Mark Peco and Larry Sagriff.

Ministers Favor Ottawa Tie

FREDERICTON (CP) — Provincial agriculture ministers have agreed to establish a federal-provincial technical committee designed to integrate provincial dairy testing programs with the federal record of production program.

The decision was announced in a statement issued here Wednesday during closing sessions of the annual Canadian agriculture ministers conference.

The statement said the "purpose of integration would be to increase the number of cows on test, provide adequate certification of tests for export purposes and to facilitate the testing of sires."

The ministers also discussed "dairy farming issues ranging from dairy herd recording to uniform legislation regarding substitute products."

No Boredom in Bilingual Camp

TORONTO (CP) — There's a summer camp in nearby Markham Township that has no discipline problems and no bored children.

The day camp, first French-language camp for English-speaking children in Ontario, is run by Gilbert Mamane, head of the French department at the Toronto Montessori school in Markham.

He selected the counsellors personally. They are all fluent in French and they must speak French all the time they are at camp, "even when they are talking to each other," he says.

For example, last year Judy Gauthier, 22, scrubbed floors in Grenoble, France, so she could learn to speak French well.

Judy is one of the 15 counsellors responsible for speaking only French to the 115 children, aged between five and 12.

Mr. Mamane said he picked some of the counsellors from France, and some from Montreal.

"I wanted the children to get used to both French accents because you don't know which accents they will hear when they grow up."

Says City To Blame

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — City coroner Dr. W. E. Sullivan Wednesday adjourned an inquest into the deaths of four Sault Ste. Marie children whose father said Tuesday he would sue the city for $4,000,000.

The father, Gerald Reid, said he held the city responsible for the deaths of his children in a July 8 fire.

Dr. Sullivan told his jury Wednesday: "I have no alternative but to adjourn this inquest . . . I want this jury to be impartial in their decision and with premature reporting of an opinion held by Mr. Reid such cannot be the case.

"This will also allow Mr. Reid to proceed with the civil action he has mentioned. . . ."

The children killed in the fire at the family's rented home were Leslie, 10, James, 9, Shirley, 8, and Francis, 7.

In an interview Tuesday, Mr. Reid said he would have been able to save the children from the fire "if they hadn't shoved me into a police car."

He also charged that officials at the fire scene were negligent in not rescuing the children.

Mr. Reid, his wife Evelyn and four other children were injured in the fire.

U.S. Senate Session Turned Into AA Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. senator, an Academy-Award winning actress, a judge and a clergyman turned a Senate hearing into a session of Alcoholics Anonymous as Congress delved into the problems of drinking.

The senator, Iowa Democrat Harold Hughes, a reformed alcoholic, was chairman of the session Wednesday as the witnesses related their life-shattering experiences with alcohol.

"The skid row bum on the park bench and I are the same person," said actress Mercedes McCambridge. "The only difference is that I am sitting here with my sense of dignity and self-esteem because I know I have my right to my life. The bum needs only to be shown that he has the right to his."

Miss McCambridge, who won an Oscar as best supporting actress in 1950, gave a moving account of her successful fight over alcoholism.

She described alcoholism as a disease but said only a few doctors understand it.

Hughes, chairman of the Senate special subcommittee on alcoholism and narcotics, said his subcommittee would dramatize to Congress the magnitude of the problem and write legislation "that is practical and that is on a realistic financial scale not previously dreamed of by this government."

Details of the legislation were not spelled out but Senators Jacob K. Javits (Rep. N.Y.) and Frank E. Moss (Dem. Utah) have introduced a bill to authorize $170,000 during a five-year period for the treatment of alcoholism.

Putting alcoholics in jail is not the answer, said Judge Ray Harrison of the Des Moines, Iowa, municipal court. He outlined his program of sending drunks to classes in his courtroom one night a week to discuss among themselves their drinking problems.

Harrison noted he had been in jail 18 times for public drunkenness before curing himself 26 years ago.

Rev. Michael Sheen of Boston told of nights he was "so saturated with liquor that I could barely stand up." Until he found himself last April, he said, his drinking shattered his life, his family and his faith.

Nixon Thinks Apollo Generated Goodwill

ABOARD ARLINGTON (AP)—President Nixon, convinced that Apollo 11 moon mission boosted spirits all over the world, was en route today to a ringside seat for the return to earth of the trail-blazing astronauts.

Before leaving San Francisco Wednesday, Nixon told a crowd of several thousand that the moon landing of Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin generated a burst of goodwill around the world.

The president hopes to capitalize on that goodwill as he visits five South Asian nations, Romania and Britain during the next 11 days.

Nixon flew Wednesday from San Francisco to Johnston Island, an island in the mid 1,200 miles from which he last visited 25 years ago while en route home from wartime navy service in the South Pacific.

Nineteen Die as Tanker Sinks

TOULON (AP) — The big N o r w e g i a n tanker Silja exploded and sank off this French Mediterranean seaport early today after a collision with the French cargo-passenger liner Ville de Majunga. The French admiralty said 19 persons from the tanker were apparently dead and four were badly injured.

Two crew members of the French ship also were hurt.

Another 16 persons from the Silja were reported rescued, apparently uninjured.

The 33,371-ton Silja was en route from Genoa to the Persian Gulf. It was assumed that it was empty, after unloading its cargo in Italy, and that there was no danger of large-scale pollution to the resort beaches of southern France.

The 8,169-ton cargo-passenger ship was en route from Marseille to Syracuse, Italy, and Madagascar. A fire broke out but was quickly extinguished.

Four women were reported among the 39 persons aboard the Silja. It was not known immediately how many were rescued.

The collision occurred off Cap de Giens, southeast of Toulon.

Law Society Critical of Provincial Judge

TORONTO (CP) — The Law Society of Upper Canada criticized Provincial Judge P. J. Bolsby Wednesday, saying his order to a policeman to escort a legal aid duty lawyer from his court showed "a complete misconception of the function of duty counsel."

In his court last Wednesday, Judge Bolsby a r o s e d duty counsel Sidney Linden from the room when he attempted to intercede on behalf of a woman who indicated she had only a slight understanding of English.

Mr. Linden was replaced by Clive Bynoe, who was in turn ordered out when he attempted to help another accused person.

After day-long recalderation of the case the legal aid program committee of the society said:

"This committee deprecates the attitude of Judge Bolsby in these cases which prevented duty counsel from performing their responsibilities under the Legal Aid Act regulations."

Committee chairman Thomas Callon of Thunder Bay said that by "deprecate" the committee meant "an expression of earnest disapproval."

Mr. Callon said no further action is contemplated in view of Attorney General Arthur Wishart's announced intention of an investigation.

Judge Bolsby justified his actions in an address from the bench Monday. He said Mr. Linden "had no client to serve; no cause to advocate, or any authority to act as he did, and no duty to discharge."

Mr. Callon responded that the lawyer had not only the right, but the obligation to intercede under the regulations of the act when he saw the woman did not understand the proceedings.

He noted that the court record showed Mr. Linden asked Judge Bolsby twice for his indulgence. This, the committee said, could not be called anything but proper.

House on A Precipice

In London, Ont., this house's backyard is only about 18 inches deep, a foothold for weeds on the brink of a 40-foot drop to the Thames River below. Erosion of the Thames bank has gradually whittled away the property during the 27 years they've lived on the street, and now it has reached a crisis stage.

Israeli Planes Hit Egypt

TEL AVIV (Reuters)—Israeli planes today struck at Egyptian military installations and positions in the Suez canal region for the third time since Sunday, an Israeli military spokesman announced.

The military spokesman said the attack followed "continuous ceasefire violations by the Egyptian army".

The Israeli announcement said these violations of the ceasefire have become the policy of the Egyptian army.

"In view of this, Israeli aircraft, today attacked Egyptian military installations and positions in the canal front," the spokesman said.

Artillery exchanges were in progress in the canal region, latest military reports in Tel Aviv said.

The raids today came only a few hours after President Nasser said the Egyptian army now is ready and able to strike back at Israel on a large scale.

In a speech Wednesday night, the 51-year-old president pledged that Egypt would battle for every inch of Arab territory lost to the Israelis in the 1967 war.

Closure Delayed

Opposition Unites to Stave Off Vote

OTTAWA (CP) — Subject to another attempt to negotiate a way out of their impasse, the government and the three opposition parties in the Commons appeared on a collision course towards closure again today.

Conservative, New Democratic, and Creditiste parties worked hand-in-hand Wednesday to stave off the Liberals' intention to terminate the protracted rules debate by closure.

For most of the four hours of the normally-abbreviated midweek sitting, the opposition raised points of order, questions of procedure, and motions to adjourn debate and so frustrate Donald Macdonald's proposal as government House leader to lower the boom.

He served notice he would try again today. If his motion to impose closure passes, the Commons will sit until 1 a.m. EDT Friday, when the crucial votes on proposed new time-allocating rules will be taken. Today's sitting is a six-hour one, but an hour of this would normally be devoted to non-government business.

At issue is a government plan to adopt a new rule letting it declare unilaterally how much time should be spent in contentious debates, if inter-party negotiations for time allocations fail.

The opposition feels that such a rule might be used by the government to push through unwelcome legislation before enough time is given to let the country become aware of what is happening. The opposition feels it needs days, sometimes, to awaken the country to the dangers it foresees.

Prime Minister Trudeau—hissed at by Conservative backbenchers Wednesday, as he was booed by the combined opposition on Tuesday—said after Wednesday's adjournment another effort at negotiation with opposition House leaders would be made by Mr. Macdonald before today's sitting.

The opposition said Wednesday night it had not heard from Mr. Macdonald.

This stormy debate over the rules has three features making it different than the closure crises in the 1956 pipeline and 1964 flag debates.

—Debating procedures and time-limiting rules do not arouse the same public interest as treasury subsidies to rich oil and gas interests to build a pipeline, or flying a new flag in place of the then time-honored Union Jack and Canadian Red Ensign.

—An election is still a long way off—perhaps four years away—unlike the 1956 debate, followed in 1957 by the upset of former prime minister Louis St. Laurent's government, or the shaky Commons minority position of former prime minister Lester B. Pearson in 1964.

—The position of the Commons' Speaker has been shrewdened by discriminating appeals from his rulings, and Speaker Lucien Lamoureux manages to cool tempers with persuasion, the soft answer and a deft touch of humor.

To be effective the closure motion must be moved and passed after the daily question period and before the Commons resumes debate on the proposed new rules. The opposition managed Wednesday to stretch what would normally be about 20 minutes of routine proceedings before question time into 3½ hours, leaving only half an hour for a 40-minute question period.

Before the question period was over, the Commons adjourned at 6 p.m. EDT. Today's sittings normally would run from 2 to 6 p.m., and 8 to 10 p.m., with the hour from 5 to 6 p.m. earmarked for private members' business.

Three motions to adjourn—one for immediate adjournment, one for a 4 p.m. adjournment, and one for a 5:30 p.m. adjournment, consumed most of Wednesday's time. By refusing to be rushed into the Commons to vote, the opposition whips managed to stretch one vote to 65 minutes.

Another vote was taken on whether Mr. Macdonald or Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) should get the floor when they both rose at the same moment. The vote went for Mr. Macdonald, to serve notice that, failing to get his closure motion before the house Wednesday, he would try again today.

Both votes were strictly along party lines, 125 to 79, and 126 to 83. There was no pairing, by which one member can agree not to vote in the absence of a friend on the other side, and there was no splitting with party leaders.

Commons standings are: 154 Liberal, 72 Progressive Conservative, 22 NDP, 14 Creditiste, and one independent member — Speaker Lamoureux — in the 264-seat house. There is one vacancy.

PCs Will Back Bennett, Berger

VANCOUVER (CP) — John de Wolf, leader of the British Columbia Progressive Conservative party, said Wednesday he is supporting Premier W. A. C. Bennett in South Okanagan and Opposition Leader Tom Berger of the New Democratic Party in Vancouver Burrard.

Mr. de Wolf, who said B.C. Tories will be encouraged to support candidates in the other three parties, also listed former NDP leader Robert Strachan in Cowichan-Malahat and Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan in Chilliwack as two more of his choices.

The Tory leader said he is considering running in Point Grey or North Okanagan.

Mr. de Wolf announced the plan to support other parties as he revealed that the Conservatives will run no more than one candidate—the party leader himself—and even he is not yet definitely a candidate.

Whether he will run, and where, will depend on how big a voluntary effort he can raise by Tories on his behalf, Mr. de Wolf said.

He said he does not want to spend a great deal of money on his campaign because all money the party has should go into rebuilding the party organization.

October Session Planned

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said in the Commons Wednesday the government proposes adjourning Parliament to an October rather than a September date because it wants time to plan next session's work.

Edward Broadbent (NDP—Oshawa Whitby) asked, why Wednesday, Oct. 22, was picked for recalling Parliament when, he said, many MPs expected Parliament to meet in September.

Every Shot Counts

Golf Becomes Serious Business Today

MONTREAL (CP) — The light-hearted, good-natured fun is over and the seriousness of making every shot count starts today as the Canadian open golf championship gets under way at Pinegrove country club in near-by St. Luc.

A total of 153 professional and amateur golfers from 12 countries tee off today in the 60th annual national championship, which carries a $125,000 purse —$25,000 to the winner.

Most of the contestants in the 72-hole tournament toured the 7,000-yard, par-72 layout leisurely Wednesday in a final tune-up.

The main attraction was a threesome of British Open winner Tony Jacklin, Bob Charles of New Zealand, runner-up to Jacklin in the British Open, and Roberto de Vicenzo, third in the British tournament.

Charles is the defending Canadian Open champion.

The three played several experimental putts, after sinking the original ball, before a gallery of up to 500.

None kept a score, but an approximate count showed Jacklin at 69, de Vicenzo at 70 and Charles at 73.

Jacklin was probably the biggest winner Wednesday.

He took $5 from a tournament marshal who wagered Jacklin that the golfer would not be able to clear his tee shot over a small river which runs across the fairway on the 375-yard par 4 fourth hole.

The British Open champion walloped a drive that easily cleared the small river. One observer said a drive of 225 yards would be needed to cross the river, which runs through the course seven times.

"I told him I didn't want his money, but he insisted on me taking it," Jacklin told reporters after his round.

"He had a bad bet anyways because I knocked my drive over the water earlier."

Jacklin played nine holes earlier in the day before joining de Vicenzo and Charles for the practice round.

He was up at 6 a.m. Wednesday, unable to sleep because he had not yet adjusted himself to the time difference between England and Canada.

De Vicenzo complained of a stomach disorder but agreed to practise with Jacklin and Charles. After getting away a good drive on the third hole, Jacklin asked de Vicenzo how he felt and the Argentinian replied: "I'm not sick anymore."

Charles said he had trouble with his drives but otherwise played well.

Sam Snead, winner of 131 golf titles, said the Pinegrove course would be a "good test of golf."

"This is the toughest course in Canada I've ever played," he said. "It's the longest one."

Snead said the greens were hard underneath and soft on top, which would cause the ball to "spring." He said some of the golfers might find themselves going over the greens with some shots if they weren't careful.

Robs Bench of Homer

Boston's Carl Yastrzemski of the American League leaps high over the left field fence to snag home run-bound ball of National League's Johnny Bench in the All-Star game's sixth inning yesterday. McLain's Presence Wouldn't Have Helped - - Smith

WASHINGTON (AP) — American League manager Mayo Smith of Detroit Tigers says the National League would have won the all-star baseball game Wednesday even if his leading pitcher, Denny McLain, had arrived at the ballpark in time to start the game.

But Hank Aaron of the National League's Atlanta Braves said the NL's power hitting might have been stopped had the AL pitching been better.

"Good pitching can always stop good hitting," Aaron said after the 9-3 NL win.

"I thought last year Odom was the best pitcher I faced in the all-star game. But his ball wasn't sinking today. We hit a lot of high fast balls."

John (Blue Moon) Odom, Oakland Athletics' pitcher, was bombed during his third-inning appearance, giving up Willie McCovey's first of two homers, two doubles and two singles for five runs.

"I wasn't actually as loose as I should have been," Odom said. "I usually take three innings to get loose, but I just couldn't get there today."

There was speculation over whether the outcome of the contest would have been different if McLain, the Tigers' 14-game winner who collected 31 wins last year, had been able to get to the ball park to start as originally planned. Smith thinks not.

"The fact that he came late had no bearing on the ball game," said Smith. "It still would have had the same result.

"He would have pitched only two innings and I would have brought on Stottlemyre or Odom. I had not planned to use any pitcher over two innings."

McLain flew to Detroit after the all-star game was postponed Tuesday night for a dental appointment. He did not return until the top of the second inning.

National League manager Red Schoendienst of St. Louis Cardinals agreed that the American League pitchers weren't as sharp as his pitchers.

"Anytime you make mistakes to guys who can hit the ball out of the park, they will hit out," Schoendienst said. "They have plenty of power. I'd like to have their club everyday."

Sports On All Fronts

OTTAWA (CP)—Buster O'Brien, 22, a quarterback from the University of Richmond, Va., and heir-apparent to Ottawa Rough Rider star Russ Jackson, was placed on waivers Wednesday by the Eastern Football Conference team.

O'Brien was being groomed to take over from Jackson following the veteran's retirement after this season.

But O'Brien's play has not been effective during brief appearances in exhibition games against Montreal, Saskatchewan and Edmonton.

O'Brien is subject to recall by Riders if he is not picked up by another Canadian Football League team within 48 hours.

BARRIE (CP)—Bep Guidolin Wednesday signed to coach Barrie Flyers in 1969-70, his second season with the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series club.

Guidolin last season led Flyers to second place in the eight-team group and they advanced to the league finals before losing to Galt Hornets, 1969 Allan Cup champions, in three straight games.

Goaltender candidates are last year's starter Ken Payne, who earned a spot on the league's second all-star team, last season's backup man Bob Saunders, and Chuck Goddard, an OHA Junior A series graduate from Peterborough Petes.

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference Wednesday released four players, including veteran halfback Jeff Atcheson, to trim their roster to 36 players. Rookie guard Wayne Conrad of University of Calgary and imports Frank Grimm, a defensive end from University of Tulsa, and quarterback Jerry Henderson of Washington State College were also cut.

AL Batting Power Stifled

McCovey Paces NL to 9-3 Win

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American League went back to the drawing board today in search of another plan to win the major league baseball all-star game.

And the AL's biggest stars disagreed over the reason why the National League has won the last seven encounters.

"They got more stars over there," said Reggie Jackson of Oakland Athletics after Wednesday's 9-3 loss to the National League.

The NL grabbed a 1-0 lead in the first inning before a crowd of 45,320. Both starters were the pitchers of record as Steve Carleton of St. Louis Cardinals picked up the victory over Mel Stottlemyre of New York Yankees.

"We don't have players like they have—like Mays, Aaron and Clemente," Jackson said. "And no Banks. And no Marichal. But we have a younger league than they have. Most of our players on the field were younger than theirs.

"So give us time—we'll be there."

Frank Howard of Washington Senators said: "I have to admit we needed this game bad for league prestige.

"I've played in both leagues and I think the American is as big a league as the National. These things seem to run in cycles. Our league will be back.

Jackson, at 23 representing the AL's younger generation, and Howard, at 33 representing the older generation, were the key players in the American League's plan for ending NL superiority.

Homerun hitters Jackson, with 37, and Howard, with 34, were the leading elements in a starting unit that had the edge on the National League starters. 179 homers to 105.

But the NL Wednesday hit three homers to the AL's two and outhit them 11-6.

Howard and Bill Freehan of Detroit Tigers collected home runs for the Americans, while Jackson failed to get the ball out of the infield in two times at bat.

Willie McCovey of San Francisco Giants hit two for the Nationals and Johnny Bench of Cincinnati Reds hit one.

Denny McLain, Detroit Tigers 14-game winner and the scheduled AL starter was in Detroit Wednesday morning to keep a dental appointment.

He was expected back in Washington for Wednesday's game but did not appear on the American League bench until the National League was batting in the second inning.

He arrived while Bench was building the National League's lead to 3-0 with his first homer, following a single by Cleon Jones. And he was sent to the bullpen to get ready while the Americans got one back on Howard's homer.

But McLain was still warming up while the National League exploded in the third inning for five runs on five hits off John Odom, including McCovey's first homer.

The Americans got one back in their half of the third inning on Freehan's homer, and then McLain was summoned to pitch. He became the victim of McCovey's record-tying second homer. Only three previous players in all-star history had hit two in one game—Arky Vaughan in 1941, Ted Williams in 1946 and Al Rosen in 1954.

McLain left for a pinch hitter when the American League came to bat.

The win gave the National League a 22-17-1 edge in 40 games. But Ted Williams, Washington's manager and a coach of the Americans under Smith, reminded everyone all streaks have to end sometime.

"When Ilianne into the league we were beating heck out of them," said Williams. "Since about 1950 they've been knocking us around pretty good. They've had some great players over there.

"But seven in a row. That ought to stop pretty soon."

Joe Hastings Hurls Joyces to Top Spot in First 1969 Start

Belleville's Senior baseball ship has righted itself. Wednesday night the Belleville Joyces responded to the challenge of a heads-on-battle for first place in the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association by battering the Kingston Lakeview Centennials 10-2.

The win broke a first-place deadlock between the two clubs and moved the Joyces two points ahead of Kingston in the EOBA standings. Kingston had moved into a first place tie with the Joyces by winning four of their previous five games. Two of those wins came at the expense of the Joyces, one last Sunday and one the Sunday previous to that.

A shortage of players forced the Joyces to start rightbander Joe Hastings for the first time this season Wednesday night.

And Hastings was more than equal to the task. In his first start since this time last year, Hastings scattered eight hits, issued only one free pass and threw third-strikes past half a dozen batters.

The young righthander threw three-hit scoreless ball for five innings before yielding single runs in the sixth and seventh innings. He left eight men stranded on base during the nine-inning contest at the Belleville Fairgrounds.

Meanwhile Hastings' teammates got him a single run in the third frame and then broke the game wide open after Kingston tied the score in the top of the sixth.

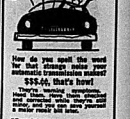
Moe Hunter got the ball rolling in the bottom of the sixth with a two-out single. A pair of walks by Kingston reliever Art Lehman and a Kingston error brought first farker Bill Barberstock up with the bases loaded.

Barberstock slammed a long single to drive in two runs and a third run scored on an error by Centennial centrefielder Brian Coffee. Jack Elliott flied out to end the inning.

But the Joyces were not through yet. They sent eight men to the plate again in the seventh inning and tallied three more runs on four straight hits. The key blows were a two-run single by third baseman Moe Hunter and an r.b.i. single by centrefielder Terry Wellesley.

The Joyces picked up two more runs in the eighth frame off reliever Gerry Greveti who came on in Belleville's three-run seventh inning rally. Keith Weese started for the Centennials but left the game after three innings because of a back injury. The trio of Kingston hurlers gave up 12 hits and three walks while fanning six men.

Gary Goyer's double and two singles paced the winners at the plate. Moe Hunter and Terry Wellesley each collected a brace of singles, while Carl Bonichower with a double and Bill Barberstock, Jack Elliott, Larry Mavety and John McKibbon with singles also hit safely for the Joyces.



Second baseman Boomhower was ejected from the game in the bottom of the fifth inning for slamming his bat on home plate and objecting to the umpire's decision.

Wednesday night's win brings the Joyces record to eight and five with three games remaining in the 16-game EOBA schedule.

Sunday night the Leaside Maple Leafs will take on the Joyces in an 8 p.m. game at the Fairgrounds. This will be the Leaside club's only appearance in Belleville this season as they play only a partial schedule with the EOBA clubs.

Need Second-half Spurt

Tigers, Cards Seek to Repeat

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Can Detroit Tigers and St. Louis Cardinals put on a second-half drive and again finish on top in the American and National Leagues?

That is the big question as the pennant races resume today in major league baseball.

The Tigers and the Cardinals generally have been written off as repeat champions this year, but baseball is an unpredictable game and there always is a chance.

The Cardinals open a home stand against San Francisco Giants tenight in third place in the NL's Eastern Division, 11 games back of the first-place Chicago Cubs.

The Tigers similarly open a home stand against Kansas City Royals, also in third place in the AL's Eastern Division, 11½ games behind the leading Baltimore Orioles.

The Tigers appear to face a more difficult task than the Cardinals, since Baltimore is rolling along at a .677 clip with 65 victories against 31 defeats. Boston is second with a 54-42 record and the Tigers next at 52-41.

The Cards must overtake Chicago Cubs and New York Mets. The Cubs, who play Los Angeles Dodgers today, are on top with a 60-37 record, 4½ games ahead of the Mets who have a 53-39 mark. The Cards are just one game above, 500 at 49-48.

Los Angeles and the Giants are on the skids of the fight with Atlanta Braves for first place in the NL's Western Division, so the Cubs and Cardinals face a stern test today.

At New York, Philadelphia at Houston and San Diego at Pittsburgh.

Minnesota Twins, seeking to increase their four-game lead over, Oakland Athletics in the AL's Western Division, play at Cleveland tonight while the Athletics are at home against Washington Senators.

New York is at California, Boston at Seattle and Chicago White Sox at Baltimore in the other AL games.

Trudeau Lights Torch

OTTAWA (CP) — The official torch for the 1969 Canada Summer Games was lighted by Prime Minister Trudeau on Parliament Hill Wednesday and immediately began a 1,000-mile relay journey to Halifax—site of the Games.

Pretty Penny Werthner, an 18-year-old Ottawa high school student who will compete in the 800-metre run at the Games, skimmed away from the Centennial Flame without so much as a kiss after being handed the torch by the prime minister.

The butane torch will be carried by 850 young runners on its route through Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and into Nova Scotia.

It is expected to arrive in Halifax Aug. 15, the day before the opening of the 13-day competitions, which will feature 2,700 Canadian athletes competing in 16 athletic events from track and field to lawn bowling.

Fresh Sparks Fly Between New York and Washington

NEW YORK (AP) — The Jackie Robinson-Bob Feller racial feud wafted hotter Wednesday with fresh sparks flying between New York and Washington, D.C., the All-Star capital.

"It's a damned lie, and I want you to quote me," Robinson said in a telephone call to The Associated Press after reading that he once held up an exhibition game while demanding more money.

"This is just further proof that Feller hasn't grown up in 23 years."

Robinson, the first Negro to break into major league baseball, and Feller, the onetime fastballing ace of Cleveland Indians, exchanged sharp words over the game's racial practices during an old-timers' panel discussion Tuesday in Washington.

Later Maury Allen of the New York Post quoted Feller as saying friction between the two players first developed in 1946 when, according to Feller, Robinson refused to take the field unless he was paid three times more than given the other men.

Robinson, now an executive with a frozen-food firm, insisted vehemently in his call that the incident did not take place.

Robinson and Feller swapped verbal jibes in Washington after the Negro star accused baseball of failing to give black players an equal break in administrative posts.

Feller countered with the comment: "You get paid for your ability. No player owes anything to baseball—baseball owes nothing to any player."

Robinson didn't remain in Washington for the All-Star game, won 9-3 by the National League Wednesday. It was the NL's seventh straight victory.

Two Points Separate Top Four Teams

Trails On The Way To Victory

Commercial League Tightens Up at Top

The playoff picture in the seven team Commercial Softball League is getting a little clearer all the time, but one would have only one chance in four of picking the eventual pennant winner.

With only 17 games remaining of the 84-game season, three clubs — City Hotel, Richard Ellis Juniors and Stinson's Construction — are tied for first place and a fourth team — Point Anne Cementmen — is only two points behind the league leaders.

There's an eight-point gap between Point Anne and Corby's Distillery and Black Diamond Cheesemen who are tied for fifth place and Belvedere Hotel brings up the rear two points further back.

Stinson's Construction's 3-2 win over City Hotel and Black Diamond's 4-3 victory over Ellis Juniors Wednesday night in the Commercial League doubleheader at Alemite ball park created the three-way deadlock at the top of the league.

Meanwhile the Cementmen kept pace with the league leaders by downing Belvedere Hotel 7-4 in Point Anne.

Stinson's righthander Bob Swan boasted along with a three-run lead until the sixth frame when City shortstop Pug Kellar slammed a two-out, two-run homer to narrow the Builders margin to one run.

Swan fanned City hurler Bob Ethier to end the inning and limited the Hotelmen to Doug Murray's single in the bottom of the last inning.

Swan finished with a four-hitter. He fanned four and issued three free passes. Ethier also hurled a four-hitter while striking out eight and walking only one, but Stinson's three-run third inning rally saddled him with the loss.

Stinson's bunched together a leadoff single by Neil Campbell, Ron Fuller's r.b.i. single and a pair of City errors to get their three runs.

Fuller, Campbell, Rick Locke and Ken Genereux each singled for the winners, while Doug Murray with a pair of singles, Kellar with his homer and Ken McLeod with a single accounted for City's hits.

BLACK DIAMOND 4
ELLIS JUNIORS 3

Jack Francis' two-run homer in the bottom of the sixth inning proved to be the deciding blow in Black Diamond's 4-3 win over the Juniors.

Francis' blow gave the Cheesemen a 4-2 lead and they held on to win despite Paul Goodfellow's leadoff double in the top of the seventh and Wayne McTaggart's run-scoring single.

Don Holoway on the mound for Black Diamond settled down to retire the next three batters and end the threat. Holoway threw a five-hitter, fanned a pair and issued two free passes.

Losing pitcher Mark Sheridan allowed seven hits, walked a pair and struck out two men in his six inning stint.

Jack Francis contributed a run-scoring first inning double to the Cheesemen's attack in addition to his two-run homer. Don Holoway doubled for the winners while Gene Francis, Jerry Hill, Martin Walsh and Don Wood all hit safely for the winners.

Bob Parsons with a solo home run, John Campbell and Paul Goodfellow with doubles and Dale Duval and Wayne McTaggart with singles accounted for the Juniors' hits.

POINT ANNE 7
BELVEDERE 4

Eight players hit safely and six of them drove in runs for the Point Anne Cementmen in their 7-4 win over cellar-dwelling Belvedere Hotel.

Point Anne jumped on Belvedere hurler Wayne McConnell for eight hits and six runs in the first three innings to build up a 6-0 lead before Belvedere scored in the top of the fourth inning.

The Cementmen collected three more hits and another run in the bottom of the fourth frame and pitcher Ted Waite held off the Hotelmen to allow the Cementmen to keep pace with the Commercial League leaders.

Waite scattered eight hits, walked one man and fanned a pair in his winning effort. Losing pitcher McConnell gave up 11 hits, walked three and struck out four.

Tom MacDonald with a double and single, and Larry Fraser and Rick Rosebush with a pair of singles each paced the winners at the plate. Ted Waite with a double and Gery Maher and Vern Whalen with singles also hit safely for the Cementmen.

Lyle Annamaker slammed three doubles to top the Hotelmen at the plate. Jerry St. Denis with a pair of singles, Larry Burley with a triple and Doug Rose and Wayne McConnell with singles collected the Hotelmen's other hits.

97-yard Pass and Run Romp Gives Lions Win Over Argos

VANCOUVER (CP) — Quarterback Paul Brothers sent Jim Young on a 97-yard pass and run romp with 1:35 remaining Wednesday night to give British Columbia Lions a 27-25 victory over Toronto Argonauts in a Canadian Football League exhibition game before 21,310 fans.

The game wasn't decided until rookie Toronto place kicker Tom Johansen missed a field goal attempt with less than six seconds showing on the clock. It went for a single. Brothers also hit offensive end Jake Scott for a first-quarter touchdown.

Ted Gerela kept the Lions in front with four field goals, one from 52 yards, and two converts. He also added a single when Gerry Sternberg had to concede a blocked kick in the Argos' end zone.

Tom Wilkinson sparked the argonaut offence. Wilkinson hit Mel Profit with a 13-yard touchdown pass at 8:37 of the third quarter and Bobby Taylor midway through the fourth.

Dick Thornton picked off the ball after a blocked kick with less than five minutes remaining and bolted 12 yards for the other Toronto score.

Johansen, who booted one field goal, was good on all three converts before blowing the field goal which would have tied the game.

Wilkinson came on in place of Argo's starting quarterback Wally Gabler after Gerela ran the score to 14-3 at 3:40 of the third and the Argonauts started to move.

Toronto coach Leo Cahill said prior to the game that Wilkinson is trade-bait.

Wilkinson hit 14 for 19 for a total of 172 yards. Gabler, a standout of Toronto's march to the Eastern Conference final last season, was six for 19 and had one interception.

Brothers, playing his best game of the exhibition schedule, was good on 16 of 26 tries for 334 yards.

Cahill Shows Interest in Back

VANCOUVER (CP) — Coach Leo Cahill of Toronto Argonauts said Wednesday he is "very interested" in acquiring the service of Winnipeg halfback Dave Rainey, now embroiled in a dispute with his Western Football Conference club.

Cahill said in an interview prior to his team's exhibition game with British Columbia Lions Wednesday night that trade talks "are supposed to start as soon as we get back from this trip tomorrow."

He said Rainey, a five-year veteran with the Bombers, would fit in well with the Toronto running attack.

"He's a great back," he said.

"Could you imagine him and (fullback Bill) Symons in the same backfield?"

Asked about a report that the Eastern Football Conference club was prepared to offer a five- or six-player package for the explosive Winnipeg Star, Cahill replied:

"That's just speculation. I'm not prepared to divulge any of the ingredients—it wouldn't be fair to any of the other boys."

Rainey has stayed away from the Winnipeg locker room since a verbal spat with sophomore quarterback John Schneider in Hamilton Sunday.

He was sent home by coach Joe Zaleski and did not appear at Tuesday night's workout.

Rainey May Stay With Blue Bombers

WINNIPEG (CP) — General Manager Earl Lunsford of Winnipeg Blue Bombers says he thinks halfback Dave Rainey will remain with the club.

Lunsford said in an interview Wednesday following a three-hour meeting concerning Rainey that nothing is definite yet, but "I think it will all be resolved" by today.

A dispute between Rainey and coach Joe Zaleski developed before a Canadian Football League exhibition game at Hamilton. Rainey was sent home by Zaleski after a verbal clash with Winnipeg's young quarterback, John Schneider.

Since then, Rainey was asked to skip a workout Tuesday, while management pondered the problem.

Talk of trades involving Rainey blossomed in the wake of the altercation.

Toronto Argonauts coach Leo Cahill was reported in contact with the Bomber camp Tuesday but Cahill would not confirm a report he had offered five or six players for Rainey.

In an interview Wednesday night, Rainey said he is confident his problems with coach Zaleski and the team will be ironed out.

"I talked to management about three times today, and it looks pretty good as far as I'm concerned," he said.

South Africa Preserves Role

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — South Africa is fighting on three fronts to preserve some of its remaining role in international sports.

The rule that black and white athletes cannot compete against each other here has barred South Africa from the last two Olympic Games and led to the international blacklisting of the country's soccer, table tennis and amateur boxing bodies.

But South Africa is struggling to prevent its permanent expulsion from the Olympic movement, expulsion from the Davis Cup and cancellation of a cricket tour of England next summer

White sports bodies in South Africa hailed it as a victory of sorts when the International Olympic Committee, meeting in Warsaw in early June, postponed for a year any decision on expulsion.

South Africa came close to getting back into the Olympics last year, by agreeing to send an integrated team to Mexico City.

Although that concession was hauled back aside, the Warsaw meeting was considered a test on this country's hopes of competing in future Olympiads.

The South African Olympic Committee sent a three-man delegation to Warsaw to do everything possible to block the expulsion drive. Although no vote was announced, it was understood a considerable majority of the Olympic countries agreed to defer the issue.

Frank Braun, president of the South African Olympic Committee, said before he went to Warsaw: "If they start with us, others will follow. Few members of the movement have spotless records."

Miss Strong Advances

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Vivian Strong and Jane O'Hara, both of Toronto won single and double events Wednesday to stay in contention in the fourth day of the Ontario open tennis tournament.

Miss Strong defeated Sylva Rozenberg of Toronto 6-1 6-4 in the women's singles quarter-finals while Miss O'Hara downed Heather Young, also of Toronto 6-1, 6-0.

In the women's doubles semi-finals, Miss Strong and Miss O'Hara combined to defeat Miss Young and Sefanie Green of Vancouver 6-4, 6-1.

Investigation Into Ted Kennedy's Accident Not Completed

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (AP) — The investigation into Senator Edward M. Kennedy's automobile accident in which a woman passenger was killed "isn't completed—not by a long shot," says a supervisor of the Massachusetts registry of motor vehicles.

The supervisor, Georges W. Kennedy, no relation to the senator, commented Wednesday after the state agency announced in Boston it has temporarily suspended the senator's driver's licence because of the accident.

"Registry officials noted such action is fairly routine in cases involving a fatality.

The suspension was based on a preliminary finding that the 37-year-old Massachusetts Democrat was at "fault" in the accident, which claimed the life of a young Washington secretary. Kennedy has been charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

Mary Jo Kopechne, 28, a secretary to the late Senator Robert F. Kennedy, died in the accident.

The senator, widely viewed as a 1972 Democratic presidential candidate, did not go to the police until almost 10 a.m. Saturday, nine or 10 hours after the accident.

Edgartown Police Chief Dominic Arena still wants to find out what happened in the time between the accident and the time Kennedy reported it.

"We are satisfied that the accident is an accident," Arena said. "What happened afterward is the reason for the (leaving the scene) complaint."

Arena said he wanted particularly to talk with the persons who were reported to have attended a party with Kennedy and Miss Kopechne on Chappaquiddick prior to the accident.

Arena said he had "asked for outside help" from the district attorney's office, but had received none.

In New Bedford, District Attorney Edmund Dinis issued a statement saying he had received no formal request for help from Arena.

Kennedy said Tuesday when he returned from Miss Kopechne's funeral in Pennsylvania that he would make a statement "at the appropriate time." So far he has not made one.

Ten persons—five men and five women—are said to have been at the party besides Kennedy and Miss Kopechne.

The men have been identified as Joseph Gargan, first cousin and close personal friend of Kennedy and the man who rented the cottage where the party was held; Paul Markham, former U.S. attorney for Massachusetts and another close Kennedy friend; Ray LaRosa and Charles Tretter, who, with the other three, had made up the crew on Kennedy's boat in a yacht race earlier Friday off Edgartown; and John Crimmins, Kennedy's driver.

The women are said to have been Esther Newburg; Nance Lyons, Kennedy's secretary; her sister, Mary Ellen; Rosemary Keogh; and Susan Ternenbaum.

In a police statement, Kennedy said he tried repeatedly to rescue Miss Kopechne after the accident, but couldn't locate her.

He didn't say how he got back to Edgartown, who took him or what time it was when he arrived. He said he went to the police as soon as he fully realized what had happened.

Miss Newburg was quoted in a copyright story Wednesday in the Worcester Gazette as saying she and the four other girls at the party did not learn of the accident until Saturday morning.

In an interview with the New York News, Miss Newburg was also quoted as saying she couldn't believe any of the men who remained behind knew about the accident either.

In the Gazette story, she was quoted as saying the men were in and out of the cottage" during the night.

In The News account, Miss Newburg said: "The few times I saw them (the men) during the night they were perfectly calm, and I can't believe they would be calm if they knew about it."

People Are Not Led Astray

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts At Large:

I don't believe that people, even juveniles, are "led astray" by others; when they follow, it is because something in their nature has been conditioned to respond to the tune of these Pied Pipers; at one level of our being, we always know what we are doing, even though we may not know why we are doing it.

Why do some humans feel insulted when we are referred to as an "animal species" since it is Man who destroys the Earth and exploits and exterminates his own kind, not the other animals?

Men are largely irrational in their attitudes toward women — a man will be annoyed if a woman doesn't know as much about something as he thinks she should, but he becomes even more annoyed when she exhibits more knowledge than he thinks she should have.

The trouble with "free speech" is that we are willing to practise it more than we are willing to listen to it; and without citizens who listen as intensely as they talk, no constructive social dialogue is possible.

• • •

The first precondition for that elusive state known as "happiness" is never to think about it.

• • •

Hypocrites learn too late, if at all, the truth of Gide's remark that "It is better to be hated for what you are than to be loved for what you are not."

• • •

A family I know are concerned because their teen-age boy refuses to return to prep school and wants desperately to be an auto mechanic; whereas I think they should be grateful for the fact that he wants to be something at that extremely unsophisticated age, and should encourage his mechanical interest, rather than trying to thwart it.

• • •

Everybody extracts from "history" those lessons he wants the rest of the world to know, while comfortably ignoring those events that contradict his own neat theory of cause and effect.

• • •

Newspapers will pay some attention to those critics who complain that "papers play up the seamy side of life" the first time the editors observe a mob of people cruising across town to watch a Golden Anniversary.

• • •

All dogmatism is involved in self - contradiction; like the man who said: "Never use the word never."

• • •

One melancholy definition of "civilization" is that it is a process of going from a state where doors are left unlatched and valuables lying around loosely, to a state where doors are bolted and valuables placed in vaults.

Mohawk Baby Girl Believed Abducted

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Fifty FBI agents joined city police Wednesday in their search for a baby Mohawk Indian, believed kidnapped by a woman just one week before the child's second birthday.

Ned J. Welch, special agent in charge of the Buffalo FBI office, said the agents had been enlisted from a 17-country area.

Police, meanwhile, checked 30 yellow convertibles and looked for more in their search for the infant. The woman was said to have driven such a car.

"We haven't found a real clue yet," a police spokesman said more than 24 hours after Patricia Ann Martin disappeared.

The search was concentrated in Buffalo, but spread throughout Western New York into other states and to Canada.

Dispatchers said the baby's sister, Shellie, 8, had been pushing Patricia Ann in the stroller in the city's west side when a woman drove up in a yellow convertible Volkswagen. The woman, Shellie said, gave her $1 and asked her to get a quart of milk at a nearby store.

When Shellie returned her sister and the woman were gone.

Your Dollars

We Eat Well

By KEN WEERES

The one area at present being criticized by the consumer is the food industry. Perhaps it is justified. But, in Canada, consumers now are spending a smaller percentage of their income, about 22 percent, on food than most countries. And in return they are receiving the best food possible.

The main area of contention is the packaging and weight of food. You may try to compare an article weighing 16½ ounces, costing 89 cents, with another weighing 7¾ ounces, and costing 53 cents — but it isn't easy. It is expected that the government will soon take steps to standardize weights and grades so that a consumer can make better comparisons.

To save on food costs, a few simple suggestions may help.

First, always make a shopping list. This will give you a chance to consider what foods you should buy and force you to plan ahead, and it will help to cut down on impulse buying. The shopping list should include all the food you will require for the next week. This saves time, energy, and cuts the cost of repeatedly going to the store. This, of course, requires that you plan your meals in advance.

Second, if you can, get a deep-freeze. This allows you to buy food, particularly meat, in bulk. It is probably the one thing you can do which will cut down food costs. And it adds convenience, ease and choice.

Third, you might buy canned milk in bulk. You save when you buy a case, and the food certainly won't spoil. However, it may not pay to buy perishable products in bulk if you can't use it all before it spoils.

Fourth, check your newspaper food advertisements. Many of the weekend food specials are often for sale at prices that give the store very little, if any, profit. A little comparative shopping at home checking the advertisements, can mean big savings. But it can be carried to extremes. For example, it doesn't pay to drive across town to save 10 cents on a roast.

If possible, shop by yourself. At least, don't bring the children along. They have the greatest ability for running up the food bill by asking you to buy products that are exciting packages.

Sixth, cut out food waste by cooking with care and making use of leftovers. It has been estimated that the average family throws away almost three pounds of food a day. Cooking the right amount and using leftovers helps cut costs.

Undoubtedly, your family's proper diet of calories, vitamins, and other nutrients is important to maintain and improve their health. With the food that is available in Canada, most families can have a well-balanced nutritious diet.

But your dollars will go further when you take the time to plan your food purchases.

Astronauts See Flight As Symbol of Mankind's 'Insatiable Curiosity'

HOUSTON (AP) — As one of their last acts in space, the three Apollo 11 astronauts paused to praise the human effort that gave wing to their flight, to the will of the country that made it possible and, quietly, to God.

"We've come to the conclusion that this has been far more than three men on a voyage to the moon," said Edwin Aldrin. "We feel that this stands as a symbol of the insatiable curiosity of all mankind to explore the unknown."

Their farewell telecast, inbound from the adventure that quickened mankind's pulse, was restrained.

"We accepted the challenge of going to the moon," Aldrin said. "The acceptance of this challenge was inevitable. The relative ease with which we carried out our mission, I believe, is a tribute to the timeliness of that acceptance."

It was the crew's choice, he said, to put a replica of their flight emblem on the moon: "The U.S. eagle bringing the universal symbol of peace from the earth, from the planet earth to the moon—that symbol being an olive branch."

And Aldrin closed his talk by reading from the Book of Psalms:

"When I consider Thy heavens, the work of Thy fingers, the moon and the stars, which Thou hast ordained; what is man that Thou art mindful of him?"

Michael Collins, who orbited the moon while Neil Armstrong and Aldrin descended to its surface, called attention to the millions of parts in their spacecraft and its rocket that had to function flawlessly.

"We have always had confidence that all this equipment will work and work properly," he said. "All this is possible only through the blood, sweat and tears of a number of people.

"First, the American workmen who put these pieces of machinery together at the factory. Second, the painstaking work done by the various test teams during the assembly and the re-tests after assembly.

"And finally, the people of the Manned Spacecraft Centre. . . . This operation is somewhat like the periscope of a submarine. All you see is the three of us, but beneath the surface are thousands and thousands of others who have worked their fingers to the bone and who have spent many sleepless nights and who are wholly dedicated to the success of this mission.

"To all of those people I would like to say 'thank you very much.'"

Finally, Armstrong—the first human on the moon—told the television audience:

"The responsibility for this flight lies first with history and with the giants of science who preceded this effort. Next, to the American people who have through their will indicated their desire.

"Next, the four administrations and their congresses for implementing that will. And then to the agency and industry team that built our spacecraft, the Saturn, the Columbia, the Eagle and the little EMU (life support system on the moon), the spacesuit and backpack that was our small spacecraft out on the lunar surface."

And then Armstrong said:

"We'd like to give a special thanks to all those Americans who built those spacecraft, who did the construction, design, the tests and put their hearts and all their abilities into those craft.

"To those people tonight we give a special 'thank you.' And to all the other people who are listening and watching tonight, sirs. And to all of those I would God bless you."

Old Rule Is Invoked To Impose New One

Closure Brings 'Sieg Heil' Cry

OTTAWA (CP)—A rule rejected by the full Commons opposition was forced into the book early today by closure as the first session of Parliament under Prime Minister Trudeau drifted towards an end amid cries of "shame" and "sieg heil".

The rule gives the government the power to control debating time but Mr. Trudeau said in an interview he doesn't expect it to be used often.

Conservatives yelled "Heil Hitler" at him as they left the chamber at 2 a.m. but the prime minister didn't appear perturbed.

The Commons had discussed the new time-allocation rule for 10 days. It took two more on the government decision to invoke closure, the eighth time the parliamentary gag has been used since 1917 when it was introduced in the days of the nine-hour—or longer—speech.

In three votes, the last two after 1 a.m. EDT, Liberals voted through the closure motion 136 to 82, defeated a Conservative motion to send the new rules proposals back to committee 141 to 82, and brought the rule into effect by a vote of 142 to 84.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberals 154, Conservative 72, NDP 22, Creditiste 14, Independent 1, vacant 1.

The House sits again today to try to wrap up odds and ends before adjourning until Wednesday, Oct. 22 for a summer recess that originally was expected to begin June 27.

When it adjourned at 1:59 a.m., the public galleries were still half-filled after a day of dramatic debate which drew a full house and diplomats drifted in after the National Arts Centre Show, a couple of giggly secretaries brightened the scene, and a group of nuns stayed late.

The high point came after the closure motion as Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) and Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield urged Speaker Lucien Lamoureux to refuse to put the motion containing the rule. They argued that it was a breach of privilege.

Mr. Stanfield said the rule might be the first step towards a Gaullist chamber in which the opposition would have no real power. Changing the rules without opposition agreement was

Postmen Prepare Demands

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will learn within a month what the country's militant postal workers want in a new contract, Signs point to a stress on improved working conditions.

At this point a year ago the 25,000-member Council of Postal Unions was mid-way through a three-week strike.

It's too early to predict how negotiations will go this time around. The present contract expires Sept. 30 and the council is supposed to serve notice of intent to bargain by Aug. 1.

Roger Decarie, council co-chairman and head of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada, said in an interview Thursday representatives of his union and of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers have been hammering out their final contract proposals at meetings here over the last two weeks.

"There will be more emphasis on working conditions," he said, while adding that the pay question will get a thorough going over as well.

The council's demands will be handed to government treasury negotiators about a month from now. Until then—and likely for many weeks thereafter—details remain confidential.

Israel, Egypt Swap Claims After Battle

Israel and Egypt swapped claims and denials after their third big battle of the week across the Suez canal.

Firing across the canal resumed in the southern section this morning, an Israeli spokesman said. One Israeli soldier was slightly wounded, he added.

Egyptian President Nasser again issued a tough declaration of Arab military intent.

At the same time, Israeli leaders assessed recent escalations in the fighting and U.S. officials said neither the U.S. nor Russia expected full-scale war at present.

Planes from both sides struck at each other's positions Thursday. When it was over, Israel said seven Egyptian planes, six MiGs and one Sukhoi fighter-bomber, were shot down and two were damaged. An Israeli spokesman said all Israeli aircraft returned to base and an Egyptian pilot was captured.

Egypt admitted it lost one plane. It claimed it downed seven Israeli jets and hit three others with anti-aircraft fire.

No Trace of 'Moonbugs' Found on Healthy Trio

ABOARD HORNET (CP) — Back from the moon but isolated from the world, the men of Apollo 11 today were pronounced by a young Canadian space medicine expert to be in better condition than astronauts returning from previous flights. No trace of any moonbugs has been found so far.

After 11 hours of examining the spacemen, Dr. William Carpentier of Lake Cowichan, B.C., said he found no evidence of contamination from the moon. Despite one astronaut's minor ear inflammation "I think they're in good shape," he said.

The physician said Neil Armstrong, Edwin Aldrin and Michael Collins showed less deterioration in heart and blood vessels than other Apollo men have had. He wasn't sure why.

But he was sure the inflammation in one of Armstrong's ears was not important. He said there may have been a buildup of fluid in the ear due to the pressures of re-entry and that the fluid was draining.

The men will be under painstaking medical scrutiny for 21 days due to the remote possibility they might have brought to earth some unknown and potentially dangerous germs from the moon.

Actually, no one knows whether there are germs on the moon. Many scientists doubt it. But the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is taking no chances.

California Plans 1975 Ban On Internal-Combustion Cars

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — In a move aimed at reducing air pollution caused by exhaust from cars and trucks, California's Senate has voted to ban sales in the state of new vehicles powered by internal-combustion engines starting Jan. 1, 1975.

The proposal, approved by the Senate on Thursday night, now goes to the Assembly. If approved there, it would need Gov. Ronald Reagan's signature to become law.

The bill's author, Democratic Senator Nicholas C. Petris, said it "will be a tremendous incentive to the industry to purify its current engines en-ceome up with an alternative."

A companion bill awaiting action in the Senate would allocate $1,000,000 for research to find a smog-free way of powering vehicles.

Kennedy Pleads Guilty to Leaving Scene of Fatal Accident

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (CP) — Senator Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts pleaded guilty today to a charge of leaving the scene of a fatal accident and was given a two-month suspended jail term.

Defence lawyers told the court they had "legal defences" they could use but Kennedy insisted on pleading guilty and accepting punishment.

Kennedy told reporters as he left the courthouse that he had requested network television time tonight "to explain to the people of Massachusetts."

His Washington office said the report, on both radio and television, would be made at 9:30 p.m. EDT.

His arraignment was in a courtroom in which the majority of spectators were some 50 newspaper men. They were from all parts of the country and representing newspapers as far away as Japan. Outside the courtroom were 50 photographers and television cameramen.

Kennedy was the driver of a car that plunged off a narrow bridge and into a tidal pond on Chappaquiddick Island last Friday night. A pretty blonde secretary from Washington was drowned.

Kennedy's arraignment and disposition of the case took only about 10 minutes in the crowded second-floor courtroom of the 150-year-old red brick courthouse.

When Judge James Boyle opened the session at 9:01 a.m. EDT, Clerk Thomas A. Teller called the Kennedy case first.

Kennedy stood at the rail as Teller read the words of the complaint.

"How do you plead guilty, or not guilty?"

Kennedy replied in a low voice, "Guilty."

Judge Boyle asked to hear some of the evidence and the prosecutor, Walter D. Steele, called the Edgartown Police Chief Dominick J. Arena.

The complaint said "Edward M. Kennedy of Boston did go away after causing injury to Miss Mary Jo Kopechne without making known your name and registration number."

Miss Kopechne was drowned in the accident when Kennedy's 1966 Oldsmobile went into a tidal pond.

Arena described how he had gone to the scene of the accident a week ago on Chappaquiddick Island, recovered the body, and that when he returned to the station, Kennedy "advised me that he was driver of the car, and that the accident happened sometime after 11:15 p.m. Friday."

For pre-hearing story on the Kennedy case see page 17.

"It was not reported to me until after 9 a.m. the next day," Arena testified.

Defence counsel Robert G. Clark Jr. and Richard J. McCarron said they had no questions.

"Well, I have," said the judge. "Was there any deliberate effort to conceal the identity of the defendant?"

"Not to my knowledge, your honor," Arena replied. McCarron spoke up.

"Your honor, the defence attorneys have advised Mr. Kennedy there are legal defences he could bring ..."

"Just a minute," the judge broke in. "Do you now want to plead not guilty?"

"No, your honor. The defence is adamant in that he wishes to plead guilty to this offence of operating a motor vehicle and going away from the scene of the accident and to leave the disposition to this court.

"It is the attitude of both prosecution and defence counsel that confinement to jail is not necessary or proper in this case and asks suspension."

Steele then told the court that the state asked for a sentence of two months—the minimum in the two-month to two-year penalty provided by law.

Steele also recommended suspension.

He said:

"Having in mind the character and the reputation of the defendant the ends of justice would not be served by a jail term."

"Considering the unblemished record of this defendant," the judge said, "he has already been and will continue to be punished far beyond anything this court can impose."

"I will impose the minimum and suspend if the defendant accepts the suspension," the judge said, looking at Kennedy.

The clerk then read out the sentence:

"This court has found you guilty of leaving the scene of an accident and orders you to be confined for a period of two months in the Barnstable House of Correction, sentence suspended."

Flushing Old Hat In Watermain Cleaning

The Belleville Public Utilities next October will see a local trial of a new method for cleaning municipal watermains which could revolutionize future approaches to this problem in Ontario communities.

Local PUC manager E. L. Burnham said the trial in Belleville was scheduled for Oct. 16.

The traditional method for cleaning watermains consists of "flushing" operations which see water shot through the pipes at high velocity to dislodge material that over the years has collected on the inside of the pipe.

The new technique, developed and initiated in England, is both simple and inexpensive. A foam "pig" is inserted into an isolated section of watermain through a fire hydrant, this "pig" then being forced through the pipe and out another hydrant via pressure from a third hydrant.

As the "pig" passes through the pipe section it does a scouring action loosening the debris adhering to the inside of the watermain.

Recent tests conducted at Windsor indicated the technique is highly effective and local utility commission members are optimistic of what it could do for Belleville.

Mr. Burnham said the local tests had been arranged through the Ontario Water Resources Commission and the commission had already obtained some of the "pigs" for practice runs.

Two local utilities men, Fred Clark and Pete Lewis recently went to Aurora to watch tests there.

The material brought out by the pigs is mostly rust.

Mr. Burnham said the commission wanted to learn all it could about the technique and felt it could be of benefit to Belleville.

To overcome the rust problem in iron watermains, a new type of cement lime pipe has been developed and already has been used in some installations in the city.

But the conventional iron watermains can last a long time despite rust problems.

"We have valves and pipes which have been in the ground since as far back as 1886 when the first water service was installed in the city," Mr. Burnham said.

Committee Meets To Map Out Quinte Air Service

The co-operative community effort to secure a commercial air service for the Quinte district is in full flight.

Yesterday a committee representing Hastings and Prince Edward counties held its first official meeting — and produced its official title: Quinte Air Services Committee.

Now the effort is on to secure a carrier and an operating base.

A committee spokesman said Canadian Forces Base, Trenton likely would be the most suitable site for such an operation.

Initial impetus for the committee came from the mayors of Belleville and Trenton and wardens of both counties cooperating on a feasibility study for such a service.

"The research proved favorable," said Ray Brown, Belleville's industrial commissioner and secretary - treasurer of the committee.

The group then was formed to investigate site locations, carriers and all aspects of the operation of a commercial air service."

Establishment of such a service is seen as inducement to new industry and a benefit to executives of existing industry in corporate travel.

Chairman of the committee is Hastings County warden Don Rodgers.

Members are:

Belleville — Ald. Douglas Boyle, Ald. Gerald Joyce, City Manager J. R. Reynolds.

Trenton — Mayor D. James MacDonald, Councillor Paul Trim, Chamber of Commerce secretary - manager Jack Wilson.

Prince Edward — Ameliasburg reeve George Cunningham, North Marysburg reeve Allan Ralley, county warden director Grant Harvey.

Hastings — Marmora reeve William Shannon, county administrator Carl Bateman.

tine trailer on the Hornet's hangar deck, the space heroes could barely see the world they had thrilled. But they did call their wives by radiotelephone.

A smiling President Nixon aboard the Hornet to deliver his congratulations personally, had to use an intercommunication system to converse with the spacemen as they stood at a window of the isolation trailer called a mobile quarantine facility—MQF.

While the medical checks continued, scientists at Houston and around the world awaited the precious cargo of lunar body-samples scooped up from the surface of the moon by Armstrong and Aldrin which could help unlock some secrets of the universe.

Special aircraft were winging the samples back to the U.S. and arrival was scheduled later today. Samples will be examined in Houston and some will be distributed to foreign experts including Canada's scientists for exhaustive analysis.

Lt.-Gen. Samuel Phillips, Apollo program director, said Apollo 12 will be launched Nov. 14 for a moon landing far to the west of the spot where Armstrong and Aldrin walked on the Sea of Tranquility.

As Dr. Carpentier delivered his report through the MQF window, Aldrin could be seen behind him, perched out in an easy chair, his feet up on a table in the dining area. Armstrong strummed a ukelele for a while.

Carpentier said the spacemen were in excellent spirits.

The doctor said their crucial tests still needed to be conducted on their white corpuscle count and x-rays.

The astronauts have not had time for sleep since splashdown. They have been too busy undergoing tests and unloading the moon samples and film from the command module, Carpentier said at a news conference.

Possibly the oddest quirk of the entire moon mission was that the samples and customs approval before entering the United States.

The space agency is sending with each box of lunar material an empty-eye sworn in as a special customs agent, so the rocks can be approved.

The examination given the precious moon samples will take much longer than the checks scheduled for the astronauts, perhaps several months.

The samples, vacuum-sealed in plastic, together with exposed film taken by the astronauts, will be moved to the lunar receiving laboratory at Houston's big quarantine complex especially built to accommodate the 135 moon explorers.

Tourism Spokesman To Address Rotary

Frederick J. Boyer, executive director of the Department of Tourism and Information, will be guest speaker at Monday's Belleville Rotary Club meeting.

Mr. Boyer heads the Information and Promotion Division of the Department of Tourism and Information. His division co-ordinates the activities of the department's advertising, information and publicity branches.

A native of New Brunswick, he received his early education there, in Ottawa and in Glasgow, Scotland.

Battered Children Not Unheard of Here

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

Five battered Hastings County children were admitted to the Family and Children's Services office during the past six months, a report by the organization reveals.

The report, delivered every six months to municipalities in Hastings County, stated the children were admitted for physical abuse by parents.

Charges of neglect were laid in each instance and in every case a conviction was registered. In the most severe situation a father was sentenced to three months in the county jail.

Nine children were admitted for emergency care and for the most part, three have since been returned home.

The report went on to say that for the first six months of 1969, the intake of children has been somewhat heavier than in former years — 52 children in all.

However, a correspondingly high number have left the care of the organization — 49 children — for a net increase of six only.

At the end of June the Family and Children's Services was responsible for 135 children ranging in age from 10 months to 20 years old.

According to the report, between 55 per cent and 60 per cent of all children taken into care were born to unmarried parents. The most largest group were "unmanageable"— the breakdown in the relationships between them and parents was so severe as to cause the court to find them to be in need of protection and commit them to the custody and care of the organization.

But the report admits that to provide adequate care for these children continues to pose a problem. A big percentage of them are seriously emotionally disturbed and beyond the ability of a rural agency to cope.

The organization's adoption efforts are well received, the report says, with 27 of the organization's own children plus a number of children from other areas being placed in the first six months of 1969.

The number of homes available has, to date, just about matched the supply.

Prince Edward Pea Crop Yields 3,000 Lbs. Per Acre

PICTON — Mr. J. Donald Baxter, president of the Baxter Canning Co., Ltd., Bloomfield, describes the pea yield in the county this year as "exceptional".

Because of the many rains during the growing season Mr. Baxter said that the peas this year are of a mixed maturity. They are being taken from the vine at a much more tender grade than usual to avoid combining any "old" peas.

Average yield per acre this year is 3000 pounds of peas. This figure is down somewhat from last year's average but, in Mr. Baxter's opinion, still represents an excellent yield. The Baxter factory started to can peas July 2 and expects to end the season July 30. "We have worked until midnight every night except Sundays since the season began," said Mr. Baxter.

Currently factory workers are of the pea canning.

A swing to mobile pea-viners have Mr. Baxter's wholehearted approval.

"They are marvellous when there is a shortage of help," he remarked. Last year the Baxter factory used these viners in the township of Hillier. While the "miracle" machines" first came out about nine years ago, it is only within the last four years that they have been used in Prince Edward County.

With the close of the pea season the Baxter labor force will turn their attentions to canning cherry pie filling.

Fair Directors Won't Take City Grant Loss Sitting Down

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Cancellation of this year's customary city grant to the Quinte Exhibition together with the decision of the city parks board not to waive rental for the fairgrounds has left fair directors in something less than a happy frame of mind.

Due to this year's austerity policy at city hall the customary fair grant of $750 — along with many others — was cut from the budget.

In turn, the fair directors earlier this month asked the parks board to give consideration to the waiving of the normal rental fee also for $750 which is paid for use of the fair grounds.

At a July 9 meeting parks board members decided against the fair board request and held that the $750 rental fee must stand.

But fair directors have decided the matter should not be allowed to rest where it is and further discussions seem to be in order.

Two motions were passed by fair directors.

The first calls for the amount of grants paid by other cities by home fairs the size of Belleville to be ascertained, and a brief to be presented to city council.

The second motion calls for a return letter to the parks board stating that due to lack of advance notice and because of cancellation of this year's city grant, the fair board might not be in a position to pay the $750 rental fee for the fairgrounds.

Fair directors noted that the amount of the customary city grant of $750 had allegedly been included in this year's fair budget.

Ald. Arthur Keegan, the city's representative on the fair board, presented the city's point of view on this year's grant cancellation.

Due to the city's austerity program there was just no way out but to cancel many of the customary grants, he said.

Fair secretary manager Ev. Gowsell pointed out, however, that the city's grant to the fair board was different than other grants.

"What other organizations repay the grant to the city as does the fair board?" he asked.

Mr. Gowsell was referring to the fact that the city's $750 grant is paid directly back to the city as rental for the fairgrounds.

The general public, he said, was unaware of this and it was also forgotten by city council.

Fair board president Cameron Bunnett added that the fair board also returns money to the city through improvements at the fairgrounds.

Board member Robert Phillips urged that a cautious attitude be taken with respect to further discussions with the parks board.

"We could be building up to a fight here," he said. "You can catch more flies with honey than with vinegar."

Board Rents Lounge

Exhibitors at the Quinte Exhibition in Belleville this year will have a special lounge at which to spend any leisure time they may have.

Fair directors last night approved rental of the curling club lounge for all five days of the exhibition and fair directors, their guests and card-holding exhibitors will be welcome to make use of its facilities.

Provisions will be made for the serving of sandwiches and other refreshments.

Midway Prices Posted

Visitors to the Quinte Exhibition this year will know exactly what they are getting and how much they will have to pay when they buy hot dogs and other refreshments on the fair midway — or "anyway" at it is to be called.

Prices for all items of food, together with an outline of just exactly what the customer is getting, are to be prominently posted at all stands.

All concession operators at the fair and on the "anyway" have, or will be notified, of the regulations, directors were told.

Parade Precedes Aug. 12 Opening

Belleville Mayor Russell J. Scott will officially open this year's Quinte Exhibition to open Aug. 12 and run for five days.

The official opening of the fair will take place in front of the grandstand at 8 p.m. of the Tuesday, Area dignitaries have been invited for the fair opening.

Prior to the opening a parade forming up at the East Hill playgrounds will pass along Bridge Street en route to the fairgrounds.

Parade committee chairman Arthur Corfield said that the city as rental for the fairgrounds.

local dairy princesses, the Prince Edward Blossom Queen, four bands, old cars, floats and plenty of horses will take part in the parade to the grounds.

Fairground buildings will not open until one o'clock.

The opening day of the fair will see a brief dedication ceremony at the new Ben Bleecker Auditorium at the grounds.

Just before one o'clock a plaque inside the building honoring the late Ben Bleecker, a former fair official, will be unveiled.

Inside Exhibit Space Sold in Plenty of Time

With still more than two weeks remaining before the Quinte Exhibition opens its doors on Aug. 12, all inside display space at the fairgrounds has already been sold.

This was the good news heard last night by agricultural society directors as they held their next to final meeting before the fair opening.

Exhibition secretary-manager Everett Gowsell told directors that the sale of all display space well ahead of the fair opening was in contrast to other years and said it boded well for the success of the exhibition.

Most business firms and other organizations taking space were from outside Belleville, this again being a decided change from other years.

Mr. Gowsell attributed the early sale of space mostly to a change in policy this year which sees no direct charge for display booths but with commercial exhibitors being asked to purchase a minimum number of fair admission tickets for booth workers.

This has resulted in about the same gross revenue as was taken in last year but all people and vehicles concerned with the booths are paid for at the gates.

Parliamentary Dog-Fights

It may have a substantial majority in the House, but Prime Minister Trudeau's government seems to stagger, if not from one crisis to another then from one uproar to another.

The "Trudeaumania" is long since over, to be succeeded by a whole range of red herring issues, uncertainty at home and puzzlement abroad as Ottawa lays its quivering and frequently inept hand on such matters as aid for Biafra, NATO defence policy, recognition of Communist China, the Languages Bill, the cost of living and inflation, the rules debate (over which a great deal of hot air is currently being expended) and the wheat crisis out west.

Looking at these several issues is to realize that in not one has anything of any great moment been accomplished for the good of this nation or for the improvement of our relations abroad. The prime minister shrugs his way through House debate and now has the opposition in full cry because he wants to limit debate in order to speed up the business of the Parliament.

In this debate it cannot be said that either the government or the opposition is distinguishing itself. As far as the electorate is concerned there is little in the current performance of Parliament that merits respect or admiration. We may ask, what is being accomplished that has much bearing on the life of the average Canadian?

At least there are no lack of issues, but most of them are artificial ones that have been manufactured on the premise of change for the sake of change. But how many Canadians are concerned about the Languages Bill, for example, or about Biafra?

So there is Parliament, and every night now we are treated to the spectacle of that other parliament — on television — with the prime minister, the leader of the opposition and assorted members practising the great political art of saying nothing.

For the majority of Canadians it is difficult to deduce what is really going on politically at home and abroad — because the politicians are consuming a great deal of time in fruitless argument over nebulous issues rather than in getting on with the real business of the country.

Even Parliament itself is concerned about this. The furore in the House on Tuesday was such that The Speaker, Lucien Lamoureux, was moved to call for "respect for certain values. . ." and added: ". . . If this is the kind of debate we are going to have today, tomorrow or Thursday or on other days, I wonder how long the House of Commons will survive."

Life's Contrasts

By exploring outer space man is exhibiting his scientific genius and the greatness of which he is capable. But here on earth conflict and tragedy remain an unhappy facet of the daily lives of the world's populations.

Here is a sampling: Nineteen children drowned while bathing in the treacherous Loire River in France; a 20-year-old Australian girl killed by bullets which went through a partition as she sang at a U.S. marine mess; commissioned officers club near Da Nang in Vietnam; a 23-year-old Cornwall, Ont. man drowned in Lake Superior at Perth as his wife watched; New York senator A. H. Robertson stabbed twice in the back when he went to the aid of a police officer trying to break up a fight in Brooklyn. . . .

Then there is Washington, one of the most perilous places for a civilian in the United States. There have been something like 150 murders there this year already and even the area where foreign embassies are located has been the scene of numerous muggings, even involving members of the diplomatic corps. Some embassies have erected stout railings and even barbed wire around their properties.

The good things in the world, like man's questing and adventurous spirit, are very good indeed. At the other end of the scale, at the level of the ghetto, racial discrimination, poverty, murder, rape and sudden death, much of the evil and sorrow of this world is here concentrated. These are the things mankind must seek to erase if life here on earth is to approach more closely the ideal.

The Name Game

Inevitably, some people have become more carried away with the events of the last few days than others. A baby girl in Toronto has been given the name "Tranquillity." In addition to Jennifer Gail. A baby boy has been named Peter John Apollo. The girl at least may live to regret her parents' aberration; parents do their children no favor when they get carried away in this fashion. And what if she turns out to be a redhead with a temper as hot as the lunar surface?

Celebrated Artist-Naturalist

The Genius Who Was John James Audubon

CBC Times

"It's been said that no single person before or since Audubon has contributed so much to the art of painting birds. And no other artist of his time was so sensitively and intimately concerned with the natural wonders of the American scene. That concern was expressed over a hundred years ago. Audubon saw these natural wonders disappearing. He was, indeed, one of the first to realize that the primitive beauty of America might not last forever before his eyes.

Those are the words of Lister Sinclair, who wrote the script of a one-hour color film on the life and work of the great naturalist-artist John James Audubon, which will be telecast on the network July 29th.

Made by the CBC for the international television federation Intertel, the film was two years in the making. The film crew visited many of the places associated with Audubon when he embarked on his life's work early in the 19th century. Sequences were filmed in Western Canada, the Bay of Fundy, Labrador, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, South Carolina, Louisiana, Florida, the Dry Tortugas, and England, Scotland and France.

James Murray, the producer-director of the film, says, "We have tried to capture the feeling of Audubon's wonderfully warm personality. This man was no wide - eyed dreamer. It was an incredible project in those days for him to travel through the vast, uncharted forests and fever-ridden swamps with almost nothing to guide him. Then there was the huge amount of money he had to raise to carry out the engravings. He must have been a man of incredible strength - both mental and physical".

Audubon was the illegitimate offspring of a French naval officer stationed at Les Cayes, Santo Domingo (Haiti) and a Creole woman called Mlle. Rabin. He was given the name Fougere Rabin and was later legitimized in France when his father's wife adopted him. At 15 he was baptised as Jean Jacques Audubon and during these early years seems to have been rather spoilt by his stepmother, so that when the time came for him to go to work he was quite unfitted for it. He had studied painting in Paris for a year when he was 17 and this, together with a keen interest in nature, was his principal diversion when he went to America in 1804 to live at his father's farm near Philadelphia. When his father went bankrupt young Jean Jacques was compelled to work for a living, but he was a hopeless dud at everything he tried and eventually wound up a bankrupt himself.

Flit he tried to become a general merchant in the Kentucky wilderness, but more often than not it was his partner, an equally inexperienced Frenchman, who bore the brunt while Jean Jacques was off studying birds. In 1808 he had the good fortune and sense to marry a remarkable woman named Lucy Bakewell who not only believed in his genius but who was later to become the main support of their family.

At the time of his marriage Audubon had started on what was to become his great master work, Birds of North America (and had also embarked on a feud with the Scottish ornithologist Alexander Wilson that was to last many years). Complete disaster struck in 1810 when Audubon was declared bankrupt and imprisoned for debt. Then for a while he became a taxidermist in Cincinnati. Lucy took things in hand and reorganized their lives. Henceforth her husband would devote himself to his work of painting all North American birds (although occasionally he gave drawing lessons and painted portraits) while she, taking up a position as a governess, would support the family, an arrangement that continued for 12 years.

By 1826 Audubon felt he had enough material to place before a publisher and went to Europe in search of interest. First recognition came in Great Britain, where he was received enthusiastically by scientific and art circles. The first publication of The Birds of America was arranged by Robert Havell of London, who issued the work in parts to subscribers. Audubon then spent the next few years going back and forth between Europe and the United States, completing his life's work and overseeing the publication of his studies. All told there were 435 hand-colored plates issued in four volumes between 1827 and 1838, a later text in five volumes, Ornithological Biography (1831-39), and a one-volume index A Synopsis of the Birds of North America (1839). He was assisted in his work by his two sons, Victor and John, and in the writing of the text by William MacGillivray.

After the success of The Birds of America Audubon was to have only a few years of useful life ahead of him, for towards the end of his life his mind was clouded by senility. He returned to the United States in 1839, settled in New York and after preparing a smaller edition of The Birds of America, produced his other major work Viviparous Quadrupeds of North America. Again his sons were his principal assistants and on the text his old friend the naturalist Reverend John Bachman was the collaborator. Audubon saw only part of this five-volume work published in his lifetime. The plates were issued in two volumes between 1845 and '46 but of the three volumes of text, only one appeared before his powers failed. He died in 1851, the complete version of his last work being published three years later.

Council Urged to Tackle Rodent Problem in City

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Monday afternoon (July 21st) I went to the City Council meeting with a plea that something be done about the rat problem in this city. I was listened to politely, but felt that the majority of aldermen present took my complaint lightly. When I read the report of the Council meeting in last night's paper, I was convinced that I was taken lightly. If one does not have a problem that personally affects them, then that problem does not exist.

Quite true, Mr. Mayor, Mr. Westlake did check out one property at my request, "but saw no rats". One seldom, however, will see a rat during the day time, unless it is dead. I would suggest that the health department conduct tours of inspection after dark if they want to see live rats, or to hire a full-time professional exterminator who knows what he signs in look for if rats are suspected, if these tours must be conducted between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Ten days ago an exterminator went to a home with me to assess the situation. This home is an extreme problem. Although we didn't actually see any rats, the signs were there — stove, refrigerator, washing machine wires all chewed by the rats, potential house explosion-causing less and potential fire hazards; food and clothing chewed and eaten up; large holes in walls and floors upstairs and down. All this damage and more was done by these vicious, cunning nocturnal animals. This house is not unique. There are many others in the city that are as bad. It happens to be the worst that I have seen, and I did go and I did ask for myself, and was shocked. A very severe fire hazard, without doubt.

I have appealed to all the powers that be, and the buck has been passed. I will be passed again Monday afternoon, if a positive step were taken now to clean up the rat-infested areas in this city, it would do a lot to eliminate a very dangerous situation in the fall. But first and foremost — before a problem can be eliminated, it must be faced.

Live and Let Live

Letter to the Hamilton Spectator

I keep on reading about these filthy, dirt-talking hippies in downtown Gore Park, but have yet to see or hear them for myself.

Any man or boy who wears his hair long is considered a hippie, and anyone who uses language different to the Queen's English, is considered as "talking dirty".

Whenever we are downtown, my six-year-old son and I sit in Gore Park and really enjoy it. I've had cigarettes bummed off me a couple of times; so what? The day I can't spare a cigarette I may as well quit altogether. Sometimes a student gives me a disjointed account of his life; doesn't hurt me to listen!

When my son's toy broke down one time, it was a long-haired youth who came over and fixed it for him.

If we constantly look for the worst in people then this is all we'll ever find.

Let's leave them alone and not make rebels of these harmless people, we have enough vandals and hooligans to worry about without dogging the innocent.

If we are "the public" then they are too and have every right to sit in Gore Park and talk about whatever they will, and if they "ogle" girls and women they are not alone in this. All men "ogle" and women love it!

Mary Temperton,
Hamilton.

Political Career in Jeopardy

Unanswered Questions in Kennedy Accident Mystery

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — One of the many strange aspects of the Kennedy affair is the dearth of public comment in this generally gabby city populated by "well-informed," "usually reliable" and "inside" sources.

Whether out of sympathy for Senator Edward Kennedy or a healthy self-protective regard for the laws of libel, public comment has been minimal while, of course, the case remains a prime topic of private conversation.

Since Saturday, when secretary Mary Jo Kopechne died after the senator's car rolled off a narrow bridge on Chappaquiddick Island, Mass., the story has vied with the moon landing for front-page space.

One of the few to venture a statement was Democratic Senator Mike Mansfield who said Kennedy continues "to have my full confidence" and that he did not think the incident would injure Kennedy's career. The accident, the Senate majority leader said, was something that could have happened to any man.

The Evening Star, the only Washington newspaper to offer an editorial opinion, was quick to compliment Mansfield for his compassion.

But the newspaper adds that while the accident could indeed have happened to any man "it would not be true to say that the half-hearted investigation of the case by the Massachusetts authorities is something that any man could expect."

Mansfield's, kind words aside, there is no doubt here that Kennedy's apparently irreversible progress toward the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972 has been severely shaken.

In the view of veteran observers, it is not a question of whether or not his career has been damaged, but to what degree it has been damaged—perhaps even fatally so.

What has most upset law officers so far is that Kennedy did not report the accident until at least eight hours later, when he arrived with a lawyer to make a statement. He has been charged with leaving the scene of an accident, his driver's licence has been suspended and other charges are under consideration as officials apparently have second thoughts about the whole affair.

What most upsets others, however, is that the statement leaves many of the key facts unanswered and the longer Kennedy leaves them unanswered the less credible the answers would seem to be.

The gist of his statement was that he dived several times trying to save the girl, then walked a mile or more to the cottage where he and Miss Kopechne and others had attended a party—apparently passing at least two lighted houses along the way.

There he climbed into the back seat of a parked car and subsequently was taken back to his hotel on mainland, deciding to go to police after recovering from shock and exhaustion.

What the statement does not say is how long he stayed in the back seat of the car, what explanation, if any, he gave his friends for his wet-soaked clothing and his missing car and passenger. Nor does it clarify why no doctor was summoned nor how he got to the other side of the channel—a two-car ferry having been closed for the night.

Says The Star: "If the authorities cannot or will not answer them, it is up to the senator. He knows or can ascertain most of the answers if he wants to do so."

By Tuesday Kennedy had said he would make a further statement at the appropriate time.

But in the meantime here he had already delayed a dangerously long time.
